THINKS THE MYSTERY IS NOT SOLVED

Hamilton Printer Says the Original Circular Was the Work of an Expert Typist -- Inquest Tonight.

WILL CLOSE CASE

HAMILTON, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press). — Claude McCarthy, the printer who identified James Buchanan as the man who left the order for the "beauty powder" circulars, thinks that the whole mystery of the poisoning of Anderson Buchanan has not been solved. When asked as to what was now mysterious about the case, he said: "Who composed the original sample from which we printed the circulars? Buchanan might have done the actual composing of the circulars, but he certainly did not do the typewriting, for it was the work of an expert typist. No, there is some one else connected with the mystefy yet to be discovered."

TORONTO, January 30th. — Until Saturday morning, the authorities had been arranging to call a number of witnesses, including a professional man, but with the death of Buchanan this will not be necessary.

Woman as Witness.

There will be but four witnesses to-night: Chief Coroner George W. Graham; Detective Sergeant Bart J. Cronin; Claude W. McCarthy, the Hamilton printer who identified Buchanan's body as that of the man who ordered the "beauty powder" circulars printed, and Miss Catherine Stumpf, of 220 Dovercourt Road.

Chief Coroner Graham is adopting a new plan in connection with his official investigation into the death of James Buchanan. An autopsy was ordered and performed yesterday by Dr. C. H. Gilmour, who found that death was due to gas poisoning, and that Buchanan died by his own hand by turning on the gas at the stove in his home.

The Chief Coroner, having decided that the man died by his own hand, has closed up the investigation into the death of Buchanan without the formality of a hearing before a jury.

He will appear at the inquest to-night and tell the jury that his finding is that Buchanan died by his own hand, fearing arrest for the murder of his son. This step is taken because the Chief Coroner feels that the two investigations are more or less joined and that one depends on the other. Chief Coroner Graham has made a full report showing how the body was found in the room filled with gas in the house on Playter Boulevard, and in this report he has included the finding of the post-mortem doctor.

The evidence of Detective Sergeant Cronin will relate to his investigation of the murder of Anderson Buchanan and the obtaining of the clue showing that the circulars had been printed in Hamilton. He is also expected to tell of his search for the place where the strychnine from which the youth died was obtained.

Where Strychnine Came From.

The officer has interviewed a number of persons, including a one-time edical man who has admitted having had strychnine in his medicine abinet and that outsiders might have had access to it. He has told he police that the strychnine was nder lock and key, but the authoriies are fairly well convinced that

HYDRO RAISED PETERBORO POWER CHARGE TO $22.50

Consumption of Power Reached New Peak of 5,520 H.P. at the Close of 1921, According to Annual Report of H. O. Fisk to the Utilities Commission.

Service Was Good.

"The surprise of the year was the increase in the price of power of Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario to us from $17.50 to $22.50 per horse power" is one of the striking sentences in the interesting and informative seventh annual report of H.O. Fisk, manager of the electrical branch of the Peterboro Utilities Commission.

The complete text follows:—

The power demand for 1912, which is the index of Peterborough's prosperity has shown a very considerable increase over anything previously experienced. In fact on December 31st we reached a peak of 5520 H.P. which was considerably higher than anything we attained in 1920. The power supply from the Hydro during the year has been very satisfactory. The frequency has been exceptionally close and the voltage regulation almost perfect. This is undoubtedly due to a large extent to the large capacity power line direct from Auburn to Healey Falls. This close regulation has made a very great saving not only in the commission' street lamps, but has given all our consumers the maximum amount of light with the minimum amount of cost. The quantity purchased was 14,000,000 kilowatt hours.

No Water Trouble

It is gratifying to be able to say that this year we did not experience any power shortage due to low water trouble, notwithstanding the fact that the total rainfall for the year was slightly less than it was the previous year it being 29.95" for 1921 and 30.77" for 1920. The Kawartha Lake storage system has been exceptionally well handled and reflects great credit on the work of the Department of Railway and Canals so efficiently handled by Mr. Killaly in this vicinity, although we were embarrassed for a days by reason of an accident at Healey Falls which put that power house out of commission for sometime.

The Rate Increase

However, the surprise of the year was the increase in the price of powed of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario to us from $17.50 to $22.50 per H.P. So far this very heavy increase has been absorbed by our Commission, whether this can be perpetually carried, and keep up the re-building and extension programme, so vital to good service, is a debatable question In the meantime we are proceeding cautiously, hoping that as deflation takes place this unpleasant wrinkle will be finally ironed out.

Frozen Water Pipes

Owing to the very mild and favourable winter the Water Department enjoyed unusual freedom from frozen services, and the Electric Department was not called upon to do any thawing.

General Improvement

A considerable amount of general improvement of the system was carried out during the past year, practically everything north of Smith street has been rebuilt on a much heavier and up to date scale. A power circuit was also extended to the new Filtration Plant for the

THE TRAGEDY OF GREATNESS

Interesting Address by Bishop William Quayle in Trinity Methodist Church--Art of Laughing.

"Cassius would not laugh. If men don't laugh it isn't because there are no jokes, because we are all here. The funniest things in the world are people. When women wear furs in winter, that is appropriate. Animals do the same. But when a woman wears furs in August, she is a 'jokess.' Humour is not the art of telling a jest, it is the art of seeing the point, the same summer that the point comes. Women have the art of laughing. A man does not often laugh extemporaneously or robustiously, but women laugh constantly, consecutively, easily and deliciously. They can laugh at nothing. When they see a man, they giggle"

With a drily humorous tone, a drawling accent and a dramatic delivery, Bishop William Quayle, D.D., of the Methodist Episcopal Church of St. Louis, Missouri, entertained a large and appreciative audience at Trinity church on Saturday evening last, with an address on "The Tragedy of Greatness" which ranged from a histrionic presentation of scenes from "Julius Caesar," the theme of his discourse, to whimsical and humorous references to life, men and manners, and reminiscence associated with his long career as a minister and observer of people and things.

"The Tragedy of Greatness," as exemplified in Shakespeare's drama of great men, "Julius Caesar," dealt with "the envious greatness of Cassius, the ingenuous greatness of Brutus, the soldier greatness of Mark Antony, and the universal greatness of Julius Caesar."

Thrill of Greatness.

"The thrill of greatness is upon us all. Caesar was the great man, the sun, of this play, the rest were his satellites. We haven't many great men, but the few that we have are celestial as well as terrestrial."

"Cassius had a lean and hungry look. Lean men are not to be trifled

Critics of Lloyd George Say His New Home May Cost Him Premiership

LONDON, January 30. — Premier Lloyd-George recently bought from Lord Ashcombe an estate of 70 acres, near Farnham, about forty miles out from London, and commissioned an architect to design and build a comfortable, modern house thereon.

Some London papers announced the cost of building the house would be £15,000. Indignant denials that the Prime iMnister was spending any such sum in building a house were at once issued from Downing Street, where it was stated the cost would not exceed £5,000.

On the theory that the lie, which has twenty-four hours' start, is overtaken with difficulty, it is predicted here that Mr. Lloyd-George's Farnham residence may cost him the Premiership when there is a general election, which Mr. Asquith in a speech said would come sooner or later, and sooner rather than later.

The newspapers and political cliques opposed to the Coalition Government of which Mr. Lloyd-George is the head are making much talk about the Premier's certain downfall in the course of the present day.

Lord Grey has been scoffing at the idea that there is no alternative to the present Government, and Mr. Asquith to-day declared there were at least a half-dozen equally good alternatives. Impartial observers agree that Coalition stock is steadily depreciating, but the betting is still strongly in favour of Mr. Lloyd-George winning out.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND
By "SAPPER"

Slowly the hours dragged on, until the last gleams of daylight had faded from the skylight above, and a solitary electric light, hung centrally, gave the only illumination. Periodically Heinrich had come in to see that they were still secure; but from the sounds of the hoarse laughter which came at frequent intervals through the half-open door, it was evident that the German had found other and more congenial company. At length he appeared carrying a tray with bread and water on it, which he placed on a table near Hugh.

"Food for you, you English swine," he remarked, looking gloatingly at each in turn. "Herr Lakington the order gave, so that you will fit be to-morrow morning. Fit for the torture." He thrust his flushed face close to Drummond's, and then deliberately spat at him.

Algy Longworth gave a strangled grunt, but Drummond took no notice. For the past half-hour he had been sunk in thought, so much so that the others had believed him asleep. Now, with a quiet smile, he looked up at the German.

"How much, my friend," he remarked, "are you getting for this?"

The German leered at him.

"Enough to see that you to-morrow are here," he said.

"And I always believed that yours was a business nation," laughed Hugh. "Why, you poor fool, I've got a thousand pounds in my cigarette-case." For a moment the German stared at him; then a look of greed came into his pig-eyes.

"You hof, hof you?" he grunted. "Then the filthy Boche will for you of them take care."

Hugh looked at him angrily.

"If you do," he cried, "you must let me go."

The German leered still more.

"Naturlich. You shall out of the house at once with."

He stepped up to Drummond and ran his hands over his coat, while the others stared at one another in amazement. Surely Hugh didn't imagine the swine would really let him go; he would merely take the money and probably spit in his face again. Then they heard him speaking, and a sudden gleam of comprehension dawned on their faces.

"You'll have to undo one of the ropes," my friend, before you can get at it," said Hugh quietly.

For a moment the German hesitated. He looked at the ropes carefully; the one that bound the arms and the upper part of the body was separate from the rope round the legs. Even if he did undo it the fool Englishman was still helpless, and he knew that he was unarmed. Had he not himself removed his revolver, as he lay unconscious in the hall? What risk was there, after all? Besides, if he called someone else in he would have to share the money.

And, as he watched the German's indecision, Hugh's forehead grew damp with sweat. Would he undo the rope? Would greed conquer caution?

At last the Boche made up his mind, and went behind the chair. Hugh felt him fumbling with the rope, and flashed an urgent look of caution at the other two.

"You'd better be careful, Heinrich," he remarked, "that none of the others see, or you might have to share."

The German ceased undoing the knot, and grunted. The English swine had moments of brightness, and he went over and closed the door. Then he resumed the operation of untying the rope; and, since it was performed behind the chair, he was in no position to see the look on Drummond's face. Only the two spectators could see that, and they had almost ceased breathing in their excitement. That he had a plan they knew: what it was they could not even guess.

At last the rope fell clear, and the German sprang back.

"Put the case on the table," he cried, having not the slightest intention of coming within range of those formidable arms.

"Certainly not," said Hugh, "until you undo my legs. Then you shall have it."

Quite loosely he was holding the case in one hand; but the others, watching his face, saw that it was strained and tense.

"First I the notes must have." The German strove to speak conversationally, but all the time he was creeping nearer to the back of the chair. "Then I your legs undo, and you may go."

Algy's warning cry rang out simultaneously with the lightning dart of the Boche's hand as he snatched at the cigarette-case over Drummond's shoulder. And then Drummond laughed a low, triumphant laugh. It was the move he had been hoping for, and the German's wrist was held fast in his vice-like grip. His plan had succeeded.

And Longworth and Sinclair, who had seen many things in their lives, the remembrance of which will be with them till their dying day, had never seen and are never likely to see anything within measurable distance of what they saw in the next few minutes. Slowly, inexorably, the German's arm was being twisted, while he uttered hoarse, gasping cries, and beat impotently at Drummond's head with his free hand. Then at last there was a dull crack as the arm broke, and a scream of pain, as he lurched round the chair and stood helpless in front of the soldier, who still held the cigarette-case in his left hand.

They saw Drummond open the cigarette-case and take from it what looked like a tube of wood. Then he felt in his pocket and took out a matchbox, containing a number of long thin splinters. And, having fitted one of the splinters into the tube, he put the other end in his mouth.

With a quick heave they saw him jerk the German round and catch his unbroken arm with his free left hand. And the two bound watchers looked at Hugh's eyes as he stared at the moaning Boche, and saw that they were hard and merciless.

There was a sharp, whistling hiss, and the splinter flew from the tube into the German's face. It hung from his cheek, and even the ceaseless movement of his head failed to dislodge it.

"I have broken your arm, Boche," said Drummond at length, "and now I have killed you. I'm sorry about it: I wasn't particularly anxious to end your life. But it had to be done."

INSPECTORS AND COUNTY IN DISPUTE

Oppose Reduction of Their Expense Allowances to Pre-War Figures—Judge Hears the Argument.

Mr. Lees' Objections.

A dispute between Public School Inspectors Richard Lees and G. E. Broderick, on the one side, and the county council on the other, was submitted to Judge Huycke on Friday afternoon. It involved a reduction of the Inspectors' expense allowances which the Council cut a year ago to pre-war figures. The Inspectors objected that even the increase they had received was insufficient for their needs in the performance of their duties, and Mr. Lees presented a statement of his travelling expense to support his protest.

Speaking for the Council, in outlining the case Warden Strickland said the chief objection was made against Mr. Lee's charges for the operation and upkeep of his automobile, and W. A. Anderson said that the issue was the meaning of "reasonable expenses."

Mr. Lees told Judge Huycke that the Council had fixed his allowance for travelling expenses at $400 a year in 1910, and Mr. Broderick's at $144, in 1911. Mr. Broderick's territory was the townships of Smith, Ennismore, Harvey, Galway and Cavendish. At the beginning of 1919, the Council increased the expense allowance 25 per cent. to $500 and $180 respectively.

"A year ago, without consulting us the Council passed a resolution reducing the rates to the old figures," Mr. Lees continued. "We said we were not prepared to accept it. We let it stand over, but no recommendation was made in June."

Mr. Lee's Account.

Mr. Lees' expense account for 1921 was given approximately as follows:

Operating automobile	$300.00
Depreciation automobile	150.00
Meals and lodging	103.40
Postage, etc.	50.00
Railway fares.....	14.75
Printing, etc.	20.00
Special meetings..	10.00
Total	$648.15

His total expenses in 1920 were $645.20. The boarding and other small items were exact, but the car figures were an average for six years. Mr. Lees said that he had an exact record of his automobile expenses during that time. He was required to make at least 180 visits annually to schools in his inspectorate. Last year he had made 223. Had he hired a horse and buggy from a livery the average cost would have been $2.50 a visit, which would make a total of $450 for the year. This was identical with his automobile

WINTER HORSE SHOW BANQUET AT MILLBROOK

Seventy-five Guests Sat Down at Festive Board —After-Dinner Speeches Replete With Interest

Notable Speakers

MILLBROOK, Jan. 30.—About 75 guests sat down to the banquet following the Winter Horse Show on Friday, January 27th, at 6 p.m., with Mr. R. J. McKnight, President of the Millbrook Agricultural Society, occupying the chair.

By request of the directors the banquet was served by the "Golden Sheaf" Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, in their handsome dining hall, and all agreed that the menu was an unusually satisfactory one, well planned, well cooked and well-served.

Following the toast to "The King," responded to in the usual manner, the chairman made a brief opening address, referring especially to the many advantages which he personally, as well as other members of the class, had received from the Short Course in Agriculture held in Millbrook eight years ago under the supervision of Mr. Duncan, who was then the district representative.

Reeve W. T. Wood, the next speaker, extended a hearty welcome on behalf of the village to the exhibitors at the show, the visiting and local officials, the instructors and students of the Short Course, and the other guests of the evening.

Unqaulified Success.

Being necessarily absent on account of attending the sessions of the County Council in Cobourg, he had been unable to be present at the Horse Show that afternoon, but had been pleased to learn of its unqualified success, and during his stay in Cobourg he had been asked by Reeve Phillips of Brighton, and others, how the Fair was conducted, it being well and favorably known all over the country.

Mr. J. N. McGill, the secretary-treasurer of the Agricultural Society, referred to the fact that, while the government is willing to undertake the expense of the Short Course classes, it was unfortunate that more of the young farmers of the community had not availed themselves of the splendid opportunity of attending the lectures during the past four weeks, Mr. McGill also intimated that the Agricultural Society is seriously considering the advisability of branching out and holding a sheep, cattle and seed fair here next winter.

Agricultural Course.

Mr. Stewart McGill, vice-president of the Young Farmers' Improvement Association, and Mr. Harry Seymour, secretary-treasurer, spoke on behalf of the Short Course, referring to the able manner in which Mr. Paterson had conducted the classes, and both thanked the Agricultural Society for the help which they had received from the lectures and the practical work done.

Mr. F. C. Paterson of the Department of Agriculture, Port Hope, spoke briefly of the pleasure of conducting the class here, and while regretting that there had not been a

Most Successful Dance

The officers and members of the Bemersyde Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire gave a very enjoyable dance in the Opera House on Friday evening. Te hall looked exceedingly pretty in Japanese effect. The lights were done with streamers and chrysanthemums and orchestra of seven pieces supplied the music and made the dance a very jolly one. The patronesses were: Mrs.) (Dr. Haig, Mrs. J. P. Archer, Mrs. (Dr.) Watson, Mr. D. W. Douglas Mrs. George O'Sullivan, Mrs. (Dr.) F. Free, Mrs. Matt. Mulhearn, Mrs. (Dr.) E. F. Richardson.

Sunday Services

Rev. J. T. Daley of Port Hope, who is in charge of the Children's Aid Society for Northumberland and Durham Counties gave two very able and inspiring addresses, yesterday in the morning at St. Andrew's church and in the evening in the Methodist church. On both occasions there were large congregations and Mr. Daley after showing the necessity of the work, clearly outlined his work referring to work which the Children's Aid Society has been doing perhaps unknown to many right in Campbellford. Mr. Daley is a clear logical speaker and carries his hearers into the spirit of his great work.

The Ladies Aid of the Methodist Church will hold their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. J. A. Irwin, on Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. H. B. Kenny will give an illustrated "Travel Talk on Old London" in the Methodist church on Friday night, under the auspices of the Sunday School. With such an interesting subject and the reputation, Mr. Kenny has already earned as a lecturer, possessed of rare wit and humour, there is no doubt but that there will be a full house. A musical programme of vocal solos, instrumental numbers and selections by the orchestra are also included.

Snow-Laden Roof of Theatre Exacts Terrible Death Toll

Over Ninety Lives Lost in Washington Disaster — Roof of Motion Picture Theatre Caved In—Audience Was Following Sputtering Course of Comedy at the Time — Rescue Workers Recover Most of the Bodies.

Many Were Pinned to Their Seats.

WASHINGTON, January 30. — Canadian Press. — The official police records place the known dead in the Knickerbocker Theatre disaster at 107. Elimination of duplication in names brought the final total down from the unofficial peak of 112. Family groups predominated in the audience, which gathered to watch the rollicking comedy in the Knickerbocker, one of the newest and the largest of the capital's pleasure resorts ,and also one of the most exclusive. tIwas upon these that the roof weakened with tons of snow descended with barely a whispered warning.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press.)—Ninety persons are known to have lost their lives in the collapse last night of the snow-laden roof of the Knickerbocker Motion Picture Theatre. Rescue workers, fighting a desperate battle through dark and daylight, had recovered that number last night. More than a hundred others are known to have been injured. An avalanche of broken plaster, bricks, snow, splintered wooden and twisted steel beams catapulting upon the audience while the orchestra played and a comedy film ground out, is the description of the Knickerbocker Theatre disaster given by Representative John H. Smithwick, of Pensacola, Florida. He was in the balcony of the theatre when the roof collapsed under its weight of snow and escaped unaided—just how, he can not recall—with more or less serious hurts.

"The orchestra was playing beautiful music and a comic film was running," said Mr. Smithwick, lying in his bed, bandaged and with his face and hands covered with cuts. "Suddenly there was a sharp crack. I looked up and saw a great fissure running across the

SHACKLETON ON LAST LAP

Noted Explorer Died on Board the "Quest" on January 5—Expedition Will Continue.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press.)— Sir Ernest Shackleton, the British explorer, died January fifth, on board the steamship Quest, on which he was making another expedition into the Antarctic regions.

Death was due to angina pectoris, and occurred when the Quest was off the Gritvidken Station.

The body was brought to Montevideo on board a Norwegian steamer and will be taken by another steamer to Europe.

Captain L. Hussey of the Quest, will accompany the body home.

Professor Gruvel and the other members of the explorer's party will continue the expedition.

Sir Ernest Shackleton was born in 1874. He was a third lieutenant in the British National Antarctic Expedition in 1901, and in 1907-09 commanded an expedition which got to within 97 miles of the South Pole. He made his third quest of the Pole in 1914.

The expedition in which he was engaged when he died was to have covered 30,000 miles of unchartered sections of the South Atlantic, the Pacific and the Antarctic seas.

On baord the Quest, a little 200 ton ship, Sir Ernest set sail from England last September on what was to have been a two-year voyage. Large crowds gathered on the docks in London to wish the party a successful voyage.

BORN IN LAKEFIELD, DIED IN OREGON, U.S.A.

Death Comes Suddenly to Mrs. L. J. Roberts.

Born in Lakefield, April 14, 1880, where she spent her girlhood, Mrs. L. J. Roberts, whose maiden name was Mina J. Ingram, passed away quite unexpectedly at her home, Myrtle Point, Coos County, Ore., U. S.A., on Sunday, January 15. Death was due to throat trouble, developing from a cold, under stress of which her heart failed her.

A cousin of Mrs. (Rev.) Brown, deceased located with her at Myrtle Point in 1904, when the reverend gentleman assumed the pastorate of the M. E. church. They resided there a year and then moved to Coquille, where Rev. Mr. Browne served the M. E. congregaion for a year. It was while they were living at Coquille that Mr. and Mrs. Roberts were married, the ceremony being performed June 6, 1906. At that time Mr. Roberts was engaged with the writer in publishing the Myrtle Point Enterprise, predecessor of the American. In February, 1912, Mr. and Mrs. Roberts moved to the S. S. Endicott ranch on the Middle Fork road, which they had purchased and where they continued to reside up to the time of her decease.

Interment was made in Myrtle Point cemetery on Tuesday, January 17.

It was a piece of good fortune if there could be good fortune in such a case, that Mrs. Sarah Stuart, of Toronto, Can., sister of Mrs. Roberts, could be with her at the time of her sickness and death, she having come a few weeks previously for a visit. She and a brother, Henry J. Ingram ,of Lakefield, Ont., are the only surviving members of the family.

The late Mrs. Roberts gave considerable time to public affairs and was of an exceedingly lovable and charitable character.

MENNONITES WILL MOVE OUT CANADA

WINNIPEG, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—To locate on land purchased at Durango, Mexico, approximately 1,500 Mennonites from Southern Manitoba and the Wymark district, Saskatchewan, will leave about March 1, it was learned from railway officials here yesterday. Officials of several Canadian and United States railway companies conferred with Mennonites at Swift Current earlier in the week, where it was decided that about 1,000 old colony Mennonites would leave the settlements in Manitoba and 500 from Wymark, near Swift Current.

The school policies of the western provinces are responsible for the Mennonites leaving and rumours of their departure from Canada have been rife for the past two years.

WHEAT SHIPMENTS.

CALGARY, Alta., January 30. — Local grain men estimate that the total bookings of wheat via Vancouver this season will amount to approximately seven million bushels.

In the course of an interview yesterday with one of the representatives in Calgary of Vancouver exporting houses, the Canadian Press was informed that the premium that was now being paid for wheat going via the coast as compared with Fort William represented an average of $100 a car. "There is every indication that great as has the increase been this season in the Vancouver shipment that this will be largely increased next season.

POSTED A FORFEIT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—William A. Brady, theatrical producer and sports promoter, Saturday placed $50,000 in a bank here as a forfeit and guarantee of his good faith in seeking to arrange a match between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills, negro heavyweight.

Mr. Brady said that if he could bring Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, to believe in the success of such a bout, he would immediately post an additional $150,000.

DEVELOP HOME TALENT.

The policy of buying at home is one The Examiner has ever tried to carry out in its own business and to keep before the people of Peterborough. The general adoption of this principle would help many of the city's industries, and keep the local stores humming with activity. There is need of such a policy too in other lines than merchandize. It has become a fad to send out of Peterborough for orchestras for social functions. Organizations vie with each other in seeking the most costly "jazz" musicians, and the rivalry in this respect has gone on until it is reported that it cost one local organization $250 to furnish the music for a recent affair. Needless to say, there is not much profit in functions of this kind. Why should it be necessary to be so extravagant? There is musical talent in Peterborough, enough of it to supply all the orchestras that are needed, if it could be encouraged and developed. The local musicians themselves are to some extent responsible for the fact that they are passed over in favor of outsiders. They have not made the best use of the material at their disposal, and have failed to consider the advisability of coming together in an orchestral society that would bring out the latent talent and prove to the community that Peterborough musicians are not afraid of outside competition. There is a splendid field open for such a body here, and the musician who can visualize the opportunity and take advantage of it can prove of great service to musical Peterborough and to citizens generally.

SOLID AS THE CONTINENT.

Taking as we may the annual report of an institution as large and important as the North American Life as a gauge of financial conditions, we have reason to view with optimism the outlook for the future. In every important feature of the business marked increases were made. After pointing out the continued success in business written, the President, Mr. L. Goldman, at the recent annual meeting of directors and policyholders, referred with just pride to the company's assets, now amounting to $21,877,767.00. After liabilities have been fully provided for there is a substantial net surplus of $3,025,364.90, establishing beyond a doubt the unexcelled financial position of the company.

Policies issued and revived during the year amounted to $20,279,954, marking one of the most successful years in the history of the company. The total assurance now in force amounts to $106,006,567, the highest mark reached in the company's history.

The management of the company bend every effort towards advancing the interests of the policyholders. During 1921 over $1,963,000 was paid to policyholders. Of this amount, $454,051.69 represented dividends, and at the same time the company announces that the dividends payable in 1922 will be on the same liberal basis. It is to be noted that during the past ten years this company has paid the sum of $2,871,081.23 as dividends or surplus to policyholders. A survey of the 41st annual report must renew the sense of pride and security which every North American Life policyholder enjoys.

Mr. Geo. Benor is the manager of this well-established company in Peterborough.

A BUSINESS-LIKE ACTION.

Ald Crowe, chairman of the Fire, Water, and Light Committee, does well to investigate the stories that are being circulated in regard to the manner in which a recent fire was handled by the local Brigade. If there is no foundation for these reports, the Fire Department should be cleared, so far as this instance is concerned at least, of the charge of being inefficient; if the rumours are largely true, the ratepayers have a right to know the facts. No harm will come of hearing from those who were present at the fire in question. The Fire Department is a very costly part of the civic plant. Year by year it has received a larger appropriation, until at present a considerable portion of the annual budget is represented by the expenditure upon the Fire Department. The people who pay to maintain the Brigade do not, as a rule, object to the expenditure, but they have a natural desire to know that they are getting value for their money. Stories that cast reflection upon the efficiency of the Department cannot be allowed to circulate. Either they are true or they are not. If they are false, the reputation of the Depatment should be cleared; if they are in the main correct, the whole question or the maintenance and operation of the Brigade should be taken under revision by the City Council. There should be no hesitation in this regard—it is a business matter, and requires treatment as such, although previous Councils have allowed personal considerations and the fear of treading upon someone's toes to sway their judgment.

THE RURAL SCHOOL PROBLEM.

School Inspector Broderick, in his annual report to the Peterborough County Council, recommended the county plan of managing the public schools as opposed to the present system by which they are under the control of district trustee boards. Certainly the educational policy of the Province is in need of being rebuilt in so far as rural schools are concerned. The rapidly decreasing rural school population has made a change imperative. In some school sections of this Province there are schools with only two or three pupils, and that these are not isolated cases is shown by the fact that the report of the Minister of Education shows there are some 1,500 schools in the Province with ten or fewer pupils on the roll and over 500 of these have six or fewer. Education must be provided for these few children in each section, and under the present policy the expense is as great for ten as for forty, as the schools must be maintained, teachers supplied, and all the other expenditures made. Consolidated schools, the machinery for which is provided by the Ontario Government, would do much to solve the problem, but there has been difficulty in persuading people of the advantage of the union of a number of school sections and the erection of a central school to which their children could be carried by vans or motors; in spite of the fact that the Ontario Department of Education provides generous grants for such schools. The decision to unite must be unanimous. For instance, if the people of four school sections voted upon the consolidated school plan and only one section was opposed, the plan could not be proceeded with. Of course at another election the three sections who favoured the idea could adopt a consolidated school; but delays of this kind make it difficult to arouse enthusiasm.

The whole question calls for earnest thought and the close attention of the Government, municipalities, school boards, and all others who are interested in education. The present system is economically unsound and expensive. It should be scrapped in favour of a policy that will reckon with the fact that many rural school sections of Ontario are almost childless.

A LESSON FROM FRANCE.

France is today affording the world a concrete example of the dangers of group government. The Republic has suffered from a multitude of blocs or parties ever since the Revolution launched her into the sea of popular government. Few of these parties have become strong enough to rule without consideration of rival groups, with the result that the political life of France has been one continuous succession of bargainings and alliances, which have made for instability of government and opportunism.

Responsible party government as it is understood in Great Britain and in Canada is not a part of the French system. While Canada, until recently, has been content with two parties in her political system, France has splintered her Legislative Chamber into seven or more major groups, with lesser party constellations like the nebulous bodies of a comet's tail.

The effect of this multiplication of parties is found in the constant political upheavals to which France has been subjected during the last half-century. Since Confederation Canada has had eleven Ministries. During the same period France has changed its administration more than thirty times.

It was in protest against this jockeying for power that is a necessary corollary of the group system that Briand cried, "It is considered an unseemly thing to remain in power for more than one year," and when he declared that it was not applause but support which a Premier needed.

The splitting up of large parties into a number of small groups must have a disintegrating effect on government. The object which any group or bloc seeks to achieve is essentially narrow in scope and limited in appeal. The group concentrates on a single target and trades with other groups in order to attain its object. In such cases a national policy becomes a thing of shreds and patches, an amalgamation of compromises counterbalances.

It has been fortunate for France that the objects for which these groups have struggled in the past have been on the whole in the best interests of the country. The trouble has been that in concentrating on what was too often a minor benefit the group overlooks important national issues. Moreover when the bloc has come into power it becomes dependent on the personality of its leader for continuance in office or has had to modify its principles and water its reasonable demands in order to conciliate rival groups. There is always the tendency that the bloc, intent on the single object which justifies its existence, may set such an exaggerated importance on that object that it is willing to compromise on other issues. The bloc may be so manipulated for a time that its success is assured, but selfishness and narrowness are poor reagents of cohesion and sooner or later the group is forced out of power.

Briand, with a long experience of French political life, saw that the Poincare-Tardieu-Clemenceau group by alliance with the Royalists had underpinned the foundations on which his own tenure of power rested. He might have remained in office a little while longer, but he knew that the Alliance which he had extracted from Lloyd George would not stem the tide that had set against him. He knew, too, that the British Premier had made his maximum concessions, and that in view of the existing feeling in Britain, there could be no expectation of a hard and fast alliance between France and England. Briand did not wait for the structure he had held together during the last year to fall about his ears. He believed that the pendulum would swing back from Poincare and he would be in a stronger position to catch it if he had not suffered defeat a few months previously.

Poincare is not backed by a national party. He is supported by a number of groups that will soon be seeking their quid pro quo for their support.

The multiple party system is a grave danger in France. The spectacle of an executive constantly lacking in national support who has to purchase its continuance in power at the price of having to abandon cherished principles, offers a grave warning to us in Canada.

Group government is selfish and unstable and tends to lower the plane of ethics on which the government of the State should be firmly founded.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Prosperity is just around the corner.

The relief policy of the new Government is a logical attempt to deal with a serious problem. It should encourage the municipalities to embark upon public works that will give employment to many of the workless.

Oyster Supper.

The oyster supper given by the ladies of Cavanville Methodist Church on Thursday evening drew a fairly large crowd, the church being about two-thirds full when the programme began; doubtless the extreme cold kept a number away who would otherwise have been present. The ladies of Cavan fully sustained thei rreputation for providing an excellent supper, the oysters being particularly well cooked and enjoyable, while the tables looked very attractive and fairly groaned under the weight of good things provided.

Rev. G. S. Rorke was chairman, and as usual made a most appropriate opening address, other numbers in the programme being two choruses by the choir, a solo by Miss Annie Tinney, a quartette composed of Mrs. A. Kennedy, Miss Tinney, Mr. Carley, and Mr. McDowell, and four selections by Mrs. McNeeley, of Peterborough, a talented elocutionist, who was repeatedly encored.

Canadian Daily Newspaper Association,

Dear Sirs:

Daily newspaper advertising has played an important part in our general business.

In an experience extending over more than sixteen years we have found that such advertising accomplishes a threefold purpose:

It brings directly traceable results from investors, thereby increasing our business.

It favourably introduces our name and serves as an introductory support to our salesmen.

It serves the larger purpose of educating investors to a keener appreciation of bonds as an investment, which benefits the bond business as a whole.

Our newspaper advertising appropriation has each year increased with the growth of our business.

Yours very truly,

ADC:MR

Wood, Gundy & Co.

The Victory Loan campaigns taught many financial houses the value of Daily Newspaper advertising, but Messrs. Wood, Gundy & Company, from the first day they started in business, have been liberal users of the Daily Newspapers of Canada in reaching the position they are now conceded among dealers in Government and Municipal Bonds. Such firms as these can decide with accuracy when advertising should be diminished, when increased, to maintain its true proportion in the business budget

Veteran on His Honeymoon Suffers Amnesia, Goes to Rochester and Forgets Bride's Name

NEW YORK, Jan. 28.—A young Southern bride, alone in a big New York hotel since her husband disappeared a few days ago, was made happy when word came to her that the boy had been found in Rochester, recovering form amnesia due to an airplane fall in Argonne.

The youth is Edward C. Sheppard, an orphan of New York. Cudgelging the clouded brain that almost failed him after he had been found wandering on the street, he remembered that he had married a girl whose name he couldn't recall and whom he had left in the Hotel ePnnsylvania here. Word was sent to this city by officials of the Rochester General Hospital, with the added information that the young man though his name was Sheppard, with one or two p's.

It turned out to be, and the girl, shrinking with loneliness in the big city, badly frightened at the loss of the husband she had married in Richmond Va., was found quickly at the hotel.

Then impatient to catch the first train for Rochester, she told their story. Sheppard, once a copy boy for a New York newspaper and later a mechanic, enlisted in the Eightieth Division, was trained at Camp Lees and flew n France.

At the height of the Argonne offensive he took on a bombing job that ended whes he crashed in the forest and lay unconscious three days. They patched him up and in the course of time he became a patient in the Walter Reed Army General Hospital in Washington.

There he met Marie Selden, herself, an orphan. The young fellow's plight aroused her sympathy, They became friends. As soon as Sheppard was able to limp from the institution he took a train for Richmond where the girl was awaiting him at the home of her sister, Mrs. H. I. Mann.

They were married about two weeks ago and started north on a honeymoon. They tarried in Baltimore, then came to New York. Three days ago Sheppard started alone for Washington to get $1.80 he said was due him from the Government. With that they were going to San Francisco, part of the way by automobile. There they were going to settle down if they liked the coast.

How Sheppard got to Rochester he had not the least idea, according to reports from there. Neither har Mrs. Sheppard. But she has gone there herself to nurse him and see trat everything comes out all right.

ceiling. It was right over my head I instantly realized what was happening. The plaster began to fall, dropping down in large and small chunks all over the theatre, it seemed to me. While I was looking up, a great piece right over my head started to fall. I ducked, crouching, involuntarily, I suppose, down between the seats. The piece struck the seat right where I had been sitting. The force was broken by the seat, but it pinned me down where I was crouching.

"The noise was awful. It was a great, tremendous roar. It was simply indescribable. I never can forget it.

Shrieks of the Wounded

"In the midst of the roaring were shrieks and cries of women and children and a few shouts of men. There were cries for help, groans and, worst of all, the moans of those in terrible pain. It was awful. I can't describe it. I see it all the time, those poor children and men and women crying and groaning there.

"There were only a few of us in the balcony. Luckily there weren't more. The balcony gave way and crashed, soon after the ceiling began to fall on those on the lower floor. They were caught the worst. We in the balcony were more fortunate.

"I guess there was a lapse of maybe twenty seconds, hardly more, before the balcony fell. Funny, but it spun around, kind of twisted, as its supports gave way, and it swung down on those below. It didn't go straight down, just kind of slid sideways and slanting. I suppose from the weight of the debris that had fallen on us upstairs.

"I don't know how I got out from where I was crouching under that chunk of plaster that had fallen on me. I really believe it weighed all of 500 pounds. I think I moved that plaster with my shoulders. Anyway, I crawled out between the seats to where I saw a small hole in the plaster above. I forced myself up through that hole, wiggling and shoving. Then, I crawled out over the snow and plaster, over the tangled debris to the doors on the Eighteenth Street side.

Never Saw Him Again

"Across the aisle from me when the crash came was a little fellow—I never saw him again and I wonder if he is dead—who laughed and roared at every especially funny part of the film. I don't know what became of him or the others in the balcony after we were showered with plaster.

"As the ceiling broke, the plaster fell in chunks. It was just like an ice pond breaking up. The roof didn't give way on one crash. It seemed to break up everywhere. That let in the snow which came in through the broken places where the ceiling had given way. It's queer, but I was conscious all the time when I was pinned down under there by that great piece of ceiling. My mind when I saw the ceiling falling, and afterward, was just as clear and collected as it is now. I knew I was hurt some, but I didn't know how badly. It seemed that my time had come. I lived a year, I tell you, pinned down between the seats.

Everything Went Black

"It wasn't until I got outside that I noticed blood falling from my face and hands. I got out myself. No one helped me. I crawled over the broken seats and plaster and snow to the door. On the way I saw a young fellow lying half curled up moaning and crying for help. I leaned over to lift him and then everything went black. The next I remember I was at the door, wiping the blood from my eyes and mouth. I don't know how I got out. I didn't see any other injured ones as I crawled out. I can't remember about that part of it. My only thought then was to get home before I should die. My chest pained me, my back seemed broken, my face was dripping with blood. All I wanted to do was to get home and tell my wife and little girl what had happened and how I was hurt. I thought I was going to die."

Representative Smithwick, who lives about a block from the theatre, said he stagged home without overcoat or hat through the snowdrifts. Physicians were summoned immediately, who found him suffering from shock and bruises, and possibly internal injuries.

"I think it was a miracle that I came out alive," said the Florida Congressman. "But think of those poor children and poor men and women who were at so fortunate. If those below could ave seen the ceiling breaking the ould have had time to rush out throng he doors, but I guess they couldn't see we in the balcony. Those under neath us had no chance I guess. I keep thinking of it all the time, that awful paring and the crashing of the balcony m its way down to those people below. t was all over in half a minute. I guess, but it seemed hours."

Came Without Warning

The disaster, which brought so heavy a toll of human life and limb, occurred without the slightest warning, the roof buckling in the middle and falling practically intact to the floor below where an audience of several hundred were watching a reel of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford." The accident was generally attributed to the weight of snow which had accumulated under one of the severest storms Washington had experienced in more than 20 years.

The roof crashed, as one woman described it, with a sound "like thunder," and in falling, sheared the walls clean and carried with it to the floor, the cement and steel balcony. Under the compression of air many of those near the exits were thrown forcibly to the street, but scores were pinned under the wreckage, not to be extricated for many hours.

Immediately five alarms were sounded for the fire department, police reserves were rushed to the scene and quickly, marines, soldiers, and sailors, and even Boy Scouts, arrived to assist in the work of rescue and hold back the frantic crowds which gathered all too close to the walls of the building, which threatened momentarily to fall.

Meanwhile those who had escaped rushed out, screaming in many cases, some covered with blood from wounds, while many women fainted. Inside the groans of the injured could be heard rising from the tangled mass of concrete, steel and woodwork. The roof had fallen almost flat to the floor, being supported to some extent by the many chairs, and to this fact many undoubtedly own their lives.

The Relief Work

All available ambulances were rushed to the scene, while private automobiles were utilized to take the wounded to hospitals. Private homes were thrown open, drug stores became first aid stations, and when body after body was brought out until there were long rows of them, the Christian Science Church near at hand was taken over as a morgue. Soon, two rooms were filled with the bodies and then the long rows quickly began to form in a third.

When the balcony was carried down by the roof, throwing many of its occupants headlong to the orchestra below, it formed a small place of refuge for some, as it was bent down to the floor, rather than completely detached. From this small triangular space, several stepped forth uninjured. One man, however, was removed from there this morning. His foot had been caught and he lived there all night beside the body of his wife who had been almost instantly killed.

One act of heroism and self-denial which won universal praise was that of Albert Beuhler, who, pinned in the wreckage, but soon reached by rescuers, assured them that he was not seriously injured and urged them to go to the aid of others. His word was accepted and as a result he was not extricated until 3:30 this morning. Then it was discovered his condition was serious. He was placed immediately on an operating table in a temporary hospital which also had been established in the Christian Science Church but died in a few minutes. His home was in this city and he was about 40 years of age.

larger number of students, yet felt assured that the work done would be of great benefit to the young farmers of the community. He insisted, however, that his assistant, Mr. J. Thompson, deserved a large share of the credit for the success which had attended the course just concluded. He congratulated the society and its directors on having such a splendid Winter Horse Show, and strongly advocated the cultivation of the live stock production and industry for which Durham county itself offers a most excellent field.

Speaker of the Evening.

Prof. R. W. Wade, director of the Live Stock Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, who was really the speaker of the evening, was next called upon and delivered a most excellent address.

Some forty or fifty short course classes had been or were being held in the province of Ontario, the speaker stated, and no one could estimate just how much this might mean in the development of a better knowledge, and better methods, of farming and stock-raising in the future years; possibly the results attained would affect the agricultural industry throughout the Dominion.

As we are now down to rock-bottom prices this is the time to make a thorough study of our problems. Farming conditions in Ontario compare very favourably with those prevailing throughout the entire world; indeed we are better off here than in any other country which was hit by the war. Referring to the bacon trade with England, Prof. Wade said our strongest competitor is the Dane, who is only a few hours soil from the Motherland. While we are 3,000 miles away. Then too, they have a uniform product while ours varies very much. In connection with the live stock industry the speaker emphasized strongly the value, commercially, of breeding the very finest type of horses sheep and cattle, stating that our quality of beef, for instance, is not up to standard; just as soon as we raise it to the required grade we will be able to obtain a good export market. Our chief competitor is Argentine, which country is now supplying England.

Competition is close all over the world and we must raise our standards of efficiency in farm products if we are to have the best markets open to us, and will have a name and a place on the commercial centres of Europe and other countries.

This result is quite within our reach the government is anxions to help in its accomplishment, so it is up to the farmers themselves to do their part in choosing only the best methods in cultivating the soil, and doing their work, the best class of stock in all lines for breeding and to know the commercial conditions and requirements of their own and other hands.

Cobourg's Mayor

Hearty applause greeted Prof. Wade at the conclusion of his address, and the chairman called upon Mr. W. J. Maher, Mayor of Cobourg, who spoke of his personal engagement of the Horse Show and also of the hospitality of his Millbrook friends Mr. Maher referred to the value of the recent visit of the young farmers to the Abbatoirs in Toronto, where they could see for themselves the way our hogs and cattle are handled, and the manner in which they dress out when killed.

Mr. William Doherty of Toronto, who was the judge for the Horse Show, also expressed his pleasure in attending that event, believing it to be a credit to the community. He had noticed, however, that most of the men, who had exhibited that afternoon were middle aged and urged the younger men to take a deeper interest in the breeding of show horse. He believed the tractor was a good thing for the larger farms but did not think it was yet time to do away with the horse in Ontario.

S. S. Staples, M.P.P.

Mr. F. W. Bowen, M. P. and Mr. S. S. Staples, M.P.P. both spoke briefly of the pleasure in being present and of their enjoyment of the show that afternoon, and also of the excellent and well served meal which all present had done full justice to. Mr. Staples referred to the proposed extension of this annual event to a seed and live stock show, lasting probably one entire week, as the government is prepared to gram $300 toward the holding of such a mid-winter fair.

Mr. J. Thompson of Ottawa was the concluding speaker and following his address all arose and sang "God Save the King."

Outside Guests.

A few of those from outside points who attended the banquet were: — Messrs. S. McMillan and Mayor Maher of Cobourg, Mr. W. Doherty, and Prof. R. W. Wade of Toronto, Dr. Johnson, Mr. F. C. Patterson and Mr. Mark Roe of Port Hope, Mr. F. W. Bowen, M. P. of Orono, Mr. S. S. Staples, ex-Warden, A. J. Henderson ,and ex-Warden T. A. Kelly, of Cavan, S. J. Indoor Life

Spending more time indoors makes women far more subject to constipation than men.

The liver becomes sluggish and torpid, the bowels constipated and the system poisoned by impurities.

If you would get away from the myriads of ills which result from constipation, it is only necessary to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

The benefits from their use are as lasting as they are prompt and certain.

Mrs. John Barry, 18 St. Amable Street, Quebec, Que., writes:

"This is to certify that I was troubled for years with constipation and tried all kinds of medicines without relief. At last my husband suggested that I try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and must say that they have given me more relief than all the medicine I have taken during the last fifteen years. I may also add that I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment for piles with excellent results."

PROVIDE A SOURCE OF NEW REVENUE.

Is Unpleasant Prospect Facing New Brunswick.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Jan. 30.—(By Canadian Press.)—New Brunswick citizens are faced with the unpleasant prospect of providing some new revenue for the Provincial Treasury.

The depression in the lumber business during the past year has caused a falling off of more than half a million dollars in the annual provincial revenue from stumpage on lumber cut upon the Crown Lands.

Thus the principal sources of the Province's revenue have been seriously menaced and the problem that faces Hon. Walter E. Foster, the Provincial Premier, and his Government is what method of raising revenue should be adopted. It is expected that the formulation of the new scheme, whatever it is to be, will be completed before the Provincial Legislature meets, which will probably be the last week in February or the first week in March, and that the law makers will be asked to pass a measure embodying the proposals.

Premier Foster has already virtually eliminated several of the suggested taxes either in vogue now or under consideration in other Provinces. He doesn't believe in placing a tax upon gasoline because, he says, that would hit the fishermen who operate gasoline power boats, and farmers who have gasoline powered tractors and other farm machinery, gas engines being used quite generally upon farms in this Province, where there has yet been no general introduction of hydro-electric power. Then he says he doesn't believe a tax upon local corporations of one-tenth of one per cent. of their paid up capitalization, which is in vogue in some Provinces, would yield enough in New Brunswick to make it worth while.

New Revenue Scheme

In usually well-informed circles the impression prevails that the choice of the new revenue raising scheme for this Province rests between the following:

(1) Liquor Sales.
(2) Income Tax.
(3) Land Tax.

Although the New Brunswick Temperance Alliance have been kicking up a big fuss, over the idea of the Provinces engaging in the sale of liquor as a means of raising revenue, Premier Foster has admitted in a public interview that such a scheme has been under consideration by his Government. In fact it has been common knowledge in political circles for some time, that a powerful section of the Provincial Cabinet favors such a scheme. The representatives of the French speaking people—who, as was pointed out both during and since the recent Federal Election, have increased in numbers until they are now 40% of the whole population of the Province, are favorable to the introduction of a scheme such as in vogue either Quebec or British Columbia and they are not alone either, as other Cabinet ministers, and the Governments political advisors are said to be of the opinion, that the opposition that would come from the temperance forces would not be really so likely to overcome the administration as would the store that would arise from the introduction in this Province of one of the above mentioned schemes of direct taxation, which form the only alternative.

The situation is, therefore, interesting to political observers, and, especially interesting to the people of the Province who will be vitally affected by whatever step is finally taken by the Government and the Legislature.

JUST GRAPE JUICE FOR SACRAMENT.

Jewish Rabbis Favor Unfermented Wine.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—Unfermented grapejuice is sufficient for all sacramental purposes, according to the consensus of opinion of members of the Rabbinical Assembly of the Jewish Theological Seminary, who met in executive session at the seminary building, 531 West 123d Street. The conference, which has a membership of 158, probably will refer its findings to the American Jewish Committee, which is collecting data on the question of sacramental wines.

A lengthy discussion followed the reading of a paper on "The Question of Fermented Wines in Jewish Religious Observances," by Professor Louis Ginzberg of the seminary, an authority on Jewish law. He quoted the Talmudic statement, "One may press a handful of grapes into a glass and use the juice as wine." Fermented wines were believed essential, said Professor Ginzberg, though the erroneous conception of one of the Jewish codifiers of a book of customs by Rabbi Abraham Klausner, who, Professor Ginzberg said, perhaps did not have the text before him or did not sufficiently examine the original. The majority of the rabbis agreed with Professor Ginzberg, but some held that the centuries-old custom of using fermented wines for religious purposes should not be given up.

Dr. Cyrus Adler, Acting President of the seminary, is said to have declared that, while he is not qualified to decide whether or not fermented wines are necessary for sacramental purposes, he hoped their use might be abolished on account of abuses, from the issuance of permits. The Bible, he pointed out, sanctions polygamy, but on account of the scandals resulting from it the Jewish people abolished it.

Grapejuice becomes permissible, there is no grapejuice manufactured that orthodox Jews may drink. A Jewish company, producing the drink in accordance with the laws of Kashruth, will have to be formed, it was said, to supply the needs of the observing Jews A committee, headed by Rabbi Louis Feinberg of Cincinnati, will report on the question.

INSPECTORS AND COUNTY IN DISPUTE

expense item. In his willingness to accept $500 instead of $648.15, Mr. Lees said he was making such a compromise that he would not consider any further proposal to negotiate terms less than $500.

Warden Strickland—Mr. Lees was satisfied with $400 a year before the increase was given him during the war, but now he wants 25 per cent more than that.

Mr. Lees—I never was satisfied. I applied several times before the increase was granted.

Mr. Anderson pointed out that $300 for operating the automobile and $150 for depreciation appeared too much for the council. Both he and the Warden stated that on this basis the car would be paid for in seven years.

Ratepayers would Object.

"There would be quite a rumpus if it got around that we were giving Inspector Lees an automobile," said Warden Strickland.

Mr. Lees said that he was going more than half way in accepting $500 although his total expenses were $650 a year.

Warden Strickland—If the county had to buy you a car we could supply a Ford and save $600.

Reeve Eason—If the county were buying Mr. Lees a car it certainly would not be a McLaughlin. But if he thinks his salary entitles him to the style of a McLaughlin that is his affair, but he should not charge the whole up keep against the county.

Reeve R. Scott asked why Mr.Lees had not consulted or informed the council when he laid aside his bicycle and bought his first car.

Mr. Lees sai dthat his annual mileage was about 3500 and of that distance 400 miles represented personal work.

Reeve Montgomery, Norwood, recollected his annual operating expense for driving a Ford at $200, and that was for 4000 miles and included gasoline.

Warden Strickland—The Council objects to Mr. Lees' charges for the use of his automobile. We think they are unreasonable. If the ratepayers realized that the county was furnishing Mr. Lees with a five passenger McLaughlin there would be strong objections. I am satisfied the work could be done with horse and buggy for half the sum Mr. Lees has charged. But if we are paying for a McLaughlin we might as well pay for a Ford. If we can save $600 we ought to do so. About $225 should be knocked off.

Mr. Eason said that Mr. Lees had never filed with the council a statement of his expenses.

It was stated that Mr. Broderick had 25 rural schools in Peterboro and Mr. Lees 71 rural and the three villages and May's suburban school at Peterborough.

Other Inspectorates.

Mr. Lees quoted what other counties corresponding to Peterboro were allowing as expenses for inspectors: Grey, two inspectors, 66 and 71 schools, $475 each; Addington, $450, and postage, printing and stationery extra; Simcoe, three inspectors, $500 each, 56, 60 and 91 schools respectively; Bruce $500; Leeds and Grenville, $500; Northumberland and Durham, three, $500 each; Centre Hastings, $590; West Victoria, $520; Ontario county, two, $700 each, plus postage, printing and stationery.

Supporting his claim Mr. Broderick said that the inspectors would have been justified in asking for a 50 per cent. increase in 1910. He was satisfied with the $180 which represented the increase of 25 per cent.

"Unfortunately prices are down to farmers but they are not in my case," said Mr. Broderick. He related some of his experiences to show that he endeavored to keep his expenses at a reasonable level.

Judge Huycke reserved judgment.

"I wonder if Frank is ill? I can't understand why we haven't heard from him."

"Don't worry, Mother, he's all right. He has just forgotten to write."

But Mother couldn't help worrying. No letter for ten days from her "boy" at College!

"Call him up right now," said Father—"just ask for the number. The landlady will get him to the 'phone. It's half-past eight and you'll get the evening rate on a Station-to-Station call."

In just six minutes Mother and son were having a heart-to-heart talk. Frank had written a week ago—but—had forgotten to post the letter!

"Well, what a relief," said Mother, as she turned from the telephone, "and to think how simple it was to set our minds at rest. I think I'll call him every week."

She does. Both look forward to those happy few minutes, from week to week. The reduced evening rates on her Station-to-Station calls are so very low that, as Mother says, "it would be foolish to deny myself the pleasure."

BIG SALE OF LAND.

GLASGOW, Jan. 30.— (Canadian Press.)— During 1921 over 600,000 acres of land were sold in Scotland, against 800,000 acres in 1920. Although prices have fallen, it is estimated that fully £5,000,000 must have been involved in last year's sales, and the total turned over since the Armistice is estimated at £52,500,000.

While the decrease in estate sales last year shows that the 'boom' is on the wane, realty agents hold out a hopeful prospect for this year.

A SCAPE-GOAT FOR SINS OF ANOTHER

Oshawa Merchant, R. Neill, Not to Blame in Adulterated Butter Case

Since receipt of the news despatch from Oshawa recently to the Examiner, stating that R. Neill, a merchant of that town, had been fined $50 for selling butter which did not measure up to the prescribed standard of purity, information has come to hand which clears Mr. Neill of any suspicion of intent to take advantage of his customers?. In good faith he purchased eleven pounds of dairy butter from a farm women — butter which looked good to him. Next morning, however, a Government inspector dropped into his store, and while admitting that the butter seemed all right, and advising Mr. Neill to go ahead and sell what he had left, still he (the Inspector) sent a sample to Ottawa for analysis. Eventually that sample was returned with the report that it had not stood the test, the butter having been adulterated. In these circumstances the Inspector said he had to prosecute under the Oleomargarine Act, with the consequence that Mr. Neill was fined $50, as unfortunately he did not know who the woman was who sold him the butter, which bore neither the name nor address of its maker on the wrapper. And so a merchant of proved business integrity is unjustly made the scape-goat for the sins of some unprincipled vendor of impure produce.

In this connection Sanitary Inspector Palmer, of Oshawa, sounds a warning that merchants should be on their guard against vendors representing themselves to be farmers or agents for farmers, coming into Oshawa and selling food commodities. He is impelled to issue this warning from the fact that another of that town's reliable merchants, Mr. Cawker, had also been fined for selling butter not up to proof. This Sanitary Inspector had made regular inspections of the two stores in question, and he publicly announces that both premises and produce were always found up to the law's requirements. He is perfectly satisfied that neither Mr. Neill nor Mr. Cawker would themselves adulterate butter or knowingly sell impure food of any kind.

HEARTBURN A SEVERE CASE

Many people are troubled with heartburn who really do not realize just what it is.

In cases of this trouble there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by disturbed appetite. It is generally caused by great acidity of the stomach, and whenever too much food is taken, it is liable to ferment and becomes extremely sour, causing heartburn. In such cases vomiting often occurs, and what is thrown up is sour and sometimes bitter.

The way to get rid of heartburn is to keep your liver active by using and you will have no heartburn or other liver troubles such as constipation, jaundice, water brash, floating specks before the eyes, coated tongue, foul breath, etc.

Miss Agnes Cutting, Shallow Lake, Ont., writes:—"I have had heartburn for a long time. There were gnawing and burning pains in my stomach, and then when I vomited there was a sour and bitter taste. I used two vials of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and they have cleared me of my heartburn. I don't think they can be beaten by any other medicine."

Price, 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn., Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

KITCHENER'S DEATH HAS BEEN AVENGED.

German Sub Responsible Destroyed.

LONDON, January 30 (Canadian Press). — How Lord Kitchener's death on board H.M.S. Hampshire on 5th June, 1916, while en route to Russia on a military mission, was avenged by the destruction about a year later of the German submarine responsible for the laying of the mine which sank the warship, is now told in detail for the first time by an officer on board H.M. cruiser Intrepid, which was attached to the White Sea Squadron during the war.

It was on 4th May, 1917, the writer says, that the British steamship Palm Branch, laden with munitions, poison gas, and high explosive, was sig-zagging her way towards the entrance of Kola Inlet, on the White Sea, when the periscope of a submarine was sighted on the port beam. At the same moment a white track of bubbles revealed a torpedo's course racing towards the ship. The track passed two or three feet from the stern, the torpedo had gone under the ship, running too deep to strike her.

The Palm Branch was armed, and immediately her gun was slammed to the breech and sights laid to zero. As the gun crew did so, the conning tower of a submarine rose on the port quarter, barely 40 yards away. Then the deck itself emerged from the water.

Naval gunners are rarely gifted with such a target at point-blank range. They accepted it with due thanksgiving. A flash, a roar! The Palm Branch's first shell struck the U-boat at the base of the conning tower, just where it joined the deck, and tore great gaps and rents. Five seconds later a second shell burst against the water-line forward. Two rounds with a small gun. They sufficed. The submarine, which appeared to be stopped, rolled slightly. Then, taking a heavy list, and tilting on end with stern high out of the water, she sank vertically out of sight.

When the submarine sank, a conical object floated from her and remained on the surface. This subsequently proved to be a telephone buoy, such as was known to be carried by most U-boats, its purpose being to enable a sunken crew to communicate with the world above. On the buoy being brought on board the Intrepid, the officer says it was photographed, and on a large brass plate was inscribed:

"Nicht offnen. Telefonbote liegen lassen! Telegraphieten sofort Liegestella an U Bottswen, Kiel. Unterseeboot 75 hier gesunken." (Do not open. Leave telephone buoy lying! Telegraph immediately position to U boats base, Kiel. Submarine 75 sunk here.)

The destroyed submarine was therefore U-75, which, according to German official accounts, had a year before laid 13 mines in the western passage from Scapa. Twelve were swept up; but the thirteenth sank the Hampshire. That was on the evening of 5th June, 1916. There can be no reasonable doubt, the officer declares, that the telephone buoy found and marked U-75 was part of the submarine sunk by the Palm Branch. It was discovered on the edge of the winter ice, which proved it had drifted there that spring. No other ships claimed to have sunk U-boats in those waters at the time, and the place where fishermen found the buoy was 120 miles easterly from the scene of the action a month earlier, which would entail only an average daily drift of 11 to 12 miles—about what might have been expected with the prevailing wind and current.

Captain Malling was awarded a double D.S.O. for his gallant action.

U. S. MAY EXPLOIT TIMBER IN ALASKA.

Department of Interior Institute Movement to Get Control.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30. — (By Canadian Press.)—A first-class controversy has developed in the Harding cabinet growing out of efforts of the Interior Department, headed by Secretary Fall, to get control of the government of Alaska.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, who has control of the Forest Service, headed by Col. W. B. Greeley, is resisting the effort of the Interior Department. The plan of Secretary Fall is to have Congress provide for a Development Board which would be a local commission under direction of the Secretary of Interior. This board or commission would virtually be the Alaskan government and, what is of special interest, it would control all of the natural resources of Alaska, including timber coal, gold and other resources.

Secretary Wallace and the Forestry Service are fighting the proposition tooth and nail. They have developed great plans for use of the timber in Alaska—plans which combine use with conservation—and they regard the Fall plan as one favored by those persons and interests who want to exploit Alaska without regard to conservation.

Already, Secretary Wallace is working for establishment of pulp and paper mills in Alaska to use the timber on the enormous forest reserves. He has data to show that this timber can be so handled as to furnish a third of the paper supply of the United States as a permanent proposition. This involves, of course, such methods of handling the timber as to prevent indiscriminate lashing down of trees and to permit growth of young trees along with use of those which are mature.

It is not unlikely the controversy over control of Alaska will become a serious political affair for the administration. It is certain that it will unless a way is found to settle it. About ten years ago, the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy concerning natural resources in Alaska, in which Gifford Pinchot, friend of Roosevelt, alleged the Interior Department, then headed by Secretary Ballinger, was taking a course regarding Alaska which would benefit great financial interests but hurt the territory, proved disastrous in its political results for the Taft administration.

It is noticeable that today Secretary Wallace, is a conservationist whose views as much like those of Pinchot, while Secretary Fall is unfriendly to such views.

How the controversy is settled and what policies are pursued with respect to Alaska timber and other resources is of obvious importance to Canada. Agricultural Department officials look ahead to vigorous development of Alaska, combined with conservation, and to making Alaska before long one of the states of the Union.

"WHO SEEKS SALVATION."

(By Ella Wheeler Wilcox.)

Pointing to the silent skies,
The glittering steeples of churches rise,
And tongues of silver in word of chimes
Proclaim the era of Christian times.

From lofty pulpit to cushioned pew
(To torpid many and listening few)
The moral precept and orthodox creed
Go forth, and the sinner is urged to heed.
With serious faces and pleading air
Millions of worshippers kneel in prayer,
They pray for virtues, they pray for pelf;
They pray for the sorrowing, sick and sad,
They pray for the tempted, they pray for the bad;
They pray for the ending of crime and sin;
But never a prayer for our dumb kin;
Never a sermon from pious lip,
Of rich man's check-rein and driver's whip.
Never a protest or pleading word
For the tortured creatures of flock and herd.

Dimes and dollars are freely given
To coax the pagan to Christian heaven.
Yet the crime of cruelty walks abroad
Through the opulent land of a Christian God—
The God whose sympathy reached to all,
Who noted even the sparrow's fall.
Preach, O pastor, and pray, O priest,
Send your messages to West and East;
Be voice for the voiceless and speech for the dumb
Till the Spirit of Love to the earth shall come,
Carve this motto in each young mind:
"Who seeks salvation must first be kind."

NOTABLE PASSENGERS ABOARD S.S. MONTCALM ON HER MAIDEN VOYAGE

Bring First-Hand Reports Conditions in England and Europe — Tunisian Also Carried Distinguished Passengers.

R. L. Borden's Message.

ST. JOHN, NFLD., Jan 30.—(C.P.R. Press Bureau.)—That conditions in the hotel business in Europe are fairly good was the opinion voiced by George Brown, manager of the Curtis Hotel, Minneapolis, Minn., shortly after he disembarked from the S.S. Tunisian which arrived in Port from Glasgow Thursday.

"During my four months' stay in the British Isles," declared Mr. Brown, "I visited the chief hotels in London, Edinburgh, Glasgow and Liverpool, with a view to obtaining any new ideas available in regard to the restaurant and cafe departments, but I was unable to discover any improvements on the various systems which are in use in America.

Anti-Pro. Wave

In discussing the effects of the prohibition law in the United States Mr. Brown declared that this legislation had proved very detrimental to the hotel business. "There appears, however," stated Mr. Brown, "to be an anti-prohibition wave sweeping over the United States as a protest against the present law and its administration, and it would not be surprising to see the sales of light wines and beer legalized in that country in the near future. If light wines and beer were permitted to be sold it would result in a vast improvement on the present conditions in every respect." The Curtis Hotel, of which Brown is manager, covers a whole city block in Minneapolis and has 2264 rooms; its cafe accommodation and banquet room can afford accommodation to 1500 persons. Mr. Brown left St. John on the special train for Montreal at 4:15 in the afternoon, proceeding direct to his home in Minneapolis.

"Eighty times have I crossed the Atlantic Ocean. I have been out in all kinds of weather and on all kinds of ships, but never have I been on a better steamer than the Montcalm, on which I have had the pleasure of being a passenger on her maiden voyage of first trip across the Atlantic." Such was the statement of Dr. Charles Ham, Canada's symphony conductor, when he disembarked from the Montcalm on Thursday, enroute to his home in Ottawa from a brief business trip to London.

Scots Guards' Band

Just two weeks ago Dr. Ham arrived in Liverpool, and is now in Ottawa. Dr. Ham went to England on an important mission, and he returned home happy in having accomplished that which took him to London. He went to make final arrangements with His Majesty's Scots Guards' band to tour Canada. He was successful in securing the royal consent, and this world-famed musical organization will be here and begin its tour of Canada in May. "The band," said Dr. Ham, "will give a series of military concerts all under the auspices and for the benefit of the G.W.V.A."

Dr. Ham had no time to discuss music. He was too enthusiastic over the work of the Montcalm, and let no opportunity pass to say a good word for the latest acquisition to the C.P.R. fleet.

"They say it was rough weather and maybe it was," said he, "but you would hardly notice it. The Montcalm rode so beautifully on the turbulent seas."

From appearances the ship is worthy of all that was said of her. The Montcalm belongs to the one-cabin type, made popular by the Minnedosa and Melita, although considerably larger than these vessels, however, and also slightly surpasses the Empress of Britain which is a little under 16,000 tons gross. She is a two-funnel ship, an oil burner of 566 feet in length, 70 feet wide and 51½ feet deep. The engines are turbine-geared and the ship has accommodation for 520 cabin and 1550 third class passengers. She is luxuriously fitted throughout, and has all the modern conveniences and safety devices, including emergency motor life boats in addition to the maximum requirements of Boats.

Brig.-Gen. G. H. Dean, Sydney, N.S., who, accompanied by Mrs. Dean, was among the distinguished passengers to disembark from the C.P.O.S. Montcalm, which docked here Thursday, completing her maiden voyage.

General Dean has been spending several months visiting in Scotland and England, for the benefit of his health, shattered during the war. He is now returning to Australia, but before sailing from Vancouver expects to spend some time in Canada. General Dean said, "I have always wanted to spend some time in Canada to study the country and compare it with ours. I am especially interested in farming and stock raising. I know that Canada, like Australia, excels in this work, and while here I shall devote some time to a study of the methods of work employed by Canadians.

"I was greatly impressed," said the General, "by the way the farmers of Scotland go about their work. They put back on the land what they take from it. I mean by that, their broad acres are never allowed to lose their energy, and are always well fertilized and kept under rich cultivation. It is because of this that the Scotch farmers gathers sixty bushels of grain to the acre while we in Australia, and I think Canada, only secure about thirty bushels. What is true of the farms of Scotland is equally true of England. Her farm lands are well cultivated and not allowed to run out. The farmers of Scotland are very up-to-date and can teach us a lot.

Dried Fruits

"From my observations, while abroad" continued General Dean, "I am firmly convinced that Canada, Australia and New Zealand can supply the Old Country with all their wants in the way of wheat, wool, butter, etc., there certainly is a great opportunity to monopolize the dried fruit market. I am sure Canada has not given this branch of export trade much attention. There certainly is a chance to capture that trade and my own country, as well as yours should get busy and go after it. There are wonderful markets in England awriting the produce from our farm and I feel we should grasp that opportunity before us and safely secure these markets rightfully ours."

General Dean is very much interested in the settlement of ex-service men in Southern Australia. "The Government," he says, "is spending a great deal upon the men who are keen to take advantage of what is being done for them. Two big immigration schemes have been undertaken and completed, and the lands reclaimed are entirely for the soldiers."

The General is lively interested in rifle shooting and while in Canada he hopes to meet the president of the Canadian Rifle Association with the suggestion that the Canada rifle team visit Australia this year.

"If they come," said the General, "we will give them one great time."

Speaking of conditions industrially, General Dean said he found the people more hopeful and a better tone in the industrial world. Until the price of coal comes down, he said, the industries of the Old Country will be working under a handicap.

French and Reparations

Among the notable passengers who disembarked on the arrival in port of the S.S. Montcalm at noon, Thursday, was J. P. Kemp, manager of the Credit Anglo-Francais Limited, of Quebec, who spent the past three months in visiting various points of interest in England, Ireland, Scotland, France and Germany.

When questioned on the attitude of the French public, in regard to reparations on the part of Germany, Mr. Kemp stated that the French people were absolutely tired of the dilatory manner and the absence of concrete action by the Government in insisting on immediate payment by Germany of part of her war debt. "The falling off of the French Cabinet under former Premier Briand," stated Mr. Kemp, "was very favorably viewed in nearly every circle, and the general opinion in France when I left was that the Premier, Poincare, will prove much firmer in dealing with the Germans."

In military ranks, a strong tendency existed towards taking action towards Germany of a disciplinary nature, if necessary, and the people of France were insistent that the Government should bring home to the Germans the necessity of prompt payment of all war indemnity due.

British in Sympathy

As evidence that the public tone in England was very similar to that in France, Mr. Kemp pointed out that during the Cannes Conference, a British military delegation went to Brittony to meet French war veterans and to show France that the feeling of the British public was with the French people.

The majority of the people of England regretted that so little had been accomplished so far in forcing Germany to pay her war debts. The feeling against England caused by any action of the British Government in connection with the question of reparations was not justified in so far as the British public was concerned. In military circles, for instance, the attitude of the British government did not meet with approval.

Still Arrogant

Mr. Kemp, who served during the recent European war with the rank of captain in the 22nd Battalion, visited various battlefields in France, including Vimy, Ypres, Verdun and Marne. He declared that a considerable amount of work had been done in rebuilding these districts, but that there was still a huge amount of labor to be performed. Many towns and villages were still in a delapidated condition. In some of the agricultural parts of the country, the ploughshare had obliterated the marks of the bitter struggles which had been waged upon its soil.

During his visit to Cologne, Mr. Kemp was struck by the same insolent and arrogant attitude of the Germans which were so evident prior to their defeat. This manner was exhibited to civilians but the British soldiers were treated with respect. In regard to French exchange, Mr. Kemp stated that English stock brokers and financiers expected a sharp rise by next spring, and the view in England was that the taxation in France would bring in a very large revenue. The French system of taxation, according to information gleaned in the best circles, was working splendidly, and the French people were saving their money.

Civil War Possible?

Colonel L. G. Bristowe, of Okanogan, B.C., director of the Norton Griffiths Co., who originally began the construction of the present breakwater in Courtenay Bay, arrived in St. John Thursday from England on the S.S. Tunisian. This is the first visit of Colonel Bristowe since the outbreak of the war in which he served throughout with the Imperial Forces. The company, of which he is a director, has received a large contract for work in southern British Columbia.

In the opinion of Colonel Bristow there will be a general election in England at a very early date. A division existed at the present time in the ranks of the colonists, principally over the Irish question, and an election in that country in the near future was unavoidable.

While Colonel Bristowe was loathe to discuss the Irish question, he was very skeptical regarding the success of the present proposal. Civil war in Ireland was still possible, and the jubilation manifested in the hope that a final settlement would be arrived at, as a result of the present conferences and caucuses, was somewhat premature. This skepticism, he declared, was shared by many people in England. Colonel Bristowe, who left St. John on the afternoon train, expects to arrive at his destination on Monday.

Ex-Premier Borden

Looking greatly improved in health, ex-Premier R. L. Borden, of Ottawa, accompanied by Mrs. Borden and daughter, Miss Marjorie, also arrived here on the S.S. Montcalm from Liverpool. Mr. and Mrs. Borden were heartily greeted by several friends when they disembarked from the steamer.

With the exception of a short trip to Canada in October last, Mr. Borden has spent the past ten months in England, where he went to recuperate his health and enjoy a holiday. While in London, Mr. Borden underwent an operation in one of the hospitals and spent some time at a nursery home in the outskirts of the city. Mr. and Mrs. Borden paid a visit to France and reviewed the battlefields of Flanders, where a brother of Mrs. Borden is buried. In the agricultural regions, stated Mr. Borden, the signs of the havoc caused by the war have disappeared. The ground has been replanted and crops were being raised. Everything was green for the most part in the e districts, which formed a mar ed contrast to the condition in the cities, towns and villages which had felt the shell and fire of the Huns. The work of rebuilding France had proved a huge task and many cities, towns and villages were still in a state of ruin, in whole or in part. In referring to the work of the Imperial War Graves Commission, Mr. Borden stated that excellent care was being taken of the graves of deceased Canadian soldiers. Permanent headstones had already been placed on the graves of many of Canada's heroes who paid the supreme sacrifice, by the Commission which was under the jurisdiction of the British Government. Mr. and Mrs. Borden and their daughter left St. John on the afternoon train for home.

BLACK AND SILVER

Two necklines—that is the unusual feature of this frock that has chosen sapphire blue velvet as material. The cut out point in front is repeated at the back with, perhaps, a trifle lower cut. Long waistline and pointed skirt drapery are interesting also. The flowers, edging and drapery facing are silver tissue.

ATTRACTIVE FROCK

This frock started out to be all black but compromised, after all, and took red satin for underslip beneath the tucked Georgette which makes sides and sleeves. The panel of black Canton crepe sets off the interesting silver-metal belt with its ruby colored stones. A very dignified frock, this is, but with much style and charm.

WHEN THE EMPEROR NAPOLEON ESCAPED.

When the Emperor Napoleon in 1815 escaped from Elba and was said to be making his way into France, the Paris Moniteur announced his progress with headlines running from grave to gay as follows:

"The Cannibal has left his den."

"The Corsican Wolf has landed in the bay of San Juan."

"The Tiger has arrived at Gay."

"The Wretch spent the night at Grenoble."

"The Tyrant has arrived at Lyons."

"The Usurper has been seen within fifty miles of Paris."

"To-morrow Napoleon will be at our Gates."

"The Emperor has arrived at Fontainbleau."

"His Imperial Majesty Napoleon entered Paris yesterday surrounded by his loyal subjects."

BETHANY AND THE DISTRICT

Manvers Municipal Telephone Co. Re-elect Last Year's Officers—Happy Evening With Epworth League.

Social and Personal.

BETHANY, Jan. 30.— The first meeting of Manvers' municipal telephone system was held in the town hall on Wednesday, January 25th, when almost all the shareholders were present.

Mr. Henry Ward, chairman of the commission, presided. The secretary-treasurer's report for the past four months was given by Mr. Walter Jakeman and pronounced satisfactory to the members.

Commissioners Henry Ward, Wm. Whitesides, and J. J. Clarke gave their report of the work done up to the present, after which it was moved by Mr. Geo. McCartney and seconded by Mr. Geo. Twigg that a vote of appreciation be tendered to the commissioners for the splendid endeavors and interest shown in trying to secure as good a telephone service as possible. This motion carried.

The meeting was then opened to the shareholders for discussion, following which the election of officers took place.

Moved by A. H. Monk, seconded by Geo. McCartney, that the three commissioners be re-elected. This carried unanimously.

Moved by Mr. W. Jakeman, seconded by A. H. Monk, that Mr. Geo. Peters and Mr. A. H. Veals be auditors.—Carried.

The rate was then set for 1922 at $10 to subscribers and $12 to renters. There will be considerable reconstruction done on the different lines as soon as spring opens up, and it is expected that the Manvers municipal telephone system will shortly be one of the best in the province.

Epworth League.

The Epworth League meeting on Wednesday evening was, as usual, well attended. After the usual opening devotional exercises, in charge of the President, Miss Dewell, Mr. Harold Monk, pretor of the Tuxis Square, took the chair. The first item on their programme was a chorus by the square, entitled, "Jesus Lover of My Soul" sung to the air of Silver Threads Among the Gold. Rev. Mr. Beckel then gave a reading entitled, "Snowbound," a quartette by Mr. Monk, Mr. Brown, Theodora Davis and Bertrand Monk, entitled, "Look Ye Saints," was well received. Norman Steer gave a reading, "Smile," followed by a debate, "Resolved that inventions and fashions are a benefit to humanity." On the affirmative side were Bertrand Monk, Theodora Davis and Fred Canaver. On the negative side Mr. P. C. Brown, Mr. Milton Challise and Ormond Wright. The judges were Mr. W. A. Jakeman, Mr. T. J. Jackson, Mr. Frank Bigelow, Mr. Carleton Patton and Mr. Ernest Cavano. This was the first time some of these boys had been in a debate, but they did remarkably well in their speeches. The negative side were the winners. During the programme the jazz band of the square gave several musical selections.

Officers Elected.

The 26th annual convention of the Manvers Religious Educational Council was held in the Methodist church, Janetville, on Thursday afternoon. Very few reports were presented on account of the absence of the different superintendents. The chief speaker at the convention, Rev. W. P. Fletcher, of Toronto, was very interesting. His talk centred around the training of the young child in the Sunday school. The folowing officers were elected for 1922:

President— Mr. W. W. Stinson, Janetville.

Vice-President—Mr. Jacob Hart, Fleetwood.

Secretary-treasurer — Mr. A. H. Monk, Bethany.

The ladies of Janetville prepared a supper, which they served in the basement to the delegates. Rev. Andrew McLauchlin of Pontypool, was the chief speaker in the evening, his talk on educational evangelism in the Sunday school was especially good.

Personal Mention.

URIC ACID IN MEAT CLOGS THE KIDNEYS

Take a Glass of Salts if your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasoinally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken ,then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, the tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

CHANGE DESIGN OF UNION JACK.

Now Ireland Has Become Free State.

LONDON, Jan. 30. — (Associated Press.)—The question has been raised whether the designs of the Union Jack and Royal Coat of Arms of Great Britain will have to be altered now Ireland has becomes a free state within the empire.

The Union Jack has the cross of St. Patrick superimposed upon the crosses of St. George and St. Andrew. The Royal Coat of Arms has the Irish harp in one of its corners.

At the college of Arms in London, it was stated that certain modifications were under consideration and that if any action were taken it would be done by the King in Council. No parliamentary action will be necessary.

Heraldry experts say that alterations in arms are very expensive. Some years ago there was a demand from Irish quarters that the blue ground the golden harp on the royal standard should be changed to green. It was then estimated that the alteration would cost at least £2,000,000. To remove ale reference to Ireland from the present Union Jack and Royal arms would bt

One authority said that it would not be correct for England, the predominant partner, to leave Ireland out of account in the national flag and the royal arms, unless and until Ireland herself demanded it.

MORAL DAMAGE OF THE WAR

January Yale Review— We may recover from the material damage of the war in a generation; we may never recover from its moral changes. The good it did is buried with its bones, the ills live after it. The united frame of mind, the zeal for saving waste, we fondly hoped would last; but they have vanished like smoke. The evils of the war abroad were its training of the younger men to a reckless use of material, a dependence on the government provision, and a loss of the habit of responsibility and independence. The evil effect at home was the demoralization of absurdly high wages, encouraging extravagance, and causing enormous friction when the real values again prevail. Even after two years of the bitter experience that a high wage often means no work, the spell is scarcely broken.

Poor Li'l Thing

by Jack Lait

THERE are no he-angels. Ruthie Gifford, at the age of fifteen, reluctantly yielded to this conclusion.

For, if any male had buoyed her with seraphic or cherubic potentialities, Hank, the hired man, had done that cute little thing. In all her span of bucolic life, Ruthie had observed men. Sometimes as many as four stopped at her father's farm in one week—from lightning rod bunks to panhandling hobos—and Ruthie was shooting no snap judgment, then, when she idealized Hank, the hired man.

Hank knew nothing of this. He attended to his chores and munched his tobacco, save on Sundays, when he went to "town." Ruthie had worshiped in silence, enjoying her own love pains and sighing over a woman's most sacred secret unspoken and her bitterest tears unshed. Until——

All of Cuyahoga County was rocked with the detonation of a breach of promise suit. As common as such litigations are in cities, so unusual are they in rural communities. Out there such disputes are generally settled by a father or big brother. There are game laws in the jay districts for every sort of animals except girls, but at that there is a great to-do when a bad sport goes a-hunting, out of season and without a license, and wings a farmer's chicken—for those farmers have shotguns and no sense of humor.

But Lizzie Harkness had no father, no brothers, no anybody; she was an orphan, the more pity. And Hank, the hired man, as set out in the bill of particulars, pompously composed by Squire Dool, had by false and insidious promises, wiles and snares, gifts and poisoned honey, deluded, misguided, defrauded and then abandoned said oratrix, and thus broken the poor orphan's heart and trespassed on the case.

Hank didn't take it hard. Judgment against him would have yielded one Sunday suit, slightly fringed at the trouser-bottoms, and a smelly pipe. The action made him a gay dog and the scandal of the township. And he felt considerably swelled about it. But to Ruthie it was a sharp stab followed by a dull ache. She knew Lizzie, the village tramp. How could Hank descend to such? Wild oats she could understand and might forgive; but twild weeds!

All night she worried and squirmed in her attic bed. And before her hot eyes closed in twitching slumber, she had decided, Life with her exploded idol would be intolerable on the farm. So she would run away. New York was full of perils and beasts and excitement—there she would bury herself and forget. What of the temptations and the pitfalls? Well, let the pitfalls come and the temptations yawn. Wasn't it written in the books that many good women had skidded off the highway because men they had loved turned out to be dogs? If Hank could revel in scandal, why not she?

What a hullabaloo there would be from Zach's Corners to Hillary Crossing when the local weekly should pick up the stories from the New York papers, detailing how the notorious Ruth Gifford of the Follies had broken up a millionaire's home (one of his homes, anyway), or had been triumphantly acquitted after shooting one of her wealthy lovers good night. Ruthie felt that she had no illusions about city life and its intentions toward young girls; she had seen the third-release movies, she had; she was a farmer's daughter, but she was no yokel.

She knew that rich men preyed upon pretty maidens, luring them with fast motorcars and silk lined apartments; she knew that slinking fiends ambushed unwary strangers and sold them into slavery worse than death; she knew that handsome city chaps played with the trusting hearts of gullible girls like the juggler in the carnival sideshow tossed and manipulated his artificial oranges. But, what did it matter? It promised to be exciting and a lot of keen fun, and Hank would realize, after it had all happened, that he had overlooked a tiger lily right on his own patch while wading in muck after an onion.

It was shortly after noon when Ruthie, with her scant "change" in the tattered straw family suitcase, her umbrella and nine cents in specie, slipped out of the side door and made for the open road. She knew the general direction of the Big Town, and she headed for it. She skirted the village, and was soon on unfamiliar ground.

On she walked, past the few flivverers who tossed her impersonal glances, passed by others who observed her casually. Suddenly a long, racy roadster snorted by her. It was shiny and it registered swank. At the wheel sat a man in furs. Ruthie looked after it and saw it slow down. The man turned and seemed to be scrutinizing her. She kept on, reached the halted sport car, and had almost gone beyond it when the man hailed her.

"Going far?" he inquired.

She was; she didn't even know how far. And the distance she had already hoofed, with the luggage growing heavier, had begun to wear on her endurance.

"To New York," she answered, looking off on an angle.

"New York? Why, my child—it's more than forty miles to the ferry."

All that she could say was "I—I know."

The stranger looked her over again, and she, from the far corner of the near eye, sized him up. He had a mustache—naturally; a mustache went with that type of insolent, expensive car. The man was a villain—of that there could be no doubt. He had all the props, and here he was, playing the kindly, gilded spider to the homeless house-fly. That "my child" was the tip-off, if one were needed—the cunning, ingratiating satyr!

But the car looked tantalizingly inviting—Ruthie had never ridden in one anything like it. And forty miles was a long hike. And—well, the City hadn't even waited for her to step into its jungle, it had sent its beast to drag her in. So be it then.

"Are you going towards New York?" she asked.

"I'm going to New York," he answered. "Hop in."

And they were off. Down the road the classy speedster hummed and purred. And the beast questioned the girl and she told him everything, even of the bitter anti-climax of her great romance. He didn't laugh, but now and again he smiled. Ruthie caught some of the smiles. Well might he grin, she thought, for the situation was made to order for him and his kind—a country girl, running away from home, shabby, with no more visible means of support than a toy balloon—and no more destination.

They reached the ferry, and crossed, remaining seated in the car. Ruthie was animatedly interested, for she had never seen such things before. For a few moments she quite forgot her precarious position, but, just before the clumsy boat nosed into its pocket against the shore of the Notorious Island, she was walloped right back into a realization of it.

"You'd better have some money," said her host, and from a bill-fold he extended toward her two ten-dollar notes. Twenty dollars! It was a fortune. That clinched it—the one missing element in the scenario. Ruthie gulped hard and took the money. "Thanks," she said, briefly and throatily. "New York is a hard place if you're broke," he commented with a chuckle. The chuckle was not lost on Ruthie. She had heard just such chuckles on the screen.

Two minutes later, the motor was winding through the traffic in the City. The driving was close and the man concentrated on it. Ruthie rubbered on all sides—it was all terrifying, fascinating, bewildering. Before she knew it, they had pulled up before a forbidding building.

"Come in," he said, without explanation.

Ruthie gripped the handle of her treasure-chest, and stepped groggily to the sidewalk. The man followed her, ran ahead of her and opened a door. She walked in with him, her head down, like a martyr to the guillotine—this life of scarlet was not so inviting as one got into its very jaws. Past a little vestibule she saw two other pretty young girls, chatting cheerily, and there was another, reading a newspaper. Goodness gracious! What was this the man maintained here—a harem? Toward them came a middle-aged woman, motherly and kindly of mien.

"Here's a new girl for you, Mrs. Wilkins," said the man. "She's fresh from the farm."

There was something in his words that froze the blood in Ruthie's veins. She had heard of dives where girls were enslaved, and where youth, pulchritude and innocence were at a premium. Was this——

"Come with me, child," said the woman, and she took her hand.

Ruthie held back.

"Wh-what is this?" she stuttered.

"Why—it's the Young Women's Christian Association. And our doors are always open to girlies like you. Under this roof you will be safer than on your own dear mother's lap. Come."

The stranger smiled beatifically, bowed and made exit.

"That gentleman," said the matron, "is Mr. Van Wallen, one of the richest men in New York. He devotes himself to welfare work and contributes hundreds of thousands of dollars to our institution and similar ones."

And, within half an hour, Ruthie was seated in a pretty dining room, eating a hearty supper with scores of other girls, all of them happy and wholesome. And that night she slept in a cot as neat as the one the seven bears lent to Snow-white—or was it the seven dwarfs who lent it to Goldy-locks?

After breakfast next morning, the motherly Mrs. Wilkins gave Ruthie some good advice, which Ruthie firmly declined to follow; no, she would not return home, and she would not tell the truth about where she lived, so there was no use in trying. Very well, then, would she go to work? The girl agreed. Mrs. Wilkins marked some want ads for her, gave her voluminous directions and instructions, and sent her out under promise that she would return before dark.

Ruthie did not go at once to the first advertiser. She wandered and she looked into show windows and she inhaled the atmosphere of the redolent metropolis. She saw only one half of one per cent if it, but it had her intoxicated, already. She soon found herself near the huge and storied commercial building which had been illustrated even in the boilerplate grapevine of the rural sheets. Up in that building was one of the offices that wanted girls. Ruthie had read and heard of these dens of mahogany, infamy and glass in the catacombs of the skyscrapers that stood like giant ghosts against the skyline of New York. Behind those walls, she knew, the wealthy bosses kept their stenographers after business hours, shoved diamonds at them, asked—and, if they refused, commanded—them to go with them to dinner in seductive cafes with private dining rooms and illicit champagne.

Hopefully, Ruthie entered the seething lobby and made her way into the wrong elevator. It landed her on the twentieth floor, whereas, she had wanted to find the eleventh. The elevator she took down put her off at the seventh, its first stop. Ruthie waited for another to run her up, when out of one of the offices came a middle-aged man, smartly attired. He looked at her and smiled. Ruthie's impulse was irresistible to smile back, though she had been trained to take no notice of strange men, and to run if one smiled. The man asked her whom she was seeking, and she told him. He flagged an elevator, escorted her into it, led her off again, took her to a door, and said:

"That's it. This building would drive the elevator starter, himself, crazy."

And he raised his hat and was off, racing for an elevator which the operator was hurriedly trying to shut off for fear he'd make it.

Ruthie was a bit stunned at his sudden escape, and she opened the door of the office, a trifle dizzy. She showed a girl at the information desk the ad, and was ushered by a fat boy into one of what seemed a hundred doors off a labyrinthian corridor, within. A good looking man under thirty sat at a desk. He glanced up.

"Ad?" he asked. She nodded.

"Write your name and address on that blank and fill out the other questions."

Ruth did. She returned the paper, showing that she lived at the Y. W. C. A., that she had no experience, that she was fifteen, that she was white, and that she was American born. The man read it in one eyeful.

"H-m—Y. W. C. A., eh? From the country? It must be pretty lonesome, isn't it?"

Ah! It was coming. That lonesome racket was one of the keynotes.

"It's just about lunchtime," he added, after she had admitted in pantomime that it was lonesome. "Will you come with me?"

That was the blow-off. Lunch was, every fool and farmer knew that—the first advance. She felt just a little miffed that he should try such elementary stuff on her. But she was in his hands—in the city's hands—in fate's hands. He took his hat and led her out of a private door into the hall. Of course, a private door; that was what private doors were made for.

"Going Far? He Inquired. "To New York," She Answered, Looking Off at an Angle.

It was Saturday afternoon. The streets teemed with the millions, off for their homes or their country clubs or their bootleggeries or wherever they were headed, to spend their half-holiday or their week-end. The man took Ruthie by the arm with his thumb and finger, for the crowds were thick and bustling. He dived her down a flight of stone stairs under the sidewalk, into heaven knew what. "Follow the Green Line," said a sign. Around corners they darted, until they came to a platform to which roared a train like some gigantic projectile down the barrel of a huge-bored cannon—and Ruthie realized she was in the subway.

He rode her for what seemed a few seconds and many miles. Then he walked her up and out and to an apartment building, into an elevator manned by an ominous looking colored boy in livery, then forth into a hallway and to one of many doors, which he opened with a mysterious shaped key. He had her in and the door shut before she had her breath. And she realized that she was trapped at last, caged in one of those vicious New York flats of which she had been warned since childhood.

From a room beyond a corner stepped a woman, young and attractive. She came forth to greet the man, then stepped back, surprised, at sight of the girl.

"Clara," he said, "this youngster came to the office looking for work. She's from the country, says she lives at the Y. W., and is probably a runaway. I thought we'd take her in over Sunday, anyhow, and you might give her a little sisterly talk. It can't hurt her, and it might save her a lot of grief. Girlie, this is my wife."

"Certainly—poor dear," said the woman.

"I remember when I first came to New York. My—my, I wonder how I ever wriggled my way past all the temptations on all sides. I was a young country girl, like yourself. And I hadn't even been warned and prepared like girls are nowadays, after seeing all the warnings so clear on the screen and reading the sound advice scattered around by the women writers on these topics, addressed right to little girls, themselves.

"No, I was green as a spring apple, and I could have been victimized by any of these no-good skunks that just lay around in town here, waiting for silly young girls.

"But I was lucky. I met Frank, here, shortly after I landed. He was from the country, too, and so I knew I could trust him. Give me the good, honest, upright farmer boy. God love him! Frank had been a hired man on a farm until he made up his mind to go into the big world and fight for success. And I could read in his face the moment I looked into it that he was clean and decent.

"Why, in all the years I've lived in New York now, I'm still afraid of the rich loafers and nasty mashers who haven't any better business than to ogle young girls, and try to decoy them into automobiles, and maybe give them drugged liquor. Goodness, I read about such things every day. This town is certainly no safe place for a lonesome girl without an older and more experienced woman to shield her, especially a child from the backwoods, who probably never came in contact with wicked men and women, who hasn't the wisdom and stamina to resist the glamor of the city. It makes me shudder to even think of it with my eyes shut, child."

Ruthie sighed with her and observed that it must be something awful—to those who suffer from it. In her own case, though, no one so far had molested her—much.

"It's providence, child, that's what it is," said the good woman. "But we mustn't fly in the face of it. It's just a miracle that some rich destroyer didn't pick you up in his fancy car even before you got to town, to drag you to some infamous den. You're so appealingly pretty—it's the tender buds these dirty dogs love to crush under their heels."

"Has a dog got heels?" asked Ruthie, between a grin and a yawn.

"They have fangs, then. You know what I mean. Oh, if I could only drive home to you my message to beware of these wolves why prey on innocent girls in this terrible town!"

And before she knew it, Ruthie was lunching sumptuously, telling her story. And she spent the night there and all the next day, for the woman telephoned the Y. W. C. A. and assured Mrs. Wilkins she was in safe and good hands. Sunday evening she was taken to the home.

Ruthie was grateful. But it was all not quite what she had expected. The Christian refuge was hospitable and clean and fine; but lacked all elements of the adventure she had looked for, and on Monday morning she left, over the tut-tutting of the injured Mrs. Wilkins, who surrendered only when Ruthie assured her that she was returning to the home of the good folk who had harbored her in the apartment. But Ruthie had no such intentions. She proposed to put up at a hotel. She had never been any further into any hotel than half way into the lobby of the Hickey House in her native burg. Now she had twenty dollars and four cents, and she was going to register once and ring twice for ice water if it took the last four cents. She had no particular hotel in mind—almost any would do. The Waldorf she favored; she had heard more about that one. And down the street she tripped.

Two roughly dressed men stood on the corner. She stopped and asked them where the Waldorf was. One of them asked her what she wanted with the Waldorf. She told him she wanted to "stop" there.

"You're crazy," he said. "Where's your mother?"

"Home—on the farm where we live."

"What you doing in New York?"

"I came here to—to—find work."

"And you wanna kip in the Waldorf? Say—I got a great little mother who could do you a lot o' good. She raised four daughters, and she knows just what you need. Come on with me."

Ruthie hesitated. She tried to choke back the tears, but they sprinkled from her eyes.

"No," she blubbered. "But if you know where the Delaware and Lackawanna depot is, please take me there. I'm going home—to the farm."

"Fine stuff," said the man. And he took her bag and both of them guided and accompanied her to the ferry.

"Sure you got enough money for your fare?" they asked, and Ruthie showed them that she had more than enough, and they said they would gladly have "staked" her if she hadn't. One of them bought her a copy of "St. Nicholas," and the other presented her with two bars of milk chocolate. As the boat pulled away they both waved to her and shouted: "Good luck, kiddo."

As Ruthie sat in the train she smiled. She smiled as she heard the wheels click rythmically on their flat spots, for every tap was bringing her nearer to Oak Point, nearer to the farm, nearer to Hank the hired man, the only interesting, romantic rascal she knew.

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

The big question in sporting circles is, Can the Petes win in Picton on Wednesday? So far as this column is concerned the answer is emphatically "Yes." The P.A.A.A. squad in Friday's nightmare of a game played the worst hockey, both as individuals and as a team, that local fans have ever seen them play, and at that they had to be unlucky as well to keep them from setting up a lead. They will surely get a share of the breaks in Picton, and with a return to anything like their form should bring home the bacon. They are aroused now, and will take the game seriously, something most of them failed to do for the greater part of Friday's fixture. If they tackle Picton with the same spirit they showed against Coombs & Company in Lindsay, and yet fail to win, then we'll take off our hats to that crew of grey shirts and admit they are a better team than we think they are.

Jack Adams, he of the rotund figure and the bright smile, who once upon a time played right wing for the 247th team here, and shared the stellar honours with Bobby Armstrong, is the leading scorer in the Pacific Coast League. Jack could always fire them fast and accurately, and his low shot to the corner is evidently as difficult for the pro. goalers to fathom as it used to be for the O.H.A. net guardians.

Hockey Then and Now.

When youngsters play at hockey now it takes an outfit two feet through, they're decked in pants made for the job and robed in sweaters pink and blue.

And on their precious little hands they wear a pair of rubber socks, You'd think they reckoned they would play with hunks of dynamite and rocks.

And then a dollar for a stick, a half a bone paid for a puck, if you get through outside ten bones you're in the choicest kind of luck.

A host of men work on a rink and scrape it with a curry comb—it ain't a bit like that old pond we used to patronise at home.

A hickory limb, an old tin can, two dozen kids all hard and fit—then came the greatest league on earth when skatin' on the gravel pit.—Noah.

Lovers of basketball can count upon a treat on Thursday when Belleville will play the Peterborough Juniors in a Junior O.A.B.A. game. The local youngsters have been travelling in sensational style in practice, while their two wins over the Toronto Central Y show they are a formidable outfit who should go a long way towards capturing the Ontario Junior championship. Peterborough won the Intermediate Provincial title last year, and will make a big bid this season to add the Junior honours to the list. Both Intermediates and Juniors are strong.

Famous Words of Famous Men:

"Good-bye. I'll see you at the finish."—Albert Smoke.

This Picton team, on its records this season, does not loom up as a fast scoring organisation. In five O.H.A. games the grey shirts have scored only fifteen goals, an average of three counters per game. Their defence will have to be away above normal if that average will beat the Petes on Wednesday night.

Owing to the Brock Street Rink being engaged by the curlers for the first three days of the week, the Petes will not be able to practise there before the Picton engagement. The rest, however, will not do the crew any harm. They have had a lot of hockey in the last two weeks, and a let-up should put them on edge for Wednesday's acid test.

The Beginning of a Beautiful Friendship.

When you meet a fellow who tells you how badly the Petes are going to beat Picton.

Down in Sandy Lockington's town the Port Hopers don't care what happens now. Beatting Oshawa twice in one season is glory enough for the Ontarios, and Friday's victory is still the sole topic of conversation. Meanwhile Joe Welsh up in Oshawa is so dazed by the double disaster that he has been putting as many as three oysters in a single stew.

When a Feller Needs a Friend.

When he has to explain a game like Friday's for the one hundred and eleventh time.

Referee Mitchell, of Toronto, is to handle Wednesday's game at Picton. He is a new official so far as the Petes are concerned, but he has been giving great satisfaction wherever he has worked, and has made a reputation as a strict and impartial referee. That is the only kind that should be called upon to handle such an important game.

To-day's Happy Thought:

We didn't get a break on Friday, so there's a double share of luck coming to us in Wednesday's game.

Belleville To Be Here For O.A.B.A. Game Thursday

Peterboro Youngsters in Great Form, But Expect a Hard Battle From Bay of Quinte Team — First Junior League Game.

The Belleville Junior O.A.B.A. Basketball team will be here on Thursday to play the first game of the Junior O.A.B.A. series against the Peterborough Juniors. The return game is slated to be played in Belleville on the 8th. Peterborough expects a hard struggle even on their home floor for the Belleville Juniors are reported to be very fast and aggressive while they also carry quite a bit of weight. Peterborough is depending on the ability of two of their sharpshooters to get the baskets while they play the defensive methods which they are rapidly developing in their practices. Grant Maidens who has been seen here in action several times with the Belleville H.S. rugby team is reported to be on the line-up, and with Maidens on the team Belleville will certainly fight every minute of the game for in addition to being one of the fastest boys in Ontario sports he is also one of the gamest and never quits trying. The Peterborough boys are hoping he will be able to play as they are sure of clean methods with him on the team. Those basketball team fans who last year enjoyed the crack shooting of "Chip" Seeley and "Tom" Pogue with the Intermediate champions will see a worthy successor in "Ben" McLean, the fast shooting forward. "Jack" Hardill, centre player for the Junior Petes, outjumped all three opponents stacked up against him in the exhibition game played in Toronto recently. Those on the Peterborough line-up will be McLean, Hardill, Hopkins, Sage, Elliott and Ecobichon. Three or four other players are fighting it out for the position of the second sub.

CHAMPION SKATER
Oscar Mathiesen, of Norway. International professional speed ice skating champion, who is now in the United States to compete in a series of races.

HOW THEY STAND

A win for Belleville in Cornwall to-night will clinch the district for the Quinte town. The far Easterners will be dangerous at home. Bringing up the rear at Kingston last Wednesday, Cornawll scored six goals in a row.

Markham and Uxbridge are tied in Intermediate Group No. 4, and they will play home-and-home games to decide the winner. The first game will take place in Uxbridge on Tuesday, January 31, and the return in Markham on Friday, February 3.

H. W. Mitchell will handle the return game, Peterborough at Picton, on Wednesday night.

Lindsay Midgets play the second game of the series with Lakefield at Lakefield to-night.

LAWN BOWLERS AND WM. HAMILTON MEET ON THURSDAY NIGHT

BONSPIEL OPENS TUESDAY MORNING

RECORD ATTENDANCE OF COMPETINC CLUBS EXPECTED FOR PETERBORO' CURLING FEATURE

Peterboro's Bonspiel Committee is confronted with the very kind of weather it had hoped to avoid when the dates for the big competition were pushed forward two weeks. And so the best laid plans for the curlers are threatened to-day with going the proverbial way of the plans of mice and other men. Not that the playing ice has been affected by what looks like a belated January thaw, but any further display of unseasonable heat might make mush of the McIntosh product after a day and night of continuous curling.

The expectations of the local club were that the number of rinks entering to-morrow morning when the draw is made will at least equal, if not exceed, that of other years. Four or five of the rinks in this district are sending larger contingents than ever, and other clubs that have been only occasionally represented will register to-morrow.

All the indications are for a record attendance, and W. G. Morrow and his special committee have everything ready for the visitors.

PTE. HAWKINS, THE "DUKE," and Lance-Corporal Percy Wilkins, in the side splitting comedy, "M'lle of Armentieres," at the Grand Saturday, matinee and night.

AT THE ROYAL, TO-DAY, TUESDAY AND WEDNESDAY NEXT.

To-day the Royal presents two superb feature pictures. William Christie Cabanne presents "What's a Wife Worth," a beautiful story and one that will appeal to every woman in the world. A young man is persuaded that his wife has deserted him, and marries a second time to a girl his father selects for him. His second wife is the very antithesis of the first, who loves babies and home life. Then he compares conditions and "What's a Wife Worth" is the answer. "Old Dad," a six-reel feature, with Mildred Harris Chaplin in the leading role. From one scandal to another she slipped with innocent feet. Expelled, disgraced, forgiven, and married to a bigamist all in a month. But "Old Dad's" arms win her safe anchorage in every storm. Bettina, now a local favorite, in the wonderful serial, 'Breaking Through' is once more with us in more depth defying stunts. Jimmy Aubrey, that cornicopia of merriment, scatters laughter once more in his favorite comedy, "The Blizzard." A big show for a small price, and the best picture show in Canada at any price.

AT THE CAPITOL.

To-day the Capitol Presents the Big Paramount Special Production, "Don't Tell Everything," With Three Popular Stars, Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson and Elliott Dexter, and a Big Three - People Vaudeville Act. The Rollins Trio.

Today at the matinee and evening, also Tuesday and Wednesday, the Capitol offers a splendid picture and vaudeville program, the main feature attraction being of course the big Paramount special feature picture, "Don't Tell Everything." In this picture, which is one written around the world wide triangle-three-people idea, Wallace Reid, Gloria Swanson and Elliott Dexter are the stars and a well-written romance of love, intrigue and misunderstandings. Many of Canada's best theatres have played this big production for a full week. A long list of really splendid short reel pictures have also been selected to go with this feature, including a two-reel comedy, "We'll Get You Yet," a Rolin comedy, Pathe News, Topics of the Day, Esops Fables and the ninth episode of "Hurricane Hutch," the vaudeville act, "The Rollins Trio," a clever 3-people novelty, harmony singers and musical artists, will complete one of the very best bills seen at this theatre in some weeks.

Manager Abbey made a big hit with the public when he offered 350 seats in the balcony at only 16 cents admission, and he states it has brought a lot of new faces to the Capitol in the last ten days. This will be the last week that vaudeville acts will be used as some of the biggest and best Paramount pictures ever produced are booked in for an early showing at the Capitol.

FAN-FAN.

AT THE GRAND.

The Rex Stock Company has a typical comedy for their offering this week. "The Travelling Salesman," in four acts of laughable situations, makes one of the best comedies the Rex people have yet produced, and includes even the little Park kiddies, so there will be lots of action in this week's drama.

The ingenious "drummer," who attempts to straighten out her financial difficulties for the charming little station agent, gets himself into serious trouble, and the balance of three acts are devoted to his endeavors to fix things up in a satisfactory manner. A five-handed game of poker in the second act is one of the funniest situations in a comedy of laughs.

"BOOB McNUTT"

The famous American humorist, Rube Goldberg, has transplanted the screamingly funny cartoon, "Boob McNutt," from the comic page of the newspapers to the stage. Mr. Goldberg says: "I have created a cartoon world for 'Boob McNutt.' Now I will make him famous as an actor." This brand new musical novelty, "Boob McNutt," is scheduled to appear at the Grand Thursday, February 2. It is said to be a genuine hummer, with a bevy of beautiful girls, catchy song hits, infectious melodies, smart ensembles and good wholesome comedy. Originality is the keynote of the Goldberg musical novelty which contains the high-speed and sure-fire laughter of the modern American musical show. One of the pleasing features of the performance is a comely chorus of young misses who are well versed in singing and dancing. A large and capable cast of musical stars will be seen in the leading roles.

"MADEMOISELLE OF ARMENTIERES"

"Mademoiselle of Armentieres," which will appear at the Grand Opera House next Saturday afternoon and evening, is a four-act play depicting the various characters, humors and incidents of the boys whilst serving in France. The play is the result of the combined efforts of a number of University of Toronto men who desired to record, primarily for their own amusement, the varied incidents of their own experiences. Each member introduced some special character or incident which appealed to him most, and the result was so successful that it was decided to compile these various sketches into story form with an interesting sequence of situations intermingled with humor and pathos. The scenes of the play are set as follows: Act 1—Rest Billets in Bully Grenay. Act 2—A Front Line Dug-Out. Act 3—A Front Line Trench. Act 4 — Back in Billets, Bully Grenay.

The local color is supplied by the old Estaminet - keeper, who is ably assisted by his daughter, Julie, and by Mlle. Suzanne Delpierre, a refugee from Armentieres. The detail construction of the play, the characters, mannerisms and actions are worked on the highest standard owing to the fact that every player is an ex-soldier, who knows the work to perfection.

THE FICKLE SEX

"To Please one Woman" Tells of Their Foibles.

O. Henry once wrote a story about a prize fighter who visited every store and cafe in New York and finally led a police raid—all in order to secure his bride a certain peach that she craved. When at last he had it in his possession, she blandly remarked that it was an apple she wanted!

However, the pugilist's bride was a piker compared to the beautiful dark-eyed feminine creature about whom the action takes place in "To Please one Woman" Los Weber's new photoplay, which will be on view at the Regent Theatre for three days, commencing Monday next. The story describes the shattered romance, left in the wake of this supremely selfish lady, who simply couldn't keep her velvety hand off any good-looking man that happened around.

"To Please One Woman" was written and directed by Lois Weber. Claire Windsor, Mona Lisa, and Edward Burns play the leading roles. The picture is a Paramount release. "To Please one Woman" TT"is clo the cabinet might have been left open at some time. It is understood that this man, when examined by the officers, could not tell whether or not any strychnine had been removed from his supply. This former medical practitioner lives on Dovercourt Road.

Miss Stumpf, the woman to be called to-night, was summoned last night. She has been interviewed by the authorities since the death of Anderson Buchanan, and she will be asked to repeat her story to-night.

Miss Stumpf is the woman said to have been in the auto on the highway with Buchanan when the auto was trailed by Anderson Buchanan, as related by the mother of the boy at the inquest. Her evidence is to be taken in an effort to establish a motive for the crime of which the father, according to the finding of the Chief Coroner, was guilty.

MONEY SAVED ON FILTRATION

in water rates has enabled the Commission to reach many consumers, that would have remained without water otherwise.

As a result the extensions to the mains has consisted of 5, 6 and 8 inch pipes in the outlying districts.

Preparatory to paving of Water street, the existing 5 inch main was taken up and an 8 inch main installed in its stead. This will greatly improve the fire pressures in the down town district. The new main was laid two feet deeper, and all services crossing the road were lowered to prevent freezing, which occurrd during the very cold winters of the past.

The policy of lowering hydrants that gave trouble from freezing, was continued and eleven were thus treated. Also fifteen wre extended above the ground surface at the request of the Fire, Water and Light committee of the City Council.

About 200 hydrants were painted red with white trimmings and the balance will be done next season.

The Fire Underwriters Inspector made a test of the system on Nov. 1st, and expressed himself as being well satisfied.

Reflecting the increased activity in building work, 125 services were laid, this being a considerable increase over 1920, when only 41 were laid.

Pumping Station and Dam.

The mild winter of 1920-21 resulted in no sheet ice forming on the forebay, and consequently the danger of frazile ice was constant. Steam was therefore kept up for the auxiliary pump almost continuously all winter.

The water-wheel gates were frozen on six occasions for a total of forty-one hours, during which time the steam pump had to be kept ready for fire demands.

On three occasions, for nineteen hours, the steam pump supplied all the demands of the city.

On December 6th last every powerhouse on the Central Ontario system was shut down, and we were able to carry on with the auxiliary, thus demonstrating again the wisdom of installing it.

The pumping station was repainted inside, and the pumps thoroughly overhauled, and the wooden decking over the wheel pits was renewed.

Owing to the excessive amount of chlorine being used, the chlorinator had practically to be rebuilt.

Pumpage.

The total pumpage for the year was 1,165,814,000 gallons, which is fifty million gallons less than 1920. Although the summer was a very hot and dry one, and much water was used then, yet on account of the mild winter as compared with the year before, very little water was run to keep taps from freezing, which latter always greatly increases the consumption.

The maximum rate of demand was on July 6th, when a rate of 7 3-4 million gallons per day for an hour was reached. This day was a hot one, the maximum temperature being 98 deg. and the minimum 74 deg.

The average day's pumpage for the year was 3,193,970 gallons, and the maximum was 4 460,000 gallons, on July 11th, when the temperatures were 92 deg. maximum and 68 deg. minimum.

Condition of Water.

The usual samples were tested daily from the intake and the city mains. The results showed the intense pollution of the river water during the summer months.

In spite of heavy chlorination up to a rate of 13 lbs. of liquid chlorine per million gallons, of the water supplied to the consumers, was not of high quality.

The citizens were advised on June 22nd to boil all water for drinking purposes, and the ban was not lifted until October 25th.

The maximum temperature of the water was 84 deg.

KEEP SMILING, SAYS BISHOP QUAYLE, D.D.

REV. GENTLEMAN CONDEMNS CYNICISM AND STOICISM

With inspiring sermons gy Iev. William Quayle, D.D., of St. Louis, Missouri, Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church North, Trinity Church yesterday concluded its golden jubilee services. The month of January will long be remembered by the congregation, suitably marking, as it has, the achievements of a half century.

In the morning Bishop Quayle exalted joy and condemned cynicism and stoicism. He preached from Hebrews 12.2, "Looking unto Jesus who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God." "Christ," the distinguished pastor said, "was the greatest smiling person who walked alon gour ways. The reason we hear about his weeping is because it was not his custom—smiling was."

There are three classes of people, the noted American preacher said: Cynics, Stoics and Christians. The cynics despise life, the stoics endure life and the Christians enjoy life. "There is one man we may infallibly pattern and never blunder, and He is Christ. He didn't despise poverty, like so many people to-day; Christ despised just one thing—sin. Despise sin wholly if you would follow Him," the speaker urged.

"When we come to classify and catalogue our joys, we must put our endurings in," he declared, continuing to point out how petty many human troubles are in comparison with mankind's blessings. "The matter of labour is not a matter to be endured, but one to be enjoyed. Active and strong men don't want to retire Life's a great joy to me; I enjoy it all, even its frenzy and turmoil. You ought to have a smile in the heart anytime so you can let it loose when you want to."

The Master rejoiced, the eloquent divine concluded, in taking the burdens of life away. The glory of Christ was the cross, and now the cross is everywherew exalted. Christ picked the man out of the throng, declared Bishop Quayle. They were lost, but from that day the whole world has been lifted, thanks to the great Christ still walking our roads, still feeling our pains and rejoicing in our joys.

The Evening Service.

The church was filled to overflowing at the evening service to hear the eloquent Bishop from St. Louis. The sermon, which was based on the words of Christ, 'Man shall not live by bread alone," was a marvellous appeal for attention, to man's intellectual, aesthetic and spiritual needs, as well as his physical wants.

"Man must live by bread," said the Bishop. 'We live in a bread world, and the world over men are working for bread. It is hunger that drives men to work. But when man is full of bread he is still unsatisfied. Why? Because he has other needs than physical needs. He has a mind and it is criminal to starve it. He has an aesthetic nature and God made a world of beauty to be enjoyed. But aesthetics are not ethics. There are people who profess to love beauty, but they seem blind to moral beauty, the beauty of holiness. They may be "spirituelle,' but they are not spiritual. God alone can satisfy man's highest nature because man is akin to God. He is a living soul made in the "image of God."

Never perhaps have the people of Peterborough listened to more impassioned eloquence, nor heard a more inspiring appeal to higher living than the Bishop's sermons yesterday.

The music at both services was of a very high order. At the evening service, especially, both the choir and Mrs. King and Miss Palmer, were heard at their best. Mr. King is deserving of great praise for the work he has done with his excellent choir.

The services of yesterday were a real climax to the splendid series extending over the month.

with. I do not say that fat men are all saints, but I do say that it is easier for fat man to be good than for a lean man. A fat man's provender goes where all can see it, but a lean man's is not seen, unless it is in his brain. It is much easier for a fat man to look affably upon the world, because his bearings are well oiled. A lean man is apt to be critical, and to regard himself as the censor of the world. And Cassius would not laugh. A man who is always lean and laughterless, think what his wife suffers."

"What disease ailed Cassius? It was envy, the meanest, smallest microbe of them all. He envied Caesar."

Cassius was a brainy man, without a heart, and these people are always more accurate. They have a habit of absolute rectitude in small matters and apt to misrepresent larger ones. "When a woman is in love, when her heart rules here, does she know more than she did before? No, she doesn't know anything, so she marries the man."

Was All Brain.

"But Cassius had no heart. He was all brain, the cold grey and white matter of a complex brain, the sort of mentality that is never suffused with the good, red hot blood from the heart, and in his relations to Caesar, he practised subtraction. There are two ways of being great. One is to grow great, in which God gives the direction, and which takes time and energy and hard work, and another way, which is effortless. When a man is big, chop him down. It is a very customary method, and the one that Cassius used with Caesar."

Cassius worked on the loyal feelings of Brutus, whom the speaker described as a kindly, sweet-hearted, big-hearted man, an ingenuous man, an intense patriot, a dreamer and an idealist. But Brutus lacked stamina and resolution, and the envenomed personality of Cassius gained a mastery over him, persuading him that Caesar did not love Rome, and forcing into his hands the sword that later slew his friend.

Mark Antony was the soldier, the scarred, sunburnt god of war, Mars come to the ground, erect, bronzed, cleaving to his sword-hilt, "who threw away a sceptre for a woman's kiss, and never missed it." A dramatic presentation followed of the death of Caesar, the temporarily broken aspect of Mark Antony, and then the pent-up fury of the man breaking forth in the loyalty to Caesar that burned as a firecely after his death as it had when the lived, in the famous funeral oration which turned the Romans against the conspirators and drove Cassius and Brutus forth to battle and then to suicide.

A Great Statesman.

"Julius Caesar is universal greatness. He gathered to himself all Rome. If all Rome were lost, and Caesar stood, nothing were lost. If the Coliseum with its poor naked eye-balls, forever looking and never seeing, had been cast into the sea, if all the great aqueducts and viaducts of Imperial Rome, its triremes and its splendor, were smitten into nothingness, and Caesar stood, nothing were lost. He was an orator, a politician, and a statesman, the first of the twelve Caesars, and his shadow evoked men that sat on the throne of Rome and formed the governing power of the entire world until the great Napoleon Bonaparte slew it."

"In the final scene, Mark Antony stands like a mountain, his sword hacked and dented from the fray upon Caesar's enemies, and above him, the ghostly figure of Caesar, immense, ever enduring. The name of the play is Julius Caesar forever."

Just before the lecture Mrs. George H. King rendered two very beautiful solos, "I Would Weave a Song for You," and "Smile Through Your Tears."

MR. WILFRED HUYCKE STARTS PRACTICE HERE.

Mr. Wilfred Huycke, a son of His Honour Judge Huycke, has just hung out his shingle as a barrister-at-law, at 395 Water Street, in the office recently occupied by Mr. Robert Harstone.

Mr. Huycke, who went overseas in 1915 and served until 1919 in the Canadian Infantry and Canadian Field Artillery, was, prior to the war, connected with the legal firm of Beatty, Blackstock Fasken, Cowan & Chadwick, in Toronto, and on his return home went into the offices of Ludwig & Balantyne, in the same city. He has just removed here from Brockville, where he was a member of the firm of Hutcheson, Driver & Ballantyne. He had the advantage of a year at Harvard Law School in Cambridge, Mass., and The Examiner can also lay claim to some part in his tuition, as he was a member of the reportorial staff some years ago.

purpose of supplying them with power for pumping. It was also found necessary to rebuild a line from Smith street and Armour Road to the Curtis Brick Works on account of the re-alignment of the roadway which has undergone reconstruction. A new extension was built on Chamberlain street, Western Avenue, Edison Avenue, South on Park and Lansdowne streets. These new extensions brought us in sixty new customers, two-thirds of which were equipped with flat irons and other appliances inside of sixty days. A new line was also contructed from Dalhousie and Water streets along the C.P.R. right-of-way to the Vermont Marble Works. This relieved other circuits which fitted in very nicely with the rebuilding plan for East City, part of which has already been carried out. Many other extensions were made during the year and in every instance resulted in a very great improvement to the service.

Trimming Trees

The scheme generally followed where the trees are heavy is to trim up underneath sufficiently high to permit of a three wire secondary system being constructed. This consists of three heavy wires attached to steel secondary racks the neutral or centre wire being carefully grounded. In this way the saving effected by the use of shorter poles more than offsets the extra costs of copper used, besides this type of construction is practically immune from storm trouble. These secondary systems are connected to large transformer units which have a much lower cost per kilowatt capacity that the smaller ones. The construction work is carefully carried out oak arms well braced with steel are used and the transformer is equipped with oil fuses which make a good disconnecting switch, also a set of lightning arresters which are thoroughly grounded to the water mains.

Details of Work

Some idea of the magnitude of this work may be gained by noting the fact that 526 poles have been set valued at $4328.00, 125600 feet 15 3-4 tons of wire of various sizes have been strung valued at $6868.40, 125 transformers with a capacity of 1243 kilowatts have been placed in position valued at $18125.00. The labour item which is usually large on such work amounted to $2663.00 for new construction and for re-construction $2751.00. The total number of new services added to the system during the year was 278.

Meter Department.

Our Meter Department has had an exceptionally busy year repairing and reverifying meters for service; 1754 meters have passed through this department, 1476 have been verified, 278 new meters have been placed in position, for which $1032.60 fees were paid to the government for inspection. Our meter system is in exceptionally good condition at the present time.

The number of permits received from the Electrical Wiring Inspector for new work, temporary work and re-occupation amounted to 395. The work orders for the year amount to 3820. It might be said in passing that the number of work orders issued is not in anyway a measure of the work performed, for frequently a single order covers work that may require weeks to complete.

In conclusion I wish to note the loyal and cooperative effort of the staff in carrying out the year's work.

Lord Byng is said to be interesting himself in an effort to obtain relief, and may take steps to enlist the support of Lieutenant-Governors of the Provinces.

Market News

NEW YORK, Jan. 30. Canadian Press. — Buying of shippings, metals and chain store share, strengthened the general list at the opening of to-day's stock market. Mercantile Marine preferred, United Fruit, Utah Copper, National Lead and Kresge gained large fractions to 1 3-4 points. Otis Elevator and American Ice common and preferred, and hide and leather preferred, also were substantially better. Further realizing sales caused moderate recessions in corn products and May department stores —Union Pacific was the one prominent exception to the higher trend of rails.

The market turned weak before the end of the first hour on selling of Atlantic Gulf Common and Preferred Gulf States Steel, North American, Studebaker, American Studebaker, American Can, and Davison Chemical. Losses in these and related shares ranged from one to almost four points. Foreign oils yielded to pressure, notably Mexican Petroleum and General Asphalt.

Kresge was the one stock to move forward ,extending its gain to 5 1-4 points. Low grade oils were steady, but dividend paying issues developed further heaviness. Call loans opened at 5 per cent., although local supplies of money were augmented by offerings from interior banks.

Irregular movements characterized early afternoon market. Consolidated Gas broke from 90 1-2 to 85 1-2 on fears of an adverse decision by United States Supreme Court in 80 cent gas case, but recovered to 88 when it was announced no decision would be rendered to-day. American Sumatra Tobacco dropped 2 1-2 to 27 1-2 lowest in several years. Gulf States Steel meanwhile climbed from 66 to 70 and New Haven and Cosden Oil made good progress upward.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, Jan. 30. — (Canadian Press). — Opening wheat prices, which varied from 1-8 off the ½ advance, with May 1.18 5-8 to 1.19, and July 1.04 3-4 to 1.05, were followed by a set-back all around to well below Saturday's finish.

Hedging sales against purchases of corn to arrive were more or less responsible for a sag in values of corn and oats. After opening unchanged to ¼c lower, May 54¼ to 54 3-8, the corn market continued to weaken.

Oats started unchanged to ⅛c up, May 39½ to 39 5-8, and went downward in line with other grain.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange strong. Demand 4.26; Canadian dollars, 4 3-8 per cent. discount.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press).—The first half-hour of trading on the local Stock Exchange this morning was extremely dull, and not one of the leaders varied in the slightest. Of the Bank stocks, Montreal registered a three-quarter point decline to 217¼

TORONTO STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press).—The initial session on the local Stock Market this week was dull. Toronto Rails was weak, losing 1¼ points at 68 3-4. Steel of Canada sold off 3-4 from the high point to its close at 55. Mackay lost ¼ at 82 3-44. Steamship Preferred unchanged at 45½, and Brazilian showed a gain of ¼ at 30¼. In the Banking section a good demand sprang up for Imperial and sales were freely made at 164½. War Loans were very quiet with prices steady.

TORONTO CATTLE MARKET.

TORONTO, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press.)—Receipts 1,364. Trade slow. Quotations: Heavy beef steers, $11.17. Choice butcher steers, $6.50 to $7. Butcehr cows, medium, $3 to $4. Calves, $11 to 013. Lambs, $11 to $12.50. Hogs, selects, $12.50.

CONVICTION QUASHED.

TORONTO, January 30 (Canadian Press). — The Police Court conviction against W. A. Hewitt, in connection with the sale and circulation of the Daily Racing Form, was to-day quashed by the Divisional Court of the Ontario Supreme Court. The Court held that the graveness of the offence under the law was in the assistance and encouragement of betting, and not in the distribution of racing literature.

SOLDIERS SUFFERING.

OTTAWA, January 30 (Canadian Press). — That many returned soldiers with distinguished records are suffering keenly from unemployment is shown by the fact that in a number of second-hand stores here are Military Medals, Military Crosses, and Distinguished Conduct Medals, which have been sold by owners in order to provide themselves with food and shelter.

Military Medals bring $7.00 in second-hand stores, and other medals of silver under that figure.

CLOSE "HAZEL BRAE" NEXT MAY OR JUNE

GIRLS' HOME WILL BE REMOVED TO TORONTO

It has been authentically announced that the Board of Directors contemplate removing the headquarters for their Girls' Home from Peterborough to Toronto, and, in consequence Hazel Brae will no longer be a necessary part of their organisation, the establishment will be closed up, and the property offered for sale.

The change will probably be made some time in May or June of this year, after a final consignment of girls is brought out to Peterborough, probably in March.

The girls under the care of the Dr. Barnardo's Homes will be taken directly to Toronto thereafter, and housed in the same building now occupied by the boys alone.

The new headquarters of the work of the Homes in Canada is situated at 538 Jarvis Street, Toronto, and is a memorial building to the old Barnardo boys who fought and fell in the Great War. It has just recently been acquired at a complete purchase price of $90 000, with a probable further $10,000 necessary to fit it up for all purposes, including headquarters office, accommodation for the reception and distribution of immigrant parties of 150 or 200 children, and residential quarters for boys and girls passing through Toronto to and from their places of employment.

The sum of $5,000 subscribed by old boys and girls has already been paid as a deposit, and the Homes are making an appeal to the Canadian public for support of their building fund. They present an array of figures to back up their statements that Canada benefits to a great extent by the immigration parties brought out by the Homes.

The total number of children brought to Canada to date is 26,889, and the Federal Government's estimate of the number who make good Canadian citizens is placed at 95 per cent. The average contribution of the Canadian Government for each of 600 children brought out last year was $5.80, the cost to the English Homes for Canadian work in 1920 was $135,000, and the total amount paid to foster parents in Canada for boarded-out children from 1891 to date was $839,386.

RELIEF FOR SINGLE MEN IS PROMISED

Mr. T. Tooms Receives a Reply From the Minister of Labour, Ontario—Aftermath of Saturday Conference Held Here

COPY OF LETTER

As a result of a conference held in the city on Saturday afternoon in which Mr. G. N. Gordon, M.P., Mr. T. Tooms, M.P.P., Mr. S. Whatley, Secretary of the G.W.V.A. and Mr. Hugh Robertson, local officer in charge of the Government Labour Bureau, took part, Mr. Tooms has received a deply from Hon. Walter Rollo, Minister of Labour, in reply to his request for immediate action on the part of the Provincial government for the relief of unemployed single men. The reply follows:

Toronto, Jan. 30th, 1922.

Mr. T. Tooms, M.P.P.,
661 Armour Road,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Mr. Tooms,—I have your letter regarding relief for unemployed single men. The Government has announced that it would reimburse municipalities to the extent of one-third of the expenditure for the relief of single men who are out of employment, and cannot obtain same through the Government Employment Service, provided, however, that no payments for lodgings or cash doles will be sanctioned. Each municipality is to be allowed to devise its own method of handling such cases. An Order-in-Council to this effect will be passed in a few days and a copy will be forwarded to Peterborough.

Yours truly,
(Signed) W. R ROLLO,
Minister of Labour.

"SMAX" BREAD OVER THE TOP

PETERBORO PEOPLE APPRECIATE EFFO.TS OF G.LGOUR AND SONS TO SUPPLY BETTER BREAD.

In an interview with the Examiner Mr. Gilgour of Gilgour and Sons, bakers, stated that all the trouble gone to by their firm to produce "Smax" bread has been justified, and the sales of this fine quality bread exceed their most sanguine expectations. Mr. Gilgour remarked that he had confirmed his belief that the people of Peterboro appreciate high standards in bread making.

People who have read of the wonderful health giving results of a natural diet rich in vitamines, can enjoy these blessings by using "Smax" bread. This bread is baked in such a way that it contains more of the mysterious vitamines than other kinds. Better health in 'Smax' homes is only natural, Mr. Gilgour said.

In a definite way Mr Gilgour is now attempting to do his part in promoting interest in "Vitamines" and he has offered substantial prizes for essays not to exceed 300 words in length on this subject. Full particular of the essay contest appeared in last night's paper and already much interest is being taken in the unique contest.

"Smax" bread has "gone over the top" it is made of special flour, rich in vitamines and baked to a turn, it has created the greatest interest in the city and district of any bread ever introduced here.

LIBRARY HAD RECORD YEAR

Last Year the Circulation Reached the High Mark of 85,000—This is Busy Season.

In a letter to Librarian F. M. Dela Fosse, W. O. Carson, Inspector of Public Libraries for the Province, comments very favorably on the growth of the Library in 1921, and remarks particularly on the large increase in circulation. Total circulation during the year 1921 was approximately 85,000, more than double the circulation than when the Library was first opened. No less than 900 new members were added during the year.

None of the departments have been marking time, and the record for the year was the best in the Library's history. There are few idle moments for the staff even on these dull winter days. The experience of the Librarian and his assistants is that when other things are dull they are busier. In quiet times people turn to reading, but when business is booming books lay unopened in home, shop or office. The circulation has developed to a point that was hardly dreamed of a few years ago. The Juvenile Section is generously patronized, and the reading-rooms' accommodation is more often taxed than otherwise.

Unemployed Attend.

The unemployment has had a noticeable effect on the attendance at the reading-rooms. Nearly every afternoon the men's section is full, and a glance across at where feminity rambles through the pages of magazines seems to indicate a similar condition over there. That the valuable reference library is not consulted more is a regret of the Librarian. However, it is developing in favor, and all sorts of people browse in there of an afternoon or evening. A large section of the reference works have, through the exigencies of space, had to be moved to the basement, and long rows of ponderous volumes are arranged down there, waiting to divulge information on various and sundry subjects.

LOVING CUP PRESENTED TO FLAVELLE

Peterboro Curling Club in Presence of 200 Curlers at Opening of Bonspiel Today Paid Their Respects to the "Old Master."

50th YEAR IN GAME

The deep respect and warm affection which the members of the Peterborough Curling Club have for J. D. Flavelle, of Lindsay, found expression this morning in the presentation to him of a handsome silver loving cup and a gold-headed umbrella at the opening of Peterborough's bonspiel. Mr. Flavelle was invited by the bonspiel committee to make the draw, which is the technical phrase for the matching of the rinks in the competition by drawing their names from a hat and pairing them as they are drawn.

W. G. Morrow, chairman of the bonspiel committee, opened the proceedings just as they had been opened in other years and without any intimation of the surprise in store for Lindsay's grand old man of Canadian curling. In other years Mr. Flavelle had been asked to preside over the draw, in recognition of the high regard in which he is held by curlers throughout the country. But this morning before the names of the competing skips were dropped in the hat following the time-honored custom, Mr. Morrow turned the proceedings over to Mr. John A. Cameron, president of the Curling Club, after welcoming the visiting rinks and extending to them his best wishes for their success in carrying away the prizes.

Mr. Cameron addressed himself to Mr. Flavelle and in a fine tribute to the Old Master stated that Peterborough curlers esteemd him as an old friend and a curler who, on and off the ice, had been an ornament to the game.

The presentations were made by Mr. Harry Foote, secretary of the bonspiel committee.

Mr. Flavelle in reply said that he had been taken completely by surprise. He had not expected to be so honored and had come to Peterborough this year at the invitation of the bonspiel committee because of his interest in the game and in the Peterborough bonspiel. Mr. Flavelle spoke feeling of his long experience in csrling and stated that this was his fifteth year playing the game. If in that time he had retained the respect of the curlers after all those years he felt that he had not played in vain. In conclusion he commended the Peterborough Curling Club on their hospitality. They were known far and wide for their open bonspiel, which Mr. Flavelle hoped would continue to be as successful as of old.

CAPITOL—Three great stars in a great picture, "Don't Tell Everything," also high class vaudeville, including three clever harmony singers and musical artists. The biggest act ever!

Divine Spinelly Clothed In Picture, Paris Gasps

PARIS, Jan. 31.—After weeks of feverish preparation and repressed excitement, the independent artists' salon is open. It is as shocking as ever.

There was one keen disappointment for art lovers, however. Artist Bernard had promised a beautiful portrait of the dazzling actress Spinelly. It was hinted that the portrait would show Spinelly as she really is—that is, without enough adornment to hide any of her natural beauty. But the portrait appeared and Spinelly was clothed.

As a matter of fact, the filmy garments she wears were an afterthought, for Bernard retouched his original hurriedly on Thursday afternoon to have it ready for the public opening on Friday. The lady's shapeliness, nevertheless, is little disguised.

Van Donegen Very Tame.

Van Donegen, the Dutchman, whose libelous portrait of Anatole France in 1921 created a furore, is very tame this year. His single canvas, that of a business man, is unrealistic, for the man is smiling as he tried to get a number on a French telephone.

Britziane, a Frenchman, contributes a pastel called "Voluptousness," a swarthy Methistopheles passionately embracing a white nude, which makes even Parisians gasp.

The riotous cubists and near-cubists predominate, however. The Americans are comparatively restrained.

LONDON PREDICTS RETURN MUSTACHE

Due to Lascelles', Lloyd George's and Prince's Efforts.

LONDON, Jan. 31. — The mustache question is being revived. There are various impelling circumstances. Those gushing young persons who are still torturing the English language for new phrases of delight over the royal nuptials have noted, of course, that Lord Lascelles wears a real old-fashioned mustache, and the heroes of newspaper serials should be destined herefore, to be equipped with mustaches for some little time to come.

To this must be added the thrilling discovery, by indefatigable photographers, that one of the King's sons now is cultivating a mustache and that neither he nor Lord Lascelles is a supporter of the appaling tooth-brush variety.

Further, in the public eye just now are such eminent wearers of the mustache as M. Briand and Lloyd George; and that other popular hero Michael Collins, also is mustached.

Whence it comes that nameless prophets in such matters foresee a return to the later Victorian model.

DEATH LURKS BOOTLEG RUM

State Official Predicts Big Increase in Mortality if Drinking Goes On.

Poison Is Sold By Quart.

LANSING, Jan. 31.—Herbert H. Hoffman, secretary of the State Board of Pharmacy and in charge of the State Agricultural Department's bureau for the enforcement of drug laws, says he believes that by 1925 the death rate in Michigan from nephritis, which is a type of Bright's disease, will be alarmingly large, a far higher rae than ever before in the history of the state, if there is no check in the drinking of counterfeit alcohol beverages made and sold by bootleggers.

The note of warning that Mr. Hoffman sounds to all bootleggers who are drinking their own beverages, and to their tens of thousands of patrons throughout the state, is sufficiently specific so that it might reasonably be expected to lead to the swearing off of drinkers in droves. About two years ago Mr. Hoffman declared that death or paresis was a reasonably sure end for thosee indulging in Jamaica ginger, toilet water extracts and like druggists' preparations containing a very high percentage of alcohol. Since then the drinking of these kinds of preparations as substituted for intoxicating pre-prohibition liquors has greatly declined for the reason that ways have been found to produce and buy less expensive intoxicants, the kind of stuff against the use of which Mr. Hoffman now gives the danger signal, all of which comes within the class of synthetic beverages.

The situation as explained by Mr. Hoffman is this: The amount of alcoholic intoxicants in the country, whiskies in particular distilled under Government supervision and by far the larger percentage is unavailable to bootleggers, being in Government warehouses. So bootleggers can not supply the demand

AN ENORMOUS EARTHQUAKE REGISTERED

Registering Needles Are Thrown Off the Scale at the Observatories—Covered a Wide Range

BRIEFS FROM WIRES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press).—An earthquake of great intensity, probably about twenty six hundred miles south of here was registered today at George town Seismological Observatory. Tremors became so pronounced that the registering needles were thrown off the scale. Rev. Francis Tonderf, director of Seismological Observatory, and one of greatest earthquake authorities in the world, said the quake was enormous.

Both countries are in default on interest payments. Approximately Roumania owes twenty-three million dollars and Greece seven and a half million.

SIXTY PATROLMEN FIGHT BATTLE WITH NEGRO IN BARRICADED HOUSE

Two Policemen Shot and Seriously Wounded—Several Other Casualties—Trouble Arose Over Eviction of a Negress.

BOSTON, Jan. 31. — (Canadian Press).—Sixty patrolmen armed with riot guns, battled for more than one hour to-day against Renzy Murray, a negro, who, barricaded in his home in the south end, shot and seriously wounded two patrolmen, a negress and a negro, and set fire to the bed in which an infant lay. He finally surrendered uninjured to a dozen officers, who broke down the door of the house and advanced on him in a body.

The trouble arose over the eviction of Mrs. Jackson, a negress, by Murray, who fired several shots after her on the street. These attracted Patrolmen Dalton and McShane, who endeavored to enter the house, but the latter received a bullet in the stomach and Dalton was wounded in the face.

All available police answered the riot call, and a battle ensued. Mrs. Jackson's husband, on the top floor of the house, was seriously wounded, and a negress who watched the battle from a window received a bullet wound.

Finds Jobless Relief Is Menace to England

Detroiter Says Dole System is Sapping Industry, Destroying Workers' Morale; Solution Up to Privileged Class.

By FREDERICK F. INGRAM

DETROIT, Jan. 31.—So accustomed are we to seeing England emerge from her undertakings, enriched and stronger, however dubious the path or disastrous the missteps, that it seems probable she will find a way out of the present crisis. Yet after two months in London devoted to tudying the views of her politicians, business and professional men, and observing the effects of the pallatives adopted for mitigating the evils of the situation, no way out seems possible except by a seriously studied overhauling that may shake England's time-hallowed social and commercial institutions to the very foundations.

Must Trade To Live

England must sell her manufactured goods abroad, else she can not obtain from abroad the food and raw materials necessary to her existence. America can and does raise her own food. England raises only enough for one day of the week. She must trade her exports for enough food to keep her alive the other six days, and also trade more exports for lumber, cotton, copper and other raw material which she cannot produce. England must trade to live.

The thinkers of England now realize that they cannot compete in the world markets, that their goods, offered at present cost of production, find few buyers abroad. They are beginning to realize that their production cost must be reduced even to compete in the domestic market, where foreign made goods of the same quality are now to be had at a lower price.

Taxes Help Burden

Taxes, all agree, must be lowered. The manufacturer's fixed charge to cover taxes is enormous; it alone sufficient to prevent him from competing with foreign goods.

On the other hand, the English government is in no position to reduce taxes since the financial year closes with a huge deficit, and instead of paying off war debts further debts are being incurred. Reducing public expenditure is a difficult problem. The year, ended Dec. 31, 1921, shows a drop of $911,400,000 in the national revenue, while for the same period there was reduction in expenditures of only $357,000,000—$554,400,000 to the bad

But even this showing, bad as it is, is false. Large sums realized from the sale of war material were treated as revenue. Having been bought with borrowed money, the sums realized from the resale should have been treated as capital and used for the reduction of the national debt.

Where Tax Money Goes

When the Old Age Pension Act was passed, it was claimed that the total expenditure would not exceed $25,000,000; the estimate for the current year is more than $109,000,000. It has been discovered that these payments have not been restricted to the destitute but deserving poor. Fathers sometimes hand over their property to their sons and then claim the pension under the plea that they are destitute. Parliament has not attempted to rectify this abuse.

The Ministry of Health 20 years ago cost less than $426,000; its current year estimate is more than $126,000,000.

The cost of the Poor Law Relief in 1908 was $71,000,000; in 1920, a year of prosperity, it was $97,000,000 and it will be much more this year. An additional $85,000,000 from the national treasury was spent in doles to the unemployed, besides the vast sums that are paid by the local parishes for the same purposes, which, of course, must come out of the fixed charges of manufacturing.

Dole Law Held Bad

The dole recipients are a vast army; the dole distributors are another vast army of office holders. All will resist any attempt at reduction.

As a temporary relief measure in

ROTARIANS HELP CRIPPLED FOLKS

MATTER DISCUSED AT REGULAR WEEKLY LUNCHEON—THE OHIO PLAN REVIEWED.

(By F. H. Dobbin)

Monday and at Rotarian luncheon, was practically a day of reports. Several matters, held over from the holiday season were brought to a focus and dealt with, thus pushing all a step further on to completion.

Rotarian W. R. Breyfogle, chairman of the Committee, that is working on the proposition to assist crippled children of the city. The report was very interesting and covered the remedial measures and active work as carried out in several places across the line, where success had been attained and a large amount of real good done. In addressing the Club the Chairman outlined the "Ohio" plan, by which 12,000 crippled children of the State are being helped. A survey was made and after securing all the names the legislation was approached and so successfully was the appeal that a large sum was set aside to be used for the purpose in hand. As would be expected, Rotarians all over the state were taking deep interest in the work and a very active part in administering the funds so created.

Bring in Specialist

In Peterborough the committee had succeeded in securing the names of nineteen children, to all of whom attendance and treatment would be of the greatest benefit. A specialist will be brought from Toronto to diagnose these cases and suggest remedial treatment as required in each case. The committee recommends that the proposition be handled in connection with the local Health Association.

The directors of the Club and Rotarian Dr. McPherson will join with the committee and further on report to the Club as to a suitable plan to carry on he work.

Rotarian Ross Dobbin reported on the Rochester District Conference of Rotary Clubs to be held on March 31st and April 1st next in that city It has been arranged that representatives fom the Canadian Clubs will attend from among these immediatly surrounding Peterborough including the local Club and from Cobourg Belleville, Kingston, etc. Toronto Club will send a strong delegation. The Cobourg Club has very kindly offered to entertain visiting clubs as they pass through to take the ferry boats for the other side of the lake. More of detail later.

Earl Davidson gave a short address on the Boy Scout Movement and asked for the support of the Club members. He was assured of this by Rotarian Fred Roy, chairman

ADDRESS TO THE KIWANIS CLUB TODAY

Progress of the City Reviewed by City Clerk S. R. Armstrong — Peterborough is Manufacturing Centre.

VISITORS TODAY

An optimistic address by City Clerk S. R. Armstrong to the Kiwanis Club to-day on the probability of Peterborough becoming a great manufacturing city, featured the noon luncheon. Mr. Armstrong concisely reviewed the progress of this city. From 1901 to 1911 its population increased 63 per cent. and in the last ten years another decided increase took place. He pointed out that while the city proper had grown by leaps and bounds, the adjoining municipalities had benefitted and reflected the city's growth in their development.

Mr. Armstrong dwelt on Peterborough's favorable situation, its transportation facilities, both by rail and water, its power abundance, its ideal labour conditions and also its recreations, its healtful situation and proximity to summer resorts. Peterborough was naturally endowed and Mr. Armstrong looked for great things from this city. The fact that in the last few years many American firms had located branches here was regarded as an encouraging sign.

The luncheon to-day was largely attended. In the absence of President Frank Whitehouse, Vice-President C. Russell Widdifield presided. The announcement by Norman Barclay, District Trustee that Lindsay was to have a Kiwanis Club shortly, was received with a great ovation. Peterborough is sponsoring the Lindsay club and already 25 members have been signed up.

Kiwanians are looking forward to next week's luncheon, when the following noted Kiwanians will pay their annual visit, Bev. Hay, of London, District Governor, Hugh Murray of London, District Secretary, Arthur Ford, President of the London Club, and H. J. St. Clair, President of the Toronto Club.

POLICE ENGAGE IN A SQUABBLE

INFORMATION TO THE TORONTO POLICE ON BUCHANAN CASE MISFIRED SOME PLACE—STENOGRAPHER LOCATED.

HAMILTON, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press).—According to Miss Carrie Robinson, public stenographer, who typed the original "beauty powder" circular for James Buchanan from his pencil notes, she told her friend, W. B. Dixon, 190 Cannon Street, on January 19 to notify the police that she had typed the circular. Dixon states that he accordingly did so on either January 19 or the following day, but that he was told by an officer at detective headquarters that it was a matter for the Toronto police. However, he said, the officer said he would take note of it, and wrote the information on a slip of yellow paper.

Finding that the police apparently had not taken any action, Miss Robinson consulted Rev. P. W. Philpott, and through him her statement was made public.

Asked why no action was taken, the Hamilton police officials insist that they promptly notified the Toronto police, and that if any one is at fault that person is in the Toronto police headquarters.

Although Inspector of Detectives Guthrie of Toronto, denies having received information from Hamilton concerning typewritten circular, it was learned this morning, that any information secured by Hamilton police was passed on promtly to Toronto.

TO-DAY'S FASHIONS

FOR THE SOUTHERN TOURIST

From among the first arrivals of warm weather hats, come these two. The top one is of apple green taffeta, flower trimmed and generously veiled with black lace. Below metallic straw makes a charming turban whose decoration is a great wreath of shiney green grapes.

FASHIONS

A blue dotted veil is very becoming to the gray-haired blue-eyed woman.

Brocade slippers for negligee wear match the gowns with which they are worn.

Cotton crepe is being used rather extensively for tub frocks for small children, and there is a veritable rage for natural color pongee.

Washable flannel kimonos are popular and dainty, and wool challis is used for serviceable cold weather boudoir garments.

For the small boy's spring overcoat covert cloth is to be the very popular fabric, and some charming little mannish models are now being shown.

The three-piece outfit of dress with matching coat or cape is exceedingly popular in the showing of Southern resort and early spring apparel.

"Eskimo Pie"

JUST A little while ago.
OUT IN a little town.
IN THE State of Iowa.
A YOUNG man conducted.
A PROSPEROUS confectionery.
KNOWING HOW much.
SO MANY people liked.
ICE CREAM with chocolate.
POURED OVER it.
AN IDEA struck him.
WHY NOT coat ice cream.
WITH CHOCOLATE.
OBSESSED WITH this idea.
HE TURNED his business.
OVER TO the charge.
OF AN assistant.
WHO SPEEDILY wrecked it.
NOTHING DAUNTED by this.
HE WENT ahead trying.
TO ENLIST candy men.

IN HIS big idea.
BUT THEY called him.
A VISIONARY bug.
AND TAPPED their heads.
IN A significant manner.
WHEN HIS back was turned.
RUSSELL STOVER of Omaha.
WAS ONE who listened.
CAUGHT THE idea.
AND HELPED work out.
THE PROCESS of manufacture.
TODAY THIS Eskimo Pie.
IS THE candy success.
OF THE present decade.
AND NELSON, the inventor.
IS BUSY fighting imitators.
AND PATENT infringements
FOR IT seems that.
INFRINGERS AND imitators are.
WEEDS OF perennial growth.

Two lessons we learn from this little story of a great business success.

1. Even the experts guess wrong sometimes—yes, many times—and turn down a good idea because it is new or novel.
2. Every success invites imitation and counterfits.

Dr. Still's idea of healing by adjustment was scoffed and laughed aside by the wise ones; yet, founded on the bed rock of truth, it has prevailed.

Its greatest compliment is the cloud of imitators and counterfeits who seek to steal away its prestige and fair name. For the osteopath cannot defend his rights, as does Mr. Nelson; osteopathy is not patented.

ROCK COMPANY PREPARES TO BLAST ANOTHER HILL

Twenty-Five Men Employed on the Work Near Havelock—Anticipate a Busy Season.

Havelock Personals.

HAVELOCK, Jan. 31.—The Ontario Rock Co., which owns the trap rock quarry two miles east of Havelock, have twenty-five men employed tunneling into the hills at the quarry. They have two tunnels about sixty feet apart and about fifty feet into the tunnel. They branch into three in each tunnel. They are now worked into the hill which is solid rock about 150 feet and intend going 150 feet further.

The drilling is done by electric drills, driven by Hydro power, which is brought from Healey Falls. As the rock is blasted out it is loaded on self-dumping cars by muckers and is run out on a narrow guage railroad to the mouth of the tunnel and dumped.

The Ontario Rock Co. expect that it will take until spring to finish these tunnels when they will be loaded with forty tons of dynamite and set off by an electric battery. The blast is expected to split the hill into huge sections, which are again drilled and split into pieces which can be handed in to the crusher, where they are crushed by electric power and run down chutes into waiting cars.

Last spring they set off a blast that loosened enough rock to keep the plant going all the season. The past summer they loaded and shipped fifteen cars of trap rock each day, their payroll amounting to about $10,000 per month and they paid freight in 1921 amounting to over $100,000.

They have a large office, boarding house and several dwelling houses at the quarry.

The trap rock makes a splendid covering for roads, and Havelock streets, which are covered with it, present a hard, even surface and with very little dust, as this rock when wet cements together and is very hard, giving long wear.

5 SHOTS FIRED AT A BELFAST WORKER

BELFAST, Jan. 31.— (Canadian Press.—What is regarded as a grave development in connection with the resumption of work by expelled Catholic employes in Belfast was an attack last night on James McCullough, who returned to work in one of the shipyards.

Five shots were fired at him as he was leaving Queen's Island gates. One bullet lodged in the shoulder and he was struck on the head by a bolt.

JURY BROUGHT IN A VERDICT

"RESPONSIBILITY FOR DEATH OF YOUNG BUCHANAN RESTS WITH HIS FATHER" DECLARES CORONER'S JURY.

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press.)—What practically amounted to a verdict of murder against the late James Buchanan, was returned by the coroner's jury inquiring into the death of Anderson Buchanan, the beauty powder victim, early this morning. James Buchanan ended his own life by gas poisoning Saturday last, and according to the evidence produced, was the man who had the circulars printed in Hamilton, similar to that which enclosed the strychnine that caused the death of young Buchanan on January 18.

After hearing the evidence of Mrs. Jessie Buchanan, who told of her unhappy domestic life, Claude McCarthy, the Hamilton printer who identified photos of James Buchanan as the man who had ordered the beauty powder circulars from his firm, and of Miss Kathleen Stumpf, who told of her association with young Buchanan's father during the last five years, the jury returned the following verdict:

"We find that Anderson Buchanan came to his death at 228 Riverdale avenue as a result of strychnine poisoning on January 18. We believe that the responsibility rests with his father, the late James Buchanan."

By this verdict the mystery which has baffled the Toronto police for two weeks, is nearing a complete solution. Interest created in the murder of Anderson Buchanan has probably been without parallel in the history of Toronto and the great throng which crowded the morgue and apraoches to the building testified to this fact. Long before the hour set for the opening, crowds filled the building, and so great did the crowding become that the police reserves were called into requisition to permit the investigation to continue.

SAYS PROFESSIONS ARE PAID TOO MUCH

W. A. Anderson, Otonabee, Refers to Reductions Producers Have Had to Take—Professions Should Cut Rates.

One of the causes of unrest in this country is the feeling among producers that the men of the professions are paid too much for the service they give.

Such was the statement of Depduty-Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee at the hearing by Judge Huycke at the dispute between rural public school inspectors of Peterboro and the County Council. He was arguing that the expense allowances of Inspectors Lees and Broderick should be reduced to the pre-war figures.

"All producers have had to go back to pre-war prices," said Mr. Anderson, "and farmers feel that they have to pay too high for the services given by the professional classes. This is one of the causes of the prevailing unrest and discontent in this country, and if it is to be removed these people must work at a lower rate."

Relief Worker Says It Is Too Late to Save the Famine-Stricken People of Russia — Terrible Suffering.

Eating the Dead.

LONDON, Jan. 31. — (Canadian Press.)— Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, who is closely identified with Russian relief, expressed himself in a pessimistic manner in a statement to press representatives yesterday afternoon regarding the famine in Russia:

"It is too late to save the people of Russia," he declared. "Whatever is done they will die by the millions. Live stock is dying everywhere, and if nothing is done there will presently be nothing remaining. Twenty American dollars will keep a horse alive, but a human life can be saved for 15 shillings; that sum would keep a man alive until the new harvest.

"You may talk about the horrors of war, but these people suffer for weeks and months before they die. Their bodies are nothing but skin and bones, but the famine stricken do not come to that state until many days have passed."

Asked if there was any truth in the reports of cannibalism, Dr. Nansen replied that there was, but said it was not widespread as yet.

"In many places the people are eating dead bodies," he said, 'but in the Samara regions they are beginning to kill one another."

Dr. Nansen will appeal to the British people to-morrow night for Russian relief.

COURT HELD FIRST MEETING

Informal and Preliminary Sitting of International Court of Justice Held Yesterday.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press.)—At the first informal and preliminary sitting of the Permanent International Court of Justice in the Peace Palace yesterday, nine of the eleven judges and two supplementary judges were present. Dr. B. T. C. Loder, of Holland, took the chair pending the election or a president. The first question to be settled was whether the supplementary judges should participate in this election. This being decided in the affirmative, the meeting decided to invite the two other supplementary judges, namely, Demetriu Negulesko, of Rumania, and Dr. Chung-Hui Wang, of China, to participate. The election will take place at the next sitting on Friday of this week.

In the meantime Dr. Loder will act as provisional president. It was decided at yesterday's sitting to request the secretariat of the League of Nations to provide a court with provisional secretariat. The first public meeting of the court was fixed for February 15.

Among the judges present were John Bassett Moore, of the United States, Viscount Finlay of Great Britain, Yoruzo Oda, of Japan, Senator Ruy Barbosa, of Brazil, Rafael Altamira of Spain, Dionisio Anzilotti, of Italy, Max Huber of Switzerland, and Charles Andras Weiss, of France.

SHACKLETON WISHED WORK CARRIED ON

Death Came to Noted Explorer Three Minutes After Medical Aid Was Summoned — Whalers Made the Coffin.

Voyage Continued.

MONTEVIDEO, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press.)—The body of Sir Ernest Shackleton, the British explorer, lies in a hospital here in a rough, wooden coffin that was made for him by Norwegian whalers of the Island of South Georgia, where he died on January 5.—A squad of Uruguayan soldiers acts as guard of honor and until the body has been sent to England, probably February 11, the guard will be maintained by the Uruguyan Government, which plans also to render other honors.

In this handiwork of simple-living Antarctic islanders—a strong box of unplaned deal wood, lined with corrugated zinc—the famous explorer will be buried in England.

"I am sure that is what he would wish—in keeping with his own simplicity, and because these whalers of the South Seas, whom he loved made it for him," said. Captain L. Hussey, meteorologist of the steamship Quest, and close friend of the explorer, who arrived with the body here last Sunday on the Norwegian steamer Profesor Cruvel.

Death Was Sudden

As described by Captain Hussey to the Associated Press correspondent here, Sir Ernest's death was sudden. It occurred at 3:30 o'clock in the morning in his cabin the day after arrival from Rio Janeiro at the principal whaling station of WELCOME, KNIGHTS O' THE STANE!

Peterborough is glad to extend a hearty welcome to the curlers from far and near who have gathered here for the annual bonspiel. The members of the curling fraternity are always sure of a hearty reception, for they bring with them such a spirit of comradeship and good fellowship that it would be a churlish community that would not be glad to see them. The curling game seems to develop sportsmanlike winners and good losers; there are few pastimes in which the spirit of rivalry is so mellowed by the good feeling that exists among the contestants. All the rinks that are here cannot win; some of them will not survive the first round in the various competitions; but they will do their best on the ice, shake hands with the men who beat them, and accept the fortunes of war philosophically. Winners and losers alike will joy in the excitement of the competition, renew old acquaintances, and make new friends. And when it is all over and they have scattered to their respective homes, they will go back to business with a keener zest and a renewal of vim and enthusiasm, beter men because for a day or two they were able to lay aside the cares of the everyday hum-drum and indulge in the grand old game of curling.

The Examiner trusts that every knight of the stane and besom will enjoy his visit to Peterborough, and that he will feel that the community is glad to have him here, is interested in his work on the ice, and will be always glad to see him again.

A SENATORSHIP FOR PETERBOROUGH.

The death of Senator Beith at Bowmanville leaves a vacancy in the Upper Chamber that must be filled before the session begins. It should in all fairness be filled by the appointment of an Eastern Ontario man, and if simple justice is done it will be filled by the selection of a resident of Peterborough. This, one of the most important cities in the Eastern part of the Province, has never been directly represented in the Senate. Both political parties have been at fault in this respect, for both have passed over capable material in Peterborough to select citizens of some other community. In some respects, of course, the late Senator Cox was recognised as a Peterborough man, but at the time of his appointment he was a resident of Toronto, his interests lay outside of Peterborough, and he represented other connections and enterprises than those of this city. In the many years that the Senate has existed, Peterborough has been isolated so far as representation was concerned. In the appointment of a successor to Senator Beith the new Government has a chance to right an ancient wrong and to effect a measure of reparation to a city that has been neglected so long by the political parties of Canada.

Peterborough is undoubtedly entitled, from every point of view, to this appointment, and there would be no difficulty in locating in this community a man who, by reason of his public record and all-round ability, would be capable of valuable service to Canada in the Upper Chamber. No time should be lost in presenting this city's claim for recognition upon the Government. It is high time that Peterborough's isolation in regard to the Senate should be ended.

THE UNEMPLOYED SINGLE MAN.

Several correspondents have called attention to the problem of the unemployed single man, for whom the relief scheme is not open. Undoubtedly there are instances where such men are in the most destitute circumstances and need assistance from some source or other. Naturally the man with a family is thought about first, and rightly so, while the bachelor with nobody dependent upon him does not seize upon the public imagination. In many cases, of course, he has relatives and warm-hearted friends who take care of him during the period of stress, but there are individuals who are alone in the world and whose pathway just now is not strewn with roses. They must eat, have enough clothes to keep them warm, and sleep with a roof over their heads. Some of them, through no fault of their own, for in most industries the single men are the first to go when staffs are being cut down, have been without work for many weeks. Their savings, if they were provident enough to prepare for bad times, have long since vanished, and they are facing conditions that, if not ameliorated, are of the nature that make criminals. What is to be done in such cases? The Examiner passes on the question to such organisations as the Federated Relief Bureau and the Big Sisterhood in the hope that some solution to the problem of the workless single man may be arrived at in time to be of some assistance.

THE PROBLEM OF REFORESTATION.

It is a matter for regret that the sessions of the County Council have come to an end without any action having been taken in regard to reforestation. The matter was mentioned several times last week, and at previous sessions, but the Peterborough Council has so far not awakened to the seriousness of the situation nor to a sense of the Council's responsibility. Ontario's forest wealth is rapidly being depleted at the present rate of destruction, unless reforestation is adopted on a large scale, the limits will be exhausted. The Provincial Government must grapple with the problem with more vigour than has hitherto been shown, and at the same time it would seem to be an imperative duty of the counties of the Province to take what local steps they can accomplish in dealing with the situation. Some of the counties are realising that fact, and are beginning to accept their responsibility. At the meeting of the Council of Ontario County last week, a permanent standing committee was appointed to handle the reforestation problem, and a policy of local action will be adopted. It is probable that a section of low-lying waste land will be fenced by the Council and will be stocked with trees provided by Government which will also see that the trees are protected. The cost to the municipality under such a scheme would be trifling, and Ontario County—if it enters upon this policy, as seems probable, will have the satisfaction of turning a tract of waste land into a source of revenue. Some such plan could be followed to advantage in Peterborough County, and if a similar policy were to be adopted throughout the Province, the cumulative effect would completely transform the situation as regards the timber resources of Ontario.

THE TROUBLES OF THE WEST.

The Manitoba Government is about to take action to make it certain that the land-squeezers shall not have a chance to operate on the farmers of the Province who may be more or less temporarily embarrassed by the shortage of money due to the short price they received last season for a high-cost crop.

It is highly necessary that such action should be taken. There are firms all over Canada who can tell for a fact, after studying their business charts and sales sheets for a period of months, that the buying power of Western Canada is right now below the safety line. Once that point is reached one of two things is going to happen: (1) The farmer is going to be pressed to the point where he will sacrifice to raise cash, or quit entirely, or (2) He is going to have access to the assistance he needs, and it must be at such a rate and on such terms that it will not ride him to death for years to come.

The development of Western Canada means more to Eastern Canada than many of the Easterners imagine or admit. For that reason the problems of the West dserve the serious and patient study and co-operation of the East. The Eastern manufacturer is shrewd enough to know that the welfare of his customers in the West is, in the last analysis, the welfare of his own business.

From information coming from most reliable sources, it is certain that many farmers in the West lost money last year on a fair crop of No. 1 hard. When the wheat started to move toward the elevators the prices were perilously close to a no-profit undertaking, but when they fell off abruptly to around 87 cents a bushel, the West knew what it was in for.

There is not a meeting of any size in Western Canada to-day where freight rates are not discussed, and where there is not a crying out for relief. Where there is so much complaint there must be a very considerable degree of justification for the complaint.

Just this week there are reports that the Alberta coal fields are apt to lose much of the headway they are making in securing the coal trade of the Western Provinces, because freight rates made the cost so high to the consumer that United States coal came in at an advantageously lower price.

The Western Retail Lumbermen's Association, representing 1,400 dealers, met in Winnipeg. They demanded reductions in rates, one delegate claiming that 24 cents a bushel was the freight rate on wheat from some sections of the Province. On that basis of figuring, he claimed that at present market prices every fourth crop was raised for the benefit of the carrying companies.

Then, from the standpoint of the man who has live stock to market, the point was raised at the same gathering that it took the value of one steer to take two more down to market at St. Paul, the outlet for the surplus beef or the Prairies.

Now, these are facts, and although grievances always come to the surface when men gather together to tell their troubles, there is enough to show that the West needs attention. The price the man on the land receives for his produce has dropped seriously, and markets have been closed that were heretofore open. While this has taken place the price he has to pay for transportation has stayed just about where it was when wheat was three times what it is now.

If this condition is not improved how are we going to approach the people of Britain, or of our own Dominion, and ask them to go West and start farming? The magnet that will draw men West will be the ability of the West to reward honest work with an honest reward. That would do more to advertise and develop that country than all the publicity work and immigration officers they could engage and put to work.

It is surely a bad advertisement for Western Canada to have it published all over the world that the farmers who have gone there are not satisfied with the progress they are making, and are in need of financial assistance from the Government to keep them from being squeezed out of their holdings.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Prosperity is just around the corner.

As The Globe puts it, what this country needs is less pull and more pull together.

There is something in a name after all. A Belleville Chinese resident named Sin has been arrested for theft.

Our neighbours to the south have often a rather amusing idea of Canada. Here is a man in Minnesota who writes the city clerk in Halifax for a list of the names and addresses of the people living in Nova Scotia. He evidently does not know that there would be over half a million names on such a list.

Perth County Council wants the Mothers' Allowance Act extended so as to include a widow with one child. There will be much approval of that suggestion everywhere.

According to Chicago stationmasters kissing at the stations has been delaying trains. There must be a tremendous amount of osculation on some of the Grand Trunk lines.

Hon. Mr. Stewart is all dressed up with a Cabinet job, and has no place to go.

Mayor Raven, of St. Thomas, insists that his salary shall be cut from $1,000 to $500. There's a rare bird.

SEE CANADA FIRST.

Vancouver Sun: No man is fit to legislate for Canada until he has seen Canada. Moneys expended by the Government in paying the expenses of every member of Parliament on a journey from one end of Canada to the other would be only a reasonable and necessary insurance premium for securing good legislation and ensuring against inadequate or ill-advised legislation. We believe that the efficiency of Parliament would be very greatly increased once every member had made a transcontinental tour of personal investigation. Even if the times were normal, and the demands for Parliamentary action confined to routine legislation, there would be a greater factor of safety in legislative action by a body of men who were dealing with localities they had actually visited.

Voice Of The People

THE PUNCH BOARD.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Some time ago an article appeared in the columns of the Examiner condemning the punch board as a gambling device and proving that it is contrary to law to have one of these boards in any place of business. You very kindly gave us the law in the matter, which showed that the person selling these boards or using them in business was guilty of a breach of the Act, the penalty of which was a heavy fine or imprisonment. The person punching the board was equally guilty, it seems. But while other towns have put this gambling device out of business, some owners and users of these boards in Peterborough simply defy the law by going on with this illegal practice. Will the Chief of Police tell us what we are to do in this matter. I am a merchant, and would like to keep the law, but other merchants have the board and use it even to sell groceries. I refuse to run such a board because it is against the law and against my principles; then why should another merchant be allowed to defy the Act? Are we to enter an action against all who use these devices, another action against the general agent who sells them, or what shall we do? Has the Chief of Police any particular reason why he is keeping so quiet on this gambling question.

Yours, etc.,
A MERCHANT.

AGRICULTURAL COURSE

Editor Examiner:

Dear Sir:—Will you permit me space in your valuable paper to say just a word regarding the "Short Course in Agriculture" which is being held at present in the U.F.O. rooms on Simcoe streeet.

It seems rather a pity to me that more of our young farmers are not taking advantage of this opportunity while it is right at their door.

Mr. McRae, district representative, has gone to considerable trouble and some expense on his own part, to make this "course" a success, and I think it is up to the young men who are interested in agriculture to do their part by attending at least some of the lectures.

I think the trouble is that the course is free. Some people think that because a thing is free it is necessarily "no good." But let me assure them that such is not the case regarding this "Short Course."

Most of the lecturers are either O.A.C. professors or graduates, and they are giving the same high quality of lectures at this course that one must pay considerable money to hear at the O.A.C., Guelph. And having attended the O.A.C. myself I know what I say to be true.

I would highly recommend this course to all who desire knowledge on agricultural subjects from men who have had both theoretical and practical training, and who know what they are talking about.

Thanking you for your valuable space.

I remain,
ONE INTERESTED.

Beware of Tender Gums

Unhealthy soil kills the best of wheat. Unhealthy gums kill the best of teeth. To keep the teeth sound, keep the gums well. Watch for tender and bleeding gums. This is a symptom of Pyorrhea, which afflicts four out of five people over forty.

Pyorrhea menaces the body as well as the teeth. Not only do the gums recede and cause the teeth to decay, loosen and fall out, but the infecting Pyorrhea germs lower the body's vitality and cause many serious ills.

To avoid Pyorrhea, visit your dentist frequently for tooth and gum inspection. And use Forhan's For the Gums.

Forhan's For the Gums will prevent Pyorrhea—or check its progress, if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's will keep the gums firm and healthy, the teeth white and clean. Start using it today. If gum-shrinkage has set in, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

SOVIET TRADE AGENT SUED FOR BIG SUM

LONDON, Jan. 31.—(Associated Press)—The Court of Appeal has just decided that Leonid Krassin, the Soviet trade agent in England, is not entitled to diplomatic immunity which he claimed in a suit brought against him by a Yorkshire textile firm to recover the sum equivalent to about $190,000.

Krassin asserted that his recognition by the British Foreign Office as official agent of the Soviet government under the provisions of the Russo-British Trade Agreement constituted diplomatic immunity.

Lord Justice Bankes, in dismissing Krassin's appeal, said the Russian had not established that he was recognized in any capacity other than a trade agent and that this did not protect him from civil process.

It is understood that the case will be taken to the House of Commons which is the ultimate tribunal of appeal.

THE PRINCE

Micawber, perhaps the most futile and amusing of all literary creations, was the Prince of Procrastinators.

He was always just about to make a spring. He constantly told David Copperfield that he was contemplating a vigorous leap forward.

But he was never outside a network of overdue bills and bankruptcy. His life was lived within the shadow of the debtor's prison.

And the moral of it all. Any act which is vital and excellent should be carried out at once. For instance, the policy of Assurance which you think of taking up, say, next month, will not help much if anything untoward should happen to you between now and then.

Appetite Good, Gained 20 lbs.

Could Not Feel Better

From a nervous wreck this man was restored to health, strength and happiness.

He tells his own story in this letter.

Mr. Ralph A. Roberts, Loverna, Sask., writes:

"In 1917 I had lost all appetite, failed 25 pounds in weight, become very nervous and shaky and in fact given up all hope of recovery. For some time I had suffered from constipation, which kept getting worse, until I was fast becoming a total wreck. Doctors and their drugs were sending me to my grave at the age of 39.

"Then I read about people being restored by Dr. Chase's Medicines and after three months' use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills I found that my bowels were restored to normal movement each day and the constipation was no more. I had a good appetite, had gained 20 pounds and could not feel better. I shall always be grateful for these benefits."

South Georgia a place called Gryvicken, a town of 200 inhabitants. All the way from Rio Janeiro the explorer had suffered neuralgic pains in his chest and back, but he insisted that the attack was unimportant. He fought off all suggestions of returning for treatment, confident that the pains would disappear.

The Quest reached Gryvicken on the afternoon of January 4, and Sir Ernest immediately went ashore and arranged for provisions and coal.

The explorer planned to proceed direct to the ice barrier in a day or two for the first exploration trip in search of Enderby Land. He returned to the ship at nine o'clock that evening; in the best of spirits, and laughed and joked in his usual way. He retired early in the evening apparently in perfect health.

Summoned Medical Aid

Shortly before 3:30 o'clock the next morning, Dr. Alexander Macklin, the principal medical officer of the expedition, was summoned by Sir Ernest. The physician found him suffering severe neuralgic pains again in the back and chest.

"Give me something to stop this, and in a few minutes I'll be all right again," he said. At this moment another medical officer, Dr. James McIlroy, entered the cabin. Before the two doctors could take any measures to relieve his pain, he had died, three minutes after he had called for assistance.

"How long he had struggled that night against these pains we do not know", said Captain Hussey to-day. "But he died as he wanted to die—suddenly and without any lingering illness."

Later in the day the body was brought ashore and placed in the English Church of Gryvicken, and the Norwegian and British flags of the island were half-masted. The rector was visiting another whaling station and consequently there were no funeral services. The best efforts were made to embalm the body, although the proper fluids were lacking. This is now being done again at Montedvideo.

Wireless Broke Down

The steamer Professor Cruvel, which calls at South Georgia for whale oil, was the only other vessel in port besides the Quest, and after taking her cargo she sailed with the body for Montedvideo on January 30. Her wireless apparatus broke down, and she was unable to communicate the sad news until her arrival here.

Captain Frank Wild, who assumed command of the expedition, proceeded with preparations to continue in accordance with a written agreement with Sir Ernest that if he should die Captain Wild should carry on. Accordingly the Quest departed on January 16, in search of Enderby Land, reported to have been seen by Capt. Enderby ninety years ago, but which nobody since has succeeded in finding. The expedition probably will return in March, when it will be decided whether further explorations will be continued. This will depend upon John G. Rowett, of London, one of the patrons of the expedition.

Captain Hussey was detached by Captain Wild to accompany the body to England, "because you stood highly in the boss' estimation", as Captain Wild wrote in his letter of instructions. He commissioned Captain Hussey to buy a wreath for Sir Ernest's funeral, the cost of which each member of the expedition will share equally.

Captain Hussey said he had no doubt that the entire program of the expedition would be carried out. He said he expected to rejoin the expedition. He was officially made a guest of the Uruguayan Government, which also extended condolences to the British Minister.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

SOCIAL EVENTS IN TOWN—MEN HOLD A DEBATE—PERSONAL MENTION.

CAMPBELLFORD, January 31. —Rev. C. F. McIntosh is in Toronto this week.

Mr. Robert Whelan, who for some years has been the Bell Telephone foreman here, left, with Mrs. Whelan and family, yesterday for Norwood, where he will be line foreman for the company. His friends here, while regretting his departure, wish him continued success in his new home.

The young people of the Baptist Church were most pleasantly entertained last evening at the home of their pastor, Rev. H. S. and Mrs. Bennett.

Friends in town and country sympathise with Mr. and Mrs. Charles McArthur in the death on Sunday of their little child from scarlet fever. The funeral took place yesterday.

The fire alarm again sounded yesterday morning, but this time it was only a burning chimney at the Trent Valley Creamery.

Mr. Robert Free, of Cobourg, was in town yesterday attending the funeral of his brother, Mr. A. W. Free.

Methodist Young People Entertained.

A most pleasant evening was spent by the League when they were entertained last evening by the young people of St. Andrew's, the visitors providing the programme, which consisted of the following:

Chorus—"O Guide Me," by the Sunday School Choir.

Flute selection—Mr. Walter Lowe.

Duet—"Where the Daisies Grow," Misses Jennie and Ruth Taylor.

Instrumental solos—Mr. George Lucy and Miss Cherrie Turner.

Reading—Mr. George Salter "How Socrates Set the Hen."

Reading — 'Examination Day" (from Glengarry School Days), Mrs. G. A. Kingston.

A very humorous dialogue by Mr. S. A. Maguire and Mr. Carl.

A paper on "Preparedness," by Mr. Thos. Craighead, and one on "New Year Resolutions," by Miss Stella Keir.

A vocal duet by Mrs. Edward Bates and Mrs. C. W. Turner, and a duet by Mrs. Turner and Mr. Lucy.

A splendid synopsis of Dickens' "Oliver Twist" was given in two papers by Messrs. Harry Kenney and Gerald Wilson.

The meeting was opened by Mr. John Storrie, president of St. Andrew's Endeavour, who, on behalf of the society, welcomed the visitors—after which Mr. C. A. Wilson took the chair.

After the programme, dainty refreshments were served by the ladies, to which all did ample justice.

A hearty vote of thanks was then tendered St. Andrew's young people for their hospitality, after which the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Passed Away.

A gloom was cast over the town early on Saturday morning when it was learned that Mr. A. W. Free had passed away. The deceased, who had been ill for a few weeks, was in his 71st year, and was born in Seymour Township, being for a time engaged in cheesemaking, afterwards removing to Campbellford.

The late Mr. Free was a man of genial disposition, of sterling Christian character, and had a host of friends who regret his demise. The deceased was a regular and faithful member of the Methodist Church, being for many years an active member of the Trustee Board, and was at the time of his death one of the stewards, and treasurer of the Forward Movement Campaign.

Surviving are his wife, formerly Miss Scott, and two daughters, Mrs. (Dr.) H. O. Richardson, of town, and Mrs. M. G. McCarthy, of Toronto.

The funeral service was held yesterday from the family residence, Napier Street, at 2.30, being conducted by the pastor, Rev. H. B. Kenney, assisted by Rev. J. E. Glover, of town, and Rev. O. Seymour, of Havelock. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, testifying to the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

The family have the most sincere sympathy of the town and community in their bereavement.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

FAREWELL PARTY FOR MR. AND MRS. MOSES SUTTON OF CAVAN

MILLBROOK, Jan. 31.—An event of more than passing interest and one that was unique in its character, because of the fact that it was representative of the social, community and church life of the locality, took place on Friday evening, Jan. 27th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Sutton, when their friends and neighbors, to the number of about 75, called upon them to enjoy a farewell social evening. Mr. and Mrs. Sutton are shortly retiring from the active pursuits of farm life, and are removing to Millbrook to take up their abode.

The evening was enlivened by vocal and instrumental music, and social conversation. The music furnished by Mr. B. F. Carley, Miss Tinney, Miss K. Sutton and others was much appreciated, and the evening's entertainment proved to be a very enjoyable event to both young and old. It may be of interest to note the fact that the selection of the date to visit Mr. and Mrs. Sutton was a very happy and appropriate one, Friday being the anniversary of their wedding day.

During the evening Mr. James Douglas called the gathering to order, and Mr. and Mrs. Sutton were presented with a handsome library table and an electric reading lamp.

The following address was read by Mr. H. Elson, the presentation being made by Mr. Creighton Carr and Mr. John Armstrong:

Mr. and Mrs. M. Sutton. Cavan.

Dear Friends,—It is with feelings of sincere regret that we, a number of your fellow-citizens of Cavan, have learned of your intended removal from the home of your childhood, and your retirements from the active pursuits of the operations of farm life. While we are glad to know that you will still be residing within a reasonable distance adjacent to our locality, yet we realize that your removal from our midst will be a distinct loss to our community life.

We appreciate the fact that you have been, in the truest sense, good neighbors at all times, willing to assist in any undertaking which had for its aim and object the betterment of the social, moral and spiritual life of the community of which you are honored and respected members. We desire to place on record our appreciation of the high ideals of citizenship which have characterized your lives and actions, and your earnest endeavor at all times to foster and inculcate the same principles in the minds of those with whom you have been associated, both by precept and example; principles of right living, principles which tend to the development of character, principles which all upright men reverence and respect, the practice and adoption of which, if it became more general would make our world a brighter and happier place of abode, and leave a tendency to hasten the dawn of a brighter day, "When man to man the world o'er, should brothers be, and a' that."

We ask you to accept these tangible expressions of our goodwill and we trust that you will both be spared many years to enjoy your well-deserved leisure; and when you have served your day and generation we trust you will both experience the fulfilment of the Scriptural promise "at the evening time it shall be light."

(Signed) Creighton Carr.

Harry Elson.

Cavan, January 27, 1922.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutton were completely taken by surprise, and were overcome to such an extent that they were unable to express their feelings in the manner that they were desirous of doing. Mr. Lloyd Sutton, in a few well-chosen words, gave expression to the feelings of his father and mother, and thanked the company for their kind consideration of them.

Rev. S. G. Rorke also expressed his sentiments in a neat speech, laying special stress upon the loss which the community life was sustaining through the removal of Mr. and Mrs. Sutton.

Afterwards a dainty and appetizing lunch was served, and everyone left for home feeling that it was good to have been there.

Cavan Women's Institute

At the last regular meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute, which was held a the home of Mrs. Albert Tinney, Mrs. Sutton was presented with a beautiful casserole, the Institute members all feeling that they were losing a loyal and helpful supporter when Mrs. Sutton removed from their locality, and with her husband, came to reside in Millbrook.

The following is the address which accompanied the gift:

Dear Mrs. Sutton,— It was with deep regret that we learned of your intended removal from amongs us, and also from the home and community to which you came as a bride. That which you set out to do in those earlier years you have done well, and as a home-maker and a mother, you have been a success. Your strong personal character and influence you have always shown upon the side of right; your broad sympathetic vision, high ideals, and sound judgment, have been factors in the moulding of the aims and lives of those amongst whom you have mingled.

We shall miss you not only in our community gatherings, but especially in the circle of the Women's Institute, where so often your best work was shown, and where you have made many warm friends. We ask you to accept this casserole, not for its value, but as slight token of the esteem in which you are held.

(Signed) MRS. R. MATCHETT.

Cavan, January 19, 1922.

Mrs. Sutton, though completely surprized and deeply touched by the gift and the words of appreciation made a brief, but suitable reply.

The War Relief Association met in the Council Chamber on Saturday, January 28th at 3.30 p.m., the president, Mrs. J. R. Eakins being in the chair. The meeting was called for the purpose of disbanding the association as there is no longer any necessity for its services; and after the secretary, Miss MacNamara, had read the minutes of the last meeting which was held in September 1919, a letter from Ottawa was also read stating that the certificate of Registration and the Charter, must be returned to headquarters in that city when the Society ceased to exist.

The treasurer, Mrs. W. E. Russell, then gave her report from September 1919, when the cash on hand amounted to $259.26; the balance on hand at present is $30.63, and after some discussion, on motion of Mrs. Lottie Vance, seconded by Miss Stella Hetherington, it was decided to send this money to the Christie street Hospital, Toronto to be used as the matron thought best.

The officers of the War Relief Associations when it was first formed were read by the Secretary and were as follows: President, Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Secretary Miss Rose McNamara, Treasurer, Mrs. W. E. Russell. Directors Mrs. D. McBean, Mrs. R. E. Stanton and Miss L. Vance. Auditors, Messrs. A. A. Smith and W. T. Wood. The president pointed out that in the three years since the work ceased, fourteen of the original members had removed from the village, three of these being called away by death.

Mrs. Eakins also stated that the Society was under great obligation to Mr. A. A. Smith, who had done all the legal work involved, and a great deal had been necessary in the way of filling out papers, copying by-laws, communicating with Ottawa, etc., refusing any remuneration for his services. It was moved by Mrs. Westmacott, seconded by Miss Lottie Vance, that a hearty vote of thanks be given Mr. Smith for his kindness, and the Secretary was instructed to send him a note to that effect.

The treasurer reported that the socks, overseas boxes and other goods on hand had been sent to the Soldiers Comforts (Mrs. Van Koughnet, Toronto) the Navy League, and the Christie Street Hospital for disabled soldiers.

Treasurer's Report

It was decided to print the treasurers' report in the local papers as it would be a matter of general interest to know what had been done with the funds on hand since the work rooms were closed. The following is the report as read by Mrs. Russell.

YOUNG'S POINT HOME DESTROYED

OCCUPANTS HAD A NARROW ESCAPE—CONTENTS INCLUDED IN THE LOSS.

YOUNG'S POINT, Jan. 31.—At an early hour on Saturday morning the house formerly occupied by Mrs. Joseph Record was totally destroyed by fire.

Mr. Sweeney was residing in the house at the time, and had a very narrow escape. He was awakened by the smell of smoke and on going downstairs and opening the door leading into the rear portions of the house the flames burst in on him. He had just escaped from the building when the roof caved in. Nothing was saved although every effort was made by the neighbors for the flames had gained such headway before assistance arrived.

The loss was partially covered by insurance.

HAVELOCK WON FROM HASTINGS

VISITORS FAILED TO FIND THE HAVELOCK GOAL—GOOD ICE

HAVELOCK, Jan. 31.—Hastings and Havelock seniors met here last evening, in a hockey game that resulted in a clean sweep for the home boys. They scored every goal, the vistors being unable to get one shot inside the net, and the final total stood at 8-0 for Havelock. The ice was in good shape, considering the weather. The line-up was as follows:

Hastings

HAPPY RE-UNION WITH MR. AND MRS. M. BARR.

A Tasty Oyster Supper, Games, Songs, Recitations and Speeches.

COTTESLOE, Jan. 31.—To the number of thirty, old-time friends and acquaintainces gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Barr at their home here on Friday January, 20, when they were guests at an exceedingly happy re-union indeed. A very tasty oyster supper had been prepared by the host and hostess, and altogether a jolly evening was spent in games, after-supper speeches, songs, stories and recitations. Rev. G. Graham, pastor of the local Presbyterian church, made a capital chairman of proceedings, and Mr. Barr responded in fitting manner to the evening main toast, "The Host and Hostess."

The gathering dispersed in the early hours of the following morning singing, "Auld Lang Syne", all filled with pleasant memories of a delicious and bountiful supper and a good time generally.

LAKEFIELD LOST TO LINDSAY MIDGETS

VISITORS TOO HEFTY FOR HOME TEAM—SCORE 9-2 FOR LINDSAY

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 31.—The largest crowd in Lakefield's hockey history last night witnessed the local junior team go down to defeat at the hands of their victors, the Lindsay Midgets, in a score of 9-2. The game was fast and furious at times, but the Lakefield boys were outclassed by the visitors, in matter of weight especially.

At the end of the first period the score stood 5-1 in favour of Lindsay, who had maintained absolute control of the play most of the time.

No goal resulted from the battling in the second period, during which the play was keen and strenuous.

In the third and last period Lindsay captured no less than 4 goals, while the home team perforce had to be satisfied with an isolated one.

While the Lakefield bunch put up a really good game, the visitors were far too strong for them. H. Roblin, on the defence, was the local team's star of the evening and exhibited splendid work both in checking and carrying up the puck. Frank Erskine played strong at left wing, but the two Ridpaths and Sabatino, who have previously been particularly strong, were marked men for the Midgets, and they rushed this trio and viciously checked them repeatedly. In gaol, Barty Hill did good work for the locals, but luck seemed against the home byos in spite of their running true to form and battling fiercely till the last bell.

The line-up:

Lakefield— Goal, Hill; defence, Roblin and Sabatino; centre, J. Ridpath; left wing, Erskine; right wing, C. Ridpath. Subs, Gray and Sherin.

Lindsay—Goal, McClory; defence, Reeves and Hall; centre, Mills; right wing, Williams; left wing, Chambers. Subs, Disette and Austin.

Referee—H. W. Farlow, of Toronto.

TELEGRAPHIC AND CABLE NEWS

WANT AMERICAN COAL.

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 31. Canadian Press. — American coal is driving the Crow's Nest product steadily from the market, according to operators of that district, who assert that unreasonable labor prices in the district are the cause of it. A similar condition extends all the way down to Manitoba, said J. M. MacKie, President of the Hillcrest Collieries, operating a mine near Hillcrest, Alta, in the Crow's Nest Pass.

EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES.

WINNIPEG, Man., January 31st—Canadian Press. — Steady progress with the work of extending educational facilities throughout the province was reported by Hon. Dr. Thornton, the Minister of Education, at last night's session of the Legislature. There has been an increase of 5563 in the enrollment, which at June 30, 1921, was 129,015, and five new consolidations bring the number of consolidated districts to 113.

The work of making conditions more attractive for teachers has been continued and 293 teacherages have now been erected. There has been an increase in the number of teachers, and great progress has been made in connection with normal schools, there being 800 students at the present sessions as compared with 490 last year.

THE DELORME MURDER.

MONTREAL, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press). — Information obtained by detectives yesterday established proof that the murder of Raoul Delorme did not occur near where the body was found. Efforts to have Father Delorme's automobile identified as the one seen on the night of the murder, and claimed to have contained the victim and another man, failed Saturday when the person who made the statement was shown the priest's car, and said it was a totally different make.

ESCAPES FROM PRISON.

BERLIN, January 31 (Canadian Press). — Ludwig Dittmar, whom the Leipzic Supreme Court recently sentenced to four years' imprisonment in connection with the sinking of the hospital ship Llandovery Castle during the war, has escaped from the prison at Naumberg, it became known yesterday. A reward of 50,000 marks has been offered for his re-capture.

WHO OWNS TAPESTRIES?

PARIS, January 31 (Canadian Press). — The Hungarian Government, which recently protested against the use of the famous Gobelin tapestry collection by Austria as security for a United States loan, renewed its protest to the Allied Council of Ambassadors in a note received here yesterday. The note claims that the tapestries are owned jointly by Austria and Hungary, and that they cannot be advanced as security without Hungary's consent.

RELATIONS CORDIAL.

MEXICO CITY, January 31 (Canadian Press). — "No difficulties exist between the Mexican and the Guatemalan Governments, and, although our administration has not yet recognised the new Guatemalan regime, the relations between the two peoples are as cordial as ever," said President Obregon, in a talk with newspaper correspondents yesterday. The President laughingly dismissed rumour of war between Mexico and Guatemala as absurd.

CAPTAIN PRITCHARD DEAD.

LONDON, January 31 (Canadian Press). — Captain John Pritchard, former commodore of the Cunard Line fleet, died on Sunday. He was the commander of the Mauretania on that vessel's maiden voyage from Liverpool to New York in 1907. He started his life at sea as a cabin boy.

DECIDED FOR FARMER'S WIFE

Debate Held By the Lakefield U.F.Y.P.O.—Lakefield News of Interest.

LAKEFIELD, Jan. 31.—A very enjoyable evening was spent by the Lakefield U.F.Y.P.O. on Wednesday, January 25, when they invited their friends to a "pie social."

An interesting feature of the program was a humorous debate "Resolved That the Farmer's Wife Should Hold the Purse Strings." The affirmative was ably upheld by Miss Ivy Petrie and Mr. Fred Crowe. Miss Janet Sanderson and Mr. Harry Garbutt, in support of the negative, brought forth many arguments in defence of the farmer guarding the purse. Miss L. Stark, Messrs. Braden and Galvin acted as judges, giving their decision in favour of the affirmative.

Other appreciated items on the program were recitations by Miss Muriel Boyce, Miss Jean Galvin, Ivan Crowe and Douglas Davis. Following this, Mr. Fred. Crowe gave an interesting address on "The Land Question", which was very much enjoyed by all present.

By this time everyone was ready for the refreshments and did ample justice to the generous pieces of pie served by the young people.

Improvement At Rink

A refreshment stand which is under the auspices of the G.W.V.A. has been installed at the rink, and is already doing a thriving business. This fills a long-felt want.

A Special Train

A special train took about two hundred from the village to Lindsay on Thursday evening to witness the Lindsay-Lakefield, junior O.H.A. hockey match. Though beaten, Lakefield put up a splendid game and were supported by the never-failing applause and cheers of their fellow townsmen. Some one must lose in every game and every contest and the good loser is the "real sport." It's easy to win cheerfully but it's not so easy to lose with a smile.

Social Evening

About forty members of St. Luke's A.Y.P.A., Peterboro, drove to the village on Thursday evening and had a skating party. They were entertained by the members of St. John's A.Y.P.A. and spent a pleasant social evening. Rev. and Mrs. G. Bonsfield were among the party. Mr. Heber Rogers of St. Luke's thanked the Lakefield branch for their hospitality in a graceful speech to which Mr. C. C. Stenner, president of St. John's A.Y.P.A., replied.

Curling Enthusiam

The local Curling Club is making preparations for the coming bonspiel, the first to be held in Lakefield and there is special interest in the event.

The enthusiasm for the roarin' game is as keen as ever, and every evening, yes, and every afternoon, sees the curling ices in use. The rink is the community gathering place, and some said "if you want to find anyone in Lakefield, try the rink." Men, women and children all go there and skating is more popular than perhaps it ever was before.

On Wednesday evening skip Gibson won from skip Ridpath by 12 to 5, and on Thursday evening skip Jull beat skip Crawford by 9 to 7.

Skips Strickland, Sherin, Crawford and Ridpath are tied for first place.

Keen on Hockey

The keen enthusiasm shown by everyone in hockey this season reminds one of 1909, when the Lakefield team brought home the bacon in the shape of the City League Cup from Peterboro. The final game was witnessed by a huge crowd, including a hundred or more from Lakefield. The team was the pride of the town and their admirers started the ball rolling and the result was a souvenir to each, which took the form of a gold watch fob, suitable inscribed. The team consisted of:—C. R. Crawfod, "Mick" Sabaino, Tony Sabatino, Leo Quinn, Harry Simpson, Joe Morin and Joe Quigley.

DANGER OF JUST LETTING A COLD RUN ITS COURSE

Common Coughs and Colds That Hang on Persistently Are Apt to Lead to Serious Complications, Declare Authorities.

Public Warned to Beware of a Three Days' Cough and Break It Up Before It's Too Late, by Taking Asprolax, the New Scientific Discovery.

Money Refunded in Every Instance Where Asprolax Fails to Bring Relief.

Leading authorities are using every effort to arouse the public to the danger of letting common colds just run their course, for it is now definitely known that many serious lung complications, such as pneumonia, grippe, etc., are the direct result of colds that hang on persistently.

Colds are curable and preventable and it is a duty everyone owes himself as well as his neighbors to break up any cold they may contract, before some serious disease gets him in its clutches. It is pointed out that a three days' cough is nature's warning and the time for immediate action has arrived.

Of all the cough and cold remedies, Asprolax, the new scientific treatment, which has been accomplishing such remarkable results all over the United States and Canada, probably provides the safest, surest and quickest, as well as the most practical, treatment for colds yet discovered.

According to the statements of thousands who have used it, Asprolax is almost magical in its effect. The first dose usually stops the tendency to sneezing and coughing, and relieves the feeling of discomfort, and the second and third doses usually suffice to stop the progress of a cold altogether.

The wonderful efficiency of Asprolax in breaking up a cold is best shown by the fact that all druggists are instructed to refund money in any case where it fails to give satisfactory results after three doses have been taken.

AUTOMOBILE ASSN. TO ISSUE LICENSES

COMMISSIONS WILL BE APPLIED TO PREPARING ROAD MAPS

Advice has been received by Mr. T. Tooms, M.L.A., from Hon. Biggs, minister of Public Highways, that the Peterborough Automobile Association has been appointed as agents to issue automobile lecenses for the ensuing year.

Licenses, which are expected to be available in the near future, will be issued at the headquarters of the Association in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, above the Dominion Bank. The commission for the issuing of these licenses will supplement the finances and enable the Associatio to carry out plans for issuing road maps of the city and establishing road signs.

Up to the present auto licenses have been issued by Mr. H. P. Lindsay.

2,800 Licenses Issued

Mr. H. P. Lindsay, who for five years has been issuer of automobile licenses and is now replaced by the Automobile Association had no comment to make on the change. He stated however, that he believed the automobile associations throughout the Province were endeavouring to secure the agencies to build up their membership. He was of the opinion a downstairs office was required and he thought there would be a complaint by motorists in having to go to a second storey office. Mr. Lindsay stated that about 2,800 licenses were issued last year. He said that he had relieved no official word from Toronto regarding the change although he had heard rumours of it around town.

Mr. Leon Frazer, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, has received a letter from W. A. McLean, Deputy Minister of Public Highways, as follows:—

"Dear Mr. Frazer,—I have the honor to advise that under Order in Council, dated 26th January, 1922, you have been appointed as an issuer of motor vehicle licenses during the current year. Full instructions and supplies will be sent you at an early date from the Motor Vehicle Branch of this Department."

SAVING THEIR MONEY

ROME, Jan. 31 — (Associated Press).—The Italians are saving up their money notwithstanding the economic crisis in this country. Deposits in Italy's savings banks were increased by about 959,000,000 lire in the first seven months of the present year. At par this would be equivalent to nearly $192,000,000.

FATHER'S "MOLECULE."

"What are you studying now?" asked Mrs. Jobson.

"We have taken up the subject o molecules," answered her son.

"I hope you will be very attentive and practice constantly," said the mother. "I tried to get your father to wear one, but he couldn't keep it in his eye."

A little love, a little trust,
A soft impulse, a sudden dream—
And life as dry as desert dust

The Old-Time Religion

(A. H. McCONNACHIE.)

It is good to believe in the old-time religion provided you go far enough back. There is no religion older than the Love of God. It is good to cast anchor there. There is no God if He be not love. Blessed are they who abide in this truth, who dare to stay with it, taking in all its implications and consequences. Blessed are they who defend it at all costs against calumny and the admixture of traditional error.

For some benighted souls the phase "Old-Time Religion" embraces the idea of the old-time hell. They listen to the fervid evangelist as he proclaims his own loyalty to the ancient landmarks. He has not departed from the letter of scripture. The critics are wolves in sheeps' clothing. They are destroying the ancient faith. Then, with great fervour, he tells his spell-bound audience that he still believes in the old-time hell.

One has seen the look of smug, complacent satisfaction on the faces of the Unco Guid, the self-righteous, as they rolled this sweet morsel under their tongue. It made them feel good. They repeated their "amens" with smiling faces. It was so easy to consign millions of their fellow-creatures to endless torture, millions just as good as themselves, men and women they are meeting every day. These self-righteous ones flatter themselves, of course, that they are safe. Have they not 'professed" a certain form of words? Yes, indeed. They have taken out an insurance against the dangers of the world to come.

Gruesome Doctrine.

And these same people try to persuade themselves that this gruesome doctrine of endless torture can be reconciled with the truth that God is love. But verily you cannot reconcile good and evil, darkness and light, hate and love. Deity is either a monster taking pleasure in torturing his creatures or else "God is love." But you cannot have both in one. Talk about German atrocities! Some people seem to contemplate a state of things a thousand times worse and then charge it up to God Almighty.

One wonders how such a blasphemous doctrine ever became current in the world. It is a venerable lie, though it once passed for the truth. One of the Christian (!) fathers declared that there were infants spanlength in hell. Another, that one of the joys of the blessed was to watch the torments of the damned. Such a burlesque of truth puts God on a lower level than the gods of the heathen. With almighty power He is supposed to torture millions of creatures (for whose being He is responsible) to all eternity. Infinite strength is used not to save, but to destroy the puny creatures of a day helpless and powerless to defend themselves. It is a monstrous slander on the character of God. Truly, the times of our ignorance God has mercifully overlooked, but now, at last, this false doctrine should be branded for what it is.

Conscience says it is unmoral. The heart says it flatly contradicts Christ's greatest word of revelation—the universal fatherhood of God, not to speak of His love. Christ came to deliver us from the bondage of fear, heathwich and slavish fear.

The weapon of religious terror has always been devilish and degrading. Burns said:

"The fear o' hell's a hangman's whip
To haud the wretch in order."

What sort of a god would be dependant on the hangman's whip to maintain the moral of the world?

It is a degrading idea, a gross misconception of the being of God. God is at least human; we should not charge Him with inhumanity.

Hinders Progress.

Antiquated theology is the bane of the church today and a positive hindrance to its progress. Obsolete doctrine, like dead wood, should be cut away. There is too much dead wood in the church. Cut it away, and the fresh, new growth will be strong and beautiful. We cannot thrive on false ideas and wrong conceptions of God. Theology has not advanced like other sciences. And why not? Have we heard the last word about God? Is there no more to be learned? Pity it is if in theology alone we have touched rock-bottom and can get no further.

The ministry, I venture to say, is somewhat to blame for the present stagnation. We owe it to the people to give them the sincere milk of the wood for today. Many are still in bondage, yet seeking liberty. The pew is often living in the sixteenth century and we fail to introduce it to the light of the twentieth. We make little appeal to the deeper thought life of today. Christian Science, with all its oddities, provokes thought. But the church stagnates. We serve the passing whims and moods of the people, not the deeper, abiding life. We almost put a ban on thought.

Grain of Truth.

Underlying the vilest calumny there may be a grain of truth. Half-truths live longer than absolute lies. A grain of truth in error will keep it going for long. Christ taught that for the unbelieving (specially hypocrites) there would be severe punishment in time, and beyond time. This is the underlying truth of the language He used. Punishment would be graded. Some would be beaten with few stripes, some with many, according to their opportunity to know and believe.

Is it not enough for the ordinary believer (a sinner like the rest) to know that God will deal justly, mercifully with all? This present world is governed morally by a system of penalties and rewards. Why not the world to come? And all-in love for love's honor and the creatures good? What if sin be its own punishment (as Dante teaches) in time and eternity.

God's Love.

By all means, the old-time religion! Without the alloy of devilish doctrines! The heart-hunger of the world can only be met by God's infinite, all-powerful love. "Feed them," Jesus says, "not with stones, but with the finest of the wheat, with the Bread of Life, the Love of God." God's love accepted as the great, all-embracing Fact is all this old world needs.

REPORT REGARDING SIXTY-FOUR DEATHS

LONDON, Jan. 31. — (Canadian Press).—The India Office last night published the report of the Committee appointed to investigate the death of sixty-four.

Moplah prisoners in a railway carriages on November 19, in the Madras Presidency of India.

The committee finds that death was due to asphyxia, owing to insufficient ventilation and says that similar vans were used to convey more than 2,500 prisoners without mishap, but that this van had gauze covers on the windows which were choked with paint.

A local police sergeant was found guilty of negligence in failing to note the condition of the prisoners on the way.

The committee holds that the main responsibility rests with the railway company and its local traffic inspector for failure to properly ventilate the carriage.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, dgestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

FINDS JOBLESS RELIEF, ETC.

times of financial stress, the dole for the unemployed may find excuse in the English politician's mind, but under any economic dispensation it is unutterably bad. The strength of a nation exists in the self-dependance and initiative of its citizenry. The effect of government support of the unemployed instead of favorable legislation creating employment, is visible everywhere. It has placed the stamp of respectability upon idleness and causes the once indutrious man to seek mainteance from the public purse.

The producing class, both employer and employee, must support, in addition to the privileged non-producers, two million more who want work but can't. The breaking point is near, for all concede that taxes can go no higher, and the non-producers must be supported from that source. However, the excessive taxes are reducing revenue while the excessive price that must be charged for goods to pay these taxes, is reducing production and increasing unemployment, which, in turn, increases the sums that must be paid in doles.

Idle Demand Boost

The unemployed are meagerly supported by the doles. They are discontented and demand an increase. The producing class, employer and employee alike, realize that the greater the demand made upon the fund the greater the demand made upon them. Thus the employed and discontented. The worker asks himself why work, since his neighbor who does not work lives just as comfortably. The result is he refuses intermittnt employment, and in other cases he accepts, but continues to claim the dole. Occassionally, he is detected and imprisoned. The employer, worried and often financially sinking, reduces operations, or when possible withdraws his investments from industry.

Another angle to this is the tendency of the really industrious to seek work in France. The Star of Dec. 28 printed a paragraph in which the workman was urged to investigate labor conditions in France before leaving England.

The Boards of Guardians, the administrators of the dole, are having difficulty in providing funds to meet their portion and some of them are facing bankruptcy. For example, in the South Wales coal district there are [illegible] men employed and more than 70,000 unemployed, while the total poor relief and unemployed benefit paid amounts to more than $1,000,000.

Industry's Load Too Heavy

It is therefore, apparent that the only cure for England's ills is to end unemployment. This can be brought about only by lowering the cost of production of British goods. As is shown above, this is possible only by lowering fixed charges, an impossibility so long as the wealth not diverted to the idle rich must be divided with the idle poor—now two million, and continually increasing in number by involuntary unemployment.

Industry is carrying too much dead weight. Prosperity will return to England when industry's load is lightened. This will be when the idle class, privileged and hereditary, see the necessity of relinquishing enough of their tolls on industry to bring it about. As Father Vaughan speaking at Wimbledon said: "Nobody in England is contented. Everybody is restless, hoping for better times, and I am afraid we are going to see worse. It is no use living in a fool's paradise. England is a workshop, and the sooner we get to work the better."

COMB SAGE TEA IN FADED OR GRAY HAIR

If Mixed With Sulphur it Darkens so Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural colour and looks glossy, soft and beautful.

Teacher Says She Found Them Good

MISS THEREAULT PRAISES DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Popular New Brunswick Lady Furnishes Some of the Reasons Why Dodd's Kidney Pills Are Suffering Women's Best Friend.

Upper Pokemouche, N.B., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—"I can conscientiously recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to all persons afflicted with any form of kidney trouble."

So says Miss Alice Thereault, the popular school teacher here. And Miss Thereault adds that she knows out of her own experience that Dodd's Kidney Pills are good. "I have experienced great benefit from this medicine since I have been troubled with kidney trouble. I always get good results from using them."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are known from one end of Canada to the other as suffering women's best friend. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy. They strengthen the kidneys to do their full work of straining all the impurities out of the blood. Sound kidneys mean good health.

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills do not make sound kidneys.

for pure whisky no matter how high the bids. But this does not curtail bootleggers' business, for they have very largely substituted synethic alcoholic beverages for the beverages made in pre-prohibition times under Government sanction.

The dictionary definition of synthetic is "the act of process of building up a compound by the union of simpler compounds or its elements, as the synthesis of carbohydrates." By carbohydrates is meant any one of a group of compounds combined with hydrogen and oxygen and including the glucose group and starches.

Bonded warehouse alcohol is very difficult to get. So what the bootleggers are doing is producing crude alcohol from which the poisonous ingredients have not been eliminated by rectifying. Alcohol of the kind in high grade whiskies made prior to the adoption of the prohibition amendments is usually produced from grains, first distilled and then rectified to eliminate the impurities. By aging whisky in barrels every particle of fusel oil can be eliminated. Fusel oil has no medicinal value whatever. It exists only as an impurity and is exceedingly detrimental to the tissues of the body, causing, if continual used, nephritis, according to Mr. Hoffman. The chemical definition of fusel oil is "a volatile poisonous oily compound composed largely of amyl alcohol."

Habitual use of alcoholic beverages containing fusel oil, further observes Mr. Hoffman, is reasonably certain to cause nephritis, defined by Webster to be "inflammation of the kidneys, commonly occurring in two forms, one chronic and one acute, the latter when accompanied by suppuration being known as suppurative nephritis and usually terminating fatally."

The alcohol in most of the bootleggers' whisky of the present day, according to Mr. Hoffman, is the kind that occurs in the vegetable kingdom. About every substance containing starch and sugar, even potatoes, can by fermentation and distillation, produce alcohol, the stuff that comes from the crude stills which officers are discovering and seizing every week in all sections of the state. Anyone can make it when once told how. The mash ferments in a jar or other container for a few weeks, then, when heated the alcohol is separated by evaporation through a coil, but all the fusel oil remains in the alcohol. It comes from the still the color of water, and before distilled in which form they sometimes drink it, often is the color of diluted dirty milk. But in either form poisonous fusel oil is an ingredient, hence colloquially white mule.

The finishing is the latest development of the bootleggers' industry. There recently came to Mr. Hoffman an expensively printed catalogue issued by a New York concern advertising extracts—whisky, brandy, gin, sherry, claret and many other kinds. These extracts contain no alcohol. The advertising is cleverly worded. It does not say that the extracts will produce, or help produce, any of the particular kinds of beverages designated in the pamphlet. But there are illustrations of bottles of whisky, brandy, gin and other kinds of spirituous liquors.

GOOD MEAT SUBSTITUTE.

Many varieties of cheese are either too expensive for the average purse or too difficult of digestion. This is especially true of the hard cheese. Cottage cheese, however, may be made at home from recently soured milk, or it may be produced by clotting the milk with tablets sold at the grocer's for this purpose. Or, if one has no desire to produce the cheese from soured milk, commercial firms are producing cottage cheese of excellent quality in this country.

Cottage cheese is a substitute for meat and a delightful change, especially around the holiday times, when many of us are apt to indulge too freely in the richer articles of diet.

Cottage cheese may be served plain as the main dish at luncheon or dinner. Brown bread and butter, a fresh green salad plant and a large baked apple with cream would nicely round a meal whose principal dish was cottage cheese.

"MONEY MORE DESIRED THAN LOVE"

A certain society of young people in this city held a debate last month on the resolution: That money is more to be desired in marriage than love. Fortunately for romance, the negative, representing the love theory, won out, but it wouldn't have been surprising if the contrary side had been the victor, for, according to many people, this is an age of reason, not romance, and the modern young woman is pictured quite confidently as saying, not "Will he love me?" as he used to do, but "Has he money? Will he be rich?" Perhaps she is just getting back at the older type of man, for, if we can believe the Historical Register for the year 1737, much of money, and not too much love, entered into many of the matrimonial transactions of that period.

This curious old volume, with mild-ewed leaves and quaint use of elongated fors, is done in precise little black print. However, they make constant use of a practise which moderns had convinced themselves was very modern, indeed, and use 'tho' for 'though.'

But they had less delicacy in those days about money, and announced their marriages in high life like this:

"Philip Samson, Esq., of Hertfordshire, to Miss Wade, an heiress, with £14,000.

"Hugh Barlow of Lawroney, Pembrokeshire, Esq., to Miss Owen, one of the Daughters and Coheirs of Sir Arthur Owen.

"James Battin, Esq., High Sheriff for the County of Southampton, to Miss Hooker, Daughter to Edward Hooker, Esq., Receiver General of the Land Tax for the said County, a deserving Young Lady, with a considerable Fortune.

"Captain Hassel, who commands a Troop in Lieutenant General Wade's Horse, to Miss Tynte, only daughter of the Lady Tynte, late of Halswell in Somersetshire, and now of Keven Mabley in Glamorganshire, where she inherits a considerable family estate, as only sister and sole heir of the late Sir Charles Kemys, Bart.

"Mr. Glover, the author of Leonidas, to Miss Nunn, a Lady of Great Merit and Beauty, with a fortune of 12,000 pounds.

"Mr. Peers, son of the late Charles Peers, Kent, and Alderman of London, married to Miss Fanny Knapp, of Abingdon, daughter of Dr. Knapp, physician at Stony-Stratford in Bucks, a very agreeable young lady with a plentiful fortune.

"William Hunt, Esq., one of the directors of the Bank of England, to Mrs. Cook, relict of Mr. Cook, formerly Deputy of Candlewick Ward, and daughter of Mr. Nash, a haberdasher in Newgate street, an agreeable lady, with a fortune of 20,000 pounds."

But sometimes, the lady was not acclaimed alone for her money. We read of:

"The Right Hon. the Lord Santry, marry'd at Finglass near Dublin, to Miss Thornton, a Lady of fine accomplishments" and sometimes the money was or the other side in the case of "Mr. Peter Fonnereau, youngest son of Mr. Claude Fonnereau, a wealthy Hamburgh merchant, who was marry'd to Miss Selwin, Daughter of William Selwin, Esq., Receiver-General for the City of London".

The printer didn't mean to get mixed up in his last sentence here:

"Harbord Harbord of Gunton, Esq., Knight of the Shire for the County of Norfolk, to Mrs. Marcon, a Widow Lady, Relict of—Marcon, Esq., late of this city, and daughter of Sir Benjamin Wrench, Kt. a lady of excellent accomplishments, and a great fortune."

Marriages are recorded at Dublin, of "James Rinkle of Butter-Lane aged 90, to Sarah Moranci, of the same Lane, aged 85, and of

"One Andrew Newton, of the County of Kildare, in Ireland, aged 117 years, to a young woman aged 19. He has a son now living, upwards of 80 years of age."

FIFTEEN BOILS ON NECK AT ONE TIME

Any one who has suffered from boils can sympathize with poor old Job.

There was no Burdock Blood Bitters in those days, so Job had to suffer in silence. Nowadays no one need endure the misery of boils.

Boils are simply evidences of the bad blood within coming to the surface and just when you get rid of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your misery.

All the poulticing and lancing you may do will not stop more coming. What you have to do is take and the blood will be cleansed of all its impurities, and then every boil will disappear.

Mr. Roy McSwain, High Bank, P. E. I., writes: "I was troubled with boils for some time, and had as many as fifteen on my neck at once. After taking one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters they commenced to get better, and after I had taken two bottles I was relieved of them and felt much better. I think B. B. B. is a grand blood medicine, and can recommend it highly."

For the past 45 years B. B. B. has been manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

USE FOR SILK SCRAPS.

Most of us have bureau drawers full of gayly colored silk scraps that we hate to throw away, but that are hardly large enough for real use. Why not make a crazy quilt? The old-fashioned ones are complicated in design, but a most effective result is obtained by merely using square blocks of color, with occasionally two scraps sewed together for stripes. These blocks should be about five inches in diameter. Easier than making a separate cover and then lining it, is to take an old quilt and merely feather-stitch the patches in heavy black silk right on the quilt. Use plain black for the reverse side, and add a black border of the same width as the block of color.

Increase in Weight!

MILLIONS of people all over the United States and Canada have not only been relieved of the most obstinate forms of dyspepsia and indigestion by the Tanlac Treatment after other remedies have failed, but many of them have reported a remarkable and rapid increase in weight and a return to normal health and strength by its use.

Although Tanlac's claims for supremacy are abundantly supported by the world's leading authorities, it is the people themselves who have really made Tanlac what it is. Millions upon millions have used it with the most gratifying results and have told other millions what it has done for them.

That is THE REASON WHY Tanlac has become the real sensation of the drug trade in the United States and Canada, and that is also THE REASON WHY it is having the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world to-day.

Tanlac is sold in Peterborough by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

WOMAN'S HAIR

"An American woman who married a Frenchman and lived in Paris for several years," says Anne Rittenhouse in the Buffalo Express, "arrived in New York for the holidays. She was asked for her opinion of the American woman's appearance and if there was any marked difference in fashion between her and the French woman. Her answer was quick.

"All the difference lies in the head," she said. "I caught my breath when I first saw my countrywomen in mass at fashionable parties, at the opera, at the theatre. 'What is the matter with their hair?' I asked. It was curled or frizzed, it was bunched out over the ears like the hair of a Japanese woman, it was dry as straw in appearance, the hair nets showing everywhere the lights struck, the deeply ridged artificial waves were like plowed furrows, there were Spanish combs at ridiculous angles over faces that should not have liberties taken with them, there were bunches and knots and French twists like the scarred surface of battlefields."

"And why were you shocked or surprised?" was the query. Don't the French have such coiffures?"

"No. No," she said. "The hair is well brushed, it shines, it has small undulations like natural waves, there are no hair nets to keep lines hard over the forehead, the forehead shows the contour is unbroken. Here and there an ultra smart woman wears soft curls over her ears or at the nape of the neck. Maybe they the artificial, but they look natural.

"And the bobbed hair? Surely you don't accept that Montmartre style in smart society? But you do. For I see it eveywhere on women who have long since forgotten their school days. And those bunches of matted hair over the ears. Where did that style originate and when did it come into fashion? And those bunches of thick hair padded with crinoline or false hair? Is it sanitary? Is the brush forgotten over here?"

'And the permnaent wave?" she was asked. "Surely that is done in France?'

"I do not know a smart woman who has a permanent wave in her hair. Any coiffure who put a sharply-defined Marcel wave in the hair would lose business. Nothing must interfere with the glossy sweep of the hair backward from the forehead. No bulge, knot or puffs break the sweep. The natural contour of the head must show. There is a slight ridge permitted where the long hair meets at the crown of the head and is tucked into place with a long comb; there are small curls in front of the ears, and sometimes the daring youngsters curl the ends of their hair and wear it pulled forward after the fashion of the Directoire. But it is all so softly arranged, without a hair net, with no such gloss and suppleness as if it had a hundred strokes of the brush every day. Add plenty of brilliantine. The hair over here looks as though it had never been let down that the women put it up in the hard coiffures of the Japanese and slept on wooden pillows in order not to disturb it."

"But the ears show in Paris", said a woman who was listening.

"No, that is true", was the answer, "but there are no matted and padded bunches of hair standing out like mastoid dressings. The ears are covered by curling tendrils of hair flattened against the temples and often extending to the cheekbone after the masculine fashion of 1870, and there is a forward sweep of all the hair in order to hide the ears, but it is also flat.

"Nothing stands out on th: head and every particle of it shines like the well-groomed coat of a horse. Only the daring youngsters hide the forehead."

What if a woman has a high forehead?" was the next question asked, but someone else answered, "there are no high foreheads in France."

"I imagine that is true', said the Franco-American. "The women of Southern Europe have low foreheads and the problem of covering the high bare expanse of forehead with which Northern women in Europe and America have to contend is not acute, but I know they would cover it softly in Paris. They would use art to make it appear that the hair grew low and then pull it back. They would prefer to use transformation rather than frizz the hair or give it a heavy look across the eyes."

ENTERTAINMENT BY THE SALVATION ARMY

A very enjoyable entertainment was given last evening at the Salvation Army Temple, by the scholars of the Primary Class in the Sunday school, little tots of six and seven years of age, assisted by one or two older children. There was a good attendance, and the minature performers acquitted themselves admirably. Bandsman Badley occupied the chair.

The children gave a number of recitations, there was a song by the Primary Class in unison, sung with appropriate gestures, and entitled "Old Jack Frost"; the class of little boys gave "The Cross in the Heart"; a pretty march and song, entitled "Buy a Broom" was rendered by ten little girls in Dutch costume; a piano solo was given by Minnie Boorman, a euphonium solo by Tommy Payton, a vocal selection by Lester Boorman, with his own banjo accompaniment, and small, four-year old Billy Brooks did his 'bandmaster' stunt to the music of gramophone records.

The class of Warriors, junior Girl Guards, had a wand drill, there was a vocal trio by three little girls, Essie and Hattie Taylor and Doris Hawkes, and a "Good Night" song, by four little things in bedtime costume, completed a much-enjoyed programme.

Aong those taking part were: Phyllis Braund, Billy Cunningham, Frankie Cunningham, Flora Moore, Mary Nash, Helen Tenison, Mary Coros, Mina Hynes, Hazel Gower, Alice Scheweirs, Joan McKay, Myrtle Brooks, Nellie Boorman and Gerald Routly.

SUGAR INDUSTRY IN A CRITICAL STATE.

Financial Difficulties Experienced By Growers in Jamaica.

(C. P. R. Press Bureau.)

ST. JOHN, N.B., January 31. — "Conditions of the sugar industry in Jamaica, are in a critical state," declared Robert Sutton, an English chartered accountant, who arrived in St. John recently on the S. S. Sicilian. Mr. Sutton was engaged at Montegobar and Kingston recently for a period of two years in auditing a number of sugar and banana estates ,and while in these places he became thoroughly conversant with the financial difficulties which are now being experienced by the growers of unrefined Muscavado sugar.

"The situation is such," said Mr. Sutton, "that a deputation of Jamaica sugar planters will leave the island shortly for England, to wait on the British government with a view to obtaining, if possible, a reasonable subsidy and a substantial reduction of the duty and in the meantime relief of a restrictive nature is being given to the growers by the Jamaican government. On the return trip the members of the delegation will likely interview the Canadian government in regard to trade and other matters.'

The Crash Came.

Mr. Sutton explained that up to the fall of 1920, a tremendous boom had occurred and approximately $100 per on was received for unrefined sugar. The planters had exceptional profits but invested in machinery and for the cultivation of increased acreage, with the expectation that the high price would hold.

The crash came and at the present time the growers only receive $41 per ton on unrefined Muscavado sugar, or a decrease since October of 1920, of $59 per ton.

"All the Jamaican sugar growers are finding it almost impossible to combat the present situation," stated Mr. Sutton.

"The British tariff on raw sugar is £19 per ton and the total cost of landing sugar in England and clearing it out of bond is £27. The planters are hopeful of having the tense situation alleviated by concessions from the Briitsh government.

Crops are Good.

It was further declared by Mr. Sutton that this season's sugar crops are in an excellent condition, due to the plenteous and beneficial rains from October to January. The sugar cane rapidly developed and all the indications point to an abundant crop.

"The banana growers are prospering," stated Mr. Sutton, "and some of the sugar planters are manifesting a strong inclination to abandon the latter business and engage n the production of bananas. The export of the island of bananas alone afford considerable business to the Atlantic Fruit Company, the United Fruit Company and the Baltimore and Jamaica Fruit and Shipping Co.

Splendid Future.

"Trade conditions between Canada and Jamaica have a splendid future," declared Mr. Sutton "The people of the island are looking forward to greater activity in this respect between the two countries. Feeders are however limited in connection with the two railway lines which run through the heart of the country from Kingston to Montgoba, and Kingston and Port Antonio. The construction of these lines will assist materially in the way of travel and transportation.'

Mr. Sutton spoke of the voyage from Jamaica to St. John in tones of the highest praise and admiration and stated that the trip was one of the most pleasant from every point of view, which he had ever had. The steamer which arrived in port loaded to capacity with sugar and grapefruit, called at Metazanas and Havana. At the former place she received a cargo of sugar for the Atlantic Sugar Refineries, and grapefruit and tobacco at Kingston. She also put into port at Boston, where she discharged a large quantity of tobacco.

Mr. Sutton sailed this afternoon on the S. S. Tunisian for Glasgow from which point he will proceed to his former home in Grimsby. His present plans are to resume his business connections in London.

Local Basketeers Will Have To Travel Some

The P.C.I. Basketball team came back from playing the Belleville Junior O.A.B.A. Basketball team on Saturday and the claim the Junior Petes will have to step some to beat Belleville who are a fast and husky crowd. Thy speak especially of the work of Elliot, the right forward. Peterborough rugby fans will remember him as the fast quarter for Belleville, whose head work and team play distinguished him. On Saturday he was responsible for eleven baskets and is a very deadly shot. He is about the same height and build as McLean, Peteborough's sharp shooter, and it will be a pleasure to watch the struggle between these two for high man on baskets. Maidens will play centre for Belleville and his speed should count as a great asset there. Cole and Yeomans, who also distinguished themselves when here with Belleville's rugby team last year, are also playing on the basketball team. Cole was the hard hitting wing for the rugby team, while Yeomans played his best game when Belleville had the small end of the score. Belleville's team are taken out of the following:—Elliot, Cole, Maidens, Allen, Yeomans and Marshall.

FOOTBALL ON HORSEBACK

LONDON, Jan. 31.—A kind of football game played on horseback is the chief amusement of the Kelgis, or people who live in the Pamir Mountains near Chinsese Turkestan, says Miss Ella Sykes, a well-known English traveller who recently visited that region.

It is a man's game and the football is made by inflating the skin of a goat. The women find their greatest pleasure in attending funeral feasts.

GIRLS' HOCKEY.

A meeting of all girls interested in hockey is called for 5.30 p.m. on Wednesday, February 1st at the Y.W.C.A. to discuss the return game with Lakefield, which takes place on Monday next, Feb. 6th. A moccasin dance will be held after the game, in the rink.

BRIDGING TWO OCEANS

Done in the smoothest of ivory-finished paper, with an attractive cover print in dull greens, the latest descriptive folder of the "Canadian Pacific Steamship services, "Bridging two oceans and four continents" is both artistic and instructive. Profusely illustrated, it depicts the massive Empress of the mercantile fleet, scene from "far-flung ports of the Canadian Pacific," and the interior magnificences of the ocean-going steamships.

It describes in interesting detail the beginnings of the system in 1886 at Port Moody, B.C. down to the present time when 25 passenger ships, 19 on the Atlantic and 6 on the Pacific Ocean, and 10 engaged in freighting exclusively, 8 on the Atlantic and 2 on the Pacific form the C.P.R. service which "bridges two oceans and links four continents."

Salt in the bottom of the shoes in the winter will help the circulation and prevent the feet from getting cold. This precaution is common and effective among Maine woodsmen.

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

The P.A.A.A. squad leave for Picton at 8.10 to-morrow morning, and will be accompanied by quite a number of supporters. A special car for the accomodation of the Peterborough quota will be provided. The following players will make the trip: Murray, Dwyer, Parker, Thornton, Halpin, L. Rose, R. Rose, Collins, Burgess, and Jackson. The team is in good shape, and confident of winning the group from the Prince Edward County gang.

Although the line-up has not been definitely announced, there are likely to be some changes in the Peterborough team for to-morrow's game. For one thing, it is probable that Frank Collins will start the game as a regular, and the attack should be strengthened as a result, for the youngster usually has plenty of "pep" and tries all the way.

The City League has decided, on account of the game at Picton, not to operate to-morrow night. All four teams would have been weakened by the absence of O.H.A. players, and it was felt that it was better to postpone the games for a week under the circumstances.

The Lakeview teams have the honour at the present time of being at the head of both City Leagues. The Lakeview Seniors have won the first section of the Senior League and the Juniors are sharing the top position in the Junior City League with the Holy Name Society—both outfits having won four straight games.

Famous Words of Famous Men:

"He never gave me enough ice." — Archie Moore.

Thursday night's basketball game is attracting much attention among the fans, and there will be a big crowd out to see the opening Junior O.A.B.A. fixture. The Belleville team showed their class last Saturday when they handed the Peterborough Collegiate a bad beating, and the stories the students tell of their prowess have put the local O.A.B.A. crew on their mettle. The Junior Petes have been practising faithfully, are going at top speed right now, and hope to win handily from the Bay of Quinte boys, although they realise that they will have a fight on their hands.

A pessimist is a guy who says "If the Petes beat Picton," while an optimist is a fan who puts it, "When the Petes beat Picton."

The Lindsay Midgets won in Lakefield last night by 9 to 2, capturing the group championship by a total score of 23 to 7, which, it must be admitted, is a sizeable margin. But you've got to hand it to Lakefield at that. The village took a special trainload of fans to Lindsay, and last night the whole community turned out to see the return game, in spite of the general realisation that the home crew hadn't a chance to win.

The Lakefield victory will confirm the Lindsay impression that the Midgets are going to win the Junior O.H.A. title. But there are quite a number of sub-divisions yet to be heard from.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE ROYAL.

Mildred Harris Chaplin, as Daphne, in the six reel feature called "Old Dad," wins admiration by her good looks and lack of stage mannerisms. She is the natural girl and not the too often exaggerated hoyden of the stage. Daphne is alone in the world with her dad. Being a successful lawyer and busy he sends her to a high class girls' boarding school. A chain of girlish pranks in which Daphne is ring leader, innocent in themselves, culminate in a situation which places the girl in a position that compromises her good name. Although circumstantial evidence appears positively damning, the girl is absolutely innocent of even a wrong thought or intention. The school superintendent, who drew a blank in the marriage lottery, believes the girl guilty and Daphne is expelled. "Old Dad," however, intuitively knows his girl is all right. Then a rich young roue inveigles her into a mock marriage, but "Old Dad" saves her again. The girl had always craved for a mother's love and protection, but finds comfort in Old Dad's affection. Still, as the plot progresses, Daphne thinks from Dad's intimacy with a celebrated actress that Dad must have had wider experience than he gained teaching Sunday school. She is right in her guess, as Dad was the actress' husband but had been divorced through false testimony. Dad and the actress come to an understanding so the girl gets her mother and incidentally, her first love, a pretty story well and humorously told. The six reel feature, "What's a Wife Worth," is a virile and gripping drama of love and romance. Bettina, in the wonderful serial, 'Breaking Through,' has more thrills for her many local admirers. As regards the comedies, it is only necessary to let the fans know that Jimmy Aubrey is shown in a comedy that sparkles with continual laughter like bubbles rising in a glass of G. H. Mumm or Madame Chicquot.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"Don't Tell Everything" at the Capitol Theatre is one of those entertaining dramas of modern life in which the irrepressible Wallace Reid smiles his way through a triangular mix-up, where "the other woman" competes with his week-old bride in an effort to land him as successfully as she does the other fish in her basket. The vampire in his case is a modern, up-to-date edition in leather sporting breeches and flannel shirt, who goes right after him, regardless of convention, or old-fashioned scruples of any sort. However, his little high-tempered bride of a week, with whom he had eloped in a high-powered motor car, to return to a scene of nerves and jealousy, follows him up with a faithful friend, and uses the old-time methods of beautiful gowns and good feeding to recover her elusive bridegroom.

An ultra luxurious setting for most of the scenes, a distinctly modern atmosphere throughout, and glimpses of a very up-to-date fishing lodge, with a very exciting introductory polo game, are some of the attractions of a production that has pep and go from start to finish, a regular Wallace Reid feature.

The Capitol is showing Albert Smoke, the Curvé Lake runner, in action; there is an entertaining, animated cartoon of the surprising cats and monkeys; another thrilling chapter of the serial, "Hurricane Hutch," and Percy and Ferdie have a giddy comedy, in which they get mixed up with a pearl necklace and a death-dealing Black Hand outfit.

The famous Rollins trio provide the vaudeville entertainment; a musical offering, high-class and pleasing, that combine some excellent numbers on the white and silver accordeon, saxaphone solos, and vocal selections, in popular and jazz numbers.

SCENE FROM "BOOB McNUTT," FUNNIEST OF ALL CARTOON MUSICAL COMEDIES, WITH OUR OWN 'DANNY SIMMONS' AT THE GRAND NEXT THURSDAY, FEB. 2ND.

AT THE REGENT.

THEY'LL ALL LIKE IT.

"To Please One Woman," the chief film attraction at the Regent Theatre during the first part of the week, will not only please all the women, but the men as well. It is singularly appealing story of small town life and the havoc wrought by the influence of a selfish woman of the "vampire" type that is unfolded in Lois Weber's latest production. Miss Weber possesses the happy faculty of portraying with dramatic skill some of the phases of our social life that other screen producers have thus far overlooked. Claire Windsor, Mona Lisa, and Edward Burns enact the principal roles.

AT THE GRAND.

One of the best offerings in their season here is the production of "The Travelling Salesmen," by the Rex Stock Company at the Grand Opera House this week. The whole company is included in the cast, and every part is taken with a faithfulness to the detail of the comical rural drama, that makes it a likeable and pleasing fun-maker through four acts of continuous merriment.

Rex has a role that suits him to perfection, as the rollicking Bob Blake, who breezes in to Grand Crossing on Christmas Day, dines with the charming custodian of the ticket office, Beth Elliott, played splendidly by Zana Vaughn, unearths a plot to deprive her of her inheritance, outwits the villains, and incidentally marries the lady, all within the space of two days. "Brother, she isn't a peach, she's a whole orchard," he announces to his amazed fellow "drummer," and bids him beware of "love at first sight. It's a terrible thing."

The opening scene is a typical rural station, with its typical frequenters, Mrs. Babbit, who controls the scene with her raspy observations, played with good effect by Florence Winters: Mrs. Wm. Henry Dawson (Hazel Williams) with her two unquenchable youngsters; and the harassed, red-goatee'd William Henry himself (Charles Hannah).

A. J. Cole plays Martin Drury in fine style, enacting the part of the white-haired philanthropist who aims to cheat the golden-locked Beth, and Billy Seymour as Franklyn Royce, his right-hand man, does some good work. William Mitchell is Ted Watts, the hero's friend, played with his usual excellence, and Wm. Yule surpasses himself as the chon-faced Julius, who recommends a "Sappho" sandwich.

The scene in the second act, where the four knights of the grip foregather in a friendly game, with the fifth member in a pronounced state of intoxication, and their red-sweatered black servitor bringing up real "Scotch tea" in the conventional thick white china cups is the hit of the piece. When the fifth member has been induced to imbibe enough "tea" to make him feel real sleepy, Rex departs on a mission which later involves him in a real exciting mix-up with his lady-love.

The Park kiddies have a dainty little song and dance number between acts.

" BOOB McNUTT"

Among the hits of the season may be applied to the latest musical novelty, "Boob McNutt", which is the attraction announced at the Grand for one performance only, next Thursday, February 2nd. This brand new musical success is based on the popular cartoons of Rube Goldberg whose screamingly funny creations have made the whole world laugh. Those who have seen this latest landslide of laughter claim that in point of popularity it will surely eclipse all previous offerings of its kind. If millions have enjoyed the cartoons, it is easy to predict that millions more will enjoy the play. Startling surprises, plenty of singing and dancing, pretty girls, stunning costumes and many novel features comprise a programme of par-excellence. It is a show built on unusual lines and calculated to set a new departure in productions which will be difficult for other managers to emulate. A well known cast of musical comedy favorites will be seen in the leading roles, with Peterboro's own comedian, Danny Simons, playing the title role of "Boob."

"MADEMOISELLE OF ARMENTIERES"

A Canadian war play in four acts, presenting a true picture of life in the firing line, and accurate to the last detail, acted as only soldiers can act it with a lively swing from start to finish, and the most realistic stage settings, are some of the many features which have helped to make "Mademoiselle of Armentieres" the best of all war comedies, and no other play has so vividly brought home the laughters and the tears—of the trenches, for none has taken its audience so near the great conflict itself.

"Mademoiselle of Armentieres" of "P.B.I." as the play is also known by, will be presented at the Grand Theatre, Saturday afternoon and evening when the theatregoers of this city will have an opportunity of seeing this splendid presentation of Canadian life in the greatest drama of all history.

LIEUT. GREEN,
In the comedy, "Mademosille of Armentieres," at the Grand Saturday afternoon and evening.

But although it is a taste of the real thing, the entire play is a scream from beginning to end, describing and bringing before you every type of character which went to make up the Canadian army. There is Private Herbert Hawkins, the funny little cockney. The Jock, Duke and Percy. The "Dugout" staff officer. The important young sub, just out from Bexhill with his "Brasso" and "Shino" and training sprouting. The chief Mademoiselles with their Estaminets, and every peculiar type of character which the soldier has bumped up against some time or other in the army.

WILL AUDIT BOOKS.

MONTREAL, Jan. 30.—(Canadian Press).—It was learned here today that there has not been any official audit of Father Delorme's books in connection with the estate of his murdered half-brother, Raoul Delorme. Jurisdiction for such a course, it is said, rests with Coroner McMahon, who to-day instructed the Provincial Detective Department to appoint an expert auditor to minutely examine the books of the priest.

NEGRO FOUND GUILTY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Luther Boddy, negro, was found guilty of murder of two police detectives on Jan. 5, by a jury here last night.

We bid the brightest beacon glow
And still upon the horniest stock
The sweetest roses love to blow.

PETERBORO'S OPEN BONSPIEL BROUGHT 48 RINKS TOGETHER

A SLIGHT FALLING OFF FROM LAST YEAR'S ATTENDANCE BUT A BIG ENTRY LIST COMPARED WITH OTHER BONSPIELS OF THIS SEASON AND CONSIDERING THE EFFECTS OF THE PERIOD OF INDUSTRIAL DEPRESSION.

THE FIRST WINNERS

Peterborough's open Bonspiel started this morning with an entry list of forty-eight rinks, of which fourteen were of local composition. The register was slightly less than last year's total, but the slight decrease may be due to the exceptionally stringent conditions which curlers with the general public are experiencing. Lakefield club headed the list of visitors with six rinks, including one skipped by R. C. Strickland, father of Peterborough County's new Warden, J. C. Strickland, who also had a broom in the Bonspiel. Harry McCallum, of Fenelon Falls, winner last year of the Matthews-Blackwell trophy, was back again, arriving last night, and this morning brought G. A. Davidson, of Unionville, who returned the Peterborough Cup after a year's possession.

Among the absentees were Frank Carew, winner in 1920 of the Morrow Cup, and W. Delany, of Cobourg, whose sky-blue tam had given the annual curling classic of Central Ontario a touch of color in contrast with the plain matter of fact, everyday Fedoras. These were two of the missing skips, but most of the other regulars were present. W. A. Carnahan, of Campbellford, was a newcomer, and Tom Finlay, of Norwood, struck a new note by turning out a family rink. His two sons were playing the first and second stones, and his brother, J. A. Finlay, was vicing for him.

The Bonspiel started pleasantly with the Peterborough Club's presentation of a silver loving cup and gold-headed umbrella to J. D. Flavelle, of Lindsay, who had been invited by the Bonspiel Committee to make the draw. W. G. Morrow, chairman of the Bonspiel Committee, welcomed the visiting rinks, and hoped that they would enjoy the Bonspiel.

The first draw was at 9 o'clock, with twelve ices occupied, seven at the Charlotte Street Rink and five at Brock Street, which the curlers have pre-empted until they have passed the peak of the three major competitions. Wednesday morning the preliminary play-off for the Waddell trophy will be staged between twelve rinks representing the visitors and twelve of the Peterborough rinks that are entered in the Bonspiel.

SKATING AT BROCK ST. TO-MORROW NIGHT

CITY LEAGUE GAMES POSTPONED OWING TO GAME AT PICTON

Owing to the fact that so many of the City League players will be out of town to-morrow with the intermediate team, the games scheduled for Wednesday night will be postponed for a week.

There will be skating on the best ice of the season as the curlers will be using it right up to 7 o'clock.

Band in attendance and returns of game given every 10 minutes.

TOUGH NECK RESISTS KNIFE —BANDIT FREED.

Pardoned Chinese Is Now Respected Citizen.

SIANGTANG, China, January 31. —One Wong Ah-nyi, not so long ago a captured bandit under sentence of death in this little Chinese community, walks the streets of the city a free man to-day, and his is a figure that commands a certain measure of awe and respect due to odd circumstances.

Captured while engaged in a lawless enterprise, and in accordance with the swift justice of the Chinese, he and six confederates were promptly convicted and led out to be executed. The heads of the six were quickly chopped off, but by a mischance when the knife descended upon Wong's neck it did not sever the head, but merely inflicted a gaping wound. This was taken as a sign that some special spirit was acting as Wong's guardian, and neither the executioner nor any other dared again swing the knife.

Wong was taken to the magistrate, who also was impressed, so much so that the official not only granted the culprit a full pardon, but he also gave Wong a letter of introduction to those in charge of the mission hospital. The Christian doctor there in charge restored Wong to well being.

DIED OF WOUNDS.

BOSTON, Jan. 31. — (Canadian Press.)—Patrolman Daniel McShane, war veteran, died here to-day of wounds received when Renzy Murray, negro, aged 62, stood off a seige of sixty police officers in his house.

NO CITY LEAGUE GAMES THIS WEEK

LAKEVIEWS AND HOLY NAME ARE TIED FOR LEADERSHIP OF JUNIOR RACE.

Lakeviews and Holy Name Society won their games in the Junior City Hockey League last night, and are tied for the leadership of the League. The scores of the game were:

Lakeviews 5, De Laval 3.
Canadian Woollens 2, Canadians 1.
Rangers 5, Tuxis Boys 3.
Holy Name 2, Duffus Devils 1.
Young Men's Club 6, Eskimos 0.

No City League Games.

The City Hockey Leaguers last night decided not to play the weekly double-header on Wednesday night. All four teams will be weakened by the absence of Intermediate O.H.A. and other players who will be at Picton. Sending out patched-up teams, it was thought, would be unfair to the fans, and would lessen interest in the league. The Bankers would be hit hard as Harry and Pete Thornton, Ray Rose and Joe Dwyer would not be available.

Belleville Wins Group.

Belleville took no chances at Cornwall last night, and won the game early in the contest. Manager Thomas' gang are now winners of the group.

BREAKS NECK JERKING SNARL OUT OF HAIR

Nurse Faces Death Now With Slightest Move.

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Jan. 31.—Miss Helen Vickery, 21 years old, a nurse at the Hospital of the Good Shepherd, jerked her head while combing her hair and broke her neck. She is now confined to her bed and has not moved since Sunday.

One of the vertebrae is broken, but if she lies quietly and gives the vertebrae a chance to mend she may recover, physicians say. The slightest movement may cause death.

Miss Vickery was combing her hair preparatory to going on duty Sunday when she injured herself. Her comb caught in a snarl of her hair. She tossed her head to free it, and a pain shot through her neck. She was unable to move her head and a physician was called.

BOY, 8, IS CAUGHT STARTING 45TH TRIP.

Discovered Stowed Away in Bunk of Vessel.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31. — Eight-year-old Michael Clementi has ambitions, the greatest of which is to travel.

He was about to realize this for the forty-eighth time, when he boarded the Constantinople of the Greek Line to visit his grandmother in Italy.

But the captain had different ideas and he was hurled from a bunk in the forecastle just as the pilot was about to be discharged at Sandy Hook.

Michael returned reluctantly as the guest of the pilot, who landed him at Stapleton after a night on the pilot boat, and turned him over to the police.

VISITOR TO RUSSIA BACK SADDER, WISER.

His Money, Clothes Taken For Communistic Pot.

MOSCOW, Jan. 31.—Russia is no place to spend a holiday, according to Serge Solovieff, formerly a business man of New York and Syracuse, N. Y., and later a corporal in the United States Army, who recently arrived here on his way home, full of troubles and minus clothes and $100 taken from him at the frontier between Soviet Russia and the Far Eastern Republic.

SLIGHT ACTIVITY

WINNIPEG, Jauary 31. — Activity in most wholesale and manufacturing lines although slight, continues. Coming during the quiet season this seems all the more encouraging, states the weekly trade report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association.

Toronto, Montreal, Quebec, and other eastern points, say in their advices, that an increase in spring buying is noticeable in most lines, and that "country points seem to be opening up." Retail trade in the city during the last few weeks has been quiet but not more so than in former years. Collections are still somewhat slow. Failures show a decided decrease.

Winnipeg wholesalers vary in the reports according to district served. Previous season's crops are always a factor, and where these were good orders and payments are fairly satisfactory, but the restrictions of credit in other districts is curtailing trade to a considerable extent, compared with other years. Retail trade, merchants say, shows an improvement. Failures show a decrease.

Saskatchewan and further West say "trade very quiet, little business being done. Holding tight on credits," and this might be said to sum up the general situation in both Saskatchewan and Alberta. Retailers report volume of trade during January not up to same month in 1921. Collections slow. Failures show a tendency to decrease.

Vancouver and most large centres in British Columbia find conditions very encouraging for 1922. Wholesalers are in almost every instance finding increases in orders. Retail trade in Vancouver during the month very satisfactory, and collections show slight improvement.

INSPECTED FACILITIES.

BROCKVILLE, January 31 (Canadian Press). — Accompanied by Sir Joseph Flavelle, Howard G. Kelley, W. D. Robb, and other officials of the Grand trunk system, the Hon. W. C. Kennedy, Minister of Railways and Canals, carried out an inspection of the railway facilities here at noon to-day, later leaving for Belleville.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—Andrew Ferguson, aged 65, was shot and killed today while resisting a robbery in his hardware store in the commercial district here.

ALBANY, N.Y., Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Consideration of a resolution opposing the St. Lawrence waterway project, and urging the construction of a ship canal from Buffalo to the Hudson river, was put over until Monday next.

PETERBOROUGH MALE VOICE CHOIR PRACTICE.

At J. M. Greene Music Studio tonight the Peterborough Male Voice Choir will meet for regular practice at the hour of 8 sharp. All members are requested to be on hand to-night and every practice night—as there are but ten weeks from now until the annual concert, which takes place on 31st March, in the Grand Opera House. Incidentally, it is hoped the music-loving citizens will keep this date free.

WHEN MAKING SOUP.

Almost every one likes soup. Good soup is an economy for it saves the roast and many times a hearty soup provides the main dish for luncheon or supper.

The best soup pots are those of the earthen pipkin type, enamel lined iron pots of the granite or white ware. Do not use an aluminium kettle for this purpose if acid vegetables are to be among the soup ingredients.

A colander, a fine wire sieve, a puree sieve, a long-handled spoon, fork, skimmer, and ladle are necessary in soup making. It is well to have some white blotting paper at hand to remove the small particles of grease from the surface after the soup has been skimmed.

The grease which comes off the top of beef and vegetable soup makes an excellent flavouring fat for sauces or in hash.

REPORT OF AUTOPSY DISPOSES OF THEORY.

MONTREAL, January 31. — Canadian Press. — The report of Doctors Derome and McTagart, who performed the autopsy on the remains of Raoul Delorme, was issued to-day by Coroner McMahon.

The report says that no trace of alcohol or drugs was found in the stomach. This finding is taken by the police to once more dispose of the theory that young Delorme might have been killed while on a joy ride or that he was drugged and afterwards shot.

FINANCIAL POSITION IS NOT DISCLOSED.

MONTREAL, January 31 (Canadian Press). — No statement with regard to the exact financial position of the brokerage firm of Fairbanks, Gosselin & Company, whose suspension was announced on the Stock Exchange yesterday afternoon, will be available for at least ten days, according to the report made to-day by Gordon Scott, joint trustee with G. Gardner, in whose hands the affairs of the liquidated firm have been placed.

FOR WOMEN.

Some women wear as many as a dozen bracelets on one arm!

Fringed hems are seen on the new spring sport dresses.

Capes are to be very popular for spring, both for day time and evening wear.

The trend in styles in women's gowns is headed more and more toward the plain idea.

The elongated shoulder line emphasized by braid embroidery is an outstanding detail of many of the smartest frocks.

Silks of the crepe weaves are much in evidence, and vying with them are broadcloths, kasha and the new Rodier woollens showing beautiful combinations of colors.

MAY OPEN UP WESTERN SEAT FOR HON. C. STEWART

NELSON, B.C., Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press)—Farmer-Labor party here knows nothing about the rumor that L. W. Humphrey, M.P., for West Kootenay, might resign his seat in order to give Hon. Charles Stewart an opportunity to secure a western seat.

SHE DARKENED HER GRAY HAIR

Tells How She Did it with a Home-made Remedy.

Mrs. E. H. Boots, a well known resident of Buchanan County, Ia., who darkened her gray hair, made the following statement:

"Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray or faded hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple remedy, which they can mix at home. To half a pint of water add one ounce of bay rum, one small box of Orlex Compound, and 1-4 ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair every other day until the gray hair is darkened sufficiently. It does not color the scalp; is not greasy and does not rub off. It will make a gray haired person look 20 years younger."

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND

By "SAPPER"

The German, hardly conscious what he had said owing to the pain in his arm, was frantically kicking the Englishman's legs, still bound to the chair; but the iron grip on his wrists never slackened. And then quite suddenly came the end. With one dreadful, convulsive heave the German jerked himself free, and fell doubled up on the floor. Fascinated, they watched him writhing and twisting, until, at last, he lay still. The Boche was dead.

"My God!" muttered Hugh, wiping his forehead. "Poor brute."

"What was that blow-pipe affair?" cried Sinclair hoarsely.

"The thing they tried to finish me with in Paris last night," answered Hugh grimly, taking a knife out of his waistcoat pocket. "Let us trust that none of his pals come in to look for him."

A minute later he stood up, only to sit down again abruptly, as his legs gave way. They were numbed and stiff with the hours he had spent in the same position, and for a while he could do nothing but rub them with his hands, till the blood returned and he could feel once more.

Then, slowly and painfully, he tottered across to the others and set them free as well. They were in an even worse condition than he had been; and it seemed as if Algy would never be able to stand again, so completely dead was his body from the waist downwards. But, at length, after what seemed an eternity to Drummond, who realised only too well that should the gang come in they were almost as helpless in their present condition as if they were still bound in their chairs, the other two recovered. They were still stiff and cramped—all three of them—but at any rate they could move; which was more than could be said of the German, who lay twisted and rigid on the floor, with his eyes staring up at them—a glassy, horrible stare.

"Poor brute!" said Hugh again, looking at him with a certain amount of compunction. "He was a miserable specimen—but still . . ." He shrugged his shoulders. "And the contents of my cigarette-case are half a dozen gaspers, and a ten-bob Bradbury patched together with stamp paper!"

He swung round on his heel as if dismissing the matter, and looked at the other two.

"All fit now? Good! We've got to think what we're going to do, for we're not out of the wood yet by two or three miles."

"Let's get the door open," remarked Algy, "and explore."

Cautiously they swung it open, and stood motionless. The house was in absolute silence; the hall was deserted.

"Switch out the light," whispered Hugh. "We'll wander round."

They crept forward stealthily in the darkness, stopping every now and then to listen. But no sound came to their ears; it might have been a house of the dead.

Suddenly Drummond, who was in front of the other two, stopped with a warning hiss. A light was streaming out from under a door at the end of a passage, and, as they stood watching it, they heard a man's voice coming from the same room. Someone else answered him, and then there was silence once more.

At length Hugh moved forward again, and the others followed. And it was not until they got quite close to the door that a strange, continuous noise began to be noticeable—a noise which came most distinctly from the lighted room. It rose and fell with monotonous regularity; at times it resembled a brass band—at others it died away to a gentle murmur. And occasionally it was punctuated with a strangled snort.

"Great Scott!" muttered Hugh excitedly, "the whole boiling bunch are asleep, or I'll eat my hat."

"Then who was it who spoke?" said Algy. "At least two of 'em are awake right enough."

And, as if in answer to his question, there came the voice again from inside the room.

"Wal, Mr. Darrell, I guess we can pass on, and leave this bunch."

With one laugh of joyful amazement Hugh flung open the door, and found himself looking from the range of a yard into two revolvers.

REPLIES TO CHARGES.

MONTREAL, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press.)—Replying to a charge emanating from Orange Lodge circles in Toronto, Rev. Dr. R. W. Dickie, chairman of the Montreal Protestant School Board, said to-day that he had heard of no more equitable or more practical plan of distribution of school tax monies than that now in vogue in Montreal.

MEDICAL MEN DISCUSS QUESTION

TORONTO, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Pres).—At a round table conference of representatives of the Ontario Medical Association and the Provincial License Board to-day it was decided that a questionaire would be sent by the Association to the doctors of the Province asking if they are in favor of the limit of liquor a physican can prescribe being reduced.

The Questionaire

The questionairewill provide for expressing three opinions, namely, leaving the limit at a quart as at present, reducing it to 16 ounces, or reducing it to 12 ounces.

WOULD YOU REFUSE A MILLION DOLLARS?

Everybody is familiar with the story of Charles Garland, the Massachusetts idealist, who refused a legacy of $1,000,000 because of his ideals. A few days ago he changed his mind and accepted the bequest. He lives on a 30 acre farm—called "April Farm"—at North Carver, Mass., and his farmhouse is a tiny tumbledown and weather beaten affair that resembles more the habitat of a squatter than that of a millionaire. His farm is not the best in the world; in fact, it had given him only a precarious living and when our camera man happened in on him, Mr. Garland was receiving his daily supply of milk from a neighbor.

HUMOROUS LECTURE ON TRIP TO IRELAND

The Rev. Jas. Pogue delivered a very interesting and humorous lecture last evening before a good-sized audience at St. James' Methodist Church, on his "Trip to Ireland". The meeting, held under the auspices of the Gleaners' Bible Class of St. James' Church, was presided over by Rev. J. F. Chapman, and a very enjoyable musical programme was rendered, consisting of vocal numbers by Rev. J. A. MacKenzie and Mrs. H. Doig and selections by the choir and orchestra of the church.

CIGARS. MADE 56 YEARS AGO, HAVE RARE FLAVOR.

HILLSBORO, N.H., Jan. 31.—Recently F. E. Merrill, of this town, passed to friends a box of cigars bearing the date of 1865 and which were not only made in this New Hampshire town, but the tobacco from which they were made was grown on one of Hillsboro's fertile farms. The cigars had a remarkably fine flavor and the smokers sighed when the last wreath of smoke curled away from the clinging white ash.

The relics were found among the effects of the late Mrs. Emma Merril Locke by Mr. Merrill, a cousin and executor of her estate. After trying one of the cigars himself, Mr. Merrill passed some of them out to the older inhabitants of the town, who recalled Hillsboro's one venture in the tobacco raising and cigar manufacturing business.

SPECTACULAR FIRE AT GREAT NORTHERN DOCKS

SUPERIOR, Wis., Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press).—Spectacular fire at Great Northern Dock number two at Allouez, near here, which for time threatened other docks, was brought under control to-day through the combined efforts of Superior firemen and Duluth crew. The loss is estimated at two million dollars.

Market News

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press).—Price changes were uneven within very narrow bounds at the dull opening of to-day's Stock Market. The only popular issue to show more than a fractional variation was American Sugar, which rose one point. United States Steel, on which quarterly dividend action is to be taken during the day, opened at a nominal recession.

The market recovered for a brief period on buying of Corn Products, Sumatra Tobacco, Mexican Petroleum, Mercantile Marine Preferred and Wilson Preferred, these rising one to two points. Re-actions set in before noon, however, Atlantic Gulf, American Car, Public Service of New Jersey, Gulf States Steel, American Woollen, Associated Oil, Chandler, Electric Storage Battery and Union Pacific declining one to two points. Baldwin, Studebaker, Sugars and Tobaccos also were under pressure. Call money on free offerings opened at five per cent.

Bidding up of selected stocks, notably Gulf States Steel and American Ice, which gained 3 3-4 and 4 points respectively, imparted a better tone to the dealing after mid-day. Representative shares crept up slowly regaining most of their forenoon losses and Davison Chemical and United States alcohol were in increased demand.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange firm; demand 4 27¼; Canadian dollars, 4¼ per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press).—Opening wheat prices, which ranged from 1-8 to 5-8c, with May 1.19¼ to 1.19½, and July 1.04 3-4 to 1.05, were followed by a little further sag.

Corn and oats weakened with wheat, and as a result of continued liberal receipts of corn. After opening a shade to 3-8c lower, May 54 to 54 1-8, the Corn Market showed but slight power to rally.

Oats started unchanged to 1-8 off, May 39¼ to 39 3-8, and then declined a bit more.

THE MONTREAL EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, Jan. 31.—(Canadian Press).—Trading was fairly brisk on the local Stock Exchange during the first half-hour this morning, and more than one substantial variation was noted. Detroit Railway went down a point to 60. Lyall rose a half to 35½. Montreal Power dropped from 88, its closing quotation to 86½. Of the Bank stocks, Molson's registered a two point advance to 167 on a three share sale.

TORONTO STOCK MARKET.

TORONTO, Jan. 31. — (Canadian Press).—There was very little of interest on the local Stock Exchange this morning. Toronto Railways lost a point at 67½, and Royal Bank after holding a 200 mark for some time past, sold at 199¼ this morning. Mackay was off ¼ at 82½. Brazilian unchanged at 29 3-4. Bonds were dull and the unlisted department was quieter than usual, with McIntyre showing a re-action from 243 to 238. North Star lost 10c at its close of 315.

TORONTO CATTLE MARKET.

TORONTO Jan. 31. — (Canadian Press).—Receipts 794; trade slow. Choice butcher steers, $6.50 to $7; butcher cows, medium, $3 to $4; calves, $11.50 to $13.50; lambs, $10 to $11.50; hogs, $12.50.

URGES ALL APPENDIXES BE REMOVED IN YOUTH.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 31. — Dr. Evan O'Neill, of Kane, Pa., who, a year ago, successfully performed an operation on himself for the removal of his appendix, advocates a law providing that all children at an early age have the appendix removed. This the doctor believes necessary whether evidences of disease are apparent or not.

Dr. Kane said many thousands of lives are being lost annually from acute appendicitis. The physician said the appendix is productive of almost innumerable ills.

Wholesale operation on children properly performed, with sufficient hospital care, it was affirmed, would result in but negligible mortality.

QUICK TRIAL FOR SLAYER OF OFFICERS

Council for the Defence Claims Some Members of New York Police Department Are Fond of Using a Blackjack and Rubber Hose.

MIND DISEASED

NEW YORK, Feb. 1. — Justice Wasservogel has announced that he will call Luther Boddy, negro slayer of two detectives, for the imposition of the death sentence on Friday of this week. When the verdict of murder in the first degree was announced, Boddy's wife became hysterical and began to moan. She had to be led from the court room.

Ten minutes before reaching its verdict the jury filed into the court room and asked Judge Wasservogel to define the law regarding manslaughter and premeditation. Four questions were submitted. It was vident that doubt that been created in the minds of some of the jurors as to whether Boddy shot the detectives with intent to kill.

Boddy was detained in the prisoners' pen on the mezzanine floor of the Criminal Courts Building while the jury considered the case. There he was visited by his mother and his wife. They took some lunch to him, and a box of cigarettes and the prisoner refused to discuss the probable verdict until he had eaten. Then, after lighting a cigarette, he turned to his mother and said:

"Now I am ready to listen to anything you have to say."

"Luther, have you been praying?" she asked.

"No," replied the slayer.

As the two women left him, the mother again urged him to pray.

Morris Koenig, former Judge of General Sessions and counsel for the negro, in his summation, dwelt at length on Boddys testimony that he had been beaten several times by detectives in the West 135th Street Station before the night of the double murder, and that he became crazed at the sight of the green lights of the station because he feared he was going to be beaten again.

Mind Disease, Says Koenig.

His mind was diseased from birth, Mr. Koenig continued, and he didn't want "to be taken to the torture chamber in the West 135th Street Station." On the several occasions he was taken to the station by detectives they beat him with blackjacks and rubber hose to make him confess to crimes or to compel him to become a 'stool pigeon' for them, he added.

"They did not succeed in either," Mr. Koenig said, "but they did create in his mind a horror and fear of the police which meant physical agonies and torture of the human soul.

"I do not desire to indulge in an attack on the Police Department. In its ranks and file the police force has men who are willing to give the best that is in them to the service of the people of the city. But I cannot understand why some men, immediately on donning a police uniform, become instruments of horror and cruel mehods. I challenge the District Attorney to deny that there has come to him reports that policemen have beaten persons in order to obtain information. If the police cannot detect crime except by unlawful methods, then woe to the City of New York, for the people's rights are being crushed to the ground."

ACTED LIKE A PENDLUM

How They Fight Fires and Make Rescues in the Larger Cities — Strict Discipline.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—In two fires in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn a mother and her four children were rescued by one group of firemen, and another fireman was overcome and may die from gas and smoke inhaled in trying to rescue a family of ten which already had escaped to the roof.

The first fire was in a three-story frame building occupied by three families at 251 Christopher street. Two of the families escaped to the street by the stairway before the arrival of the fire apparatus, but when Mrs. Regina Steinberg attempted to leave, with her two daughters and two sons, she found that they were trapped in their apartment on the second floor by dense smoke and flames creeping up the stairway from the cellar.

A passerby was the first to discover flames shooting from the cellar. After he turned in an alarm he ran back to warn the tenants. The families on the first and third floors heard his cries, but the Steinbergs did not hear as they were in the kitchen.

When Engine Company 231 arrived, in charge of Lieutenant Edward F. Gross, he was told of the Steinberg's plight. Gross bolted up the stairs at the head of several firemen and had reached the Steinberg apartment when there was a backdraft which sent the other firemen sprawling to the street.

Gross could hear the cries of the mother and four children. Mrs. Steinberg had bolted the door, but Gross threw his body against it and snapped the lock. By that Mrs. Steinberg and her family were on the verge of collapse. The eldest daughter, Emma, 19 years old, had thrown up one of the windows and Mrs. Steinberg staggered to it with Herman, her 15-month-old child, whom she held a arm's length over the yard. Neighbors gathered below pleaded with her not to drop the child until they could make a net of blankets.

There were no fire escapes on the frame structure. Gross, grabbing the child from the mother, told her and the other to lean out of the windows. He sat astride of a sill awaiting other firemen with a ladder. Hook and Ladder Company 120 was expected any second, but the flames had eaten their way through the door of the Steinberg apartment, and Gross appealed to other members of his company, who had ran to the yard, to improvise a means of rescue.

Six-Footer a Human Derrick

Just then Lieutenant John Davis of Engine Company 290 came into the yard and ordered half a dozen firemen to run up the stairs of the house next door to the roof of the burning building. There the Lieutenant ordered Firemen Edward Steihler of Engine Company 231, and more than six feet tall, to hang from the roof while other firemen held his ankle and take the members of the Steinberg family as Gross raised them to the firemen's grasp from the window sill.

The infant was the first rescued. As Steihler grasped child he drew up his body and the other firemen on the roof began to swing him, pendulum-fashion, until another fire man snatched the child as he swung near the level of the roof.

Solomon, Mrs. Steinberg's 8-year-old son, next was rescued; then in turn, Louis, the 14-year-old son, and Emma and Mrs. Steinberg. Just as Mr. Steinberg and the four children were hurried to safety on an adjoining roof, the flames broke

NOW WAGING A JAZZ WAR

Court Arms Reformers For a Death War on the Jungle Music—To Form a Standard.

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—Armed with the decision of Judge Arnold Heap in Morals Court here that "jazz music is a barbarism of the jungle" and "the cause of immorality," reformers are planning a widespread campaign to abolish jazz.

The question arose with the arrest and trial of musicians and dancers in a notorious cafe here.

"The music played wasn't dance music," declared the judge. "The jazz orchestra blared and changed its tones, but that isn't intended to be dance music. If such entertainments are tolerated it means the debauching of society, the corruption of the community, and the destruction of the moral stamina of the Nation."

To Form Standard

So now the reformers and musicians alike are setting out to form a standard of what is music and what is immoral jazz. The decision has been awaited by reformers all over the country. A German high court decided that it was impossible to hold that music could be immoral. Famous musicians supported this decision.

Isham Jones, one of the foremost disciples of syncopation in the country, explained the difference Sunday. Jones and his orchestra make dance music phonograph records.

"Jazz, as defined by Judge Heap, certainly is not music," he said. "Music is the science or art of pleasing, expressive or intelligible combinations of tones.

"Jazz is an appeal to sensuality. There is a vast difference between jazz and real syncopation.

"Jazz is the utilization of musical instruments for stirring of human passions.

Goes Back to Primitive

"It is based on the most primitive of principles.

Certain cadences on a jungle tom-tom will incite a savage to warlike passions. Our Indians used the same method.

"Other cadences are measured for sensual appeal. This is the slowest most languorous of cadences.

"With this as a basis, the so-called 'jazz artists' then add the saxophone, with its coarse vibration tone. It is a stirring tone, more fleshly than the refined violin.

"Add to this the slow blare of the trombone, which can be made to produce sounds expressing desire almost as plainly as the human voice. Then, by the addition of whistles, rooster crows, the languorous thumping of the tom-tom together with the measured stamping of feet and the insidious nerve-jumping of the 'hootch horn' or oboe, and you have jazz. It isn't music and it is immoral."

WITNESS SAW THE TRAGEDY

Graphic Story of Theatre Catastrophe By An Eye-Witness — A "Cyclonic Puff of Air" Escapes Described.

By CLAYTON WHITEHILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 — Four gaunt walls, surrounding a hill of dirty snow, huge concrete blocks, mangled steel girders, plaster and wire. Two hundred firemen and soldiers working feverishly with picks, crowbars, torches and ropes among the ruins. Nurses and doctors stretcher-bearers and thousands of silent and drawn onlookers working or waiting at their posts within and without.

To get a close-up as I did, hour after hour, on the gruesome interior of this setting was to witness a chaotic confusion of horrifying and numbing sights.

Many pinned meet the wreckage were fully visible, agony, terror or grief, written large on their faces. I saw a Marine officer, family injured, coolly directing the rescue of his wife and daughter, imprisoned beside him, despite his excruciating suffering. He died shortly after he was freed.

Everywhere I turned, it seemed I saw faces, the death-mask just developing; or the stare of near-insane horror which gave them the appearance of the dead. Maddening screams accentuated the confusion which marked the first entrance of rescuers. It was a charnel house

Reels of Horror

This is the picture of Washington's greatest tragedy—the collapse of the Knickerbocker Motion Picture Theatre, showplace of the Capital's moviedom at Eighteenth street and Columbia Road. The picture has been maintained, reel after reel, in all of its horror since shortly after 9.30 Saturday night.

Groans of the injured and dying, for the most part, has been stilled by noon of the Sabbath, when the great blizzard which swept the city had completely spent itself and the sun shone down on the fury and tragedy the storm had wrought. Rescuers held out slight hope of recovering alive the few still left in the ruins late Sunday, who had been engulfed in the avalanche of death-dealing wreckage.

It happened that the writer was passing the theatre at the hour the tragedy occurred. From within, the notes of the organ had just died away. There was a sound like the sighing of a great wind, then a thunderous rumble which shook the ground underfoot as the snow-laden roof disappeared within the walls. With a crash the exit doors were literaly blown out. Then silence followed almost immediately by the low moan of many subdued voices punctuated by shrieks of the terrified the injured and the dying.

The Noise of Panic

The noise of panic followed Those nearest the exits stampeded for safety. Charles Whitcomb, of New York, who had purchased the last ticket sold at the theatre performance, had just opened the door to enter the house, when the roof crashed. The force of the impact hurled him across the lobby through the outside door into the street. Only slightly bruised, he muttered thanks to God for his escape.

Not more than a half a dozen persons, seated on the outermost aisle of the orchestra, were as fortunate as Whitcomb in escaping.

Meantime, from the great snow-drifts, blocking all traffic without, thousands of people appeared as if by magic. From nearby fire stations companies summoned by a general alarm, fought desperately with their heavy equipment to make their way to the scene.

Those who reached the disaster first saw a hill, three stories high, gray and ghastly. Now and then moans of women and children and shouts of imprisoned men pierced the air above the clang and roar of fire engines and ambulances. These cries guided the rescuers.

In the Lurid Light.

The huge mound of ruin was made more ghastly by the shadows cast upon it from the standing walls and the few electric lights that had not been broken by the collapse. Snow driven by a high wind swept down on the wreckage.

In the weird light, rendered more so by the fact that I had just come in from the bright lights and glistening snow without, the figures of human beings could be seen frantically struggling to get out, ter-

SUBMITS AN OUTLINE OF THE TREATY

Integrity of Plan Proposed on Behalf of the United States Has Been Maintained—Open Door Resolution.

SHANTUNG QUESTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—The fifth open session of the Arms Conference was called to order just after 11 o'clock to-day for the presentation of the naval limitation treaty and the special treaties limiting the use of submarines and poison gases.

At 12.20 to-day Secretary Hughes presented the text of the treaty for the limitation of armaments to the conference.

The treaty was not read, but Secretary Hughes outlined its terms and declared that so far as capital ships are concerned, "integrity of plan proposed on behalf of the United States Government has been maintained."

Dr. Sze, for the Chinese, made a strong speech, touching on Shantung and Far Eastern questions, and filed with the Secretary a record of the attitude adopted throughout the Far Eastern Committee deliberations. He expressed the belief that a settlement would remove all possibility of misunderstanding between China and Japan. He expressively thanked A. J. Balfour and Secretary Hughes for their good offices.

Mr. Balfour said he was happy at the settlement, and that it would be particularly gratifying to Britain. Then he announced that Wei-Hai-Wei leasehold held by Britain would be turned back to the country in whose frontier it lies.

In quick succession two open door resolutions, two resolutions pledging against discriminatory railroad practice in China, a resolution providing for the withdrawal of foreign troops in China, and a declaration of the Powers asking China to reduce her military forces were adopted without debate.

Chairman Hughes announced, amid applause, that he had been informed the Shantung controversy "has been settled."

DELORME MURDER CASE.

COUNCIL TO INVESTIGATE A SUNDAY FIRE AT MANSE

Fire, Water and Light Committee Opened the Matter Last Evening—Suggests Sending Chief of Department to a Training School.

CHIEF ON THE CARPET

FIRE CHIEF GEORGE GRANGE
Whose department is the subject of criticism by members of the City Council and others.

RAN PAST THE FIRE

The Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council, of which Ald. J. Crowe is chairman, last night inquired into case of alleged negligence against the fire department in connection with the fire at St. Andrew's Manse on Sunday, January 29th. After some considerable discussion it was found the negligence consisted in not promptly locating the place of the fire. The committee recommended that the matter be taken up and further considered by the Committee of the Whole Council.

According to Fire Chief Grange there had been negligence in not making sure of the location of the fire before leaving the hall. While there was disagreement on other things the members of the committee agreed that in not definitely finding out where the fire was a grave mistake had been committed. So far as the actual handling of the fire went there was little criticism from the committee and Ald. M. McIntyre, for one, frankly praised the firemen's work. Ald. Crowe presided and there were present: Aldermen J. Hamilton, H. Gainey, R. N. Jones, E. M. Turner and Malcolm McIntyre.

Complained in Letter.

The following letter from the insurance firm of Hill, Weddell nad Hills, this city, opened the discussion:

INSURANCE COMPANY'S LETTER

Peterborough Ontario,
January 24th. 1922

Alderman Jos. Crowe,
Chairman, Fire Water & Light Committee,

Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Sir:—It has been brought to our attention that there was evidently some mismanagement in connection with response to fire in St. Andrews Manse, on Sunday 22nd. inst., and the result was a very material loss in buildings and contents which might otherwise have amounted to a very small sum.

This is the second time that we have had a complaint within the last few months to the effect that it has taken something like twenty-five minutes from the time that the alarm was sent in until the brigade had a line of hose laid to the fire.

If these charges are correct and we have reason to believe they are, there is something very far wrong in connection with the Fire Department and it will not take many such instances as this to cause a general increase in insurance rates throughout the whole city and should such conditions become generally known it would be a serious reflection on the Fire Department.

I thought it well to bring this matter to your attention, because as Chairman of Fire, Water & Light Committee, the matter should be investigated.

Yours very respectfully,
HILL, WEDDELL & HILLS.

'HUMORESQUE' FOR THE SOUP COURSE

LONDON, Feb. 1.—Music with your meals—if it's psychologically attuned to each course—not only is an ideal aid to digestion, but will react helpfully on the body and the mind, soothing or stimulating in accordance with your needs and your choice of pieces.

The authority for this Sir James Dundas-Grant, famous Harley street surgeon, who has made a study of the subject, has arranged a model dinner menu-program, the musical part of which he has served personally with his own orchestra.

It should be remembered, in making music conform with food, to avoid ruining the appetite in a blatant storm of jazz or depressing the palate in a mornful dirge.

"The dinner," Sir James explains, "should start with something light and fanciful and gay, such as a two-step with the hors d'oeuvres. The soup should be taken with something happy and frolicsome, the fish with a soothing, pensive air. This should be followed at the entree stage by a return to the sprightly mood, for here the diners are warming up to the meal and becoming at ease. An amorous tune should go with the joint.

"Game should always be accompanied by some beautiful waltz, the sweet with something delicate and dainty, and the savory with a bright yet reposeful dance measure."

Here is Sir James' menu-program:

Hors d'Oeuvre—"The Blarney Stone," Engleman.

Soup—"Humoresque," Dvorak.

Fish—"Chanson Triste," Tschajkowsky.

Entree—"Spring Song," Mendelssohn.

Joint—Berceuse "Joselyn," Godard.

Game—"Valse des Fleurs," Tsechajkowsky.

Sweet—Fragment from "Pathetic Symphony," Tschajkowsky.

Savory—"Minuet and Trio," Sterndale-Bennett.

Fountain of Youth Still Flows Freely at Bimini

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., February 1. — Federal Prohibition officials here interested in Bimini, the small British island 40 miles east of Miami, which, since the outlawing of John Barleycorn by the United States, has become the mecca for the thirsty and which also is said to be the source of much of the liquor smuggled into this country, have ascertained that Bimini was supposed to have been the site of the "fountain of youth" of which Ponce de Leon was in search when he discovered Florida.

Bimini is not a recently established institution, it has developed, for more than 400 years ago it figured in the news reports of the day by that name. Ponce de Leon heard of it while in Porto Rico in 1512, having been told by Indians there "of an island called Bimini, where there was much gold and a treasure even more precious than gold—a fountain whose waters would make young for ever all mortals who should drink of it," as one chronicler puts it.

Ponce de Leon fitted out three small vessels at his own expense to go in search of the fountain. He left to the present generation the discovery of the gold and potent waters, however, for after cruising about the Bahamas during the winter of 1513 without sighting the island, he heard there was land in the north-west, steered in that direction, and on Easter Sunday, 27th March, landed on the beach a few miles north of where St. Augustine now stands.

Prohibition officials credit the Indians of Porto Rico with having known what they were talking about when they told Ponce de Leon what he would find at Bimini.

"Bimini is running over with gold these days," said one official, "and it is certain from the experience we have had with liquor runners the last year or two that the marvellous waters of the fountain still flow freely."

(Cyril McNeile)

"I don't know how you've done it, boys," he remarked, "but you can put those guns away. I hate looking at them from that end."

"What the devil have they done to all your pals?" said Darrell, slowly lowering his arm.

"We'll leave that for the time," returned Hugh grimly, as he shut the door. "There are other more pressing matters to be discussed."

He glanced round the room, and a slow grin spread over his face. There were some twenty of the gang, all of them fast asleep. They sprawled grotesquely over the table, they lolled in chairs; they lay on the floor, they huddled in corners. And, without exception, they snored and snorted.

"A dandy bunch," remarked the American, gazing at them with satisfaction. "That fat one in the corner took enough dope to kill a bull, but he seems quite happy." Then he turned to Drummond. "Say now, Captain, we've got a lorry load of the boys outside; your friend here thought we'd better bring 'em along. So it's up to you to get busy."

"Mullings and his crowd," said Darrell, seeing the look of mystification on Hugh's face. "When Mr. Green got back and told me you'd shoved your great mutton-head in it again, I thought I'd better bring the whole outfit."

"Oh, you daisy!" cried Hugh, rubbing his hands together, "you pair of priceless beans! The Philistines are delivered into our hands, even up to the neck." For a few moments he stood, deep in thought; then once again the grin spread slowly over his face. "Right up to their necks," he repeated, "so that it washes round their back teeth. Get the boys in, Peter; and get these lumps of meat carted out to the lorry. And, while you do that, we'll go upstairs and mop up."

III

Even in his wildest dreams Hugh had never imagined such a wonderful opportunity. To be in complete possession of the house, with strong forces at his beck and call, was a state of affairs which rendered him almost speechless.

"Up the stairs on your hands and knees," he ordered, as they stood in the hall. "There are peculiarities about this staircase which require elucidation at a later date."

But the murderous implement which acted in conjunction with the fifth step was not in use, and they passed up the stairs in safety.

"Keep your guns handy," whispered Hugh. "We'll draw each room in turn till we find the girl."

But they were not to be put to so much trouble. Suddenly a door opposite opened, and the man who had been guarding Phyllis Benton peered out suspiciously. His jaw fell, and a look of utmost surprise spread over his face as he saw the four men in front of him Then he made a quick movement as if to shut the door, but before he realised what had happened the American's foot was against it, and the American's revolver was within an inch of his head.

"Keep quite still, son," he drawled, "or I guess it might sort of go off."

But Hugh had stepped past him, and was smiling at the girl who, with a little cry of joyful wonder, had risen from her chair.

"Your face, boy," she whispered, as he took her in his arms, regardless of the other, "your poor old face! Oh! that brute, Lakington!"

Hugh grinned.

"It's something to know, old thing," he remarked cheerily, "that anything could damage it. Personally I have always thought that any change in it must be for the better.

He laughed gently, and for a moment she clung to him, unmindful of how he had got to her, glorying only in the fact that he had. It seemed to her that there was nothing which this wonderful man of hers couldn't manage; and now, blindly trusting, she waited to be told what to do. The nightmare was over; Hugh was with her.

"Where's your father, dear?" he asked her after a little pause.

"In the dining-room, I think," she answered with a shiver, and Hugh nodded gravely.

"Are there any cars outside?" He turned to the American.

"Yours," answered that worthy, still keeping his eyes fixed on his prisoner's face, which had now turned a sickly green.

"And mine is hidden behind Miss Benton's greenhouse unless they've moved it," remarked Algy.

THE WEATHER

The first month of the new year is now a thing of the past. While much more severe than the same month of last winter, it had many pleasant days. Last month had 12 zero days. The coldest day was the 25th, with 21 degrees below zero. The warmest day was the 29th (last Sunday) with 39 degrees. There was good sleighing all month. Snow fell on 12 different days to a total depth of 17 inches. To-morrow (Thursday) will be Candlemas day, the day on which the bear is supposed to come out of his winter hibernation, and make a general survey of the weather conditions. If the sun is shining sufficiently to cast his shadow on the snow he goes back to his den for another six weeks. If it is cloudy he considers the winter about over, and stays out. Perhaps the reader may have some faith in the old saying. I have absolutely none. It is strange, however, that the same old proverb (with variations as to the animal) is prevalent among all countries that have a winter season. This old saw is hoary with antiquity. —W. P.

HOLD MATCH THIS COUNTY

Chamber of Commerce Will Co-operate to Bring Big Plowing Event to Vicinity of Peterboro

Machinery Display.

The Executive Council of Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, with the President, Jos. J. Duffus, and most of the Executive present, held their regular semi-monthly meeting, when the following new applicants to the Chamber of Commerce were finally voted upon and accepted as members: Edward Abbey, manager of Capitol Theatre; Gordon K. Fraser, commission broker, Lakefield; J. A. Morden, broker, Toronto; Rev. J. J. O'Brien, priest; Richard Terriff, manager of United Cigar store.

Plowing Match.

A representative deputation from the Peterborough Plowmen's Association, consisting of C. E. Moore, Harry Webber, R. B. Rogers, Robt. Grandy and others, waited on the Council, asking the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce in securing and carrying out the details in connection with the annual international plowing match and farm machinery demonstration, which may be held near the city of Peterborough this year.

Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, is the Managing Director, and the Ontario Plowmen's Association, under whose jurisdiction the international match is held, have intimated their desire to hold the match in the eastern part of the Province this year.

This project was unanimously endorsed by the Council, who signified their desire to do all in their power to obtain the match and assist in making it a success and credit to the city and county of Peterborough.

It was pointed out that two hundred acres of land, including sod and stubble, would be required for actual plowing purposes, about five acres of land for exhibition and accommodation purposes, most of which would be covered with tents, which is known as the "tented city," and about twenty-five acres will be required for the parking of automobiles.

If Peterborough County and City secure this match and demonstration it is considered that it will be one of the largest, if not the largest event, that has ever been held in the county of Peterborough and will last for three days, some time during the month of October.

Attracts Interest.

It was held in Hamilton two years ago and it was estimated that there were 60,000 people attended, and last year at Woodstock, notwithstanding the fact that there were two wet days, the attendance was upwards of 40,000, and it is stated that with good weather there will be from 40,000 to 60,000 people in attendance this year.

From fifty to eighty teams of horses will be required and will be supplied gratis by the farmers of this district, that is, if they co-operate correspondingly with their fellow agriculturists from the western portion of the Province.

Other Competitions.

In addition to the keenly contested plowing match, for which handsome prizes will be given, there will be an elaborate display of all kinds of farming machinery, threshing machines, clover haulers, farm tractors, drain digging machinery, silos, ensilage cutters, hay balers and

CONFERENCE WILL LIKELY BE DELAYED

Settlement of the Near East Problems a Long Way Off — A Wide Divergence Disclosed.

Officials Gather.

LONDON, Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—The conference of the British, French and Italian Foreign Ministers, originally scheduled to be held in Paris to-day, is likely to be postponed a month as the result of the latest French memorandum regarding the Far East, which Lord Curzon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, received while preparing to go to Paris last night.

According to official circles examination of the French note indicates a wider divergence on the formula for a settlement of Near Eastern questions than had been expected. It was pointed out that it would be useless for the Foreign Ministers to confer until an agreement has been reached between Great Britain, France and Italy, because, it was said, the purpose of the proposed conference was the announcement of a programme which the three powers would insist that the Greeks and Turkish Nationalists carry out, with Allied support.

When Lord Curzon asked for a postponement of a few days, it was considered that the conference could be held on February ninth, but it was learned to-day that Field Marshal Allenby, the Egyptian High Commissioner, is expected to arrive in London on February 10. His arrival is likely to necessitate further delay, for Government officials state that the situation in Egypt certainly will demand the Foreign Secretary's immediate attention.

It was stated however, that a postponement of the Near East conference would not necessarily mean a postponement of the Genoa Conference.

630 BABIES OUT OF 1,000 DIE.

Appalling Death-Rate in Bombay, India.

LONDON, Feb. 1.—(Associated Press).—A surprising disparity in the death rate of babies throughout the world is shown in the latest figures issued by the Registrar-General.

During the third quarter of the year just ended, Christiania, the capital of Norway, was the healthiest city reported, the infantile death rate per 1,000 being only 33, while Amsterdam, Holland, had a rate of 42, Stockholm, Sweden, 47, and Copenhagen, Denmark, 48.

Compared with these, London's rate of 93 appears high; but Wigan, an important industrial town in Lancashire, has a rate of 125, and Berlin 146.

No town in Europe has such a record as Bombay, India, where, according to official figures, 630 babies out of every 1,000 die before they reach the age of 12 months.

In the event the Ministry declines to act in favor of the students an indefinite strike will be put into effect, it was announced.

THE OPENING PARLIAMENT

Announcement of Date May Be Made Some Time This Afternoon — Council Meeting.

OTTAWA, Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press.)—There is a likelihood that within the next day or two, and possibly at this afternoon's meeting of the Cabinet Council, the date for the opening of parliament will be decided upon and an announcement made immediately afterwards. It is customary to give thirty days' notice of the date of opening, and today being the first of February, an announcement this week will be necessary if present plans for calling the House within the first seven days of March are adhered to.

While it is customary for the session to open on a Wednesday, this rule is not necessarily followed in all cases. At the opening of the first session of the last parliament, on March 18, 1918, parliament was called for Monday morning, for the election of a speaker with the rest of the ceremonies of opening commencing at the usual time of three o'clock in the afternoon of the same day.

PROBABILITIES.

Easterly and south-easterly winds, mostly fair and mild; snow or rain in some localities on Thursday.

PROGRESS AT WASHINGTON CONFERENCE

Terms of Five-Power Naval Treaty Will Be Made Public Some Time To-Day—The Submarine Issues.

A Sharp Debate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. Canadian Press. — Preparations to present publicly the five-power naval and submarine treaties at to-day's open session of the Arms Conference were completed in committee yesterday after the British and French delegates again had indulged in a sharp exchange over the submarine issue.

At the same time the Japanese and Chinese about completed their drafting of the treaty by which Shantung is to be restored to China and it was predicted that this agreement, too, might be formally written into the book of conference accomplishments at to-day's public meeting.

Despite the British-French tilt the naval committee of the whole approved in short order the two treaties by which the powers agree to limit their capital ship sea-power and to impose certain restrictions on their use of submarines. At the public session the treaties are to be read into the record and each delegation had is to deliver an address expressing his government's acceptance.

Submarine Questions.

Until the last minute it had been undecided whether the submarine declarations and the accompanying resolutions condemning use of poison gas in warfare, should be put into a formal treaty, or left in the form of a protocol not requiring parliamentary ratification. Expressions at the committee meetings, however, are said to have revealed preponderence of opinion in favor of the latter course.

In their final agreement on Shan-

THE USE OF THE LASH.

The Grand Jury at the York Assizes has recommended that in view of the increase in the number of murders and hold-ups with fire-arms, persons found guilty of armed hold-ups after proper trial should be given lashes as well as imprisonment. Undoubtedly the crime wave calls for unusual measures, and it has been established beyond argument that the lash is the most powerful weapon possible against lawlessness. Hardened criminals fear it almost more than they do the scaffold, and its efficacy is well established. In Montreal Chief Justice Decarie has been sentencing men found guilty of robbery with violence to be whipped as well as to be imprisoned, and his action is commended by the newspapers and by the public. Similiarly, in the United States, there is much talk of the permanent revival of the whipping post as a powerful deterrent against crime. Except for a few offences, the use of the lash has been abandoned in Canada for some time, and some people may regard its revival as a sign that we are slipping backward towards the old conditions. But lawlessness must be checked; robberies under arms must be stopped, and if the thought of long imprisonment will not keep men from embarking upon a career of crime, something more potent must be employed. And the lash seems the only agency that promises satisfactory results. Doubtless the York Grand jurors were actuated by these considerations when they brought in their recommendation.

THE SAFETY LEAGUE'S WORK.

The Ontario Safety League proposes to continue its campaign of education during the current year, a decision that will be applauded by those who take time to consider the necessity that exists of arousing the public to the need of observing the principle of "Safety First." Principally the league will devote its attention to the motor menace, seeking to show reckless motorists the criminal folly of careless handling of their cars and to convince pedestrians that it is necessary for them to use every precaution to protect themselves and to prevent accidents. Fifteen thousand people were killed in motor accidents in the United States last year, and the majority of these mishaps could have been averted by the exercise of ordinary care. In Toronto during 1921 no fewer than 47 people met death in the same way. No wonder the Safety League has decided that the present is no time to drop its work. It is felt that the league's operations have had some effect upon the conditions in Toronto, for in spite of the increased traffic last year the death toll was not as large as in the twelve months just previous. But the total was big enough to show that there must be no relaxation in the endeavour to bring about a greater regard for human life and a keener appreciation of the fact that most accidents are the direct result of carelessness, either in the handling of a car or in not seeing that it is in good mechanical condition, or of thoughtless conduct on the part of pedestrians. The Safety League deserves the thanks of this Province for its unselfish work, which cannot fail to bring about safer conditions in the streets of our cities and along the highways.

NOT MUCH HELP IN THIS.

The single man who is out of employment and in destitute circumstances is not likely to grow enthused over the announcement that the Ontario Government is ready, under certain conditions, to assist him. The conditions supply the fly in the ointment, for the Government offers to pay one-third of the relief provided for single men who are workless, but stipulates that there must be no cash doles nor any payment for lodgings. Upon the municipalities is thrown the responsibility of arranging a relief scheme that will comply with these conditions. The difficulty that presents itself at once is the question of lodgings. The man in need of help must have some place to sleep, but the Government refuses to help to pay for lodgings for him, or to provide him with funds. Apparently the Ontario administrators are willing to supply food and groceries, and while that is all right so far as it goes the unfortunate bachelor can hardly be expected to take his little box of supplies and camp out in the park. The only other alternative is for the municipality to establish a hostel where homeless unemployed can be provided with beds. This plan has been adopted in several centres and has so far proved satisfactory. The Government's offer of providing one-third of the expense would apply to such a policy, and if there is to be no provision for lodgings under the Government scheme, the hostel method seems to be the only solution in sight.

There is a real need in Peterborough of some action to help the single men, some of whom are war veterans and who have no relatives in the country, and who are in circumstances that justify a speedy measure of assistance.

A BRITISH HERO GONE.

Of Sir Ernest Shackleton, whose death removes one who exemplified to the highest degree the spirit of the Briton, it has been written that he loved adventure and lived it. Cut off practically in the prime of life, the great explorer had nevertheless a career crowded with adventure such as few men have experienced. From the age of ten years he had been interested in Polar explorations; he was a sailor when he was sixteen years of age, and before he was twenty-five years old had navigated a steamer twice round the world. He was with Captain Scott on one dash for the South Pole, and then himself commanded the famous expedition which in 1909 reached a point within 97 miles of the Pole, the furthest south reached by any explorer up to that time. That attempt was marked by a series of adventures and hardships on the part of the fourteen men who constituted the land party that have rarely been equalled in the history of such expeditions. Shackleton survived the terrible perils of that experience, only to pass away at the commencement of another hazardous dash into the frozen wastes of the Antarctic. It seems only a day or two ago that we read that the Quest, the gallant little ship which carried the Shackleton party, had sailed from England, and the news that the great explorer has been called by death has been a shock to the whole Empire. The Quest party will carry on at the urgent desire of its leader. That was to be expected, for that is the Shackleton spirit, and that, too, is the British spirit.

THERE ARE OTHER PROGRESSIVES.

An exceedingly interesting and important meeting is in progress at Washington. It is in all essential respects like a convention of our own Progressives, or United Farmers; but over there it is called the National Agricultural Conference. Its aims are identical with those of our Canadian Progressives, and it is seeking to accomplish them through the exercise of political power. The only difference is that the new American party has elected to work from without, while ours has hastened to operate from within. This difference is not vital. The American body has found many representatives from rural districts to act as their mouthpieces in Congress and the Senate; and at the present time the so-called "agricultural bloc" threatens to hold the balance of power in both Houses.

The analogy holds true in other respects. Both inside and outside the national legislatures at Washington, the farmers' party of today is the product of a synthetic process which had the old granger and Patrons of Industry as its bases. The parallels of history on both sides of the line are apt and striking. Strength has come suddenly, after a long and discouraging series of failures. In other words, the party was weakest immediately before it reached the peak of power. Just when everybody had considered it dead and buried, it flashed into vigorous and agressive life. It does not control; but it holds a strategic place of influence which neither of the old parties can ignore.

The American farmers' party is perhaps a shade more ambitious in its aims, and a little more sweeping in its demands, than our Canadian party has yet shown itself to be. We may not, however, have to wait longer than the approaching session of Parliament to find this disparity removed. American and Canadian party alike is seeking two things: The lowered cost of what farmers have to buy, and an enhanced price for the things they have to sell. The Canadian party is endeavoring to reach one end by having the Grain Board restored, with its pooling and price-fixing powers renewed. The American party is asking for straight price-fixing in the case of a wide range of necessaries, including staple groceries and clothing, and public aid in marketing farm products to the extent of from $500,000,000 to $1,500,000,000.

Onlookers, having no direct or personal interest in this movement, may be amazed, amused, annoyed or alarmed by the demands being put forward, according to mood or angle of view; but that will neither alter nor affect it in the slightest. As an outcome, one may see some startling experiments in economics tried. The rock-bottom law or supply and demand, for example, may be flouted and pushed into a corner, along with all generally accepted notions about the controlling influence of world markets on prices. These forces having failed in their operations to satisfy the farmers of their inexorable and automatic characteristics, we shall all have to look on while the power of legislation is put to the test.

It would appear to be futile to ask our rural friends to patiently await the relief which deflation must inevitably bring. They would not heed such indefinite advice. Nor would they perhaps permit themselves to be won over to passivity by the assurance that all other industries are suffering in common with their own, although some of them in lesser degree. Men who have had a long feast of high prices are not readily disposed to remain inarticulate when pinched by low prices. We must all recognize two things very definitely: First, that the farmers will not listen to economics in their present mood; and second, that they are in deadly earnest about trying remedies of their own compounding. Many of us may not believe in those remedies. We may even fear that they will do more harm than good. But we may have to compose ourselves, and, with the best grace possible under the circumstances, stand aside while they are being tried. We may suspect that interference would be justified; yet these people are our good neighbors, and we certainly hope they may not find themselves in the unhappy position of being out of the frying pan into the fire.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Prosperity is just around the corner.

Many a housewife sighs to think of the sweeping that is going to waste at the Peterborough bonspiel.

The Shackleton expedition will carry on. That is the British spirit.

With war veterans pawning the decorations they won for valour in the field, we cannot pride ourselves that we have discharged our duty towards the men who fought.

Not as a reproach, but merely to illustrate that it is not always possible to practice in office what you preach out of office, it may be mentioned that the new Government at Ottawa has already passed 191 orders-in-Council.

Several thousand Canadian ex-soldiers in Great Britain are appealing for repatriation. They have forfeited their right to this assistance, but at the same time the Government may find their case one that deserves attention.

Cannibalism has commenced in Russia. All the horrors of the war are surpassed by the conditions that exist there now.

USEFUL TO BARGAIN WITH.

Manchester Guardian: No naval power now in existence has so full an experience as we have of submarine warfare, both as assailants and as objects of assault, and there is a remarkable preponderance now, among our naval authorities, of the opinion that the submarine is mastered. But we must, of course, remember that France is at present a country dissatisfied and apprehensive, and that in such a mood a country is specially apt to raise objections, not strictly for objecting's sake, but because the withdrawal of an objection is always a commodity with which to purchase a concession on some other point.

CROP REPORT

Following is a summary of reports made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Peel says: "Seed inquiries are coming in freely. There will be a keen demand for seed grain of all kinds. Some first-class barley and oats are being offered. Farmers are offering seed from very high strains of home-grown alfalfa. There is a considerable quantity of this seed in the Brampton district."

Bruce reports that a local farmer is offering one hundred bushels of good white blossom clover seed at $6 a bushel.

Lennox and Addington states that great interest is being taken by farmers in the Hubam or annual sweet clover. Some farmers have already purchased seed to try out on their farms.

Hay still shows a wide range in price even in adjoining counties. In Elgin it is being baled and shipped at $12 a ton. Pressed hay is quoted at $25 a ton in Lennox and Addington, and is being shipped in small quantities at $30 a ton in Peterborough, while in the next county, Hastings, it has been brought in at from $18 to $20 a ton.

Timiskaming says that baled clover hay is selling at around $18 to $20 a ton, and buyers are offering from $20 to $22 for horse hay.

Twelve carloads of live stock were recently shipped from Dundalk in Grey County, twenty-five fit export steers from Chatsworth and nineteen horses from Markdale. Prices, it is stated, were not too favorable.

South Simcoe says: "A large percentage of the feeder cattle brought in last fall were of the light butcher type, and are being wintered chiefly on roughage, with a view to finishing them on grass. Few are being shipped, owing to the lack of briskness on the market."

Elgin states that most of the live stock is wintering well, as there is apparently a sufficiency of feed. Large steers, however, are being held rather than to be marketed at present prices.

Peel is of the opinion that some farmers are overstocked with cattle, owing to the low market prices. On account of the Better Bull Campaign, however, there is considerable demand for young bulls of good type.

The milk supply has fallen off considerably with the recent cold weather.

Bruce states that bacon hogs recently shipped from that county have been usually overweight for their type.

Two carloads of hogs were shipped from Napanee during the week.

Prices of bacon hogs have ranged from $11 to $12 a cwt., during the week, chiefly around $11.50.

A few heavy horses are changing hands in Peel in anticipation of the farmers' spring activity.

Middlesex reports farmers offering $300 to $350 a year for married men; experienced single men $25 to $30 a month with board; inexperienced men $18 to $20 a month.

Peterborough says that from $400 to $450 a year is being offered suitable men.

Seasonal work is keeping many farmers busy. In the older sections of the Province many are cutting cordwood and harvesting ice. The ice is said to be of superior quality.

Timiskaming, however, says that very deep snow in the north is slowing up jobbers, and that bushmen are being hired at as low as $26 a month, with board.

Water is very scarce in Peterborough. The Repreaentative says that some farmers have to drive their stock miles to get water.

THE WINNIPEG MARKETS.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press.)— Receipts light, 130 cattle and calves and 85 hogs. Left overs from Monday brought the total offerings to around 500.

Trading on the cattle market showed no improvement over the close of Monday and bidding remained generally dull and weak on all classes. The few sales consisted of good butcher cows priced from $3.50 to $4.00; fair kinds of killing steers at $5.00 and a few good feeder steers up to $4.00.

Hogs unchanged; selects $10.-0.

No trading took place on the sheep and lamb market due to lack of receipts.

CANADA THIRD IN OCEAN TRADE.

Handled 14 Per Cent. of U. S. Foreign Trade.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—A report on the comparative performance of United States and foreign ships in the foreign trade of the United States, which has just been issued by the U. S. Department of Commerce, discloses that, of twelve principal trade regions, Atlantic Canada ranked third on the basis of foreign trade with the U. S. for the first ten months of 1921. During that period Atlantic ports in the Dominion handled 14 per cent. of the total U. S. imports and exports.

Nearly all (91 per cent.) of U. S. water-borne commerce with Atlantic Canada had its U. S. origin or destination on the Great Lakes, the report states. For the ten months covered by the report, U. S. ships carried 81 per cent. of the imports and 61 per cent. of the exports.

Trade between the Atlantic coast of the United States and the Atlantic coast of Canada during the ten months period amounted to 507,-191 long tons, or about 6 per cent. of the total volume of U. S. trade with Atlantic Canada.

Ocean trade between Pacific Canada and the United States is small in volume, the report declares. Practically all of this movement is between Canadian and United States Pacific coast ports. Seventy-five per cent. of it was carried in U. S. ships.

THE MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Feb. 1. — The domestic trade in cash grain was again slow yesterday under a limited demand. The flour market continues rather quiet with a steady undertone. A very firm feeling prevails in millfeed and the demand for rolled oats is steady. There is nothing new in the egg situation. The offerings of potatoes were somewhat limited. The butter market is without new developments. There is nothing new in the cheese market.

SARANAC LAKE EVENTS.

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y., Feb. 1. —(Canadian Press.)— Only one of the two sennor events on the card for the opening of the International Outdoor Skating Championships was finished yesterday and even the result of that—the 220-yards dash—was in dispute. After the contest the claim was made that Charles Jewstraw, of Lake Placid, who finished first, had a foot and a half ahead of the signal gun at the start. The dispute will be settled later by the judges and John Harding, the referee.

Liver Pains

Pains under the shoulder blades tell of liver derangements.

Other indications are sallow complexion, indigestion, constipation, biliousness and bilious headaches.

The quickest way to arouse the liver to healthful action is by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Continued use will insure lasting relief, correct the whole digestive system and purify the blood.

Mrs. Wm. Barten, Hanover, Ont., writes:

"For some time I suffered from liver trouble. There was a hard, bearing-down feeling in my back which I could not get rid of. Some one advised me to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and found them excellent. The dragging feeling in my back disappeared and I felt much benefitted generally. I have great confidence in Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and always keep them on hand for general use."

KING HARD UP.

SOFIA, January 31. — There are hard times for the young King Boris of Bulgaria, who has been obliged to sell some of the animals in his private zoo, and a lot of palms, vines, and flowers in the gardens of his palace at Varna.

"Bulgaria is poor and so am I," said the King to the correspondent. "Besides, I am too busy trying to re-establish my country in the good opinion of men and nations to give any time to my gardens and my menagerie.

"I am now using the palace gardens to plant potatoes instead of flowers. In these lean and dark days, it is largely a question of bread with us, not beauty."

WILL LOWER WAGES.

WASHINGTON, January 31 (by Canadian Press). — Cable reports received from Melbourne, Australia, state that a tendency towards a general lowering of wages throughout the Dominion is now noticeable. The wage decreases recently effected on the Melbourne tramways is said to have caused a great deal of dissatisfaction among labour unions, as the tramways are publicly-owned, and operated. Nevertheless, the tendency is toward a wage cut in nearly all industries. It is reported that the Commonwealth Court of Arbitration and Conciliation may reduce the basic wage to approximately fourteen shillings a day.

Unemployment has somewhat increased in recent weeks, notably in Sydney, where it is estimated there are 40,000 en out of work. The totaml unemployment of the Commonwealth, the despatch states, is about 75,000.

MONEY REMITTANCES TO AND FROM RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Jan. 31.— (Associated Press.)— Director Katzenelenbaum, of the new State Bank, who was a banker under the old regime, has announced that the bank has now entered into agreements with banks in New York, London, Warsaw, Rome, Riga and Reval for the transfer of remittances to and from Russia by both post and telegraph. He said the bank is averaging 100 money transfers daily.

Remittances of foreign money from abroad are paid in Russian money-at legal rates established by the government, which M. Katzenelenbaum said are fair, although below the speculative rate which can be obtained in the open market.

While the government endeavored lately to maintain a rate of 68,000 rubles to the dollars, the amount paid for actual dollars in the curb market was as high as 500,000 and seldom below 200,000.

MOVEMENT OF GRAIN THROUGH CITY SLACKENS

The heavy movement of grain over the Canadian National lines through Peterborough enroute from Midland to the seaboard has almost ceased, but not, in the opinion of J. A. McNab, local agent of the C.N.R., because the grain has all been moved. It is believed that Trans-Atlantic shipments have been slowed up. At any rate, only an occasional grain train is going through the city.

Till quite recently many trains a day were running from Midland to Portland, Maine, and the principal traffic on the line was grain cars. At one time they were averaging ten trains a day. Midland elevators are still reported full and there are many more boats in the harbour to be relieved of immense grain cargoes.

many other machines, including a complete exhibit of labor-saving devices around the barn and homes, operated by either gasoline or electric power. Altogether it will be a most interesting display for men and women, both from the country and the towns and cities, and judging from the interest manifested Peterborough citizens are delighted with the prospects of securing this project which will no doubt leave many thousands of dollars in the city and do much towards putting the county and city of Peterborough to the front.

tung, it was learned to-night, the Japanese and Chinese accepted in substance the proposal supported by President Harding, providing that the Tsingtac-Tainanfu Railway shall be purchased by China and paid for with treasury notes, and that two Japanese officials be included in the operating personnel during the period of payment. The notes are to be for 15 years with an option of full payment in five.

Difference of Opinion.

The agreement on Japanese participation in the road's management, a subject over which the bitterness difference of opinion had arisen, provides that there shall be a Japanese traffic manager and that one of the chief accountants shall be Japanese and the other Chinese. All of these officials, however, are under the authority of a Chinese managing director.

The sudden flare-up over the retention of submarines in the navies of the world came as an unexpected feature of yesterday's naval committee session, and led to a debate between the French and the British which approached in intensity of feeling the exchanges which took place when the question first came before the conference several weeks ago.

ror stricken. The straining and cries of those pinioned gave me the impression that the huge mass of debris was alive but could not move.

Under the wreckage I could see men, women girls and boys seeking to crawl along small openings between the seats. Shouted directions from friend to friend filled the air. Mingled with these came the shouts for help.

Medley Of Cries

"Christ save me," some woman screamed. It seemed that all were moaning and crying at once.

Probably the wind and cold and driven snow silenced the early comers. They expressed their anxiety in faint moans and followed the rescuers through a side door near the stage where footlights and border of prism colors still burned and cast their soft reflection on the silver screen. That was the only note of color during the first moments following the cave-in.

A closer survey revealed high up on the jagged mass the overturned projector house, a great bulk of plaster-stained metal, resembling a giant distorted head. The movie machines and thousands of feet of film were inside there, black and tangled. The operators too were in there in the wreckage nearby.

Sunday two babies were taken from the pile, uninjured save for slight frost bite of their tiny doubled fists.

A Jagged Horizon

Above, forming a jagged horizon, were four walls, ripped clean of their burden—the roof. All the painted decorations of the theatre the gilded mouldings and ornaments were hidden in the ghastly pile. Great chunks of the hardened lime formed an almost solid cover to the horror. The balcony, jutting far into the orchestra, had collapsed with the roof, so that most of those occupying the higher-priced downstairs seats lay in a sepulchre.

Mrs. F. W. Richardson had just taken her seat in the front row of the balcony when the roof fell in.

"I heard a sound that I thought was heavy wind sweeping over the she said. "The whole place trembled and then suddenly I found myself sweeping headlong with the balcony into the orchestra pit." Mrs. Richardson suffered a fractured leg and wrenched back.

"Those of us who were in the balcony got off comparatively easy," said F. C. Alexander, another who was seated upstairs.

"I was partially pinned in by a section of the roof and a little boy was thrown on top of me. Both of us, however, escaped without serious injury."

Victim Aids Rescuers

Equally fortunate were Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Canine, who occupied seats in the last row of the balcony when the crash came.

Although the physician suffered a broken left arm, he returned to the wreck and aided in the treatment of the injured as soon as his arm had been set. Mrs. Canine suffered a fractured rib and minor scratches. Both she and her husband retained their presence of mind sufficiently to burrow their way out of a mass of plaster with the aid of matches which the physician carried in his coat pocket and climbed down a fire escape to safety.

Under the balcony cave-in the orchestra seats formed a subterranean cave with row upon row of narrow passageways. Those with presence of mind to drop to the floor, at the first warning of the crash, were saved by crawling through this labyrinth to safety. among these was W. L. Peters, who with Wilfred Brousseau, a student in Georgetown University, had attended the theatre with two young women.

They Drop To Floor

"We yere seated well up toward the front of the theatre," Peters explained later. "Suddenly half the picture on the screen was cut off. I looked up and saw a mass—which proved to be the balcony within a few feet of our heads. I called to my companions to drop to the floor We all did, and the two girls and I were able to crawl out before the backs of the seats were crushed in.'

Brousseau, however, was struck down by a chunk of concrete and fatally injured.

In this section there were some marvelous escapes along with the tragedy toll. Mrs. Ida Clarke, organist in the theatre, had just finished playing her first number and had reached an exit a few seconds before the crash came. She was unhurt. As she went out, however, the orchestra filed into the places. Ernesto Natiello, the director was struck down as he took his place. At the hospital he cried in his half-delirium:

"Don't hurt my arm. Don't hurt my arm. I need it in my work. I need it to conduct with."

Arm Torn Off

But the arm had gone, torn off at the shoulder.

The first violinist, Walter Uhl struck down and fatally injured, moaned as he was lifted from the ruins. "Never mind me go back to the rest." He was taken across the street to a toy shop where he died a few moments later.

Through the night and the day following, the hill of devastation presented its hard, rugged surface to the tired and desperate men who tried to pierce it with picks, sledges hack saws, crowbars, and acetylene torches. Now and then there was a cry for water piercing the subdued murmurings throughout the ghastly places. Captains of marines of infantry and of the Navy joined with privates to rush buckets to the needed spot. Leaning over crevices made in the resisting surface were doctors, hypodermic syringes in hand, waiting to inject the soothing fluid nto the arm of a suffering victim.

Following the doctors came nurses, all fragile women who made their way over the rugged, deadly pile with bandages, hot water bottles and adhesives. One could see a hand, then a head, gray with dust, resembling the blue-gray head of a drowned man. Then the cry of the stretcher crew —

"Stretcher! Stretcher!"

The Rescuers

Gently as the jagged surface would permit, grimly firemen and soldiers would lift a helpless form to the litter, and slowly across the fatal pyramid a small band would make its way to the doorway, half-clogged with debris.

Once outside the lights of the theater lobby transformed the ghost-like group. Then the cry for the ambulance:

"Gangway! Gangway!"

A clang of bells, a roar of motors, and the crowds moved back to make way for the vehicle of mercy.

Through the horrible night and Sunday few women cried or grew hysterical, as one by one—with a slowness that was maddening—the prostrate forms of victims were carried to the morgue.

Outside I saw priests and pastors comforting the dying. They mingled together because all religious lines were obliterated in the horror of the hour. Many of the dying were attended by the priests and pastors in the Christian Science Church, which had been turned into a combination hospital and morgue.

Father John Floersch, priest from St. Paul's arrived soon after word of the disaster had spread throughout the city. Standing knee-deep in the nnow with a pile of wreckage where an altar might have been—he gave general absolution to all.

The cries of the dying drowned out the words of his prayers.

Other priests and pastors arrived. Their religious duties done, they joined the bands of rescue workers.

through the roof of her home.

At the same time Firemen Charles O'Neill and Fred Newmaier, of Hook and Ladder Company 120, appeared in the yard with a ladder and rescued Gross from his perilous position in the window.

The flames in the meantime had consumed the interior of the structure, and in less than ten minutes the building was in ruins. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

Ten Reported in Trap.

While Fireman Steihler, exhausted from his rescue work, was being conveyed back to his company's quarters, a fire believed to have been due to an explosion of gas drove tenants out of the four-story frame building at 13 Olive Place. Policeman Thomas Fitzgerald, after turning in an alarm, ran to the house and was informed hat Angelo Aragone, his wife and eight children, were trapped in their apartment on the third floor.

The policeman and several civilians entered the building and aided Peter Malone, his wife, seven children and three boarders to the street but when they essayed to reach the Aragone apartment were driven out of the building by the flames which were making strong headway up the stars.

Engine Company 23 appeared at this moment and the policeman told the firemen of the Aragone family. Fireman Harry Sweetman threw a rubber coat over his head and bounded up the stairway. When he reached the third floor landing he collapsed from gas and smoke. Several firemen who sought to follow him were driven back but Fireman Charles Rapp reached the third floor and found the unconscious Sweetman. He caried him up another filght and there found the scuttle open Firemen who had run through an adjoining building in the meantime discovered that the Aragone family had escaped through the scuttle.

Sweetman was passed to the firemen on the roof by Rapp and then to the sidewalk, where it was found his condition was serious. He was hurried in an ambulance to St. John's Hospital and was reported later he might die. The firemen subdued the fire this building before it did much damage.

WAS ELECTED PRESIDENT.

KNOX CHURCH GUILD HELD WEEKLY MEETING.

The weekly meeting of Knox Church Guild was held on Monday evening, with a good attendance of members present. The programme was in charge of the Missionary Committee, and Mrs. H. M. Hobson addressed the meeting on the subject of "Missions in the Southern States," telling about the work in the Appalachian Mountains district, where the "peor white" is in a very dep'orable condition, with regard to education and religion.

The Home Missionaries working down there have to contend with great difficulties, but with the help of willing workers and contributions of money, progress is being made. and the people are able to hear and enjoy more of the good things of life.

to say why they sent the letter referred to.

"Mr. Hill stated he heard the fire apparatus go past his house, so he concluded that there was a fire close by.

"He went to the window and saw it go past on Rubdige street, going north and then it came back shortly after and disappeared.

"Mr. Rollins came over, and told him he was being burned out, and that the firemen had gone somewhere else. He asked Mr. Hill to notify the neighbors by phone to give him help, to save his household effects.

"He then left Mr. Hill, and returned to the fire.

"Shortly after the firemen arrived the second time.

"Mr. Hill says he watched the whole proceedings from his house, and it appeared to be anything but satisfactory. The firemen seemed to be in confusion, and not apparently understanding their work.

"He said he would judge it was twenty minutes before any water was put on the fire.

"Some of the firemen were smoking and walking around indifferent. He would consider that a very poor demonstration of ability to handle a fire was shown.

"Mr. Weddell quoted other places where fire had occurred in the city, that was somewhat similar in mismanagement. He claimed that firemen, especially drivers should be trained to know where numbers are; so as to be able to locate them, day or night.

"He thought there was just reason for complaint.

"On appointment, Ald. McIntyre, and myself met the Rev. Mr. Rollins at the manse-to obtain his version of the incident.

"He states that when he became aware the house was on fire, he at once called up "central" phone office telling them to notify, Fire Department of a fire at No. 439 Rubidge street. But just as he hung up the receiver, his telephone rang, and it was "central" telling him they had given him connection with the Fire Hall. He then called them; giving number, and immediately the fire bell began to strike, and presently along came the firemen and apparatus; but who went past him while he was on the verandah taking out furniture etc., with the front door open. He thought the firemen were going around by Kirk street, so he got doors open at the back to receive them. But they did not appear, so he came to the conclusion that they had made some mistake.

"Mr. Rollins then went across the road to Mr. Hill's residence and told him he wanted help from the neighbors to save his furniture, that his place was on fire. That the firemen had gone past to some place else.

"Then Mr. Hill informed him that the firemen had come back down south again.

"Why he did not locate the fire the first time he does not understand, for they drove just past to where Mr. Dobie lives, and stopped at his residence, and said to him, "you have a fire here." He said, "no, not here, I live here, and their is no fire here." "Well this is No. 439 Rubidge street. "Oh, no, this is not! This is Kirk street and No. 439 Rubidge street must be up the street, somewhere else. So they went back. Mr. Rollins says that in the afternoon some of them came back to see if any fire was still smouldering. Then he asked one of the men if he had said the manse. He did not think so.

"I was the man who answered the phone. I got the number, No. 439 Rubidge street. Mr. Rollins thought he gave the number, and said the manse also. But as the fireman said no, that he did not say the manse. He would not be positive of it.

"He is surprised that there was no search made for the number as far as he could judge, as the other numbers were plain across the street. The chief was there just about as soon as the men were there the second time, but could not say if he was with them; when they drove past the first time.

"He thinks the damage would have been slight if they had been fortunate enough to locate it the first time."

P. S.: "It was after dinner when some of the firemen came back to see that no fire was smouldering. That Mr. Rollins asked if they had got his number correctly the first time from the "central" office.

"Now, gentlemen in committee, we have to deal with this matter on the strength of what information we get; from reliable sources and you no doubt will do your duty as you see it.

"The day was very stormy, and cold, and bad for a fire to take place.

"But why those men did not know or even look around for the number, or the fire, but drive past it, someone ought to explain, and give a good reason that will be acceptable to the public."

The Discussion.

"Did you have any interview with the Chief to get his ideas?" asked Ald. Jones when Ald. Crowe finished reading the letter and his report.

"No."

Ald. Hamilton—"I spoke to Mr. Hill about it and he told me even a little more, although he goes into detail there. He said it was very poorly handled and the firemen absolutely acted like a mob." Ald. Hamilton said he felt that was the way the department had been running lately.

Ald. E. M. Turner moved that the Chief be heard and Ald. Jones seconded the motion, maintaining he should be given a chance to explain the fire and reply to the charges of negligence. He said it wasn't fair not to hear his story before they went any further with the meeting.

"I don't see how they got the fire out at all. That was a bad fire. I think it must have been well handled. The only question is, as I see it is, why there was a delay in getting there."

Mistake in Number.

Chief Grange told the story of the fire. Capt. A. McDonald was the watchman on duty at the Fire Hall that morning in charge of a platoon and he experienced difficulty in getting the number of the house over the telephone. A woman's voice was speaking over the 'phone. Just as they were going out to investigate in the Chief's car a man spoke over the 'phone and said there was a fire at either 439 or 339 Rubidge street. Capt. McDonald evidently failed to get the number definitely. Chief Grange wanted to call him to state his own story, but the committee did not feel that that was necessary.

Continuing his story, with frequent interruptions, the Fire Chief said that the platoon went to the first locality, that is 439 Rubidge street They saw no stir around the manse, but saw Robert Dobie at his garage. They spoke to him, asking him "if that was 439." He said "no" and did not think there was a house in the vicinity of that number. The department immediately turned and went south to 339. They discovered no fire there. From there they 'phoned the hall and were informed that the fire was at the Manse, and returned immediately to the location.

In regard to what Rev. James Rollins is alleged to have said that the damage would have been slight had they found the fire immediately, the Fire Chief said the time had no great bearing on the fire. It started under the floor and there was three ply of flooring to rip up to get at it. It lodged itself in the partitions too.

Ald. Turner closely questioned Chief Grange on one point, and learned that before going to 339 the firemen never found 439, so they were not sure whether there was a fire there or not. He considered this very negligent. In explanation of why 439 was not found the Chief said it was a windy, snowy day and the numbers on the Manse being near the base of the post, not very large and obscured by bushes, it was hard to pick out the numbers. Besides, the house was 60 feet from the street.

Not on Verandah.

From what he had learned, the Chief affirmed that Mr. Rollins was not on the verandah when the firemen went past the first time. If he was why didn't he give the alarm? the Chief wanted to know. "There was no sign of him around there at all. There was no furniture carried out on the verandah till after I landed on the job."

"I was at home when the fire broke out. I had just come from another fire. We had been at two fires in Ashburnham that morning," the Chief said. He explained the dangerous variety of fire Rev. Rollins had on in the furnace that morning and condemned coke for fuel. After putting in four shovelfuls of coke in the furnace earlier in the morning and opening up the drafts, he went into the library to prepare his notes. After about thirty minutes the house became unpleasantly warm and he pulled up the slide. He then went nto the library to have a quiet smoke, but after some 20 minutes found more smoke in the room than he was making. The discovery of the fire followed. Even then, the Chief claimed, he didn't give the alarm, but tried to put out the fire with a pail of water.

Only a Few Minutes.

That Mr. Hill's alleged statement that there were some 20 minutes lost in getting water on the fire was unjustified, the Chief declared. It was only a few minutes. "I got the alarm just as quick as the department. I was at home, but jumped right into the car, going first to 339. We found the men there and were told the fire was at the Manse. We lost no time in getting there and laid the hose as we went up Rubidge street."

No Confusion.

"There was no confusion whatever. At first we took the Line in the front door, but I ordered it taken around to the back to get at the heart of the fire. I saw the men weren't going around the trees with the hose so directed them how to do it." Ald. Gainey couldn't understand at this point why the men would need to be told not to get the hose tangled up in the trees. "Anybody should know enough for that," he said. The Chief said the men knew, but as he was in charge he could better direct things. Ald. Jones upheld the Chief's po nt.

To estimate exactly how long it was before water was on, Ald. Turner and the Chief worked out the time taken by the Chief as follows: One minute for the car to go from the hall to his house, one minute lost at house, one minute to go to 339 Rubidge street, one minute lost at 339 Rubidge street, one minute more to go to the Manse, one minute to get the water—total six minutes. The Chief testified to the correctness of this schedule. "There's quite a difference between six minutes and 25 minutes," Ald. E. M. Turner declared.

"Mr. Hill maes mention that some of the men were smoking. Such a thing never takes place in the Department, I never knew it to take place," Chief Grange told the committee.

Th question of negligence began to centre about the delay in getting to the fire over the confusion in numbers. Ald. McIntyre was informed by the Chief the orders to the department were that if there was any doubt over numbers the men were to try them both.

"Why did he not look for that number," Ald. McIntyre asked.

"I think he had the other number in his mind and concluded they must have made a mistake in going to 439."

"That's a bad mistake as I see it," said Ald. McIntyre.

A Hard Place.

"We had a hard place to fight and hard work there. I've had six men laid up with pleurisy as a result. We had gas smoke and sulphur fumes off the coke to fight." Bert Trotter answered the second alarm from the Manse and got it right, the Chief stated, and the second platoon responded. That this alarm was only a minute or so at the most after the first alarm, the Chief said, was shown by the fact that the second platoon arrived just after the first.

Chief Grange agreed with Ald. Turner that the men shouldn't leave the hall till they are sure of the number. I'd rather see them lose a minute in the hall than a minute outside," he staed.

"As I see it, Chief, there was no mistake. You had the number, why didn't you get it"—Ald. McIntyre.

No Complaint.

To enable the committee to discuss the fire frankly, Chief Grange was asked to leave the committee room and the meeting resolved itself into an impersonal jury. Ald. Turner thought the fire itself had been well handled. He said he had warned Rev. Rollins not to burn coke. They had to do the damage to save the house, Ald. Turner declared.

Ald. Crowe stated that Mr. Rollins had no complaint to make regarding the actual fire fighting.

Ald. Hamilton said this particular fire was not alone to be considered—it was the general work of the fire department. "There's one thing sure, the business men of this city have no confidence in the Fire Chief," he said. 'I'm not referring to this fire particularly, I'm speaking generally."

Ald. Jones defended the Fire Chief. "He has kept down any serious fires. He does all he can to prevent fire. The whole trouble is there are a lot of people sore because the firemen aren't working all the time."

Ald. Gainey considered the mistake in not getting the number properly a serious one.

Send Chief Away.

'I want to see the department so the people will have confidence in in," Ald. Crowe stated.

"If it is the intention of the city to keep Frie Chief Grange on I think they ought to send him away and give him a schooling in fire fighting," Ald. Gainey said.

Ald. Hamilton was quite convinced the department is not efficient, carrying on as they do without drills and without a competent Chief. Ald. McIntyre felt it would be better to discuss the matter in the Committee of the Whole Council. Ald. Turner felt the discontent regarding the firemen went back to older fires. He pointed out while there had been no large fires recently that did not say there wouldn't be any, and large fires are not desired.

Ald. Hamitlon—"Mr. Hill says he often pays out many more times the amount the Chief reports in fire loss and he's only one company."

Ald. Crowe— "Mr. Weddell told me he'd followed up several of the Chief's figurs and found them misleading."

Ald. Hamitlon—"He says those men couldn't stand that fire. They should be in condition so they can stand anything. Some of them were sick. What would happen if they were out all night on a bad night."

"The Chief admits himself there was negligence in regard to the number," said Ald. Turner. The latter suggested putting the Chief on probation for a few months. but Ald. Hamitlon stated they did not have power to go as far as that. He favoured finding negligence in regard to the locating of the fire and have the committee of the Whole Council meet to further discuss the situation. He affirmed to the last that steps should be taken to bring it up to a higher standard, and Ald. Jones resented reflection on the Chief.

On motion of Ald. Gainey and Ald. Hamilton the committee passed the matter on to the committee of the Whole Council, finding negligence on the part of the department in not promptly locating the place of the fire.

Chief Grange was recalled to explain how he arrived at his estimates of damage on buildings alleged to be complained about by insurance men, and to the surprise of the committee he said he got his figures from the underwriters. "I hoven't made up my report on the Manse; I'm waiting till I hear from the companies," he explained.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

MILLBROOK, Feb 1.—The play, in three acts, "Out of Town," which was given in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' church, was a decidedly successful event, the Hall being well filled for the occasion and all the characters exceptionally well taken.

Mrs. (Canon) Allen and Mrs. L. C. Winslow played piano solos before the curtain rose and also between acts, their work always being an enjoyable feature of any programme, and Mrs. Fred Waterman, of Bailieboro, delighted the audience with her solo numbers between scenes and at the conclusion of the play.

Those taking part in the play were: The Misses Florence and Lillian Clarke, who as "Elizabeth Thorndyke" and "Esther Munroe" presented their parts exceedingly wll, as did also the Misses Thelma Spencer and Mary Pitt, who played the two mothers, "Mrs. Jane Harrington Thorndyke" and "Mrs. J. Ludington Munroe," having their daughter's future settlement in life very much at heart. Messrs. J. H. Yake, as "Mr. John Spencer Ellington" and Fred Wells as "Mr. Robert Mayhew Thorndyke," filled their roles in an admirable manner, while Miss Gertrude Gray, as "Marie," Miss Thorndyke's maid, and Mr. Albert Dunn, who took the part of "James," the butler at Thorndyke's, greatly pleased the audience by their portrayal of these two characters.

After the concluding act Mrs. (Canon) Allen was presented with a beautiful bouquet of roses in recognition of her untiring assistance at the rehearsals, and in many other ways in connection with the evening's entertainment.

Amongst those present were: Rev. Canon and Mrs. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. John Allen, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Doak, Mr. and Mrs .A. A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Bradley, Mr. Arthur and Miss A. PERSONAL MENTION.

Miss Helen Needler, who recently returned from Winnipeg, left for Toronto on Monday intending to resume her duties as a professional nurse at the Sick Children's Hospital in that city.

Miss Mamie Collins left on Monday morning for Fergus, where she will visit her cousin, Miss Helen Armstrong, afterwards going to Kitchener, where she will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Collins.

Miss Cathcart of Peterborough, who has recently returned from a visit to the west, is the guest of the Misses Grandy this week.

Miss Gertrude Richards, accompanied by her little niece, spent the week end with friends in Peterborough.

Miss Emma Krieger returned last week from visiting friends in Campbellford. Her sister, Mrs. William Pendrie, who has been ill for the past week, is now able to be up again but has not yet been downstairs.

Two rinks of local curlers went to Peterborough on Tuesday to compete in the bonspiel, the skips being Messrs. J. Steele and R. H. Edmunds.

Rev. A. M. McConnachie, of Centreville, is to give an illustrated lecture on his recent trip to Scotland in the S. S. Hall of St. Thomas' church on Thursday, February 2nd, at 8 p.m.

The many friends of Miss Lillian Pendrie will regret to learn that she is very seriously ill. Dr. G. N. Greer, of Peterborough, was out on Friday in consultation with Dr. Turner regarding her case.

Church News.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist church held a special meeting at the home of Mrs. R. H. Edmunds on Monday evening, with quite a large number in attendance, the object being to cut out and sew, aprons of various materials and patterns, in preparation for an "apron sale" to be held some time in the early spring.

Rev. Joseph Wilks assisted Rev. Mr. Tucker with the quarterly sacramental service at the Methodist church on Sunday morning, when a large number of communicants remained and partook of the Lord's Supper. Two sisters, Misses Olive and Alma Perrin, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Perrin, of the 8th Line, Cavan, were received into church membership and five others. Mr. and Mrs. C. Crossley, Mr. and Mrs. William Ridge, and Mrs. Hugh Kennedy, who have moved in recently from outside points, were welcomed into the church, being transferred here by letters from their previous pastors.

The subject of Mr. Tucker's sermon was, "The Two Cups," presenting two angles of viewing Calvary, and the text was taken from Matthew, 26:21, "He took the cup and gave thanks, and gave it to them."

The Quarterly Official Board met on Monday at 8 p.m. and the men received a distinct shock of surprise when three of the ladies whose offices in the church entitle them to a seat on the Board, Mrs. (Rev.) Tucker, Miss M. Needham and Miss P. Burnham, attended the meeting for the first time in the history of the church. One important question to be voted on, by ballot, at the February Board meeting, by order of the General Conference, was whether women should be received on an equal footing with men as probationers for the ministry of the Methodist church, the vote to be simply "yea" or "nay." Eleven members voted—ten "nays" and one "yea."

STAY UNDER COVERS START DAY RIGHT!

London Physicians are Against Jumping Out of Bed

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Here's comfort for us folks who have known all along that it was ruinous to one's health to bounce out of bed in the morning.

London physicians who are ever ready to express an opinion on any and all subjects now offer advice on "getting out of bed."

The burden of it is this:

"To jump out of the covers immediately upon awakening is to throw the entire system out of gear for a whole day. During sleep the vital organs have been at rest. The vitality is low and the circulation weak. Suddenly to jump out of bed the moment one awakens is to shock the entire system, especially the heart. The blood starts pumping too suddenly.

"Instead, lie awake at least five minutes before attempting to get up. A little leisurely reading is a good thing. At least one should take time to stretch every limb before arising."

PAINS IN BACK AND SIDES

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lindsay, Ontario.—"I used to have very bad pains in my back and sides and often was not fit to do my work. I tried many medicines before I began to take yours. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the 'Toronto Globe' and now that it has helped me I recommend it to all of my neighbors. I keep it in the house all the time and take it once in a while no matter how well I feel, for one ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."—ELIZABETH CAMPBELL, 13 St. Paul St., Lindsay, Ont.

To do any kind of work—and you know there is much to be done—is next to impossible if you are suffering from some form of female trouble. It may cause your back to ache or a pain in your side; it may make you nervous and irritable. You may be able to keep up and around, but you do not feel good.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for women. It is especially adapted to relieve the cause of these troubles, and restore them to normal health.

ROOF FELL IN.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1. — Canadian Press. — The roof of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad freight depot at First street and Florida ave., North-East, crashed in late yesterday. Eight men had just checked out for the day and it is believed that no one was injured. Firemen and policemen immediately began a thorough search of the wreckage.

The snow had been practically all removed from the slate roof, it was said, but it was possible that the supporting brick tiers and oak beams had been weakened by the accumulation of snow from the recent storm. But little freight was there at the time and the damage, it was believed, would not be excessive.

USE 500 MONKEYS IN INFLUENZA TESTS

Doctors Admit, However, They Learned Nothing New.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Five hundred monkeys have been used by health officials in New York and Washington in the last two years in experiments looking to the development of vaccines against influenza and pneumonia.

Dr. William H. Park, of the New York Health Department, said the experiments had been suggested during a meeting of medical authorities of the country in 1919.

"We haven't learned anything about influenza," he said, "except that the invisible, unidentified organism which causes it can pass through a stone wall.

"The experiments on the monkeys have shown conclusively that if one is vaccinated, he can not contract pneumonia, when inoculated with the germ, but that in the absence of vaccination, innoculation proves fatal in a majority of cases. Experiments would bring the same results."

He said the physicians and scientists engaegd in the experiments had not developed a vaccine any different from that used in 1918.

WE WERE NOT BORN YESTERDAY

We lamped this in the Kansas City Star:

"Austin Torrance of the Lebo Star reports that the other evening he found an egg in the henhouse, placed it in his coat pocket and went to a lodge meeting. He did everything at the meeting except ride the goat and next morning at the office found the egg in his pocket. 'There wasn't even a crack in the shell,' says Mr. Torrance proudly."

But why does not Austin just come right out and tell us the egg he got was the old china nestegg and be done with it. We know eggs—and we know a liar when we hear one, too.

HAULING GRAVEL FOR THE SEWAGE PLANT.

City Provides Work and Saves Money By Winter Operations.

The city has commenced drawing gravel from the Chamberlain estate pit in North Monaghan to the site of the sewage disposal plant in Otonabee, the first teaming starting on Saturday. Yesterday morning nine or ten teams were on the job, and according to the City Engineer, the work is running nicely, although the warm spell of weather is not looked kindly upon. The teams cross the river at the foot of Park street, and the ice in the river, not being particularly thick, a thaw is not in any way desired.

City Engineer Parsons estimates 2,000 yards as the requirement for the plant, and to get the gravel on the site ready for spring work the city must make haste while the ice lasts. The present haul is two and one-half miles, and if the load had to be taken around the Locks' bridge it would mean hauling nearly twice as far. The gravel is costing the city 15 cents a yard.

The Slipper Satin Hats

For Early Spring Wear

Fresh from the sources of fashion came these first hats of Spring, and Oh! how glad we all are to be able to put aside that dark and heavy winter hat and don one of these bright, cheery hats of slippery satin or of straw and satin combined. They lend and add new life to the wearer, giving that touch of color so much looked for in Spring. The shapes this season could not look anything but the nicest on any head because they have a peculiar becomingness, and no matter which one you pick up, it seems to have been specially made for you.

Such colors as copper, navy, lobster, brown, henna, sand, cardinal, Copen and black are found in abundance, while combinations of these colors are found too. Trimmings? There are very little trimmings of any kind, but metallic cloth, gold stitching, gold braid, fringe beads, and steel ornaments are found but not used in profusion in any case. Maybe a small steel ornament or a row of beads across front or maybe a small piece of fringe hanging over or on one side is all that will be found on any one hat. Streamers are used in some cases. These new spring hats are priced at $6.50, $7.50, $9.50, $10.50 and $11.75.

PETERBORO RINKS WIN WADDELL CUP PRIMARY

AGGREGATE SCORE IN TWELVE GAMES WAS 124 TO 123 IN FAVOR OF LOCAL RINKS—FIRST DAY'S FLYO BONSPIEL CLOSED AT 4 A. M. THIS MORNING.

NOTES AND SCORES

By the narrowest possible margin of one shot the Peterboro rinks in the bonspiel this morning won the right to play off for the Waddell trophy when their twelve picked rinks defeated twelve of the visiting rinks chosen by their own committee by the score of 124 to 123. This test or eliminating engagement was confined to twelve rinks because of the fact that twelve ices were available in the Charlotte and Brock street rinks, and by the conditions of the donor, R. M. Waddell, his splendid cup is to be played for at the annual bonspiel either between the local or visiting competing rinks, depending upon the result of the preliminary deciding clash.

When the official score from eleven of the games was tabulated at noon, Peterboro, was up ten with the score of 117 to 107, but some of those returning from Brock street reported that Dr. Harvie of Orillia was putting it all over George Benor. In fact some of the visitors said that the Orillia skip was leading by 17 with one end to go. They were keenly waiting for the final score. Mr. Benor appeared himself shortly after and admitting that he had been "trimmed by the best skip in the bonspiel" announced that he was down only nine. Dr. Harvie turned in his card officially bearing out that score, and those visitors, who had watched the noon trains depart in the belief that another competition was going to be opened to them were deeply disappointed.

The scores were as follows:

Peterboro		Visitors
G. B. Stevenson	8	J. C. Strickland 12
H. R. Martin	8	E. Weatherup 10
J. W. McDermid,	15	G. B. Moore 11
W. G. Morrow	16	Dr. Henry 6
S. T. Medd	9	W. G. Mather 11
A. W. Archibald	11	G. Wildman 7
Ira D. Moore	14	R. H Edmunds 6
R. G. Sturgeon	8	E. W. Gaudrie 12
R. M. Hamilton	7	H. McCallum 13
J. Fitzgerald	12	A. W. Middleton 9
Geo. Benor	7	Dr. Harvie 16

Totals— for Peterboro 124; for visitors 123

Bonspiel Shortened.

Had the visiting rinks won the Waddell cup primary this morning the Bonspiel would have been more prolonged for them. A separate draw would have been necessitated, and all the outside rinks would have had their own exclusive 'spiel while the Peterborough rinks crowded the galleries. Now, however, the Bonspiel Committee can set the Waddell Trophy over and proceed with the finals of the Morrow and Matthews-Blackwell cup competition, and in the meantime open up this after the Peterborough cup consolation series.

J. H. Renwick, who has been directing the draw, has kept it moving expeditiously and to the satisfaction of the curlers. Lakefield Club wants his services for the Bonspiel next week, especially for the arranging of their draw on the Bagnall-Wylde system.

Played Until 4 a.m.

The first day's bonspiel play ended this morning shortly before four o'clock with the defeat of J. E. A. Fitzgerald by W. J. (Billy) Oke of Port Hope by the score of 9 to 7. With the whole rink to themselves and the gallery empty, for the last lingering spectator had departed at 2.30, these two skips put up one of the closest and best games of the long twenty hours of the opening day. They battled for every point, but the Port Hope skip, who by the way is a brother of W. J. (Walter) Oke of Peterborough, edged in front early in the going, and maintained the advantage although Fitzgerald had a chance right up to the last stone.

Other Late Games.

Another grim game was fought to a finish at 2 a.m. between Jack Moore of Keene and Tom Finlay of Norwood. This was also a Matthews-Blackwell fixture. The Finlay family won by 16 to 10, but it was anybody's until the last end.

Charlie Tanner of Lakefield was another of the vigil series. He won from Weatherup of Lindsay by 13 to 12 in a rattling good game. Magistrate Langley vied for him.

Harry Fitzgerald found it a strenuous day, and was getting a full taste of the fun and also the labour of bonspiel marathons.

Tom Brightman's Win.

The other two a.m. contest revealed Tom Brightman and Miles Hamilton fighting it out on No. 2 ice. On the last end Hamilton was up two, but Brightman drew three stones into position and Hamilton's last one stopped just outside the rings. Brightman counted four on the end, pulling the game out when his chance of winning was anything but rosy. Those Brightman boys, Tom and John, gave Hamilton and Jim Skinner a real battle.

These two rinks were Gordon Matthews, A. Webb, John Brightman, and Tom Brightman, skip; and Lorne Northey, R. B. Hamilton, J. Skinner, and R. M. Hamilton, skip.

And after all the early morning toil these skips were due back at 9 a.m. for the pitched engagement between the twelve rinks each from the visitors and local rinks in the bonspiel.

Lakefield's Bonspiel.

Lakefield's first open bonspiel begins next Tuesday morning, February 7th, and according to Warden J. C. Strickland, some forty rinks are expected to compete. The club is offering three fine silver trophies and valuable prizes. The cups are known by the names of their donors, A. E. Dawson, A. G. Lawless and W. J. Charlton. The Lakefield club promise visiting rinks a good time and are looking forward to a strong contingent from the Peterborough club.

This is the Lakefield club's housewarming at their new rink, and the motto to those rinks intending to enter is, "The more the merrier."

Two Sixes.

W. E. Carnahan of Campbellford and R. Besse of Claremont achieved the distinction of slipping six ends into their scores. The Campbellford skip slipped a six over R. H. Edmunds of Millbrook, but lost his game by 18 to 11. Besse's big end counted in his victory of 20 to 12 over Dr. Henry of Oshawa. George Benor joined the select circle with a six end on Ed. Galvin of Lakefield.

L. O. Clifford an M.P. Now.

Politics are never mentioned in curling circles, but for all that some of the ardent Grits didn't forget to congratulate L. O. Clifford of Oshawa upon his election as a member of Parliament. And they say the rest of his rink are Conservatives, a fact that doesn't interfere with their curling, and their standing among the fraternity for the Clifford rink is one of the most popular and most regular of the visitors to Peterborough's bonspiel.

Some of the Big Ends.

Alex. Kay's rink with Walter Oke skipping tacked two five ends on Miles Hamilton's rink in the Morrow competition, and also put a fiver over Harry McCallum of Fenelon Falls in the Matthews-Blackwell.

Tom Finlay's rink, including his two sons, as lead and second, give a good account of themselves. In the Matthews-Blackwell they defeated Alex. Archibald's good rink, but went down in the Morrow games before Dr. Harvie of Orillia by the score of 18 to 7. The doctor hung a fiver on them, and also a four and three end.

W. Oke of Port Hope had a five and also a four end against G. Davison of Unionville.

Dr. Harvie struck five threes in his score of 20 to 5 against George Stevenson, who scored on two ends with a three and a two.

John Steele of Millbrook displayed his best wares when he defeated Jack Fitzgerald by 9 to 8, winning out on the final end in one of the tightest games of Tuesday afternoon.

Jack Moore had to his credit a five end against Herb Martin.

Besse and Wetherup were tied on the ninth in their Morrow Cup game, but Wetherup finished with a one, two and three end for a total score of 12 to 6.

Bessie of Claremont had a five against George Benor, Alex. Archibald put a five end over Jack Strickland and Jack Bacon decorated McCallum with a similar counter.

Two on his last end gave C. S. Tanner of Lakefield his victory over Mather of Stouffville by 10 to 9.

McDermid's win from Moore of Bobcaygeon included a five and a four-end.

Carnahan of Campbellford came through with a garrison finish that counted Warden Strickland of Lakefield out of the Matthews-Blackwell. On the seventh end Strickland was leading by 7 to 4, but Carnahan took the last five ends with a four, a three, a two and also two ones, a total of eleven shots in five ends, giving him the game by 15 to 7.

Northey of Fenelon Falls just nosed out Armstrong of Keene. They were thirteen all coming home. Northey won by 14 to 13.

When Herb Martin lost both his first games in the big competitions, Bob Hicks organized a Sympathy committee, but the duties became too onerous as the evening approached, and he finally disbanded the sob squad.

L. O. Clifford, Dr. J. N. Harvie and H. H. McCallum was the committee appointed to select the twelve visiting rinks for the test game with the twelve local rinks in the Waddell trophy preliminary.

Jack Bacon's five-end overcame the lead Harry McCallum of Fenelon Falls had opened up on him. He followed with a two and a one, and defeated McCallum by 11 to8.

Two of the oldest skips in the bonspiel met when R. C. Strickland of Lakefield and J. Steele of Millbrook were drawn in the Morrow Cup Competition. The Millbrook veteran won by 11 to 5.

Davison of Unionville, checked up two end in a row in the second and third ends against Jack Fitzgerald. That was his last trip to the board, Fitzgerald winning by 14 to 4.

Wetherup of Lindsay scored in 9 of the 12 ends against Albert Bottum of Bobcaygeon and won by 14 to 3.

Herb Martin turned in the first loss in the Matthews-Blackwell competition, Jack Moore of Keene having pushed him into the discard. "That's the best bunch of sports we ever played against "said one of the Keene players. "Some consolation that' remarked Martin when the Sympathy committee reported the tribute to him.

Morrow in Both.

W. G. Morrow, Dr. Harvie of Orillia, and John Steele of Millbrook are three of the rinks that were still in both the Morrow and Matthews - Blackwell competitions this afternoon. The final will be switched to Charlotte Street.

GIRLS! USE LEMONS TO WHITEN HANDS

Press the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter-pint of harmless and delightful lemon-bleach lotion to soften and whiten red, rough or chapped hands. This home-made lemon lotion is far superior to glycerine and rose water to smoothen the skin. Famous stage beauties use it to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, because it doesn't irritate.

MAGISTRATE FINDS FISH MERCHANDISE

Local Fish Pedler is Advised to Get a License Before He Continues to Sell Fish.

Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning found Hiram Horton, a fish peddler, guilty of selling fish without a license. Accused was pointedly advised to get a license without delay and to fully consider the case judgment was withheld for a week. The said licenses cost $50. J. Nasimok, a contemporary in trade, testified that he had always been required to have a license but Horton had been selling fish flagrantly without one. He told of seeing accused making sales of fish at houses.

J. F. Strickland, appearing for Horton claimed that fish was not merchandise. J. Nasimok held that it was and the Magistrate decided that fish was merchandise and fish dealers had to be licensed like any other tradesmen.

Commenting on the case Chief S. Newhall declared that the police were going to enforce the by-laws regarding licenses more stringently and the attention of the force will be particularly directed to express and taxi offenders.

OUR HIGH PRIEST WITHIN THE VAIL.

Subject of Sermon By Rev. G. E. Ross.

(Contributed.)

The congregations were larger than usual on Sabbath, especially in the morning. The choir was out in full force and the music was good. The duet at night by the Misses Stenton was well received. "Our High Priest Within the Vail," was the subject of the morning sermon, and was founded on Heb. IV., 15, "For we have not a high priest which cannot be touched with the feelings of our infirmities, but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin." An outline of the sermon follows:

"Nurse," said a dying woman, "will you put up the shade, pull aside the curtain and let me gaze upon yonder glorious figure of the Christ until I'm dead." This dying woman wanted a clear view of the marble statue which represented Jesus, and stood in front of the great cathedral, in sight of her dying bed. Our High Priest has placed Himself upon the altar, spilt his own blood, shattered the manicles of death, overcome the power of the grave and has passed within the vail. But the vail itself is rent asunder, and suffering sinful men have abundance of access to the exalted Christ, who is the only mediator between God and men.

Christ Our Mediator.

Jesus is our mediator. He stands between us and God. How beautiful it is, Christ between you and God, the Holy Spirit between Christ and you; revealing the things of Jesus to your heart. You see, God is our Father and Christ is our High Priest; He reveals the will of God to us through the Holy Ghost. Christ is the revelation of God, the head of the church, the word made flesh and the revelation of man's moral worth. He is the way, the truth, the light and the life. He died for you, lives for you, speaks on your behalf, makes intercession for us, put His pierced hand on the hilt of the sword of justice and pleads the cause of the condemned sinner. The sword passed through His heart that you might escape. Surely we need no other advocate or mediator.

Touched by Our Infirmities.

Jesus was very human. He could hunger and thirst, tire and sorrow, weep and suffer loneliness, yearn for sympathy and appreciation. He could feel pain and pity, poverty and privation, trial and temptation. He owned no land, nor house, nor stocks, nor bonds. He had to perform a miracle to raise his taxes. Wealth and luxury and opulence were strangers to Him. He never lived in a palace, and His seamless robe was a gift from Mary and Martha. He was ever giving, giving, giving; and took nothing in return. Such was our High Priest. He shared the sorrows and sufferings, toils and and cares, victories and defeats of His disciples. To wound them was to wound Him. While Jesus had no infirmity of His own, He is touched with the feelings of yours. Not a blow falls on you that He does not feel. How the hot blood mounts to the cheek of the bridegroom when the feelings of the bride are wounded; Jesus is the bridegroom and He feels the wounds of His church.

Was It Possible For Jesus To Fall?

Jesus was tempted, but He could not fall. The prince of this world came and found nothing in Him. Nothing in the pure soul of Jesus that could respond to a temptation of the devil. His own matchless purity made Him invulnerable. Then His temptation could not be so keen as ours, you say. Let us see. Did you even stop to consider how vast the difference is between a sensitive person and one who is course and unrefined and brutal? Well, it is just like this. The strings of an Aeolian harp are set in motion by the faintest heathings of the morning zephyr, so it is with a finely strung nature. A curl of the lip, a wink of the eye, an uncertain whisper, or a doubtful inclination of the head, will wound, perhaps, a sensitive soul; while the rough, unfeeling, unsympathetic is blind to the fact that he has wounded you at all. Now, while Jesus could not fall as Peter fell, the least suggestion of evil was like a flaming arrow passing through the heart of the Son of God. You do not wound a vile person by suggesting impurity, or dishonesty, or graft, or malice, or treachery; he knows that these things belong to his character. So temptation was a thousand times more bitter to Jesus than it could possibly be to you. I knew a boy of seven years of age who was so pure and sensitive that he would sit down and weep if you seemed to doubt his word. Jesus was so sensitive that, feeling all that men can possibly feel, He pitied the weak and erring and wept with the weeping.

Jesus Absolutely Sinless.

Our great High Priest knew no sin. He is the mighty among the holy. He is the holy among the mighty. He was the only sinless being this planet ever knew. Jesus is the source and the origin of truth, He touches the conscience, the intelligence, the ethics, the jurisprudence, the literature, the art and the life of the age; and He touches all with a hand pure as the lily of God's paradise. "What the sun is to that flower," said Tennyson, 'Christ is to my soul." "The greatest discovery of my life," said Lord Kelvin, "is Christ as Savious." "I have seen "is Christ as Saviour.'" "I have seen too many conversions," said Henry Drummond, "ever to doubt their reality." Gladstone adds his testimony. So does Scott, Farady, Browning, Beaty, Robertson and a host of intellectual giants. He generates in the human heart and mind, and in the very soul of the social order these moods and conceptions, that are shaping our civilization.

Jesus Alone Can Forgive Sin.

How beautiful is Christ's method. Man would educate, but Christ regenerates. Man attacks the intellect, but Christ attacks the heart. Education alone cannot lift men above the flesh. Philosophy can never take the place of religion. The theological fledgeling must bring with him from the university the burning message of salvation for a world of sinners lost through Christ our great High Priest, now within the vail.

ENJOYABLE MUSICAL EVENING AT Y.W.C.A.

INTERESTING ADDRESS ON LIFE OF CAMILLE SAINT SAENS

A very successful and enjoyable musical evening was held at the Young Women's Christian Association last evening, with a large attendance. The president, Mrs. T. Cruikshank, occupied the chair.

Mrs. C. E. Jamieson, who was the speaker of the evening, and delivered a beautifully-worded and very interesting address on the life of Camille Saint Saens, the creator of the wonderful opera, "Samson and Delilah." Saint Saens, although born in 1835, may be ranked as one of the moderns, as he lived until just before Christmas of 1921, dying at the advanced age of 87. As well as his operatic compositions, he was known as a creator of beautiful organ music.

Mrs. Jamieson gave a short resume of his life, and then described the first act of 'Samson and Delilah,' after which an area from this act was sung by Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, "Spring Now Hath Found Us." At the conclusion of the description of the second act, Mrs. Bingham also rendered "Dear Love, Lend Thine Aid," and at the end, the well-known "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," three lovely vocal offerings in the singer's appealing [illegible]

Miss Agnes Logan also gave pianoforte selections [illegible] exceptional style; two songs from Peer Gynt suite, by Greig.

Mrs. Cruikshank voiced the thanks of the audience in a neat little speech to all who had taken part in the programme, also to those responsible for arranging it, Mrs. J. E. Middleton and Mrs. G. Porter.

The February literary evening will be held next Tuesday, when Mr. Dela Fosse will read a paper.

The man though fired at and chased for some distance, succeeded in escaping.

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make 16 ounces—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a cough medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

The presentation made by the Peterborough curlers to Mr. J. D. Flavelle, of Lindsay, yesterday was a graceful tribute to the veteran skip, who for many years has been an ornament to the grand old game. His name is known everywhere that curling is done, and always has be been spoken of in terms of admiration and respect.

Manager Onslow, of the Toronto Ball Club, starts the season like a real pilot by giving out an interview in which he declares that he is thoroughly satisfied with the Leafs' prospects. Some time there may arise a manager who will be frank enough to admit that there is some doubt about his club's winning the pennant, but so far he is nowhere on the horizon.

There is no verification for the report that the Lakefield Juniors have asked for a recount in connection with their recent series with Lindsay.

This being National Fish Day, some local people are likely to observe the occasion by betting on Picton in to-night's game.

Eulogistic reports of the great shooting of some of the Belleville basketball team continue to come along, but local fans cannot believe that the Bay of Quinte crew have anybody in their line-up who can toss in baskets with any more accuracy than Ben McLean, the sharpshooter of the local squad. Give McLean the shadow of an opening at any angle, and you can put two more points on the score sheet. It will be interesting to watch his work in to-morrow night's game with Belleville which opens the local Junior O.A.B.A. series.

Jake Solomon declares the Hon. James Murdock is falling down on his job—at least the new Minister of Labour has not been able to avert frequent strikes at the bowling alleys.

Not a man has been ruled off in the Peterborough Billiard League so far, for rough play, and so another record is chalked up.

The principal occupation of Peterborough fans to-night will be hearing the news from the expedition under Walter Smaill which has penetrated far into the wilds of Prince Edward County. The boys are confident of capturing the enemy's citadel, and expect to return to-morrow with the trophies of war they have wrested from the Croft-Hudgin gang. Incidentally, they will not reach Peterborough until 5.3 0p.m. to-morrow evening—just in time to be the guests of Manager Phillips at the Grand Opera House for the "Boob McNutt" show, in which our own Danny Simons is starred. The Smaillmen are to occupy the boxes at the Grand.

Lindsay received an unexpected jolt in the Tankard competition yesterday when Belleville beat the famous Little-O'Connor combination. Incidentally, two Central League baseball umpires were in the game. Dicky Butler "viceing" for O'Connor, while Rev. D. C. Ramsay occupied the same position on the winning Belleville rink.

The Hamilton Tigers are demonstrating the fact that you don't need a whole hockey team to win games. A goalkeeper like Charlie Stewart and a goal-getter like Carson Cooper can carry a lot of mediocre ability through to victory.

Some of the Kingston Frontenacs who, aided by the few, put Peterborough out of the running two seasons ago, are far from their native town just now. Cook, the pugnacious individual who crowned Micky Murray in the game at Kingston, is starring with the Sault Ste. Marie team, while Wally Elmer is a member of the St. Paul team in the United States Hockey Association.

Word received from Picton last night declared the grey shirts can see nothing but a Picton victory in to-night's game. The Petes have to show them eight good reasons for changing their opinion.

Brooms are dropping to their pre-war prices—so Scottish rinks are doing better curling again.

BASKETBALL FANS READY FOR FRAY

Big Demand For Tickets For Thursday Night's Battle With Belleville.

By the way the tickets are selling it looks as if one of the biggest crowds ever attending a basketball game in Peterboro will be out Thursday to see the Junior O.A.B.A. basketball team of Belleville clash with the Junior Petes. The boys are out to win the Junior O.A.B.A. series and fetch the silverware to Peterboro and to do it they will have to win from the start, for all coaches of the different teams in the series claim wonders for their stalwarts. The Junior O.A.B.A. has been revived after a lapse of about four years and in the last year of the former series P.C.I. had a team in the semi-finals, but were beaten out by the Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. Some of these Central Y. players are now starring on the Senior teams of Toronto University and Central Y. It is expected with the Junior team that has been gathered now that they will go even further than the last runners up Peterboro had. But basketball fans have a good opportunity of judging Peterboro's team on Thursday, for Belleville Juniors are rated as one of the biggest opponents they will have to meet in the series. The boys are all in fine shape and barring any accidents between now and tomorrow night, they will be right on the edge when the opening whistle blows. The P.C.I. boys who played against Belleville last Satrday claim that Cole will be the man that Peterboro will have to watch, for he was the hardest and most effective player that they had against them on Saturday, but seemed to have an off night on his shooting, but with him in form he could prove a worty mate for Elliot, Belleville's other sharpshooter.

EXPEDITION TO QUELL REBELLION.

Kurdish Brigand Chief Menaces Persia.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 31. (Associated Press).—The Persian government has organized to put down the rebellion headed by Sinko, the Kurdish brigand chief, who has several times menaced the city of Tabriz, according to advices from Teheran. The government troops have ben augmented by Cossacks from Teheran and by contingents from Northern provinces.

Colonel Ludenburg, one of the Swedish officers now in charge, of the Persian militia, has been placed in complete control of all the military operations against Sinko. The Swedish officers have succeeded the British who have withdrawn from any action with the Persian Rifles or in other similar organizations in Persia.

Riza Khan, Persian Minister (of War and formerly a member of the Cossack military organization in Persia, who is now almost the dictator of the Persian cabinet, is determined to put an end Sinko's uprising.

One of Sinko's most recent raids took place in October when part of his forces attacked the American Lutheran Mission at Syjbulak when 500 gendarmes who surrendered were shot down with machine guns Sinko's wild tribesmen then looted the town.

GOOD INSTRUCTION AT AGRICULTURAL COURSE

YOUNG FARM MEN SHOULD TAKE ADVANTAGE OF OPPORTUNITY

About a dozen young men are attending the "Short Course in Agriculture" which is being conducted in the U.F.O. rooms on Simcoe street.

The subjects taken up last week were feeds and feedings, insects and plant diseases, weeds, weed seeds and bacteriology, by Mr. G. I. Thompson; soils and drainage, by Mr. J. P. Shorey; fruits and vegetables, by Mr. J. C. Culham, and poultry, by Mr. S. Bergey.

This week Mr. R. H. Harding of Thorndale will be with the class to study dairy cattle, sheep and swine, and Mr. C. M. Lee will lecture on farm management.

Next week's programme will be in the capable hands of Mr. J. Guardhouse of Weston and Mr. H. C. Mason of Guelph.

Mr. Guardhouse will instruct the class on beef, cattle and horses, and Mr. Mason will lecture on markets and co-operation.

On Thursday and Friday, Feb. 9 and 10, there will be a special course in swine at the Canadian Packing Company's plant. All farmers are especially invited to attend this two days' course.

HOCKEY SCORES AT THE GRAND TONIGHT

Another filled house at the Grand Opera House last night saw the second presentation here by the Rex Stock Company of "The Travelling Salesman."

The speedy work of the irrepressible Rex, the "drummer" who travels for women's wear, and thank God piously that "styles are still changing," and the excellent acting of Miss Vaughn as the charming ticket-seller, are entertaining foundations for a play that brings in everyone of the actors in an amusing four acts of fun and humour.

No one should miss seeing William Yule as the darky clerk, waiter and bell-hop, all combined, nor the scene in the second act where the boys inject a thrill into their "sample life" with a five-handed game of poker, and try to forget their rural Christmas far from home, with a few doses of Scotch "tea."

Scores of the Picton-Peterborough game will be announced at the Grand tonight as they come in over the wire.

"BOOB McNUTT"

Is the title of a brand new musical offering, which is scheduled to appear at the Grand, next Thursday evening, February 2nd, with our own Danny Simmons. This new musical success, which is a combination of infectious music, startling surprises, singing and dancing and wholesome comedy, is founded on the popular cartoons of Rube Goldberg, which appear daily in the newspapers throughout the country. One of the many features of the performance is a comely chorus of young misses described by the management as "The Perfect 36 Girls' who are well versed in the art of singing and dancing. A large and well known cast of musical comedy players will be seen in the leading roles. From all advance reports this brand new combination of mirth and melody is playing to phenomenal business everywhere, and is said to be the last word in musical comedy Twenty tuneful musical numbers have been furnished by John Mulgrew and Charles Smith.

"MADEMOISELLE OF ARMENTIERES."

Every man who served in the Canadian army in France has heard of "Mademoiselle of Armetieres?" very few if any, saw her in France, but they will have an opportunity to see her at the Grand Opera House where she will appear Saturday afternoon and evening.

She will be accompanied by a cast of returned Canadian soldier actors, every one of whom is an artist in the theatrical line and each one having over two years active service in the firing line. The play depicts life in the trenches and in the rest camps and billets behind the lines of the Canadian soldiers in France and Flanders, they are seen both fighting and frolicking and the real humourous side of the fierce conflict is always before you at its best.

Every scene in the play is true to life and those who were oversea will see themselves again, and those who did not get over will be able to see what they missed.

Crowded and enthusiatic houses greeted this splendid production all last season and bumper houses are expected during the engagement here. This is the first real war comedy to tour Canada since "The Better 'Ole."

"Mademoiselle of Armentieres" was written by four soldier students of the University of Toronto, the name originally given the play by its authors was the "P.B.I." (Poor Bally Infantry). The entire production is based on the life of the Canadian in France, showing the humorous side of the great war at its best, the entire male cast of the company is composed of soldier actors under the direction of Capt. Fred Fisher.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"JUST AROUND THE CORNER."

The feature picture presentation for Thursday, Friday and Saturday is "Just Around the Corner," by Fannie Hurst, author of "Humoresque." The vaudeville offering will be "Ovette," presenting Lung Tchang Yuen, Chinese magic mysteries.

Thousands who wept and laughed at "Humoresque" will have an opportunity soon of seeing another East Side story by the author of "Humoresque"—Fannie Hurst.

The new picture is "Just Around the Corner," and not only is the original story the work of one of the collaborators of the screen version of "Humoresque," but the scenario and direction are the work of the scenario writer of that classic — Frances Marion. It will be shown at the Capitol Theatre to-morrow.

"Just Around the Corner" tells the story of the Birdsong family living in New York's East Side. It is a story of family devotion, of the struggles of a mother, a daughter and a son to preserve the untarnished name of their family in the face of poverty and their ultimate triumph. Love, humor, misfortune, smiles and tears and smiles again all play their parts.

A brilliant cast contributes to the excellence of "Just Around the Corner." It includes Margaret Seddon, favorably known as a result of her work in "The Inside of the Cup"; Lewis Sargent, creator of the role of "Huckleberry Finn"; Sigrid Holmquist, the "Mary Pickford of Sweden," who appears for the first time in an American picture; Fred. C. Thomson, husband of Frances Marion, the director, Edwarl Phillips, well known for his stage work in "Seven Days' Leave" and "The Hole in the Wall"; Peggy Parr, Mme. Rose Rosonova and William Nally.

This is the first of a series of remarkable big pictures to be offered during 1922 at the Capitol, and by this production the public will be able to judge the great advance made in high-class picture productions by the Paramount Company in the past year. "Just Around the Corner" is what may be called a dollar movie, and all who see it will agree with the writer it's a wonderful story of heart touch, laughter and tears.

AT THE REGENT.

"TO PLEASE ONE WOMAN."

A Paramount Picture.

Most of the great events of history were brought about because a man tried to please one woman. Adam ate the apple, the Trojan war was fought, and Antony lost an empire—for a woman.

And so in a tremendous modern story Lois Weber has crystallized the destructive force of the ages—has presented with mighty dramatic intensity the havoc wrought by a selfish woman.

A story of real life in a real town—of real people who love and suffer and at last find happiness. A story that reflects every aspect of American life.

AT THE ROYAL.

To-night is your last chance to see "What's a Wife Worth?", at the Royal. This is a fetching drama that holds an audience intently spell-bound as the plot unfolds. It is more than a mere drama of the screen. It is a wonderfully impressive moral conveyed by the animated screen. It shows up human weakness as displayed by one class of selfish wives, but the lesson is tempered by intermittent flashes of comedy. Through a concatenation of misrepresentation and distorted facts a young man divorces his bride of two months. The bride, impelled by pride because of her unjust treatment, though still loving her husband, returns to the home of her girlhood, where the stork makes a friendly call. The husband marries a second time. His second wife is a society butterfly, whose sole idea that her mission in life is frivolity and selfish pleasure. She also has a child that dies. In the meantime poverty has compelled the divorced wife to place her baby in an institution. Circumstances impel the second wife to adopt a child, and, by chance, the baby boy of the first wife is taken into its own father's home, unknown in such relationship. The child falls sick, and its own mother, acting on the impulse of motherlove, swallows her pride, and asks admission to look after her baby. This climax appears to create a bad problem to solve, but the plot solves the difficulty in a most pleasing way. "Old Dad," a six-reel feature seriocomic drama, is most interesting. Bettina, in the stupendously successful serial, "Breaking Through," is seen in more of her hair-raising thrill maker. Jimmy Aubrey, the world-famous fun maker, will do you more good than a case of the "forbidden fruit," and will leave laughter on your lips instead of the aroma of the class of old.

DELIGHTFUL CONCERT BY KING GEORGE SCHOOL

WILL BE REPEATED TONIGHT—COMMUNITY SPIRIT MARKED

On Tuesday night the teachers and pupils of King George school put on a delightful concert in the main corridor of the school for the Home and Schol Association.
Each class contributed two numbers to the programme, which consisted of songs, unison and two part, solos, dialogues, recitations and folk dances. The excellence of the whole was so marked that no particular number could be singled out for special praise. A happy feature was the absence of delay and the quiet of the building despite the fact of 350 pupils moving up and down stairs to take their places.
It was a gala night in Ashburnham. Parents, teachers, pupils left the school delighted and in the best of fellowship, which speaks well for community spirit in Ashburnham.
The teachers, whose efforts made this treat possible, are Mr. M. H. Park (principal), Mr. J. R. Munro, Miss C. Crookshanks, Miss . Fusee, Miss M. Eastwood, Miss M. Sisson, Miss E. Outram, Miss T. Paxman, Miss E. Richardson, Miss H. Houson.
The performance will be repeated to-night.

INNOCENT MOUSE CUT OFF ELECTRIC ENERGY.
FREDERICTON, N.B., February 1 (Canadian Press). — A mouse, about two and a half inches in length is declared by officials of the Maritime Electric Company, Limited today to be the cause of Fredericton being without electricity for power, light, or other commercial purposes since 5.30 o'clock this morning, when the main switchboard in the plant suddenly burned out.

GOVT. CAUSUS TO-DAY.
TORONTO, Feb. 1.— (Canadian Press.)— A caucus of Government supporters opened to-day at the Parliament Buildings, and the policy of the government on radials, temperance, administration of justice and Separate schools will be decided.

POISONING GRASSHOPPERS.
WINNIPEG, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—In dealing with the report of an agricultural survey held last summer, Prof. T. J. Harrison, Manitoba Agricultural College, stated seventeen million bushels of wheat were saved in 1922 by the poisoning of grasshoppers in the Southwest section of Manitoba.

THESE THREE.
As a babe to his mother close clinging,
As a bird to the Southland keeps winging—
So is Faith.

As a soul through death's vale sweetly singing,
As the Easter-tide bells loudly ringing—
So is Hope.

As the nightingale's song rapture bringing,
As the sound of Pearl Gates open swinging—
So is Love.

Market News

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Stocks recently responsive to concentrated buying were again bid up materially at the opening of to-day's market to create bullish sentiment. The well-known issues varied only a trifle from yesterday's closing, and a few leaders, such as Crucible Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Studebaker and New York Central were off slightly. Kresge advanced three points, Gulf States Steel 2¼, Manhattan Elevated 2, Lorillard Tobacco 1¼, and National Lead and Texas and Pacific 1 point.
Former favorites were almost entirely ignored in the further advance of specialties during the morning. American Ice, Gulf States Steel, Butterick, Kresge, Kayser, Remington Typewriter and Electric Storage Battery were the outstanding features at gains of 2 to 3½ points. Davison Chemical, Texas Gulf Sulphur and Industrial Alcohol averaged one point gains. Union Pacific and Texas Pacific rose 1 to 2 points respectively, but Canadian Pacific was reactionary. Call money opened at 5 per cent.
The marking up of the call money rates to six per cent. caused some selling of the usual leaders in the afternoon. Gulf States Steel retreated four points, and Pierce Arrow Preferred dropped 2¼. Selected shares however, moved steadily upward, the Leaders, Coca Cola and General Asphalt rising 1 to 3 points.

STERLING EXCHANGE.
NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange irregular; demand, 4.28 3-8; Canadian dollars, 4 3-8 per cent. discount.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.
CHICAGO, Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Opening wheat quotations which varied from unchanged figure to 3-4c higher, with May 1.19 to 1.19½, and July 1.04 1-8 to 1.04½, were followed by gains all around.
Corn and oats prices were steadied by the upward tendency of the wheat market. After opening unchanged to a shade higher, May 54 3-4 to 53 7-8, corn held close to the initial range.
Oats started unchanged, May 39 and later showed but little variation.

THE MONTREAL MARKET.
MONTREAL, Feb. 1.—(Canadian Press).—Trading was dull and listless during the first half-hour this morning, and the only variations in price quotation worth mentioning were two half point declines in Detroit United Railway and Lyall Construction Company to 69 and 35 respectively.

TORONTO STOCK MARKET.
TORONTO, Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Trading in Brazilian was fairly active on the local Exchange this morning, but quotations were within a range of less than half a point, with the close unchanged at 29.3-4. Elsewhere throughout the list trading was quiet. Smelter, after selling at 20, dropped a point to 18, closing at the low point for the morning. Consumers Gas at 75¼, closed a point above yesterday, and Imperial Bank was also a point higher at 165½. Bonds were lightly dealt in, with the 1922 War Loans the most active, gaining 35 cents.

TORONTO CATTLE MARKETS.
TORONTO, Feb. 1. — (Canadian Press).—Receipts 869; trade active. Choice butcher steers, $6.50 to $7; butcher cows, medium, $3 to $4; calves, $11 to $13.50; lambs, $10 to $11.40; hogs, $12.50.

TUNNEL BENEATH ENGLISH CHANNEL.

Absence of It Would Not Prevent Invasion.

PARIS, January 31 (Canadian Press). — "It is not the absence of such a tunnel which will protect Great Britain from invasion in the future," said General Taufflieh, a noted French Army officer, recently when asked what he thought of the opposition in England to the building of a tunnel under the English Channel.
"It would be surprising," he continued, "after a war in which British resource solved such infinitely more difficult problems, if the closing of the passage against an invader could not be made certain in the most absolute sense of the word."
General Taufflieh reviewed the well-known suggestions as heard in the United Kingdom. The narrow passage might be blown up, it might be filled with gas, and the mouth might be commanded from a distance of probably 220 yards by guns which would blow into nothing anything emerging.
"It would require," said the General, "120 trains to take through a single Army Corps, and that this, without question of rations and munitions would take a good deal of time."
The General believed, however, that long before the next war, if it comes at all, the tunnel as a factor in the military situation will be recognised to have become wholly negligible.
He believed that 200 aeroplanes carrying powerful explosives might be able to deal as deadly a blow to England as invasion itself. "But in any case," he added, "if the talk is of invasion from one or the other side of the Channel, it must be noticed that the mobilisation of an army for such a purpose will no longer be as easy as, say, in Napoleon's time, for guns of the Grande Berthe type that bombarded Paris from Courcy and farther, points to an artillery of the future undreamt of until then. Such an army would find itself under fire before it was formed."

Vulcanizing Shop on Charlotte Street Threatened With Extinction by Fire —Two Alarms Sent In

ORIGIN UNKNOWN

Fire of unknown origin broke out in the vulcanizing shop of A. Powell, corner of Aylmer and Charlotte streets, shortly after 11 p.m. last night, but was extinguished before gaining much headway. John Simons, fruit merchant across the street, first noticed the blaze in the dark interior of the shop and immediately telephoned the alarm into the fire hall. A second later Mrs. F. L. Robinson saw the fire from their residence immediately east, and Dr. Robinson, who owns the building, sent in a second alarm.

As they drove around the corner the firemen laid a line of hose from a hydrant on Aylmer street, and breaking in windows on the east side, flooded the heart of the fire. A workbench was burning merrily and a box full of old tires and rubber raised such a smudge that it was difficult to find the heart of the fire. The old rubber was pulled out and the dense smoke that pervaded the atmosphere for half a block, was soon cleared away. The shop was soaked with water, but outside of knocking the stove pipes down the damage from the water was not extensive.

The fire burned a hole in the floor, destroyed the work bench and made a charred heap of old tires. A serious loss would have resulted had the fire spread to a considerable supply of new stock. Cans of oil and gasoline that were within striking distance of the fire did not ignite. The loss was covered by insurance.

The dense smoke poured into the paint shop operated by E. M. Grier on the second floor, but fortunately there was only one car in the shop and it was so thoroughly dry, Mr. Grier to-day considered the finish would not be seriously marred.

Amends Offer For A Cure For Cancer

LONDON, February 2 (Canadian Press). — Sir William Veno, Manchester, has decided his original offer of ten thousand pounds to the university graduate who will discover a cancer cure in five years, and will now donate ten thousand pounds to direct assistance in cancer research during the next ten years. He says he hopes Lord Atholstan, who offered twenty thousand pounds for the discovery of a cancer cure in five years will be willing to similarly amend his offer.

MRS. M. ASQUITH REFERS CRITICS

She Says Some Critics Condemn Half of Her Book, Others the Rest—Wants to Meet Hughes.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Margot Asquith, wife of the former British Premier, who arrived here a few days ago, discussed at the Hotel Ambassador some phases of world politics and some of the nice questions that arise in publishing diaries.

"Some people complain because you print things about people who are still alive. Others complain that you print them about those who are dead." said Mrs. Asquith, a slight woman, who looks just like the hundreds of photographs of her that have been printed in this country after her famous diary was published. She was interviewed in her suite before she had time to take off her small black hat on her arrival from the ship. She wore a gray knitted gown, with patent leather belt about a foot wide.

"One of the critics objects to half the topics you discuss. Another objects to the other half. If you do as they say you print nothing."

Mrs. Asquith said there might be some rules which a diarist should observe, but the only sure guide was good taste and discretion. She intimated that her countrywoman Mrs. Clare Sheridan, had rather lost her amateur standing among diarists by publishing her diary instalments from month to month, so her host and hostesses found themselves praised or criticized or ridiculed in print within a few weeks after they entertaind her.

Her Secretary Agrees With Her

"I heard something about what Mrs. Sheridan had done before I came here," she said, "Just what did she do?"

When she was told how Mrs. Sheridan had made a mild sensation by her speed in informing the public of the details of her entertainment in private houses, Mrs. Asquith removed a cigarette from her mouth blew a slight cloud of smoke away and shook her head.

"That's not so fortunate," she said. "It seems to me that that's not so fortunate."

She asked the opinion of her woman secretary on this point to be in exact accord with that of Mrs. Asquith herself.

"But it is difficult to say what you should do," said Mrs. Asquith. "There's no way to put an arbitary time limit on what should be printed. It is wholly a question of taste."

Mrs. Asquith said she had no idea, at present at least, of writing anything about America, and expected to use her leisure in reading. She said a large number of people had in some way or another let her know that they were displeased with and annoyed by her diary, but that she did not remember that anyone had been personally disagreeable to her. Asked if she had regretted she had printed it, she said:

"No I don't think I ever have."

Wants to Meet Secretary Hughes

Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary of State, the only man, now a stranger to her, that she was anxious to meet during her stay in this country as far as she could remember. She said that she was quite anxious to renew the acquaintance of Elihu Root, and that she intended to call on former President Wilson when in Washington.

When she was asked if there were any notable woman in the country whom she intended to make it a point of seeing, Mrs. Asquith asked:

"Who are they?"

There was a pause and somebody named Jane Adams.

"Who is she?" asked Mrs. Asquith Lee Keedick, manager of Mrs. Asquith's lecture tour, here gritted his teeth and hissed:

"Can't you think of some more important question to ask her?"

She was then asked if any feature of American life had a special interest to her.

"Prohibition" she said. "I think it is a splendid try. I am very much interested in it, and in favor of it.

LIMITATIONS OF EXERCISES FOR OLD MEN

If Middle-Aged Man Exercises Within Limits the Limits Will Gradually Expand, Says Physician

Test to Avoid Danger.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—A man is never too old to go into training, says the medical correspondent of The London Times in the course of an article intended to show how the middle-aged man may tell whether he is taking too much or too little exercise. He says a man of 50 or more may safely take as much exercise as he can endure without discomfort.

A great deal of discussion, he says, has taken place lately as to the amount of exercise in which it is safe for a middle-aged man to indulge. Some authorities have suggested that exercise need not be limited; others that absence of limitation spells danger.

It is obvious that most men will ask themselves how they are to decide between those who possess specialized knowledge. In other words, most men will be conscious of the need for some guiding principle or principles which they may apply to their own cases, the physician asserts.

Some questions as: "When is it time to desist from effort and rest?" or "Am I now exceeding the limit beyond which benefit may be changed into danger?" must, in short, be answered if exercise is to be taken without anxiety. The answers, too, must carry conviction. An uneasy mind robs every activity of its uses, he says.

What Disaster Is Feared?

The first thing to be determined, clearly, is the nature of the disaster which is feared, says the writer. This fundamental necessity was pointed out long ago by Sir James Mackenzie in connection with the study of heart disease. "What," he asked, "does the physician fear when he detects some abnormality of heart or circulation?" The answer evidently was "Heart failure." Once this had been realized it became an obvious duty to interpret all signs and symptoms in terms of the efficiency of the heart. "If a sign pointed to heart failure it was grave; if it did not so point it might be disregarded.

The disaster which a middle-aged man who indulges in strenuous exercise fears is comparable to heart failure, declares the writer. He fears what he calls "strain"—that is to say, a state in which his body will not be able to maintain its usual activity or in which it may even suffer a decline of activity. He fears, too, a sudden onset of strain—the "snapping," as it were, of some vital part of the machine. Often enough his mind is clouded with visions of a damaged circulation or a broken-down heart.

When these visions trouble him he loses as a rule the reasoning faculty which would soon dispel them, says the physician. Had this not been so he would have perceived that strain in the physical sense must be a process rather than an event.

Must Begin at Top Speed.

It must begin at the top—at the top speed, the top exertion, the top excitement. Thus it must show itself first by a limitation of the power of doing things. If, for example, a man finds that he can no longer run quickly without becoming breathless, he is entitled to assume that quick running strains him. It puts him in such a position that his heart cannot deliver blood in sufficient quantity at sufficient speed to his lungs. When he slackens his pace the unpleasant symptom disappears. He is now no longer straining.

"Top speed" differs materially in different individuals. Thus, one man of 50 can take a cold bath and play two rounds of golf without the slightest discomfort. He is living within his limits. If, however, he chooses to run a mile he may find that, at a certain point, he will exceed his limit and become breathless or develop that pain which schoolboys refer to as a "stitch." He is now obtaining no benefit from his exertions, the physician says.

Another man may discover that a cold bath makes him breathless and chills him. He may find that even a mile walk produces symptoms of discomfort. His limit is far narrower than that of the first mentioned case.

The one, indeed, can indulge in a very considerable amount of exercise without anxiety and with positive benefit; the other must confine himself to narrow limits.

This rule holds good with but one or two reservations, asserts the physician. The first of these is that

Sleepy Bruin Saw His Shadow Today; Six Weeks More Winter

It looks as if we were in for another "spell of weather," as the old salts say, for the bear must have seen his shadow this morning when he poked his nose out to survey the prospect. The sun was bright enough to-day to cause even the sleepiest Bruin to cast a dark shade, and, according to the old legend, he immediately turns around and seeks his warm couch for another six weeks. If the day had been dull and shadowless, he would have imagined that winter was over, and proceeded forthwith to go hunting for a long-delayed breakfast.

It is only on this side of the water that we are so fond of regarding the bear as a weather prophet on the second of February, Candlemas Day. In Ehrope generally, and more particularly in the Scandinavian countries, they consider the groundhog and the woodchuck infallible in this regard.

City is Drawing Gravel To Much Discussed Sewage Site

Eleven teams were drawing gravel from the Chamberlain Estate pit to the site of the sewage disposal plant to-day. With each team accounting for six yards a day, the total draw will be 66 yards. If this average is kept up, the needed 2,000 yards will be on the job more quickly than was at first thought possible. To draw six yards, each team makes four trips, travelling twenty miles, as the pit is two and a half miles from the location of the plant. If the teams could not cross the ice on the river, they could barely draw half as much.

Such weather as is being experienced now will not make the ice on the river any better, but there is reported to be a good depth of ice where the crossing is at the foot of Monaghan Road.

Two men are working at the pit assisting the teamsters to load.

TROTZKY POSES BEFORE MOVIES

Visits Improvised Studio of American Cinema Operator and Is Taken "Working" at Desk.

MOSCOW, Feb. 2.— The Bolshevist leaders look and act much more like the rest of humanity than many people outside Russia believe.

The head of the Turkish Mission to Moscow, General Ali Fuad Pasha, told a correspondent to-day that one of the reasons why Bolshevism made no progress in Turkey was that the population sincerely believed the Bolsheviki to be red devils, with red skins, cloven hoofs and tails complete.

Even in America, said George Barr Baker, who has just visited Moscow on an inspection mission of the American Relief Administration work, there was general surprise when a picture of Trotsky reviewing the troops in the Red Square was thrown on the screen in a New York cinema theatre, for it was generally accepted that the Red warlord never appeared in public save in an armored car escorted by troops and guards.

Well, to-day Trotzky came to the private apartment which the correspondent shares with the American photographer Ariel Varges, to pose before a movie camera, in order to avoid delay—for Trotzky is the busiest man in Russia—and inconvenience to his office—which is the most orderly in Russia—caused by the installation there of 60,000 candle power arc lights that Varges had borrowed from the Soviet cinema section.

At midnight last night a message arrived from Trotzky's office that the chief would be here around noon Friday. At 10.30 this morning a Red Army aide de camp who is Trotzky's sole attendant, arrived to see is everything ready. He looked quickly over the big living room on the street level where the lights had been prepared, but made no move to search the adjoining bedrooms.

A few minutes after 12 Trotzky's limousine, unarmored, drew up at the door with the same aide de camp sitting beside the chauffeur. There was no other guard, nor was the street barred nor were there any other manifestations of force.

Trotzy entered and went straight to a table where a sort of desk had been fixed under the dazzling glare of the arc lights, which appeared to give him satisfaction. With an abrupt, characteristic gesture and sharp command the Russian instructed the Red soldier to wait in a small vestibule, greeted Varges, the correspondent and a Russian movie man named Novitski, who formerly accompanied him on his trips to the front, and said:

"Is everything ready? I can only give you five minutes."

The work began immediately. Dressed in his usual khaki uniform, with tunic buttoned up to the neck, Trotzky sat studying a series of French cartoons of the Commune period which we thought would be appropriate. Unlike other Soviet notabilities who have posed here before, he needed no directions, but examined the cartoons with the

AWFUL EFFECTS OF JAZZ FEVER

"It Makes You Clatter on All Fours and Whisk Your Tail Around a Tree," Says Pastor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Jazz goes back to the African jungle and is one of the crying evils of today, according to the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street. Dr. Grant gave an address on "Is Jazz Our National Anthem?" The first part of his sermon was a discussion of the play of that name. Mrs. Rita Lydig, Dr. Grant' fiancee sat three pews from the front, and was an interested listener.

Dr. Grant said jazz as interpreted in the play meant drunkenness ,sex abandonment, domestic destruction, suicide and "quite a list of other rather unpleasant things."

"Jazz is retrogression. It is going to the African jungle for our music. It is a savage crash and bang. It rings the bell for full steam astern. Its effect is to make you clatter, and, as Voltaire said, "go on all fours" to which I would add—and to whisk your tail around a tree.

"Our great dance music has been profoundly pathetic. It seems to say how fleeting is youth. Jazz says: 'Cut it out; don't dream, don't worry about transcient things. Seize the day. Don't dream about possibilities of pleasure. There is no pathos or no idealism about jazz music. It is for sensation. In the dance, instead of symbolism, it becomes sensuality.

Says Jazz Closes Our Ideals

"Dancing in itself is a substitute for sex contact. But when it becomes an instrument for a gratification then the whole psychological process, is turned about, and instead you have an injury. Then it becomes the jesture of the jungle.

"Plato said that whenever modes of music change, morals change. Music changed greatly a few years ago We have had storms of all kind—international and inter-racial.

Jazz cannot help changing our ideals even our humaneness.

Dr. Grant said a bill was pending at Albany for the regulation of public dance halls. He read from a leaflet which he said was printed in Albany last week. It said that 65,000 girls had disappeared in the United States in 1921 "without leaving a trace." The rector told his hearers to remember that, if they forgot everything else he said.

From the dance itself, Dr. Grant said that jazz had invaded other fields of life.

"It is 'jazz' he said, "when the police on the orders of a priest invade a public meeting and stop it, it is 'jazz' stops a hearing on this happening.

"Perhaps after all, our national anthem is jazz when you use the final argument. If jazz is our national anthem, then the Devil's crying argument, "Go to Hell" is our national slogan."

Dr. Grant described the heroine in "Jazz" as "the poor little rich wife trying to reform a sensual

BRIEFS FROM WIRES

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—While men were engaged in cleaning oil burners of Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland here this morning, a back draft carried a spark into the mixers and ignited the inflammable combination of air and vaporized oil. So violent was the concussion, that an iron door of the engine room was wrenched from its hinges. Ten of the men were seriously burned and were rushed to the hospital.

It is said the balloting will not take more than two days and the next Pope will likely come from among the moderate section of the Sacred College.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES STILL PREVALENT HERE

A Number of Deaths Recently — A Comparison Covering Several Weeke —Dr. W. H. Young Reports a Decrease.

REPORTS CONFLICT

Reports on the epidemic of contagious diseases throughout the city are somewhat conflicting. There are still many placards visible, and there have been several deaths reported recently, one particularly sad case being that of a very small boy, who succumbed to complications of diphtheria, scarlet fever and chicken pox and another malignant type of diphtheria which carried its small victim off within the space of two days.

Although regulations with regard to quarantine are being observed more strictly in some quarters, there are always those who are willing to take a chance. A gentleman paying a social call at a certain house the other evening remarked in casual conversation that his house was placarded because of the illness of two of his children, but the fact didn't seem to bother him as much as it did his hearers.

Dr. A. W. McPherson, medical inspector of schools, and school inspector A. Mowat, when interrogated by the Examiner this morning with regard to the school situation, both preferred to make no statement referring the matter entirely to Dr. T. W. H. Young, medical officer of health. Dr. Young reports a decrease in both scarlet fever and diphtheria, there being seven less of the former reported than during the same period the previous month.

The Isolation Hospital reports some empty cots in both sections, showing a decrease in scarlet fever and diphtheria, and only one death from either, which occurred in January.

A comparison of the number of contagious diseases reported by the Sanitary Inspector, as recorded at City Hall, for the month of November, December and January, is as follows:

Week ending Nov. 5: Diptneria, 16; scarlet fever, 13; Nov. 12.—Diphtheria, 7; scarlet fever, 9; Nov. 19—diptheria, 7; scarlet fever, 10; Nov. 26.—diphtheria, 4; scarlet fever, 12; chicken pox, 2. This totals up to 34 cases of diphtheria reported during the month of November, 44 cases of scarlet fever, and two of chicken pox.

In December:— week of Dec. 3.—Diphtheria, 4; scarlet fever, 10; typhoid, 1. Dec 10 — Diphtheria, 7; scarlet fever, 13. Dec. 17—Diphtheria, 5; scarlet fever, 9. Dec. 24—Diphtheria, 7; scarlet fever 11. Dec. 31—diphtheria, 5; scarlet fever, 3. Making totals for the month of December of diphtheria, 28; scarlet fever, 46; chicken pox, 1; spinal meningitis,1.

In January, 1922:—Jan 7—diphtheria, 4; scarlet fever, 4. Jan. 14.—diphtheria, 8; scarlet fever, 13; chicken pox, 1. Jan 21.—diphtheria, 7; scarlet fever, 9; chicken pox, 1. Jan. 28—diphtheria, 3; scarlet fever, 11. Totals for the month of January, as reported at the City Hall:— diphtheria, 22; scarlet fever, 37; chicken pox, 2.

Clancy, East City, was seriously hurt, as the result of the scaffold breaking, on which he was working, precipiating him to the ground a distance of tweney feet He was removed to his home shortly after the accident. Dr. F. P. McNulty was called and found it necessary to have him removed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

HOW TO FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

Children of Tubercular Parents are Free From Disease at Birth, Says Dr. Neal.

Following will be found a synopsis of an instructive and illuminating paper on "Tuberculosis in Children," read at a recent meeting of the Well Babies' Clinic by Dr. F. C. Neal. The paper is replete with timely information as to how best fight this dread disease, and should be read with interest.

Heretofore, said Dr. Neal, the chief concern has been to educate, supervise and control adult cases of tuberculosis. While these measures are important, still more important is the prevention of the disease in infancy and childhood.

The subject may be discussed as it relates to—

1. To infants under 3 years of age.
2. To children over 3 years of age.
3. To adults

In regard to infants under 3 years of age, careful investigation shows:

1. That a child at birth is free from tuberculosis, even if one or both parents should be tubercular.
2. That the great majority of tuberculosis adults did not contract the disease in adult life, but were infected in early childhood.
3. That in children under 2 years the proportion infected is small, no because these infants are less susceptible, but because they are usually less exposed. When contracted, however, disease is more often fatal than in older children.
4. That in children over 3 years, the proportion infected, gradually increases until at 15 years, 90 p.c. are infected

After the age of 3 years is reached, the type of disease is less severe, the period of sickness is prolonged, and death less frequent, although the number of cases is greater.

Early Precautions.

These observed facts clearly teach us that the logical method of attack on tuberculosis is to prevent infection in the young.

A tubercular mother should not be allowed to come in contact with her child, during this early period; and she should not nurse or fondle it.

A tubercular father should not live in the same house with infant children.

Grandparents, uncles and aunts, nurses and domestics, should refrain from coming in contact with infants, if danger of infection exists.

Strangers should never be allowed to fondle or handle an infant.

These rules may seem harsh, but we must remember that in infants,

Long Island Ducks Hatch Few Eggs They Must Go on Diet Gain Strength

FARMINGDALE, N.Y., February 2. — A new game of "ducks and drakes" was started at the State Agricultural Institute to-day, with 120 feathered participants, the object of the game being to determine why the famous Lond Island duck lays such unsatisfactory eggs.

D. A. Ahrens, head of the poultry department of the institute, said that the experiment—which is in diet—was inspired by dissatisfaction of Long Island duck raisers with the low percentage of incubation. However ardently a duck may brood over her seting of eggs, she never brings forth more than one duckling for two, he said.

A committee of duck raisers, headed by A. J. Halleck, known on Long Island as the "duck king," got together with Mr. Ahrens and planned the experiment on the theory that it was a case of poor nutrition. Comparing notes, they found that there was almost unanimous disagreement as to what ducks and drakes should be fed.

Six diet formulas were drawn up, the duck men contributed six "sets" of ducks and drakes—seventeen ducks and three drakes to the pen—and they were put on diet to determine what food produced the best results. The experiment will continue until the incubating period ends next October.

IRISH BOUNDARY PROBLEM

VICE-PRES. WHITE OF G.W.V.A. RESIGNED.

Second Vice F. Grant Succeeds to Vacated Office.

At an executive meeting of the G.W.V.A., the resignation of vice president A. White was received with regret and second Vice-president F. Grant was appointed to succeed him, appointed to succeed him. Vice-Vice-president White said pressure of work in his business did not allow him time for the duties as he would like to give it. Dr. N. H. Sutton was appointed second vice-president.

The executive endorsed the work of the Federated Relief Bureau, but because of their manifold connections with other organizations they did not appoint an official representative to the committee.

The financial report presented on the lecture by Dr. J. K. L. Hughes showed a net balance of $15.40. In adopting the report, the Secretary was instructed to convey to Dr. Hughes the branch's appreciation of his lecture and the regrets at the combination of circumstances that lessened the attendance. From expressions received since the lecture, however, Dr. Hughes will be assured of a full house when he next lectures here, the Secretary was instructed to add.

Resolutions of thanks to the Sandford Fleming Estate for the donation of $200 and to the County Council for their grant of $150 were passed.

Insurance Committee

The report of the insurance committee dealing with the death benefit scheme outlined at the last general meeting was left over till the next general meeting for discussion.

It was decided at the meeting to open a fund for the relief of unemployed returned men in destitute circumstances and to appeal to all exservice men who have been in constant employment and who feel they can afford to give one day's pay to help their less fortunate comrades. Subscriptions may be sent in to the Examiner. The following have donated one day's pay earnings: H. J. Staunton, F. Grant, Dr. Sutton, V. Stewart, G. N. D. Curtis, T. R Cooper, S. TROTZKY POSES BEFORE MOVIES same concentration he devotes to his own work. It was the same throughout—telephoning, talking or scrutinizing a map. There was no trace of hesitation, nothing to show that he was conscious it was make-believe instead of a part of his regular routine in his office at the Moscow Staff College. If destiny had not called Trotzky to bt the chief of Russia's armies he might have made a great actor.

Only once he said anything to indicate he was aware of posing: "Are you nearly through? This light tries my eyes.' Once, too, when looking at a map of Varegs, he said: "Yes, here's Odessa and there Baku, where English were,' with a sudden snap of his teeth and thrusting forward of the jaw as if to add "and where they shan't come back."

"Good!" he said, sharply, when the operation of taking the picture was completed, and without waiting turned toward the door. He pulled on his heavy military overcoat, gave a firm handshake to every one, including the electrician and a housemaid who had come to open the door, and was off in his auto a second later. The whole business had taken exactly six minutes.

BURLESQUE

Dear Doctor,—
I was at the show the other night and saw a three-reel comedy by Harold Lloyd in which osteopathy came in for a lot of burlesque. I wonder if you saw it and what you thought and if it made you a bit peeved.

Yours sincerely,
G. H.

MY DEAR G. H.

THE GREATEST successes.
THAT ARE oftenest burlesqued.
AND OSTEOPATHY has been.
ALWAYS A great success.

Osteopathy is the original and only complete system of healing by adjustment, especially spinal adjustment.

90 per cent. of the osteopath's work is confined to the making of spinal diagnosis and adjustment.

We stress this fact especially, because it is the most important statement to be made relative to osteopathic procedure.

The osteopath, while a skilled dietitian, hygienist, and also trained in the special procedure incident to gynecology, obstetrics and various other special branches of treatment, is first, last and always the premier spinal adjuster.

SOME CASES OF POVERTY IN WARSAW

Warsaw Ladies Rose to the Need With Food and Clothing — A Summer School is Proposed.

Social and Personal.

WARSAW, Feb. 2.—Heart-breaking cases of extreme poverty and consequent suffering have been disclosed on the 9th line Dummer, while still another instance of actual want and distress in Douro is reported here. Several local ladies have sent food and clothing to the stricken families.

Summer School

At the Endeavor League, in the Methodist Church last Friday evening, some discussion was held re the Summer School Camp, for the Sunday Schools. There seems to be a little misunderstanding rife. The facts are that the committe who were appointed to decide on some object to work for, decided to see what plans could be made about conducting a Summer Camp for a week or 10 days for the village Sunday Schools. There would be religious exercise, educational classes, games, etc., much the same as the "Y" camps for boys and girls, young men and women, and older folk who could come would be welcome. The plan is (if carried out) to avoid all hiring for work; to have materials for food donated by people of the churches—indeed to have little except for the renting of tents. But no children are to be denied the outing, because they cannot contribute materials. The children are to be properly cared for, proper chaperones are to be provided, also men to do their part. If all these things cannot be properly arranged the plan will not be considered feasible, and it will be dropped. Any money that the league earned over and above the expenses would go to the Consumptive Children's Hospital and if the plan was dropped, all the funds are to go there—that is, over the expenses of the League.

Miss Barrie gave an excellent and most interesting talk on Tennyson and his poverty. She had several of her pupils read or recite selection from his verse, and they did it well. She had asked Miss Olga Miller to have "Sweet and Low"; "Crossing the Bar", sung. "Sweet and Low" was given as a chorus and 'Crossing the Bar" as a trio by Miss Olga Miller, Mrs. Wasson and Mr. Stepehen Miller.

Church Notes

At the Presbyterian Ladies Aid, held in the Presbyterian Church, last Thursday afternoon, the old officers were re-elected. Mrs. Munro is President and Miss Margaret Miller Secretary Treasurer. It was decided to give Mr. Finlay Forsythe the job of re-decorating the church.

The regular meeting of the Warsaw Woman's Institute will be held on Thursday, February 9th, when Mrs. H.G. Choate will take up the "life and influence of St. Valentine.

M. Chitcherin says the French prisoners in Russia will be speedily repatriated through Poland. All Russian prisons and camps have been ordered by wireless to present lists of all imprisoned foreigners.

Age Unites With Youth in Enthusiasm For Canada's Winter Sport.

Lakefield News.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 2.—After witnessing the game on Monday night between the local juniors and the Lindsay Midgets, Lakefield wonders what Lindsay's senior team is like. They must be giants up there. The game on Monday had a record crowd, almost entirely local people. The whole town is hockey crazy, and is as keen as mustard. The teams have the backing of the whole village, as one can see at the matches It is no uncommon sight to see babe in arms carried into the rink, and age joins youth in hockey enthusiam.

Social Put Forward.

The Valentine social of the A.Y.P.A. will be held on Monday, February 6th, instead of Tuesday February 14th as previously announced.

Challenge Turned Down

The challenge of the local girls hockey team to the Campbellford girls as been turned down as the later felt that he expense entailed would be too great. The local team are practicing and ready to meet any girls team. It was understood that Campbellford was the proud possesor of the district cup for ladies' hockey, but that was only a rumour without foundation in fact, if there is a ladies' cup in this district for hockey, Lakefield would like to see it, and play for its possession.

SATISFACTORY YEAR FOR HARVEY 'PHONE SYSTEM

Approved Conditions Revealed at Annual Meeting.

LAKEHURST, Feb. 2.—The annual meeting of the Harvey Municipal Telephone System was held in the hall at Lakehurst on the afternoon of Jan. 23rd, at 2 o'clock.

The meeting was attended by the majority of the subscribers, who, after electing a chairman for the meeting and adopting the minutes of the last annual meeting, received and discussed the auditors' report for the year just closed as presented by the Secretary-Treasurer.

The Board of Commissioners of 1921 were re-elected for the ensuing year.

That the auditors' report brings to a close a most satisfactory year from a financial standpoint, is undoubtedly due to the perseverance and co-operation of Mr. J. A. Chase, who has been Commissioner since the inauguration of the system in the fall of 1911; Mrs. E. P. Hunt, operator, and Mr. J. J. Coons, lineman.

The subscribers expressed unanimous confidence in their operator, Mrs. Hunt, a confidence earned by five years' faithful and efficient service.

At the present time there are some fifty-one telephones installed; and considering the distance covered they are operating very satisfactorily.

The next meeting will be in January, 1923.

ALL QUIET AMONG STRIKING MINERS

LONDON, Feb. 2.— (Canadian Press Cable—South Africa).— A Reuter despatch from Johannesburg states that all is quiet there with the exception of the explosion of three sticks of dynamite in a "colored" church No persons were injured.

A mass meeting in the Town Hall attracted the smallest audience of any meeting held so far and the men seemed despondent and appear anxious for a settlement enabling them to return to work. Their leaders have been urging so-called "commandoes" and others to "pull out the scabs," but they have not got beyond threats.

CONDITIONS IN CANADA

Could Improve Matters By Getting Down to Hard Work, Declares Hon. Charles Stewart.

OTTAWA, Feb. 2. Canadian Press. —The present rather abnormal condition of affairs in Canada could be overcome by adopting a right mental attitude and by people settling down to hard work, was the opinion of Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, who was one of teh principal speakers at the annual luncheon here of the Dominion land surveyors, in the Chateau Laurier. Other speakers of prominence were Dr. E. G. Deville, Surveyor General, of Canada, and Dr. W. J. Roche, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, G. H. Blanchet, D.L.S., president of the Dominion Land Surveyors, presided.

Hon. Mr. Stewart looked to people occupying positons of prominence, such as the land surveyors, to assist and cooperate with the government as far as possible, in building up Canada until it was a nation such as all could boast of at all times.

Dr E. C. Deville reviewed some of the accomplishmets of the surveyors in Canada. Few people realized, he thought, the magnitude of their work. They had examined 17,000,000 acres and given a cursory examination to an additional 7,000,000 acres. Their findings had been an immense aid to the Soldiers' Settlement Board in the settlement of soldiers on the land.

PRESENTED WITH A SILVER TEA SERVICE

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Perdue Honored By Friends in Ops.

On the eve of their departure from Ops for Detroit, friends of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Perdue, gathered at their home on Thursday evening, January 26, to bid them God speed, together with the presentation of tangible testimony of the high esteem and respect in which they are held by the whole community.

After a sumptuous repast served at seven o'clock, the following address was read and a silver tea service was presented to the departing couple.

"To Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Perdue:

"Dear Friends:—The announcement of your intended departure rom our community came as a distinct surprise to us. We had hoped hat when you returned to the vicnity of your early years, you would nake your permanent home here. We are sorry to hear that circumstances have caused you to change your plans.

"During your short residence in your present home your new friends, as well as your old ones, have learned to value your acquaintance and have found in both of you the sterling qualities of true neighbors. You were ready to help us in our undertakings, and to be present with us times of sorrow.

"We regret that your stay with us has been so short. We regret, also, that you are going to leave this country and return to the United States. We have no deep grudge against Uncle Sam, but we do think that distinguished old gentleman has been too successful in inducing our men and women, our boys and girls, to take up their residence within his borders. What is his gain is our loss in your case, as well as in hundreds of others, but we wish you well, nevertheless, n your new home.

"We trust that both of you may continue to enjoy good health, and that your undertaking may prosper. Should you decide in the near or distant future to return to this country, we assure you that a hearty welcome will await you. Kindly accept this little present as an earnest of our good will towards you, and of the warm place you occupy in our hearts.

We shall say in conclusion, Au Revoir, but not Adieu.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Perdue replied in well-chosen phrases Music and games furnished the remainder of the evening's entertainment.

BOLSHEVISM TALKED OF

Fiery Resolutions Passed By the United Mine Workers at Glace Bay—Blame King and Murdock.

SYDNEY, N.S., Feb. 2.—If Bolshevism spreads throughout Nova Scotia, the blame will rest upon the shoulders of Premier King and Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, according to a fiery resolution promulgated by the United Mine Workers at Glace Bay yesterday.

Uneasiness over the situation in the Cape Breton coal fields is not being allayed by the increasing number of such resolutions which are being passed unanimously by the largest and most influential locals of the United Mine Workers. The Harbor local adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas, Bolshevism is the effect only of oppression and tyranny on the part of those in control, as Bolshevism finds no soil to grow in a community of working people who have employment at an adequate wage, and,

"Whereas, the British Empire Steel Corporation and its servants, the Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor, and U. F. Gillen, are oppressing the mining population beyond the endurance of men to bear,

"The Harbor Local 4523, hereby declares that if Bolshevism spreads and gets a firm hold in the mining regions of Nova Scotia, the blame can be directly placed upon Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, Premier of Canada and upon the Minister of Labour, Hon. James Murdock, because of their hostility to the welfare of the people of Canada in their servile obedience to frenzied financiers of the British Empire Steel Corporation."

A STRIKE MEETING.

LONDON, Feb. 2. — (Canadian Press Cable.) — General J. B. M. He praised the constitutional methods adopted by the men and wished them success.

After the meeting General Hertzog conferred with the miners' leaders.

RUMORS OF STARVATION

Returned Soldiers Settled in Eastern Township Deny Stories of Want—Government Aid.

SHERBROOKE, Que., Feb. 2. Canadain Press. — Highly colored rumours of starvation among the returned soldiers settled on farms in the Eastern Townships, are meeting with emphatic denial on the part of the local authorities.

The reports, emanating from Montreal, contend that conditions in the Eastern Townships rival those of central Russia, and a statement is attributed to Major Buckley, of the Canadian Red Cross that 50 per cent. of the soldier settlers in the Townships are actually in want.

There is little doubt but what a number of individual instances of hardship have been encountered, and the local Red Cross and patriotic fund officials admit that temporary assistance has been given in a few distressed cases.

The local officials of the Soldiers' Settlement Board point out that the extreme drought of the past summer had the same disastrous results among the soldier settlers a experienced by farmers throughout the province, and it is only natural to assume that farm conditions are far from ideal. To provide for these unforeseen circumstances the government through the Soldiers' Settlmest Board, has arranged to advance the settlers sufficient to provide for the immediate requirements of their stock. Lack of food crops was due largely to the fact that the farmers all through the Eastern Townships ignored the possibilities of a hay crop failure, with the result that to-day very few of the farmers have sufficient to meet even their own requirements.

WELL RECEIVED.

PARIS, Feb. 2.— (Canadian Press.) —The appointment of Dr. Walter Rathenau as German Minister of Foreign Affairs has been well received by the French Press. The Temps, for instance, after quoting Republican sentiments from a book by Dr. Rathenau, published in Berlin in 1917, says the selection is agreeable to French Republicans. The newspaper refers to the new appointee's qualities —his aptness at organization and the faculty of foresight he has displayed—and wishes him success in his difficult task.

One third of your life is allotted to sleep. Do you get your share?

The most important period in the process of applying nutrition to the repair of the body is while you are asleep. For the most favorable transformation of digested food into nerve and cell tissue, so doctors tell us, sleep is absolutely essential.

Is it any wonder that those who suffer from lack of proper sleep are weak, pale and lacking in energy or ambition?

One of the causes of insomnia is nerve-irritation from tea and coffee drinking. Tea and coffee both contain caffeine, which has a tendency to cause undue stimulation. The irritating effect of caffeine often results in insomnia, depression, and a weakened nervous system.

You can easily overcome these troubles by drinking Postum instead of tea or coffee. Postum is a delicious, satisfying cereal beverage, and it is absolutely free from caffeine, or any other harmful substance.

Ask your grocer for Postum. Drink this delicious, refreshing beverage for ten days. Then see if you do not feel better and more clear headed, and if you do not sleep better at night—as so many other people have proved for themselves.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

WHAT ABOUT THE FARM?

It is stated that many of the single men who are out of employment and who would come under the category of who might reasonably expect to share in any relief measures that might be inaugurated, could be accomodated on the farms if they would be willing to work for a small wage and their board. This is a way out of the difficulty that should be investigated. A man who is physically capable of doing the work and who has an opportunity of securing a home with a farmer for the winter, can scarcely expect that the taxpayers of Peterborough, many of whom are having a hard battle on their own account, are going to maintain him in idleness, loafing around the streets and the pool-rooms. There are, of course, men who would be of little service on the farm on account of physical disabilities, and they must be assisted in some manner or other, but the others who reject an opportunity for farm service because they do not like the work or because the remuneration is too small, are practically placing themselves outside the pale so far as municipal assistance is concerned. At least that is the view of several of those who are closely in touch with relief work and who are as anxious that deserving cases should be helped as they are to see that idleness is not encouraged.

THE JOB HUNTERS FOILED.

New members of Parliament, it is reported, and the statement will be readily credited, are finding the fact that appointments are now made by the Civil Service Commission a splendid buffer to protect them from the flock of job hunters who are besieging them for berths. When a Government passes out and a new administration takes hold, a demand from camp followers for a share in the sports so far as appointments go is naturally to be expected, and the present Government is finding that it is no exception to the rule. The civil service regulations afford a refuge that is not to be depised in such a predicament. The commission does the appointing, and with the responsibility out of the hands of the private member the latter has only to point out the facts to the horde of office-seekers. They do not like the situation, of course, but what is to be done but accept matters philosophically? It is a disappointment to find that success at the polls does not carry with it the old rewards, but it is to be imagined that the bull of Canadians find no fault with the new conditions, while to the members, who otherwise would have their hands full, the plan is a great improvement over the old method. Hhe abolition of this form of patronage was one of the best pieces of legislation the Union Government was responsible for, and it is not likely there will be any material change in the regulations under the new regime.

AN IMAGINARY FAMILY OF FIVE.

One of the utterly vicious fallacies propagated by the Bolshevist administrators of Wilson's Labor Department was the mythical "family of five" which it set up as the standard of wages for labor in this country, says Barron's. It assumed that each such family had only one worker to sustain it, and, calculating on a basis of war prices, it postulated $2,260 as the minimum wage for what it was pleased to call the American standard of living. Eliott Frost, of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, recently pointed out the utter falsity of the Labor Department's assumption. The average American family is not five, but 4.3—an error of 14 per cent. at the start. But the proportion of workers, those in "gainful employment," in receipt of salaries or wages, is not one for each five persons, but one in 2.56. The Labor Department's supposititious "family of five" would in any case have an average of two bread-winners. Out of a population of 105,000,000 there are nearly 42,000,000 wage or salary earners. The average American economic family may therefore be called 2.52, and not 5 or even 4.3. Labor's claim that it contains five persons practically doubles the fact.

And when Mr. Frost discusses the question of where the $2,260 per worker is to come from, he is on even firmer ground. In 1920 the total income of this country was approximately $63,000,000,000. That income for 1921 will probably show a decline of $10,000,000,000. Out of this possible $53,000,000,000 must come the wages of capital, taxes, overhead expenses, depreciation and the indispensable setting aside of new capital for the further development of industry. All this must be done before any salaries or wages can be paid. But if labor's demanded $2,260 is multiplied by the 42,000,000 workers, we have a total of nearly $95,000,000,000, or nearly double the entire income of the country available for all purposes.

Mr. Frost estimates that, counting agricultural workers, (the lowest paid), the amount received out of the national income by employees averages about 53 per cent. Of course, in some instances it is much higher, rising to 80 per cent. But suppose we are wildly liberal to the employee and give him 75 per cent. of the income, at the risk of driving the railroads into bankruptcy, robbing the bondholder, starving maintenance and overhead, and abandoning development altogether? Even then the average income for the wage or salary earner would be $892.86 per year. This is the widest imaginable maximum and barely one-third of the Wilson Department of Labor's thoroughly mischievous estimate. There is no such thing as Adam Smith's wage fund. Wages come out of production. If we paid even such wages as this, it would only be at the cost of production. In other words, we could do so for about one year and then all go to the devil together, following in the footsteps of Russia.

TOWNS WITHOUT DOLES.

If it were possible to carry out Premier Drury's idea that manufacturig industries should be distributed throughout the towns and smaller cities of the Province instead of being hived together in the larger centres such as Toronto and Montreal, certain desirable results might be guaranteed from the conditions that may be observed in towns near Peterborough. Campbellford and Hastings; the one a town and the other a village, are examples of peaceful, thriving small communities depending to some extent upon the neighboring farmers for some of their prosperity, but in the main deriving the buk of their business and employment from soundly established and flourishing manfacturies.

In neither of these places has the universal period of industrial depression had any serious consequences. Their main factories faltered for a short time some twelve months ago, but it was only a faint effect of the so-called deflation from which there was a quick and complete recovery. Today they have none of the troubles that beset the big cities, no thousands of unemployed men, no bread lines, no public doles of food and fuel. Perhaps their particular industries were not of the class most seriously affected by the slow process of recovery from the splurge caused by war demands, but at any rate they afford a striking contrast with the big manufacturing centres and their economic problems and worries.

Most of the employees of these small towns are property owners. They are home-builders, not apartment dwellers. Apparently they work in friendly and harmonious relations with their employers whom they know and regard as fellow-citizens. Class divisions here are almost non-existent in the everyday course of life. Main street in these towns, no doubt, lacks the lure and the glamour of the famous thoroughfares of this or that metropolis, but strangers are the conspicuous exception on its sidewalks. Wholesome pleasures are amply provided in all the towns of this Trent district, and for six months of the year they are summer resorts, offering healthful enjoyments at little or no expense.

These are a few of the advantages which may have been in Premier Drury's thoughts when he suggested the decentralization of industry. If they appealed as strongly to manufacturers there would be more likelihood of the small cities receiving more attention when new factories are to be built. Certainly the country as a whole should profit if the ideal of many Labour leaders were realized in the development of the towns instead of the herding of people in big cities. Thriving industrial towns such as we have in this district are surely preferable in a great many respects to the overcrowded cities with all their opportunities, but usually too their distress and occasional turbulence.

PLENTY OF SOAP NOW.

The wholesale price of soap is coming down, a fact which makes for increased health, comfort and general enjoyment of life. It will be remembered how once it was predicted that "grease will win the war." Not the least potent of the phases of this element was soap-grease. Unquestionably the lack of soap with the consequent discomfort, disgust and damage to health, had great influence in breaking the morale of the warring nations.

Such well-known facts of recent history might lead one to speculate upon the hard lot of the human race before soap was invented. Soap was little used in France until the Twelfth Century and in England not until 200 years later. Did this fact have anything to do with the prevalence of disease and the terrible ravages of epidemics?

The ancient Roman or Greek made up for the lack of soap by smearing himself with oil, taking daily hot baths after which he scraped his entire body with a strigil made of bone, iron, bronze or silver, according to his means and social position. These processes took a good deal of time and kept the ancient gentleman, philosopher and politician gossiping with his fellows through the better part of the morning, the only merit which can be chalked up to the account of a scarcity of soap.

But think of the fortitude of whole races of men who kept their faces clean-shaven without the aid of lather. The courage of the patriarch and prophet, Joseph, is well known from the scripture story, but no passage more convincingly proves it than that which tells how he was summoned before Pharaoh. The record says he shaved himself. It took a brave man to shave himself with the razor Joseph probably had in ancient Egypt and without soap.—Detroit News.

More serious injury would have resulted but for the great presence of mind of the young lady in jumping into a marcel wave.

WAS TROUBLED WITH HER LIVER FOR OVER 4 MONTHS

When the liver becomes slow, sluggish and torpid it is not working properly and does not supply sufficient bile to thoroughly act on the bowels and carry off the waste products of the system, hence the bowels become clogged up, the bile gets into the blood, constipation sets in and liver troubles follow among which are, sick or billious headaches, heartburn, water brash, jaundice, floating specks before the eyes, pain under the right shoulder, coated tongue, bad breath, yellow eyes, etc.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS

quickly remove the secretions, clear away the effete and waste matter by acting directly on the liver, and making the bile pass through the bowels instead of allowing it to get into the blood.

Mrs. Alice Mehill, Napanee, Ont. writes:—"I was very badly run down for over four months. I tried several remedies, but got no relief. One day my husband brought me home a vial of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and before I had used half of it I was much better. I only used two vials and I am a different person today.

I can safely recommend Laxa-Liver Pills to any one troubled with liver trouble."

Voice Of The People

HOME TALENT.

Editor of Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Your editorial under the heading "Develop Home Talent," in your issue of Monday, January 30th, is a very timely one. What ever the reason, it is a fact that Peterborough home talent does not as a rule receive the reception it deserves. A case which demonstrates this point conclusively is the fact that one of our local organizations held two social functions recently. For the first one, a Toronto orchestra was "imported" at a very heavy expense; for the second, a local orchestra was engaged at considerable less cost, as travelling expenses and hotel bills were saved. The quality of the music was infinitely superior to the "imported."

There is in Peterborough today a very great deal of young talent awaiting encouragement and development. For the past three years the Y.M.C.A. minstrels, under the able leadership of Mr. Asa Huycke, have been putting on a splendid performance annually, the entertainers being all bona fide home talent and, as such, deserving of the patronage of the citizens.

The Rotary Club of Peterborough is deeply interested in all phases of the development of "the boy," and in the coming performance of the Y.M.C.A. minstrels by the "Y" boys I believe that Peterborough generally has an excellent opportunity to show that it is not entirely unappreciative of deserving home talent.

Yours truly,
FRED. L. ROY,
President,
Rotary Club of Peterborough.

GIRL'S STATEMENT WILL HELP PETERBOROUGH

Many women will profit by the following statement of one of their sex: "I was afraid to eat on account of stomach trouble. Even rice did not agree. After taking Adler-i-ka I can eat anything." Alder-i-ka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel, removing foul matter which poisoned stomach. EXCELLENT for gas on the stomach or sour stomach. Guards against appendicitis. It brings out poisonous matter you never thought was in your system. McDermid & Jury and E. L. Payne, Druggists.

BITTERNESS AMONG BURMESE NOW.

Five Nationalists Arrested Before Prince's Arrival.

(Associated Press)

RANGOON, Jan. 31.—The arrest of five Burma Nationalist leaders here just before the arrival of the Prince of Wales and their removal to northern Burma for interment caused considerable excitement and intense bitterness among the Burmese Nationalists.

Among these arrested were U. Chit Plaing, president of the General Council of Burmese Associations and U Ba Hlaing, editor of New Burma, one of the leading Nationalist newspapers published in Ragoon.

In setting forth the reasons for their interment, Lieutenant Governor Sir R. H. Craddock, declared in an address before the Burma Legislative Council, that there was in Burma a small political clique animated by race hatred and by a desire to subvert the authority of the government and take the reins of power into their own hands. These men, he said, were using every means, fair and foul, to make the Prince's visit a failure.

Summing up the political situation in Burma, he declared that this clique had first, a year ago, sought the same constitutional reforms that had been given to the provinces of India but that when they saw that this was likely to be granted, they had made it clear that what they wanted, or professed to want, was home rule outside the British Empire.

Having captured the political machine, he asserted, these men were endeavoring to tyrannize over the people of Burma by use of the boycott.

"They are careful to pay a lip-worship on every possible occasion to the so-called doctrine of non violence," the Lieutenant Governor said. 'They are far too solicitious of their own safety to indulge in any violence but they care nothing that their preachings and intimidation may inevitably dear to the use of x must inevitably lead to the use of violence by their dupes".

THE HEALTHY MAN HAS THE BEST CHANCE

Is Always Full of Life and Energy —Failures Are Weak and Bloodless.

Some men seem to have all the luck. If there are any good things going these men seem to get them. If they are business men they are successful; if they are workmen they get the forman's job. They have the power of influencing people.

The same is true of women. Some have the charm that makes men seek them out; others are neglected But this is not luck. It is due to a personal gift—vitality. Men and women of this sort are never weak, puny invalids. They may not be big, but they are full of life and energy. The whole thing is a matter of good blood, good nerves and good health. Everyone would wish to be like this and the qualities that make for vitality and energy are purely a matter of health. By building up the blood and nerves, sleeplessness, want of energy weakness of the back, headaches and the ineffectual sort of presence which really comes from weakness can be got rid of. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made many weak, tired, men vigorous, and many pale dejected girls and women, rosy and atractive, by improving their blood and toning up their nerves. If you are weak, low-spirited or unhealthy try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and note their beneficial effect.

You can get these pills through and medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

For Women

When insects or moth-like creatures get into a package of flour, sift it, put it in the oven and bake thoroughly; then set aside for making wall paper paste.

Fresh buttermilk or that prepared with the special tablets which come for the purpose, sold by the druggist is an excellent beverage to induce sleep, to regulate a disordered stomach or to stimulate a torpid liver.

In order to avoid all possible chance of accident, label all poison bottles in red and tie a red string around the neck of the bottle; or push a round headed pin in the cork so that each container may be recognized even in the dark.

If the taste of olive oil, or even mineral oil, which is so much used now is disagreeabe, mask or change the flavor slightly by a generous pinch of salt.

In the spingtime, when the system is inclined to be debilitated from indoor living and hearty foods, eat lettuce for the nerves, spinach for the blood and bowels; celery for rheumatic tendencies; asparagus for kidney stimulation, and beets and turnips for the iron they contain.

Few people realize how easy it is to prevent an offensive foul breath by keeping the teeth clean and the bowels active.

Marie dear:

Thankfully for recommending

Campana's Italian Balm

It certainly is wonderful. My poor hands are ever more presentable. As I told you, the cold weather and work played with them. But Campana's Italian Balm softened and whitened them in quick order, and what more, it is keeping them soft and white. And, by, its so useful for preventing chilblains and cracked lips. The children are crazy about it. I'm really grateful to you for telling me about it.

Lovingly Pegg.

DO YOU SMOKE TOO MUCH?

There are many men on whose heart and nervous system tobacco produces the most serious results. It causes palpitation, pain in the heart, irregularity of its beat, makes the hands tremble, sets the nerves on edge, causes shortness of breath and loss of sleep.

To counteract this demoralizing influence on the heart and nerves there is no remedy to equal

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

They make the heart beat strong and steady, restore tone and vigor to the nerves, and remove all the evil results caused by tobacco.

Mr. Frank Lutes, 71 Terrace Hill St., Brantford, Ont. writes:—"I had been troubled witr palpitation of the heart for a number of years, and by spells it would bother me a lot. The doctor told me it would stop sometime if I could cut out tobacco. When I would get a spell my heart would pound and would break out in perspiration, and get so weak I would have to sit down and quit my work; also in the night I would wake up and my heart would be going, I should say, about 120 beats a minute. About three years ago I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, took them, and found that they did the job. I am feeling fine and have gained over 20 pounds in weight."

The First Beams of Spring Sunlight Reveal

New Silk Frocks

In All Their Freshness

WE GLADLY ANNOUNCE this first glimpse of spring frocks because they are so representative of all that is correct for the rapidly approaching spring season. The long-waisted basque, the long-waisted straight-line order, the lengthened sleeve, the Oriental sleeve that is copied from the flowing robes of the Far East and innumerable other novel treatments that will make the spring of 1922 a new era in Styledom.

BLACK TAFFETA combined with scarlet georgette crepe. It sounds daring, but is really only distinctive. The sleeves are of the georgette and are Oriental style, commencing just above the waist-line, and maintaining an equal width to the cuff. They are adorned with five rows of one-inch black lacquered ribbon. The georgette again appears on the skirt, and is relieved with a double row of the ribbon. The panel waist is of taffeta and the skirt is full gathered style. Priced at $42.

IT IS NAVY BLUE and yet able to hold itself aloof from the common-place. It is of canton crepe and slightly on the long-waisted order, but its principal claim to distinction lies in the charm of the navy georgette panels on the side and garnished with a large wheel formed of blue and gold shot picot edged ribbon with three loose ends descending from beneath. The sleeves come to the wrists, where they are narrowed and have inset panels of the crepe. Priced at $45.

A DEEP RICH SHADE of brown canton crepe forms the nucleus for this model. The blouse is semi-basque with little folds or puffs over the hips, and from these same puffs commence the wide loose panels of chantilly lace which is in alternate rows of brown and sand. The sleeves are 3-4 length with lace starting at the elbows and forming a very wide cuff. Priced at $45.

DESIGNED for a slender figure and one of quiet taste is this model of navy taffeta with a pointed basque bodice. The skirt is gathered and full, and just below the waist-line, and continuing all around, is a five-inch sand colored georgette band that makes a back ground for a series of flowers of navy blue taffeta. The short sleeves are slashed and treated in a similar manner. Priced at $27.50.

NAVY TAFFETA again, but with an unusual treatment of narrow white braid. There are eight circular rows of the braid on the skirt and five rows on each of the short sleeves. The bodice fits the figure, the neck is round and plain, and a soft girdle with a bow on the left side encircles the waist. Priced at $32.50.

DEEP NAVY BLUE CHARMEUSE with a sudden and lone dash of color in the form of a narrow burnt orange ribbon sash at the waist. The last ten inches of the skirt are a mass of ruffles of narrow navy blue ribbon in innumerable rows and the short sleeves are treated in a like manner. The bodice is plain but effective. Priced at $35.

Estimated Expenditure For City Fire Department, 1922

Following are the estimates of expenditure on the Peterborough Fire Department for 1922, submitted by Chief George Grange to Council's Fire, Water and Light Committee. Action by committee has been deferred for analysis at an early date. The net decrease in this year's demand from 1921's budget is $7,355.48. In presenting the figures below to the committee, Chief Grange enclosed the following preamble:

"Only the most essential items are included in the list. Among those not included and that are very necessary is a new car, frequently spoken of as the 'Chief's car,' but actually for the use of the entire department. This car would be used for small alarms and the other heavier apparatus kept in the station for alarms where all the department is required. This car was included in the estimates for 1920 and 1921 without result. If this piece of apparatus were not badly needed I would not again bring it to your attention. The old Ford car in service is not efficient and is not safe. It is not heavy enough to hold to the road when driving at speed, and there is great danger at street intersections. The cost of upkeep is too great each year. The repair bill this year for the car was $428.88. For two reasons I am extremely anxious that this piece of apparatus should be purchased—that we may give improved service and that the annual expense may be reduced.

"Six hundred feet of fire hose should be purchased in order that our stock may be kept up to the amount required for cities the size of Peterborough.

"Last year I estimated on two smoke helmets, but the price had soared to $180.00, and nothing was done respecting them. The price has now returned to normal, and I am again presenting the request.

"One thirty-foot wall ladder has been unfit for service for two years, and a new one is included in the estimate.

"The stock of service equipment is very much depleted and six helmets and one dozen rubber coats are very necessary.

"Fire extinguisher supplies include two new chemical extinguishers to replace two that are unfit for further service.

"Another item left over from last year is two Foamite firefoam tanks. These are very necessary at oil fires."

MRS. ASQUITH REFERS CRITICS

But I fear, from what I hear, that it is only enforced so that the poor can have no liquor while the rich can have all they want."

The divorce question is in about the same position in England, Mrs. Asquith asserted later, the rich being able to obtain divorces, while the poor were denied them.

"I understand in this country" she said, "that the law is different in every State, so that if you cross the boundaries you may have all the husbands you want. Isn't that so?"

Asks If Jazz Means Jargon

One of the large group of interviewers that encircled Mrs. Asquith asked her if the younger generation was "going to the dogs" as fast as it was alleged to be doing here. In her opinion the speed of the younger set to-day was about the same as it was some years ago. In this connection some one mentioned the word "jazz" and Mrs. Asquith said quickly:

"I don't think that is confined to the young. I think we all use slang more or less. That is what you mean isn't it? 'Jazz' means jargon, does it not!"

Mrs. Asquith declined to comment on Lloyd George, Lady Astor or other persons mentioned and said she intended to keep off the subject of politics.

"Is the Premier, Lloyd George, as popular with the British public as he was?' she was asked.

"Is that so, I always thought the 'yellow press' meant the Chinese."

Mrs. Asquith said women in politics had failed as yet to make their mark in England. She attributed their failure, as she saw, it to their lack of experience.

Mrs. Asquith remained in her cabin for the whole voyage until Sunday night, when she went to the saloon for dinner. She said that it had been "frightfully rough." After the ship left Quarantine she went on deck at the request of photographers, but she told them to hurry up as it was too cold to stand there long.

The wife is the former Premier was met at the pier by her son-in-law, the Prince Bibesco the Rumanian Minister at Washington, who came here to meet her.

LIMITATIONS OF EXERCISES

narrow limits are not necessarily permanent and immutable. No matter how old a man may be he can go into training. Indeed, the only person who cannot conceivably improve his health, i. e., his response to effort, is a dead person.

Limitations of Exercise.

Every sedentary liver has narrow limits of exertion for the reason that his body is imperfectly purged of waste products, his heart is not "tuned up" to work and his muscles are flabby. But it is manifest that he can alter this condition if he choose. It is manifest that if he obtains regular exercise within his limits, his limits will gradually expand, the physician states.

Thus, if a man who has always taken exercise finds that at 50 he cannot do what he did at 40 without some discomfort, he need give himself no anxiety. He has been living up to his capacity and that is gradually diminishing. He should be content.

If, however, a man of 50 who has not taken exercise finds that his limits are becoming narrower, he need not conclude that this is due to old age. It may be due to his bad habits. For he is not living up to his capacity, but considerably below it. This man, on taking exercise, may discover that, gradually, his limits get wider again until they reach or approach the average for his time of life, says the physician.

In each individual case the circumstances are different. Yet the rule holds.

The middle-aged man should, therefore, see to it that he confines his activities within the limits of his comfort, concludes the writer. Now and again, by way of trial, he may cautiously attempt activities which have formerly caused him distress. If they no longer cause distress, he is entitled to congratulate himself. He is fitter than he was.

husband with good books, good music and other entertainment."

The Trouble With the World.

"The trouble with the world to-day is it is too much concerned with the dancing floor and not with the men the men under the floor who hold it up," said Dr. Grant. He quoted an authority who said the three necessities for happiness were health, peace and competence.

"Does jazz promote any of these three?" he asked.

"Jazz is a picture of the world fiddling, or the leisure of the few, while the rest of the world burns up like some under Nero. "The Church is the best remedy for jazz. The words of Christ 'Follow me' is the only cure for his madness."

Dr. Grant praised the author of the play.

Before beginning his sermon Dr. Grant criticised the fact that the Knights of Columbus were permitted to solicit contributions for their local building from public school teachers.

"That is a pretty state of things" he said, "especially as they represent a church which does not believe in the public school system."

a single exposure may mean disease and death.

Pasteurie Milk.

1. Danger from bovine tuberculosis should not be overlookede, and all milk should be pasteurized.

2. In children over three years of age the problem is different. It is no longer possible to secure the same isolation, nor is it desirable. A child is bound to be infected, but with small doses, and develops immunity. But care must be taken to keep up the resistance to as high a degree as possible, by good food, fresh air and plenty of rest.

3. In adults, the problem of prevention is of less importance, as they are less susceptible. What adults have most to fear is not infection from within, but an extension of infection which they already have, and which was most probably acquired in childhood.

Of course, all adults, should avoid prolonged and intimate contact with a grossly careless tuberculous person, but there is little to be feared from a careful patient.

As said before, the usual form seen in adults is due to extension of infection received in childhood. To avoid this it is necessary to build up resistance against infection already received by avoiding overwork, under-feeding, poor housing, bad ventilation— in fact everything that will improve the general living conditions, is a step towards the conquest of tuberculosis.

Problems in the Fight.

We may sum up the real problems in the fight against tuberculosis as follows:

1. The prevention of infection in children, "especially under three years of age."

2. The best method of giving assistance to tuberculous persons who are anxious to do all they can to live so as not to be a menace to others.

3. The method of dealing with careless, incorrigible consumptives.

Much might be said under this head, but the main weapons in the fight to protect those not infected, and to care for those already infected, may be thus tabulated:

1. Educational propaganda.

2. Absolute protection of infants under 3 years.

3. Careful protection of young children from disease while immunity is developed.

A more rational attitude toward and treatment of adults suffering from Tuberclosis.

5. Financial assistance for the needy.

6. Detention of incorrigibles in institutions.

AN ARMY MARCHES ON ITS STOMACH, SAID NAPOLEON

THE GREAT CORSICAN KNEW THAT SUCCESS IN LIFE DEPENDS UFON YOUR STRENGTH, ENERGY AND ENDURANCE

(By HARRISON VAUGHN)

When Napoleon led his victorious armies through Europe, his worst enemies were not the nations defending themselves against his smashing onslaught; but he was confronted by the graver question of how to provide nourishing and strengthening food for his soldiers.

The Great Corsican realized long over a century ago, as has every commanding general since, that men's bodies must be perfectly nourished if they are to retain their natural strength, energy, and vigour; in fact, that the very health of the human being is regulated almost entirely by the stomach. Under-feeding, insufficient nourishment, means loss of flesh, anaemia, lack of red blood and subsequent weakness of the entire system.

What such people need to enable nature to bring back their strength and vigour, restore their lost weight, and put them in fighting trim, with rich, red blood coursing through their veins is Tanlac, the powerful reconstructive tonic and body builder.

A man or woman suffering from sour stomach, bad breath, biliousness, indigestion, or gas on stomach, is unfitted either for physical or mental labour. Sufferers from these ailments find life a burden; they look on the world through blue glasses, the joy and rewards of the vigorous, happy, normally healthy person is not theirs. Their troubles embitter them against the world, destroy their ambitions, and make their lives dull an dunhappy.

How foolish to continue in this condition when on every hand throughout the length and breadth of the land, people by the thousands are daily testifying to the remarkable powers of Tanlac in conquering stomach troubles. This powerful reconstructive medicine builds up the weak and the despondent; gives them new hope and happiness, and a new lease on life.

Tanlac's name has been praised by hundreds of thousands. Testimonials from every corner of the United States and Canada have shown conclusively that even in cases where patients had almost given up all hope and where men and women had believed themselves doomed to a life of misery and suffering, Tanlac has overcome their troubles and brought back health, energy, and happiness into their lives.

If you are not "fit as a fiddle" in the morning and don't feel better than when you went to bed; if your breath is offensive and you have that bad taste in your mouth, your body is not being nourished properly. What you need is Tanlac to restore you to normal so Nature can bring back the flesh you've lost, put the bloom of health in your cheeks, the spring of energy in your step, and the sparkle of happiness and contentment in your eye.

Note.—Tanlac Vegetable Pills are an essential and vitally important part of the Tanlac treatment. You cannot hope to get the most satisfactory results from Tanlac without first establishing a free and regular movement of the bowels. Tanlac Vegetable Pills are absolutely free from calomel, and are sold on a positive guarantee to give satisfaction.

Tanlac is sold by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

LINEN ECONOMY

The International Exploits Of Christopher Poe.

A SERIES OF 10 THRILLING DETECTIVE STORIES By ROBERT CARLTON BROWN -

World Color Ptg. Co. St. Louis, Mo.

A Manicure Shop Mystery

By Robert Carlton Brown

"BOUDINOT dead!" cried Christopher Poe, the New York banker, jumping up to throw a light spring coat over a thin office suit cut Oxford style. "I must go there directly."

"Poisoned, too, Dr. Robinson says. Just met him on the way home to make a test of Boudinot's gouty blood," said the informant, a fellow banker.

Christopher Poe waited for nothing else. Old Boudinot Riggs was a distant relation, a temperamental dilettante, sort of a fat grown-up bad boy, who had inherited a fondness for beauty and indolence, together with something between three and four million beautiful but not too indulgent dollars which yielded money interest that Boudinot managed to keep very active, hemmed in as he was by a household of women, including a kindly old dependent who nursed him, a somewhat shrewish sister who despised him, a young lady secretary who took the place of a business man's stenographer and a raft of interested outsiders, poor relations, a lady barber, a lady shirtmaker, a girl who sold him cigarettes and a petite French manicure. A popular description of Boudinot among the men who knew him was, "A large body with gout entirely surrounded by women."

Three of them were most important in his life. Mrs. Groves, the dependent nurse, because she mothered him, Miss Riggs, his sister, because she bothered him and Miss Mignon Moquin because she manicured the squat pink nails of which he was very proud. In consideration of the varying degrees of his interest in these estimable ladies Boudinot had made a will, more or less publicly, in which he left three million to Miss Mignon Moquin, a half million to his faithful old nurse and a thousand dollars each to his expectant sister, who had no private fortune, his secretary, his cook and a little scullery maid who polished his boots each night and left them before his door each morning, after the English fashion.

It was this second maid who opened the door to Christopher Poe that afternoon of Boudinot's death. It was Mrs. Groves, the nurse, red-eyed and trembling, who pressed Poe's hand with sincere emotion and led him to Miss Riggs, who had just been called back by the news of her brother's death from Yonkers, where she had gone on a visit that morning.

Poe took the cold hand Miss Riggs thrust out to him mechanically. "Isn't there something I can do?" he asked.

"No, everything is quite all right."

"But being Boudinot's friend and banker, I thought—"

"As for your being his banker," she said, throwing up her hand abruptly, "I'll attend to that after this. Perhaps you don't know that Boudinot came to his senses last night and changed my name for Miss Moquin's in that silly will of his?"

"No!" cried Poe in surprise, glancing at Mrs. Groves, whose eyes were so big and sombre and sad, as though with a concealed story, that Poe asked sharply, "Did you know of this?"

The nervous, bird-like little woman looked straight at Miss Riggs and said in a direct, level tone, "If you hadn't slandered Miss Moquin and—and driven him to it, he wouldn't have done it. This morning when you said you wished he was dead and slammed the door in his face he asked me to take him in his wheel chair to Miss Moquin so he could see if you told the truth last night."

Miss Riggs drew up her thin, cordy neck and swallowed hard as Mrs. Groves paused before continuing in a higher key: "Oh, I'm going to speak out now. I've kept quiet in this hell of a house long enough!" She trembled with emotion. "I was the only one that ever took care of him; I saw that his eggs were poached, just so; I nursed him when his foot was so bad he swore at everybody, I—"

"And you're well paid for it!" snapped Miss Riggs in a voice that sounded like a slap in the face. "He left you half a million."

Mrs. Groves face had bunched together in an agonized knot. "How can you talk like that, with his lying in there!" she cried. "It isn't money I'm speaking of, though God knows he wouldn't have left me a cent if he'd listened to the things you said against me."

"You liar!" screamed Miss Riggs in treacherous rage.

"Miss Riggs," put in Poe calmly, touching her softly on the shoulder. "Your brother," he indicated the adjoining room. "This will rest till later when—"

"Oh, I don't care about him. What did he ever do for me?" she burst out violently, an hysterical, dry sob escaping her.

"Try to calm yourself, Miss Riggs," Poe put in softly, adding in a casual tone, "Have they found yet what kind of poison was used?"

"Poison!" Miss Riggs jumped to her feet, drew her arms down taut in an effort at self-control, her face went dead white and she glanced quickly from Mrs. Groves to Poe, both watching her keenly.

"Well, what kind of poison do they think it was and who do you think did it?" she asked in a dry voice, each word an effort.

"Oh, it hasn't gone that far," said the banker in a concerned tone. "I learned of it from a friend and stopped to see Dr. Robinson before I came here. He was making a test of the blood; said as far as he'd gone all indications pointed to prussic acid."

"Prussic acid!" cried Miss Riggs, and Mrs. Groves hovered closer, looking from one to the other with awed, hollow eyes.

"Yes, three grains of which, less than a drop, absorbed by the blood will cause death," said Poe calmly, his eyes on the carpet, though he saw Miss Riggs glance furtively at Mrs. Groves and her expression grew hard.

"Then Miss Moquin disliked being cut out of the will?" she forced a laugh.

"You mean you think she—"

"Either Miss Moquin or his nurse," she pointed an unsteady finger at Mrs. Groves.

"Oh, I'm sure you're quite too wrought up by the announcement I made; I should have been more thoughtful," there was shrewdness in his tone.

Mrs. Groves put a timid hand on his arm and asked tremulously, "Who do you think did it, Mr. Poe?

"My dear lady, I only wish I knew," said Poe vibrantly, adding, "we all wish we knew, don't we, Miss Riggs?"

She replied sullenly: "I don't care who pois—how Boudinot died, only if that little French manicure did it it would confirm my opinion of her."

"Where is her place?" asked Poe casually. "Is she near here?"

"Ask Mrs. Groves, she generally wheeled him there," said Miss Riggs evasively, dropping her eyes sullenly as Poe looked at her.

"Not two blocks away, just at the corner, on Broadway," replied Mrs. Groves with eager promptness.

Poe picked up his hat, saying, "If I can do anything you will feel free to call on me, won't you, Miss Riggs?"

The pinch-nosed, aristocratic woman rose and fixed her bead-like eyes on him. "There won't be anything," she said decidedly. "Boudinot will be buried at once and I shall take my money and go to Europe to live the rest of my life."

"I hope you may," said the banker bowing.

"Why shouldn't I?"

"Oh, the state might make inquiries," he turned to explain, "that is, if Boudinot was really poisoned. That might detain you."

"I don't see how they could detain me!" she cried. "Why, I wasn't even here when he died."

"But you hadn't left home more than an hour or so before; when the state makes an inquiry it is apt to want to keep track of everybody immediately concerned, but I hope if there is an investigation it will not trouble either you are Mrs. Groves."

As he stepped into the hall Mrs. Groves hovered solicitiously near and asked in an awed whisper. "Would you like to see the body?"

"Not now, later, if I—still, I rather think I would." Christopher Poe changed his mind abruptly and stepped into the room.

As Dr. Robinson had already told him, there was not a single bodily indication of how Boudinot Riggs had died; not a bruise, not a scratch. While Mrs. Groves answered a call to another part of the house Poe made a hasty but minute examination of the exposed skin, finding but little on which to base a vague theory forming in his mind.

Then, a worried look expressing itself in two thoughtful grooves joining his nostrils with the corners of his lips, he left the house abruptly and crossed to Broadway where, from a booth in a corner drug store he called up his friend, Dr. Robinson, with whom he sometimes worked in his avocation of solving mysteries and trapping criminals.

"Hello, this is Poe," he said, on getting the doctor at the other end of the wire. "Found out for sure?"

"Yes, no doubt at all. Injected hydrocanic acid. I used the ammonia ferrous sulphate test. Probably not more than three grains absorbed, I should say," came the answer.

"Do you think he drank it?"

"No. There was no odor of it about his mouth, but the blood shows it. I can't imagine how it was introduced. There wasn't a scratch on his body, as I told you."

"Delay reporting it for two hours, will you? It may save some trouble to several people."

"On your say-so, of course, Poe. Got anything to work on?"

"Not much so far. Let's see, it's about three o'clock now. Say six-thirty. Be at home then?"

"Yes. Come to dinner."

"If I feel I can finish and turn over the right person without outside help I will, otherwise I'll 'phone you. Good-bye.

Poe hung up the receiver and left the booth, stopping to buy a half dozen orange wood sticks at the counter.

While the druggist was waiting on him Poe asked if there was a manicure shop in the neighborhood.

"Miss Moquon's, on the opposite corner," the druggist nodded through his window. "The news-stand is right in front of it there."

He sauntered across the street, opening the package in his pocket as he went and purposely jabbing himself in the cuticle of the forefinger with one of the sharp sticks just before entering the manicure parlor, which consisted of a single small room with a petite show case of hair goods and toilet articles in front and a Japanese screen across one corner, concealing a nook in which Miss Mignon Moquin held and manicured hands, gentle-fascinating manner.

She stood behind her show case as Poe entered, a radiant little French woman, a coquette with a sprightly, fascinating manner.

"What can I do for monsieur?" she said prettily, tripping forward and gazing up into his face with ingenious concern.

"I'm needing a manicure badly, I guess," he said, exhibiting his hand, none too soft and well cared-for.

"Oh, Monsieur!" she gasped fetchingly, "you do not treat ze little nails with respect. You have a hurt, too." She gazed at the finger tips with intimate, personal concern, bringing them instinctively toward her lips as though she would kiss the bruise; then letting them drop and starting back consciously, blushing in practical alarm.

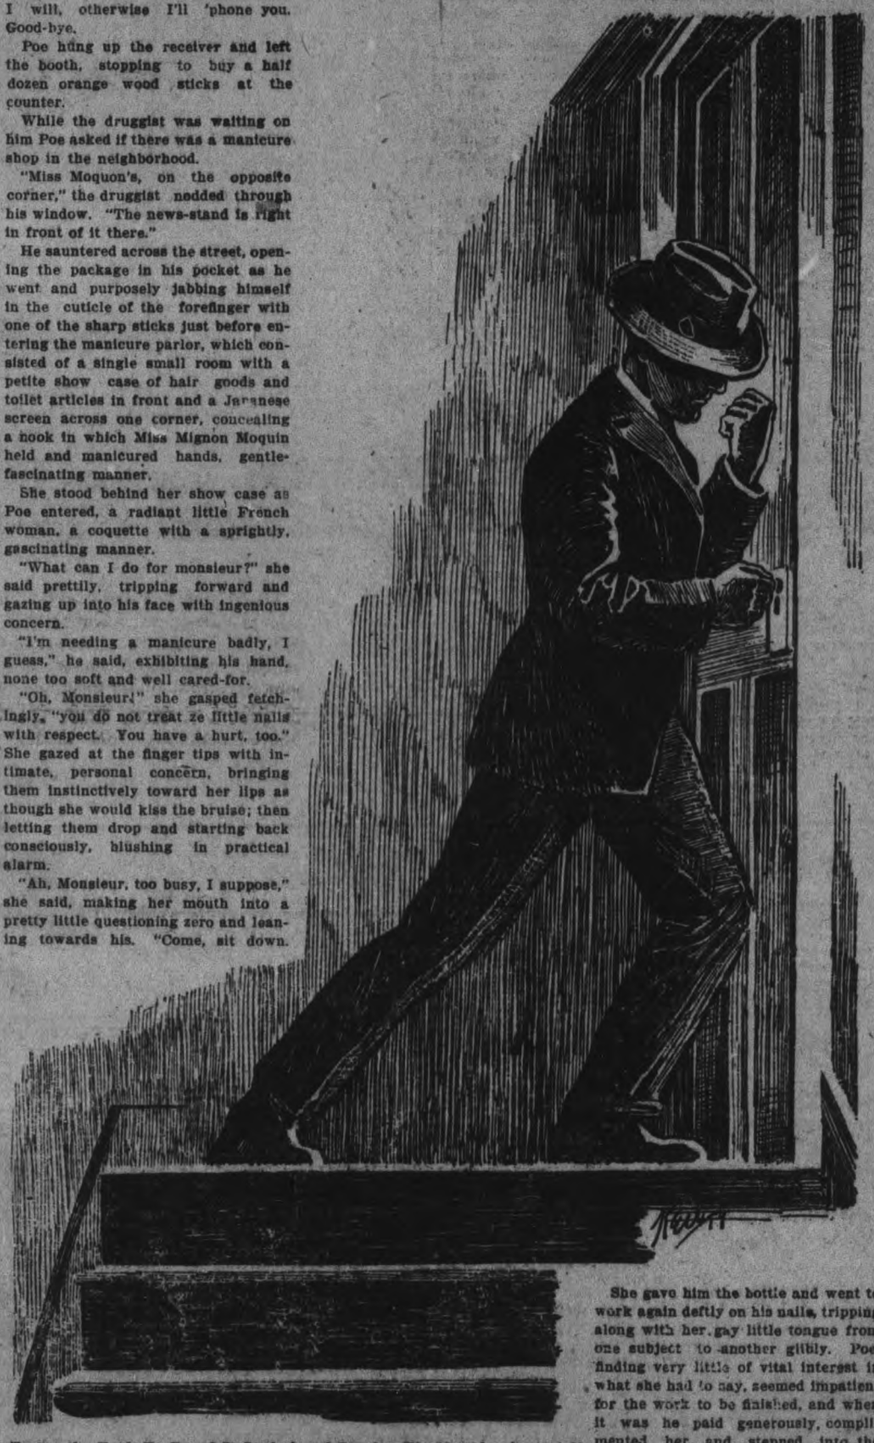
"Ah, Monsieur, too busy, I suppose," she said, making her mouth into a pretty little questioning zero and leaning towards his. "Come, sit down. up at him with a sprightly smile and extending his fingers on her aproned knee.

"There are little stains in the tiny cracks around your nail. I must use my little orange stick and ongoline to get them out, Monsieur, and then we will soak it and pretty soon it shall act better. You will get a hangnail there if it is not fixed," she indicated the bruise Poe had inflicted on himself. "I had a customer this morning with a bad one, but yours is not so serious. It was most difficult to get ze stain out for him, he cried with pain sometimes when the stick slipped, but Monsieur will be more brave," she said glibly, busily pushing back the hard cuticle about the bruised finger petal" she said Becky Sharp-ishly, drooping her eyes at his again.

"Yes, you're right," said Poe, interrupting her breezy chatter with, "That reminds me, I want to buy a bottle of ongoline," he nodded toward the show case on the other side of the screen.

Miss Moquin skipped to the front to get the bottle and Poe took advantage of the half minute he had managed to be alone by substituting two of the orange wood sticks he had bought for those Miss Moquin had left on the table before him. He also smelled hastily of her open bottle of ongoline.

When the manicure returned her customer had both hands soaking and was looking placidly at a Japanese print on the wall.



Trying the Knob He Found It Locked and Bracing His Shoulder Against It Managed to Force It In, But Much Too Late to Save the Woman's Life.

The nails shall soon be better, they shall recover." She led him gently by the arm. She helped him sit down as though she were placing an eggshell china tea cup on a narrow plate rack in the dining room. "Now, Monsieur," she said, taking his hand and giving it such a gentle concerned pressure that Poe simulated having succumbed to her charm and breathed softly. "You have a nice, comfortable little place here."

"Oh, sir, you are so kind," she said, forgetting her French for the moment in remembering to blush delicately, like a pink poppy petal.

"Can you put these nails back in shape?" he asked. "You've quite alarmed me. I mustn't let them go so long again."

"You shall see, Monsieur. You must come often to have a manicure," she drew a pan full of water from a small coil heater in the corner, shaved some soothing soap into it, tested its warmth with her little finger, daintily, and then placed his left hand gently into it.

"We will leave that hand cooking Monsieur, while I prepare ze one," she lisped just the least bit, looking tip by means of her little yellow orange stick dipped in stain-remover.

"Ouch!" cried Poe, simulating distress as Miss Moquin slipped the stick carefully under the cuticle. "I won't be as brave as the fellow this morning if you keep that up."

"Then put both hands over to cook, Monsieur," she said, placing the pan more conveniently. "I can not see you suffer."

"If I had a hang-nail, too, I'm afraid I'd be like that fellow you had this morning. I'd holler!"

"Oh, Monsieur, like him!" she cried, her eyes drooping toward him langushingly. "He is fat and so funny. Monsieur is—different. The gentleman this morning was so nervous. He jumped when I touched him, he was so excited he could hardly breathe and his attendant had to help him out of ze shop into his wheel chair like a baby," she put both hands on her knees and laughed. "Oh, he was so funny, gasping for breath like a fish when he lift and popping like a scared rabbit. Men are so funny when they have a little pain and I do not look him at all hard. And the one-line does not burn. Men can not bear

She gave him the bottle and went to work again deftly on his nails, tripping along with her gay little tongue from one subject to another glibly. Poe, finding very little of vital interest in what she had to say, seemed impatient for the work to be finished, and when it was he paid generously, complimented her and stepped into the street, stopping before the news-stand to light a cigar and buy a paper from the boy proprietor. He slipped a half dollar into the youngster's grimy palm and, turning his back to the manicure window said softly, "Follow me around the corner, I want to speak to you a minute, and you can keep the change."

"There's a fat man comes most every day to the manicure shop, sometimes with an old woman who—"

"Yes, I know 'em," the boy interrupted. "He pays a nickel for his paper and swears at the woman; sometimes she wheels him here in a chair. He's got gout."

"That's it. Did you see him this morning, when he entered the shop?"

"Yes. He was pretty mad, I guess, red in the face, and didn't seem to notice me."

"And you saw him when he came out?"

"Yes, he was worse then. Something seemed to have happened to him. He couldn't get his breath and his eyes stared, he looked like the devil. I was waitin' to sell him the paper an' didn't want to miss me nickel, so I kept take o' him through the window; 'fraid I'd miss him when he come out."

"Could you see the manicure table through the window from where you stood?"

"Yes."

"And did you see when—" a man turned into the passageway and Poe pulled the boy aside, whispering the remainder of the sentence in his ear.

"Yes! I seen her do it. I thought there was somethin' funny," the boy looked up suspiciously and edged away, asking, "How'd you know about it?"

"Never mind now," said Poe. "Get a boy to watch your stand for the rest of the afternoon and I'll give you two dollars."

"All right," said the youngster promptly.

Poe scribbled on the back of an envelope:

"Robinson:

"Test these sticks for me. Call me up at Riggs as soon as finished. Keep the boy. P."

Writing Dr. Robinson's address on a fold of the note he wrapped Miss Moquin's orange wood sticks in a clean handkerchief and gave them to the boy with directions.

Then he hurried back to the Riggs house by the most direct route, looking in the gutter as he went. Having almost reached the house and having found nothing, he crossed the street and walked back slowly on the other side.

Suddenly he stopped and, glancing about to see that he was unobserved, scooped up in an empty cigarette box a scattering of glass fragments. He smelled of the pieces, smiled, repeatedly softly. "Peach kernels," put his tongue to the moist surface of one bit of glass and said with satisfaction, "Bitter almonds."

Then, squaring his broad shoulders, he slipped the box into his pocket, took a deep breath and walked briskly to the Riggs house.

There he was admitted by Miss Riggs herself, who raised her eyebrows crittically and asked why he had returned.

"To make sure that the woman who murdered Boudinot does not escape," he said in a direct tone.

Miss Riggs went white and stepped back, Mrs. Groves running down the hall to suport her.

She recovered instantly, standing straight and stiff before the banker.

"What do you mean?" she demanded through thin, trembly lips. "You have learned something?"

"But I did not do it. You're mad!" she cried, turning on Mrs. Groves and pointing an accusing finger. "You mean she did it?"

"Try to calm yourself. I'll explain," Poe turned quickly to Mrs. Groves and asked. "Is there any ongoline in the house?"

"No. There isn't!" cried Miss Riggs, her muscles taut. "Explain! What do you mean by accusing me?"

Mrs. Groves had slipped away silently with a significant signal to Poe. She returned momentarily with a plain bottle in her hand, while Miss Riggs was hysterically demanding an explanation.

Poe took the bottle from Mrs. Groves fingers, uncorked and smelled it.

As he was about to speak the phone rang, and the little second maid who always shined Boudinot's shoes came forward to announce softly that Mr. Poe was wanted on the wire.

The banker answered his call, recognizing the voice of Dr. Robinson at the other end.

"So you found the same acid on the orange wood sticks," he remarked."

"Yes, pure prussic acid on one of them," continued the doctor.

"Good. I'll dine with you—" Poe paused to look at his watch, "in half an hour; about six-thirty."

He hung up the receiver and returned to the room where the two women awaited him, watching each other narrowly.

"Mrs. Groves," said Poe turning to the nurse and holding up the bottle she had brought him. "Why is there no label on this bottle? I thought ongoline always came in a container with an embossed label something like this?" He took from his pocket the bottle he had purchased at Miss Moquin's."

Mrs. Groves gasped for a suppily, gagged and glared at him with half open mouth, unable to answer.

Miss Riggs rose from her chair and stepped to Poe's side.

"She was the poisoner!" she cried, levelling a long, trembling, red-tipped finger at the old attendant, whose eyes grew suddenly small and sharp, like a rat's.

"Yes," answered Poe. "I suspected it from the moment I saw the hangnail on Boudinot's finger. You are a clever poisoner, Mrs. Groves, and I can't blame you for figuring that Miss Riggs might have had your legacy of half a million reduced to a thousand after her success in making Boudinot change his bequest to Miss Moquin. Your only mistake was in keeping this ongoline when you emptied the original bottle to fill it with prussic acid."

"What do you mean?" cried Miss Riggs.

Mrs. Groves, a hunted, insane gleam in her eyes, crouched down and searched in her skirt pocket as though for a handkerchief, keeping her eyes gimleted on Poe.

As the banker turned to answer Miss Riggs, quick as a flash the old attendant brought out her hand and flung the contents of a phial straight at Poe's head; he ducked just in time and the sulphuric acid struck and began eating its way into a choice Japanese tapestry which adorned the wall behind.

She shot out of the room and scurried up the stairs like a cat.

Miss Riggs dashed to the door, screaming for William, the butler.

"Come! Where is her room?" cried Poe, leaping up the stairs. "She'll do herself damage." He turned the angle at the top in time to hear a crash behind a door at the left. Trying the knob he found it locked and bracing his shoulder against it managed to force it in, but much too late to save the woman's life.

She lay across a foot-stool, a jagged wound in her neck where she had opened a jugular vein with an insane thrust of her sharp-pointed sewing shears.

Poe shuddered and turned away. He slipped out through the bed-room door as Miss Riggs was entering.

Going quietly downstairs he entered the telephone cabinet and got Doctor Robinson on the wire.

"Doctor," he said slowly, "I can't come to dinner. You'd best come over to Riggs' and make out a second death certificate. Mrs. Groves has committed suicide in a frenzy at being found out."

"Found out! What do you mean?"

"It was she who bought the prussic acid you found in Boudinot's blood and on the tip of one the orange wood sticks I sent you."

"But explain, what was the motive?"

"Sufficient," said Poe. "Last night Miss Riggs worked on Boudinot with stories about Miss Moquin, doubtless true, from my own observation. He made a new will, changing his sister to position of chief legatee. Mrs. Groves trembled for her half million, knowing that Miss Riggs hated her, probably with more or less good reason. To make sure Miss Riggs would not have her cut off with a thousand the old lady carried out a shrewd scheme she'd evidently figured out some time before when Boudinot disgusted her with his profanity and abuse."

"What was it? How'd she do it?" insisted Dr. Robinson breathlessly. "Have you proofs?"

"Yes, plenty. The boy I sent to you with the orange wood sticks saw through the manicure shop window this morning Mrs. Groves deftly substituting an ongoline bottle filled with prussic acid for the real bottle of stain remover on the manicurist's table. You see, Boudinot had a bad hang nail on the forefinger of his left hand.

"Yes, I noticed it, but didn't think it important enough to mention to you," said Dr. Robinson anxiously.

"Naturally not. But that was the bruise through which the drop of prussic was introduced to Boudinot's blood. You see, Mrs. Groves often wheeled Boudinot to Miss Moquin's and had watched her clean with ongoline and an orange stick beneath the cuticle of his nails."

"Good Lord, man!" cried Dr. Robinson. "You don't mean that she figured out the fiendish scheme of having the manicurist actually introduce the poison by dipping her orange wood stick into the substituted bottle and shoving the poison deep into the cracks and pores around the finger-nails, thinking it was ongoline?".

"That's it exactly, it would throw the blame on the manicure if anything were discovered, you see," said Poe enthusiastically. "Mrs. Groves replaced the genuine bottle of ongoline before leaving, so nobody else would be killed, then she threw the bottle of prussic into the gutter on the way home with Boudinot, gasping for breath and already dying, as graphically described by the manicure and newsboy. I found the pieces of glass, recognized bits of the ongoline label and identified the poison by smell and taste. Not a bad scheme for an old lady; only slip she made was in thriftily saving in a plain bottle the ongoline she had to pour out to get the prussic acid into the right container so the manicurist wouldn't suspect."

The End.

TO-DAY'S FASHIONS

FOR STRENUOUS DAYS

No skirt at all, so this sports costume decides, though it quite makes up its lack of it by the feminine pink and green striped jersey cloth, fringed about with green, that it has chosen for its creation. Scarf collar and jaunty fringed cap are interesting details.

This lake is God's best picture, that is why
He hung it on the mountains at the sky

Headaches Gone

Perhaps you can imagine what this means to one who had suffered terribly with headaches for ten years.

Read about it in this latter.

Mrs. Tena A. Smith, Country Harbor Cross Roads, N. S., writes:

"I feel that if anyone can recommend Dr. Chase's medicines I certainly can. I suffered for ten years from severe headaches, and although I took all kinds of headache powders they just relieved me at the time. I became very nervous and run-down, and everything seemed to trouble me. I have taken eighteen boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and it has made an entirely new person of me. I felt that I could not have lived without it. I do not have one headache now for every hundred I used to have, and my nerves are good and strong. I just weighed 109 pounds when I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and now I weigh 121. Knowing what this treatment has done for me, I cannot too highly recommend it to others."

URIC ACID IN MEAT BRINGS RHEUMATISM

Says a little Salts in water may save you from dread attack.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat, but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

Interest Displayed by Ladies in Peterboro Sport Events

Curling, Hockey and Basketball Are Among Some of the Winter Pastimes of Local Girls —The Basketball Series

The interest displayed by ladies in Peterboro in the different branches of sport in which they are engaged is as keen as ever. Curling, hockey and basketball games are going on all the time.

In the curling, interrupted this week by the men's bonspiel —there are still several rinks to play in the Gibson trophy, and the members have been playing steadily, whenever possible, with good results.

The girls of the hockey team were easy winners at Lakefield last Friday evening, and are playing a return game with Lakefield at the Brock street rink next Monday evening, February 6h., at eight o'cloock sharp. There will probably be a good attendance at this game, as the local girls have been doing a lot of practising, and are in good form. An attractive conclusion to the evening will be given in the form of a mocassin dance which will be held on the ice after the game is finished.

In the basket ball series, an interesting event will be the game in Toronto on Saturday next Feb. 4th., when the local team will meet the Queen city aggregation for the first time. The Peterboro girls were defeated in S. Catharines by a score of 21-12, but last Saturday they redeemed thmselves by a victory in the return game, of 9-8, breaking through in the last two minutes of play. The Toronto team is reported as being a very strong outfit, and if any kind of a showing in their game next Saturday, they may be able to defeat the Toronto girls in the return game which will be played here on the following Saturday, Feb. 11th

As this is the first time that a Peterboro team has been entered in the Ontario Ladies' Basketball Association, and as the girls are working hard and doing their best to uphold Peterboro in this branch of feminine sport, they should receive the hearty encouragement of the public, who can evidence their approval of their efforts in no better way than by attending the games here. These are interesting, and afford lots of thrills and excitement for the onlookers.

Different local basketball groups interested in the winning of the Harvey trophy, are playing off weekly at the Y.W.C.A., where tuition in basketball has been going on now for some years.

The willingness to take a chance and love of fair play, which men have always claimed belongs exclusively to them is part of the mental education of girls who become interested in games of this sort, an item decidedly in favor of their continuance and encouragement.

"Some of the Funny Things You See on Street" by Bishop Quayle

The Short Skirt and the Scotch Piper—The Big Sisterhood Had to Respond to a Hurry Up Call—A Demand for Clothing

Bishop Quayle said last Saturday at Trinity Church that he never bought funny papers any more. He saved his money and went among crowds, for "people are the funniest things there are." Perhaps he was thinking particularly just then about fashions. Take knees, for example. In New York jus now, they are the most fashionable things there are. A woman observing the feminine modes in New York, says:

"The women are wearing skirts that come to the bend of the knee in the back. Then they roll their thin silk stockings, leaving the knees absolutely bare, and place a very ornamental garter below the knee."

And, also, the Scotch piper who essays the very best possible appearance, has bare knees, and smart little kiddies all dressed up these days display naked bony little kneecaps.

The teacher, who observed two small boys with bare knees in the class room the other day probably forgot about the styles, or perhaps the little boys had carried the thing too far. In fact, they had dispensed with underwear altogether, and were consequently in rather a blue and frigid condition. A hurry-up call to the Big Sisterhood resulted in supplies being forwarded at once.

The calls on these workers are many and various. Doubtless all of the societies doing relief work in Peterboro this winter could tell the same tale, but the Big Sisterhood report an ever-increasing demand for supplies of all sorts, and the demand seems to be always just a few jumps ahead of the supply on hand.

Women and children are ill in houses where there seems to be an absolute paucity of necessary bedding and linen. Requests are daily recorded for these things, for quilts, sheets pillow-cases, mattresses, and for clothing for children. Old or new, it doesn't matter what you send these women. If it's old, and in a reasonable state of preservation, they will make it over in some way and if new material, like flannellete or flannel for underwear, there are hands to fashion it into small garments.

'In this weather, it doesn't seem just the thing for certain small newcomers to the city to be ushered into our midst with absolutely no provision for them, but such is the case in many homes just now, unless willing hands will sit down and work for them.

The Big Sisterhood has quite a supply of men's clothing on hand, a good deal in small sizes, but most of it in splendid condition, including underwear, suits and overcoats, and any man, single or otherwise, who is desirous of availing himself of the supply, should telephone to Mrs. Joseph Knox, at 788W.

Betsy Resides on Brock Street

Betsey is a little lady who lives on Brock street. Although she isn't old, her hair is purewhite, lovely snow white, and she has a very pretty face, with big black eyes and little pointed nose She is the most amiable little lady imaginable, never seems to get cross, even when they take her children away from her as happens frequently. Just when she gets used to her little wee babies, cunning as can be, someone comes along and presto they're gone, and Betsey hasn't the least idea where they disapear to. But her disposition never gets soured over it

Betsey fell down stairs the other day, into the cellar, and hurt her foot. She hasn't been able to put the injured member on the floo yet, and goes around hopping in the funniest way. She has another name too; her last name is Pomeranian, a dog name for a small white doggie which some people shorten to 'Pom.'

Beauty is her lord and master, an active small creature, just as pretty as Betsey, but with one half-blind eye. Somebody struck him hard with a stick when he was little, and spoiled his right eye. Beauty has a cheerful disposition too, and he never bites, but he barks long and fiercely whenever he sees a human slapping another. Even a tiny slap will bring forth his loud protestations. Perhaps he remembers the stroke that hurt him so much, and doesn't want anyone to be cross when he is around.

Trinity Ladies to Have a Party

In connection with the celebration of their golden jubilee year, the Ladies' Aid Sociey of Trinity Church have planned a real old-fashioned party for next Tuesday evening, February 7th.

As meetings in the olden days started at a seasonable hour, the ladies have planned to commence their entertainment at half-past seven o'clock and the executive of the Society will be at home to all the ladies of the church who care to come. Representation of any particular character is not necessary. The only thing required is an old-fashioned costume of any sort, from the age of fifty years or longer, up to the style five years ago, as every woman knows that a style five years old is just as dead as if it were a hundred and five.

At half-past eight, the men of the church are invited to join the ladies, who have arranged a real old-time programme, including a promenade, group singing of old songs, duets and instrumental solos in the quaint music of another day, and old- time recitations.

There will also be refreshments served, carried out as far as possible in the fashion of bygone years with carroway seed cookies and such dainties to remind the guests of childhood joys.

SPRINGTIME IN IRELAND.

A wavy lake of freshest green,
Drowns all the sombre of the leas,
Pale cowslip fingers on the hills,
Give fragrance to each passing breeze;
The pearly hammers of the sowers
Beat velvet leaves out on the trees.

HOUSEKEEPING IN OLD JAPAN

I am going to give you a taste of what it means in Japan to be a house-keeper and a home-maker, writes Francis Little in January Harper's. In this land of flaming maples, housekeeping is no merry experiment, tried out just for fun in the rosy afterglow of honeymoon time. It is a profession, for which a large share of the nation's girlhood goes through a machine-like grilling. It begins in early school life. It ends only when the housekeeper is gathered unto her foremothers, in that perfect place where dust and duties do not collect, and covetous serving-maids do not break through and steal. Here's how my hostess summed it up

"Ladies first is not the Japanese idea. Of course men protect and take care of women and children, but man is always honored and respected high, because he is a man. Women and girls must be taught how to serve him, and to look after him, and don't give him trouble at home; then he can take his whole heart and put into his work!"

Isn't it easy to see why skilful housewifery is a heavy asset in the matrimonial market? And, as matrimony is the end for which almost every Japanese daughter is born, it behooves the father to command the mother to urge the teacher to prepare the daughter for her high and inevitable calling.

It is some climbing to attain the proper standard for wifehood. The average girl's education embraces about anything from picture alphabet to ponderous Chinese classics. I often wondered how the latter applied to housekeeping and motherhood. But far be it from me to dally long enough with these ancient Asiatics to solve the mystery.

You might think, when a girl has mastered the art of making herself mistress, wife, mother and hostess all at the same time, to say nothing of having pigeonholed in her memory recipe for an endless variety of dishes with strange ingredients and impossible names, it was time for a breathing spell. Not yet, nor soon! There's the bookeeping, sewing and learning to direct many servants.

THE HOME CIRCLE

A MOTHER'S LOVE.

It is not prosperity, with her smile and beauty, that tries the purity and fervor of a mother's love; it is in the dark and dreary precincts of adversity, amid the cold frowns of an unfeeling world, in poverty and despair, in sickness and in sorrow, that it shines with a brightness beyond mortality, and stifling the secret of its bosom, strives but to pour balm and consolation upon the sufferer, and the cup of misery, filled to overflowing, serves but to bind them more firmly and dearly to each other, as the storms of winter bid the sheltering ivy twine itself more closely around the withering oak. Absence cannot chill a mother's love nor can even vice destroy a mother's kindness. The lowest degredations of human frailty cannot wholly blot out the remembrance of the first fond yearnings of your affection, or the faint memorial of primeval innocence; nay, it seems as if the very consciousness of the abject state of her erring child more fully developed the mighty force of that mysterious passion which can forget and forgive all things, and though the youth of her fairest hopes may be as one cast off from God and man, yet she will not forsake him, but participate in all things save his wickedness.

Any business man would be horrified at the suggestion that he would ruin his boy by neglect that his absorption in business would result in the undoing of his own son. But it is the easiest thing in the world to forfeit a boy's confidence. It will take only a little snubbing, a little scolding, a little unkind criticism, a little nagging and unreasonableness to shut off forever any intimacy between you and your boy.

If there is any dog in a man it is pretty apt to growl when his food is not to his taste.

REAL HOME LIFE.

There is no greater token of respect and affection than an invitation to enter the real heart and home life of a family. And yet how seldom do we offer ourselves the relaxation and our friends and neighbors the pleasure of such an invitation? Is a guest coming? Straightway we get to work to clean house from garret to cellar; we cook and bake and stew and fuss and sigh and work as though some terrible calamity were about to befall us, instead of that which should be the most delightful anticipation, the visit of a friend. If the house is clean and fair enough for our nearest and dearest, why not for a friend? If dinner is ample for the family, why not for an added guest? And will not the day and the visit be more delightful for both hostess and guest, if the fare is plain and the faces at the table bright and fresh, not wearied and flushed as with an added burden instead of an added pleasure? Can we not learn to offer ourselves sincerely and simply, just as we are, in our everyday clothes and manners, to those who come to us. Let social intercourse be frank and frequent and friendly. Let us be honest and genuine and fine and courteous in our daily lives, so when the friend comes he will find us untroubled and serene, as we always are, ready to receive the good thought, the story, the laugh, and to give him ourselves in return, our best in conversation, and appreciation, and that will make the humblest dinner a feast for kings.

It is not a mere accident of disposition whether we persistently look on the dark and gloomy or on the brighter side of things, but a habit of mind which we can cultivate or allow to die through want of use.

Wife, your power in the home is unlimited. You are its queen. There, at least, your sway is undisputed. There is nothing that can so lift a man up—that can inspire him to great achievement—as the feeling that he has at his side a woman whom he can truly love, whom he can fully trust, and at whose feet he may bow in highest respect. You intensify his joy and blunt the keen edge of his sorrow. It is true that it takes a grand woman to do this, but you can be that grand woman.

Finish every day and be done with it. For manners and for wise living it is a vice to remember. You have done what you could; some blunders and absurdities no doubt crept in; forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day; you shall begin it well and serenely and with too high a spirit to be cumbered with your old nonsense. This day for all that is good and fair. It is too dear with all its hopes and invitations to waste a moment on the rotten yesterdays.

We would say to all boys and girls, "Use your best voice at home." Watch it by day, as a pearl of great price, for it will be worth more to you than the best pearl in the sea. A kind voice is a lark's song to a hearth and home. Train it to sweet tones now and it will keep in tune through life.

Praise your wife sometimes. She works hard enough as a general thing with small compensation and less cheer than any other member of the family. You like to be told that you can do your particular kind of work better than any one else can, so why should you withhold the same merited praise from the woman who makes and keeps your home bright for you?

Make your homes happy. You go around the house growling about your rheumatism and acting the lugubrious and your sons will go into the world and plunge into dissipation. They will have their own rheumatism after awhile. Do not forestall their misfortunes. You were young once, and you had your bright and joyous times. Now let the young folks have a good time.

ABOUT THE HOUSE.

A blackboard eraser covered with flannelette is good for stove polishing.

If mixed with milk instead of water pie crust will be much nicer.

For gems, biscuits and cake the flour and baking powder should be sifted together.

A small electric vacuum brush is a new electrical device that makes dusting a simple matter.

To wash flannels, use blood-heat water to rub them in, cold water to rinse in, and flannels will never shrink.

In making comforts put batting in oven or over register to heat though; it will almost double in bulk and make a more fluffy comfort when tied.

A bean pot can be easily washed if it is put to soak on the stove with a teaspoonful of soda in cold water. Let it come to a boil for five minutes, being sure it is full of water. This plan works quicker if a cover is placed over the top.

Stocking forms may be cut from white cardboard and are just as effective in preventing shrinkage of babies' wool stockings when drying as the wooden ones to be purchased in the shops. New ones can be made as the baby's foot increases in size.

RECENT ARRIVAL FROM "AFRICA"

Mother and Daugher Make Several Trips Into the Jungle.

A recent arrival in Vancouver on the Canadian-Australasian liner, "Niagara," was Mr. Harry K. Eustace, with his wife and little daughter. Mr. Eustace gave his address merely as "Africa," and when asked if that meant Cairo or Cape Town, he said: "A little of each and almost everywhere in between. You see I have spent 27 years big game hunting in almost every part of Africa. I have no home but my trunk and I really could not be more explicit if I tried."

His long stopping place, in a leisurely tour of the globe, was Suva. Prior to that, Australia, New Zealand, Mauritius and South Africa were included in his tour.

"I am now on my way back to Africa," he said. "Whether I shall reach there in six months or two years I have no idea."

On several of his expeditions into the jungle Mrs. Eustace, a fragile, motherly looking little woman, has accompanied him, as also has his daughter, who made her first journey into the heart of Africa at the age of 11. Mrs. Eustace is an experienced hunter and has spent months in some of the most remote corners of the Dark Continent where few explorers and hunters even have ventured to go.

THE FLOWERS OF DREAMLAND.

(Contributed.)

Let us, when tired and weary
And our brain refuses to sleep,
Just give one inward turn to our thoughts,
And plunge in the woodlands deep.

Where the bluebell scents the air around,
And the primrose lifts its head,
And the fragrant violet seeks to hide
Deep in its grassy bed.

What incense rises on the air
Of morning in the wood!
Oh, what incentive to the mind
To live and to be good!

If God so clothe the flowers
With the divinest taste,
Shall He not clothe me also
With beauty and with grace?

And shall there not a perfume rise
Each morning to His throne,
A song of sweet thanksgiving
That He called me for His own?

The God Lords

The Lord had a job for me, but I had too much to do,
I said—"You get somebody else—or wait till I get through."
I don't know how the Lord came out, but He seemed to get along;
But I felt kinda sneakin' like, 'cause
I know'd I done Him wrong.
One day I needed the Lord—needed
Him myself—needed Him right away.
And He never answered me at all,
but I could hear him say
Down in my accusin' heart, "Nigger,
I'se got to much to do,
You get somebody else or wait till
I get through."
Now when the Lord he have a job
for me I never tries to shirk;
I drops what I have on hand and does the good Lord's work.
And my affairs can run along or
wait till I get through,
Nobody else can do the job that
God's marked out for you.

PETERBORO INTERMEDIATES ELIMINATED FROM THE RACE

PICTON SCORED TWICE IN THE FIRST PERIOD—CROFT WAS A WONDER IN THE NETS—IND FIERENT WORK HERE RESPONSIBLE FOR LOSS OF DISTRICT

STORY OF THE GAME

(Special to The Examiner)

PICTON, Feb. 2.—After a bitterly fought game on soft ice here last night, the Peterborough Intermediate O.H.A. team were eliminated from the race by Picton, the Canners winning by 4 goals to 2. Although Picton were always in front, leading by 2 to 0 at the end of the first period and by 2 to 1 at the close of the second, the Petes had three-quarters of the play, but Croft's cleverness in the nets and the failure of the Blue and White team to get a single break, turned the scale against them. They can thank their indifferent work in the first game at Peterborough for putting them out of the running. Had they picked up the lead they should have had they could have laughed at Picton last night. As it is, the laugh was with the Grey Shirts, and they have made the most of it. It may sound like camouflage to say that the Petes were outlucked, but it is the simple truth. There was no edge for either team in the first period, yet Picton scored twice and blanked the visitors getting one goal on a long shot from centre and another on an off-side pass. In the second session the P.A.A.A. squad threw defence methods to the winds, and, tossing everybody up on the attack, carried the battle to Picton all through the period, but although they had five shots to every Picton drive, only once in the twenty minutes could they beat Croft. At that it looked as if hey would come on in the last period and snatch the round out of the fire. They opened at top speed, and for eight minutes had shot after shot at Croft, only to be foiled, and then Picton cinched the game when Campney again scored with a chance shot from centre. Heffernan made it sure by adding another on a long rush, and although the Petes pinned the Grey Shirts in their own end at the rink for the balance of the game, one counter was the best they could get. It is no alibi to say that they did not get a single break at any stage. Croft, the veteran Picton goalkeeper, showed that his work in Peterborough was not a flash in the pan by turning in just such another game last night. He stopped shots at all angles, making saves that seemed impossible, and he kept his team in the game when ordinary goalkeeping would have meant certain defeat. Heffernan, the speedy right defence man, also starred, and the two wings were very effective, Campney's long range shooting being responsible for two of his team's counters. Every one of the Petes gave his best to win, and they went down fighting. Lornie Rose contributed his best performance of the season, and the rest of the crew were out there working all the way.

It was a glorious occasion for the Picton fans and the rink was jammed after the game. The City Band led a parade around the ice, and there was general rejoicing. Referee Mitchell, of Toronto, was a terror on off-sides, but the Petes have rarely run across any official so lax on other infringements of the rules. Cross-checking, hooking and slashing meant nothing to Mitchell, who only handed out a few penalties. Hudgins, the Picton centre, was the worst offender, and how he ever got away with the stuff he was dishing out is a mystery. The teams:

The First Period.

It was anybody's game in the first period. The pace was fast, with both teams checking closely, and with little opportunity allowed for working in on the nets, while the ice, which looked good at first, soon grew sticky, and the puck was frequently over-skated. Seventeen minutes of up and down the rink hockey had been played when Campney the Picton right wing, drifted a long accurate shot from mid-ice that beat Murray for the firs goal. It was a nice shot, but a lucky one, for such long distance drives are usually tailor-made for Mickey. Ninety seconds after Picton scored, again Campney getting away and passing to Hudgins, who went on in and tallied neatly. The pass was five feet off-side, but the play got away from Referee Mitchell. The period ended 2 to 0 for Picton. Lornie Rose drew the only penalty of the period just before time was called. With everybody up on the attack in the second period, the Petes conferred the play for the most part to Picton territory. They had two or three shots in the first few minutes but Croft beat them. Then Jewell was ruled off for slashing, and while he was off the Petes broke into the scoring column, Ray Rose taking a pass from Thornton, and fooling Croft with a quick shot.

Croft Was Unbeatable.

From then on to the end of the period the P.A.A.A. gang dominated the play, but Croft was unbeatable again, and although the Petes rained shots at him, Picton were still a goal in front when the session closed. The same tactics were used in the third period, Parker and Thornton joining the forwards, and giving the Petes a five-man attack as they battled desperately for the tieing goal. Lornie Rose nearly got it when he hit the cross-bar. The Peterborough goal umpire signalled for a goal, but Referee Mitchell ruled the decision. Eight minutes had gone when Campney took a long shot from centre, the drive being deflected off Lornie Rose, just out of Murray's reach. It was a heart breaker, coming after the long battle around the Picton nets. A little later Heffernan caught the defence up the ice, and raced in on Murray as the latter rushed out to check him. That made it 4 to 1, and the Petes were beaten. They kept fighting, however, and got the last counter after a three-man combination rush, Thornton banging in a rebound on Parker's shot.

ALL READY FOR TONIGHT'S GAME

LADIES' GAME WILL BE ADDED AS A PRELIMINARY — BELLEVILLE HERE FOR SECOND GAME.

The committee in charge of tonight's game between the Belleville Junior and Peterborough Junior basketball teams have, at the request of a number of fans, added a preliminary ladies' game. This contest will start at 8 o'clock sharp and will bring together the well trained ladies' teams of the Normal school and George street church. This will show the fans how the game is growing in popularity amongst the fair sex in Peterborough. The big game of the night will start at 9 o'clock sharp. The Belleville and Peterborough coaches do not care to divulge the line-ups of the teams that will face the opening whistle, but the Peterborough team will be out of the following: Elliott, Sage, Ecobichon, McLean, Hardill, Hopkins, Batten and Bryett. All are in good condition and eager to be in the game from the jump and to endeavor to give the fans a real treat by winning the opening fixture. A feature that the fans who attended the exhibition game against the Toronto Central Y. a short time ago, will watch, will be the defensive game that the boys have developed since then. If Elliott and Cole of Belleville have their shooting eye on, it will need good defensive work to keep the baskets out, for they are a clever pair and will require a lot of watching. Though tickets have sold well there are a number of good reserved seats left and they will be sold until the game commences, so come to-night and watch two good hard contests. Don't forget, the opening fixture starts at 8 sharp.

HOCKEY NEWS

The Fire Hall Falcons won their first sudden death game last evening when they defeated the fast Central School team to a score of 2-1.

The game was fast and clean. One penalty was issued against the fire fighters.

Sargisson, Pogue, Devell and Sharpe starred for Central, while Smith, Reid, Northcotte, starred for the Falcons.

Wilson handled the bell well to the satisfaction of both teams.

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

The crowd will be at the Y.M.C.A. Gym to-night to see the O.A.B.A. junior tussle between Belleville and the locals. Points count on the round of two games, and the Petes will be out to pile up a good lead for the second game at Belleville next Tuesday night. Reserved seats are selling fast. The lady basketeers are on to-night's card for an exhibition game preceding the O.A.B.A. contest.

This was a heart-breaker.

What's the score?" asked a fan of a passer-by last night, after the game.

"Four to two," was the reply.

"In whose favor?"

"In Picton's—Who do you think it would be?" flung back the hammer heaver.

The P.A.A.A. crowd will be disappointed, but not discouraged—far from it. The amateur athletic body have gained the confidence of the supporters of clean athletics, and the defeat of the hockey team, while regrettable, is only a minor incident encountered along a pathway that the P.A.A.A. never at any time imagined would be strewn with roses.

Picton is always taking the joy out of life. The Prince Edward county sport fraternity put us to a lot of trouble last summer, and threw us out of baseball. Now it's hockey. Looks as if we'll have to call upon some of the checker fiends.

The local ladies' basketball team will play their second O.A.B.A. game at Toronto on Saturday night, when they meet the Queen City ladies at the West End Y.M.C.A.

TO-DAY'S HAPPY THOUGHT.

We still have the Senior City Hockey League, the Junior City Hockey League, the School Hockey League, the Ladies' Hockey Association, and three O.A.B.A. teams to entertain us for the balance of the winter.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE GRAND.

"BOOB McNUTT"

With an aroused anticipation of a rare treat in store, the many lovers of musical comedy await the forthcoming engagement of Rube Goldberg's delightful musical novelty, "Boob McNutt", which is scheduled to appear at the Grand tonight with Peterborough's own comedian Danny Smmons as Boob. This sparkling musical offering is based on the cartoons of the same name which have attracted universal attention. The success of this original and complete production has been phenomenal and it is said to be one of the best offerings of its kind ever offered playgoers From all accounts the piece is a riot of mirth and melody and the reason is quite evident —it contains the ingredients to make folks forget their ills worries and other dark spots in the struggle for existence. A magnificent scenic production, stunning costumes, capable cast and a brilliant array of charming girls is promised by the management.

"MADEMOISELLE OF ARMENTIERES"

Come to the Grand Opera House and see "Mademoiselle of Armentieres", next Saturday afternoon or evening and laugh through an evening with the troops ,the great war was not entirely mud and crumps, wander into Julie's estaminet and visit No 6 Pilatoon in a real and cushy billet, listen to the language of the troops, hear their quibs, and jests and laugh with them. If 'Erbert 'Awkins does grouse don't forget hat he and his kind are of the die-hard brand.

If your son or nephew landed at the front with "his" commission come and see what a time he had, maybe he hasn't old you all about it. Now you will understand why he is so glad o meet any of the men who served in his platoon.

Hear the lively marching songs and trench ditties which helped to make the roug spos easier, but first, last and all the time find out the spirit that carried the army through until the war was won. See the Canucks "carrying on" in the great war.

The musical numbers are bright and catchy, the entire play is one with a complete plot and is filled with laughter throughout.

AT THE ROYAL.

To-day's big bill includes two features of surpassng interest. Western pictures and alway full of pep and excitement and these two words express to-day's play "Trailin' ". That favorite hero of western plays Tom Mix is seen to great advantage in 'Trailin' '. In this play Tom does not appear in his usual role of a cow boy but is associated in such life in some dare devil stunts. In the wonderful feature called "Cinderella of the Hills" beautiful Barbara Bedford makes her maiden appearance as a star. Picture fans all know Barbara but in Cinderella of the Hills they see her for the first time since her beauty and ability raised her to the leading role. The play is a touching romance of the Ozark Mountains. The plot leads up to a tangled mystery, that would baffle Sherlock Holmes, which is unravelled in a way that leaves a pleasant memory in the minds of those who see the play. Now we get down to the comedies, and who does not like good bright clean comedy? The answer is gloomy, Gus and pessimistic Pete! To-day's comedies show Larry Semon in "Well I'll be —"; and the sparkling two reel Sunshine "The Golfer". These two comedies will make you feel better and forget your troubles for a while Our pictures, and the Royal shows nothing but pictures, are specially selected from various exchanges so that our patrons are assured of getting only the best that money can secure.

AT THE REGENT.

FISHING VILLAGE
SETTING OF STORY

In the picturesque, romantic story of a Pacific fishing village, "The Rowdy," which will be shown at the Regent Theatre to-day, Gladys Walton makes a tremendous appeal to her audience in a role which gives her beauty and talent unusual opportunities. Miss Walton is supported by Jack Mower, who portrays "Black Kincaid," the regenerated sweetheart.

A whimsy Fate wants to take her from her fishing village and make a lady of her, aided by two misled old ladies, who think she is their sister's child. Reluctantly she goes with them, yet all the time her heart-strings pull, pull her back to the sea —to the homely pepole she knows —to the man she won—to love and renewed belief in humanity through her courage.

"The Rowdy" was filmed up and down the colorful west coast with genuine fisherfolk playing the atmospheric roles. It is startlingly different from Miss Walton's recent production but it is anticipated by playgoers to be one in which she will have her greatest opportunity for smashing drama and sincere heart appeal.

AT THE CAPITOL.

To-day the Capitol presents the big 8-reel production, Just Around the Corner, a picture of laughter and tears, as good as Humoresque, and by the same author. Also vaudeville, "Ovette" presenting Lung Tehang Quen, Chinese magic mysteries. To readers of Fanny Hurst stories, no other introduction is necessary to the public than just to say the Capitol presents to-day another Fanny Hurst story as good as Humoresque, and we might add that out of the hundreds of photo plays produced during 1920 and 1921, Humoresque was given the gold medal of merit by the American Motion Picture Board of Award as being the cleanest, most laughable humar heart interest picture ever produced. In this, her newest big story, 'Just Around the Corner,' the public will find a picture that will make them laugh to hide a tear. It's just crammed and jammed with the queer little heart pouches that will get under the skin of the hardest-hearted old skinflint and want to make him raise up and hand the villain a wallop. It's thoroughly human, so human in fact that the public will laugh and cry with Fanny Hurst's true to life characters as they did in her medal winner, Humoresque. The balance of this big programme and the music of the splendid Capitol orchestra will complete a great show for the balance of the week.

Following the great success made by "Humoresque," a Cosmopolitan production released by Paramount, comes another screen epic of the East Side of New York in "Just Around the Corner." Fannie Hurst, who wrote "Humoresque,' also wrote the story of "Just Around the Corner," which was published by Harper and Brothers, New York, in Miss Hurst's first collection of short stories. Frances Marion wrote the scenario and directed "Just Around the Corner," which will be seen at the Capitol to-day.

Margaret Seddon, who took a leading part in "The Inside of the Cup," has a leading role in "Just Around the Corner." Lewis Sargent, the young actor who won fame for his creation of "Huckleberry Finn" in the Paramount picture of the same name, will be seen in the role of a prankish messenger boy whose chief aim in life is to take care of his mother and sister. Sigrid Holmquist, a Swedish beauty, has the role of the daughter and Fred C. Thomson is seen as the Real Man. Others in the cast are: Edward Phillips, Peggy Parr, Mme. Rose Rosonova and William Nally.

M'CALLUM OF FENELON FALLS WON THE OLD PETERBORO CUP

Gained One-Point Victory Over George Stevenson in the Final Game in This Competition—McCallum Was the Winner of the Matthews-Blackwell Trophy Last Year.

Prizes Presented.

Harry McCallum of Fenelon Falls won the Peterborough Challenge Cup and its accompanying prizes last night, defeating George B. Stevenson in the final game by the score of 10 to 9. This competition is confined to the rinks that failed to win a game in the Morrow and Matthews-Blackwell Cup competitions. Last year it went to Davison of Unionville, and at the same time McCallum carried home the Matthews-Blackwell trophy. Prize-winning at Peterborough's bonspiel is becoming a habit with Mr. McCallum and his rink. This year he not only won the historic old Peterborough Cup, a beautiful model, very similar to the Ontario District Cup, but he also received the four big flashlights that went to the successful finalists. Mr. Stevenson and his rink were presented with Auto-Strop razors in silver cases.

W. D. Campbell made the presentation to the Fenelon Falls rink and J. W. McDermid to the Stevenson rink. They congratulated the winners upon their play in this competition, and expressed the hope that everybody had been pleased with the bonspiel.

Mr. McCallum said it was more than he ever expected to win the Peterborough Cup after carrying off the Matthews-Blackwell last year. He always looked forward to the Peterborough bonspiel because of the curling it provided, the warm hospitality of the Peterborough Curling Club and good sportsmen he met. Next year, if all went well, Fenelon Falls would again send two rinks to the bonspiel.

George Stevenson sounded the sporting note when he remarked that he was glad a visiting rink had taken the Peterborough Cup. He had given McCallum a close run for the silverware and had enjoyed the bonspiel in every respect. Both skips thanked the Bonspiel Committee for the prizes and the reception that had been accorded them.

The results in this competition were as follows:

PETERBOROUGH MALE VOICE CHOIR.

The regular practice was held on Tuesday evening at the J. M. Greene Music Studio, and was undoubtedly the most successful yet held. The different sections of the choir which were at all weak have been strengthened by new members. The choir as a whole is now a well-balanced organisation, and if regular attendance and careful study of the compositions, together with the appliance of the director's instructions in this work, are followed, nothing but successful results will be accomplished at their annual concert on Friday, 31st March next, in the Grand Opera House.

A strong appeal is now made to the members to attend every practice, and to be punctual. The interest shown in this week's rehearsal gives the Executive great encouragement, and leaves no doubt but that the remaining practisings will be attended by every member of the organisation. This alone can make for complete success.

W. G. MORROW STILL SURVIVES IN BOTH OF THE COMPETITIONS

IS OUT IN FINAL GAME FOR CUP BEARING HIS OWN NAME AND HAS REACHED SEMI-FINALS IN MATTHEWS-BLACKWELL.

FINALS POSTPONED

The belated January thaw finally halted the bonspiel last night, but not before the visiting rinks had all been eliminated and only Peterborough rinks remained in the running for the three major trophies.

George Morrow's rink is still up in the Morrow and Matthews-Blackwell Cup competitions. He went into the finals for his own trophy by defeating Wetherup of Lindsay by 12 to 2, and will play off against R. G. Sturgeon, who won from Oke of Port Hope by 17 to 4.

In the Matthews-Blackwell McDermid and Brightman, Morrow and Kay are grouped in the semi-finals, and there is a fighting chance for Morrow to win not only the trophy he presented to the Curling Club, but even to take the Matthews-Blackwell Cup too. First he must trim Bob Sturgeon in the Morrow final, then Kay in the other semi-final, and lastly the winner of the McDermid-Brightman encounter—all of which is a fairly big programme.

WINNOWING THEM OUT.

The big ones began to fall in bunches in the eighth round of both the Morrow and Matthews-Blackwell competitions. Alex. Kay's rink was the first to go. He was running strong in both series and beginning to get within sight of the finals. Of the rinks that entered on Tuesday morning four were still running strong in the eights of each competition. They were Kay and W. G. Morrow of Peterborough, Dr. J. N. Harvie of Orillia and W. J. Oke of Port Hope. Morrow handed Kay his first defeat in the eights of the Morrow Cup competition after eliminating John Steele, the Millbrook veteran, in the second round of the Matthews-Blackwell. Morrow and his rink were cutting a wide swath. He next defeated Besse of Claremont in the Matthews-Blackwell third round, and in the semi-final of his own cup series started out late last night by opening a wide lead on Weatherup of Lindsay.

Dr. Harvie's Defeats.

Dr. Harvie was the next conspicuous victim of the swift weeding-out process. The Orillia skip's consistent curling from the outset had left the impression that he might go through to the end in at least one of the contests. R. G. Sturgeon discarded him from the Morrow Cup third round, thereby avenging their defeat by Dr. Harvie in the first round of the Matthews-Blackwell. Like other skips who have battled along through both series almost to the goal, Dr. Harvie's final decent came quickly. Tom Brightman squeezed him out of the Matthews-Blackwell in his very next game last night by the score of 12 to 11. It was a heart-breaking finish, the doctor leading on the way home by 11 to 10, and had a chance or two with his last stones, but Brightman took the end with two shots.

W. J. Oke and his Port Hope rink had decided to stick it out in both competitions instead of "throwing" one for the sake of a rest, and their first defeat in seven games was handed to them by J. W. McDermid in the third round of the Matthews-Blackwell by the score of 14 to 13, and then in the Morrow Cup semi-final they were routed by Bob Sturgeon to the tune of 17 to 4. This wide score was a surprise to the talent in the galleries, who expected that the Port Hope skip would make it close.

Two good rinks packed up their stones after Middleton of Cobourg lost to Weatherup of Lindsay by 16 to 8, and Jack Moore of Keene to Oke of Port Hope. Carnahan of Campbellford lost his last game to Kay in the third round of the Matthews-Blackwell. Kay had moved Bill Montgomery to vice and Walter Oke to second stone as a shake-up to offset the "sweating ice," and the change appeared effective.

Many of the visiting rinks had departed by ten o'clock, and the last games scheduled for the night were played in comparative quiet.

Wake Up, Canadian Musicians

I would like to give a few thoughts or in other words express my humble opinion of music as we find it to-day in Canada, with a few suggestions as to how we are going to lift ourselves out of this state of lethargy in which we find ourselves in regard to music. When one considers the rapid progress that is being made in the Old Land in this regard. It is surely time that we, a daughter of the Old Country, begin to get our house in order.

I would like in the first place to deal with music in the schools, or with the young. Has someone not stated that this world is a stage, and we are the artistes. Well then, let us take the children and prepare them for the future. We must start with the assumption that music is an art, one exercising a stronger influence over humanity than any other. Music has been styled the "youngest but greatest of the arts," notwithstanding the fact that historically speaking it is really the oldest. However, I want to begin with the young. The consideration which music now receives in schools compared with what prevailed a few years ago is astounding. Yet I think there is still room for improvement in the method of teaching and imparting it to the young minds. The old difficulty still persists of there being only twenty-four hours in the day, and is bound to persist, but at least the mental attitude of leading educationalists has altered for the better. Music is generally treated with some deference to her rank and importance, and not merely as the suit of the curriculum existing on sufferance like a charity pupil. No one would try to teach British literature and to deal with poets and authors, such as Shakespeare, Milton, Scot, Tennyson, and Burns (to take a few names at random) without establishing some sort of chronology between them. In fact, all the primers of literature that I have seen are based on chronological sequence. Yet we have children who are learned all kinds of music belonging to widely different periods, without any idea of their chronology whatever. Mere dates are, of course, in themselves of little use, but they are valuable when they serve as pegs on which to hang a short summary of musical development. I cannot but think that the whole subject would become far more to young people if more attention were paid to this side of it. To make this knowledge attractive and convincing, it is absolutely essential that it should be accompanied by a plentiful illustration. In fact, this is the only vital and arresting way of teaching musical history. One of the shortcomings of our schools, as far as my own limited experience goes, is the utter lack of modern music. I would be the last person in the world to undervalue the necessity of bringing young folk up on the simpler forms of older art. But I cannot see why for that reason they must be starved of all contemporary musical thought. In the case of school singing, the theory so widely held that children are incapable of singing progression is an absolute fallacy, as I have personally proved to my own satisfaction. Yet the average stuff called "school music," even thought it may be composed by living writers, is modern only in its date. I feel that now, when British writers are producing music on a scale and of a quality unsurpassed by any nation, it is incumbent upon teachers to recognize this fact themselves, and to impress it upon their pupils.

I have left till last the point that is at once the most obvious, and the most vital of all, the development of a real knowledge of music, which will cultivate a real sense of taste, with which is necessarily involved the dawnings of critical powers.

Low Type Music.

The type of music is low (generally) that children are first brought into contact with, and for which they will get a taste. The only way to form real taste is by letting good music speak "for" itself. To have to answer a question as to why one piece of music is good and another bad is extremely difficult; but in the vast majority of cases it only needs a real acquaintance with good music to remove the cause of the question altogether. It follows that the wider and the deeper the acquaintance with fine music the keener the sense of musical taste becomes. In the old days—yea, may I say even yet, in schools, music is regarded as an unutterable bore, because it encroached on the already scanty leisure. It is up to the teacher to show that it is a privilege and a pleasure, and the children will value it, and to which they will devote their spare time with readiness and delight. I am quite aware that these remarks are some what disjointed and unoriginal, and certainly make no pretence to be exhaustive, I hope, however, they may be the means of focussing attention on what I believe is going to be one of the determining factors in the moulding and shaping of our national life.

In closing, I wish to state that this will be followed by other articles on "Folk Songs". The use of the player piano as an educative means. The Needs of Music, The Value of Music, etc., etc., etc.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND

By "SAPPER"
(Cyril McNeile)

"Good," said Hugh. "Algy, take Miss Benton and her father up to Half Moon Street—at once. Then come back here."

"But, Hugh——" began the girl appealingly.

"At once, dear, please." He smiled at her tenderly, but his tone was decided. "This is going to be no place for you in the near future." He turned to Longworth and drew him aside. "You'll have a bit of a job with the old man," he whispered. "He's probably paralytic by now. But get on with it, will you? Get a couple of the boys to give you hand."

With no further word of protest the girl followed Algy, and Hugh drew a breath of relief.

"Now, your ugly-looking blighter," he remarked to the cowering ruffian who was by this time shaking with fright, "we come to you. How many of these rooms up here are occupied—and which?"

It appeared that only one was occupied—everyone else was below. The one opposite. In his anxiety to please, he moved towards it; and with a quickness that would have done even Hugh credit, the American tripped him up.

"Not so blamed fast, you son of a gun," he snapped, "or there sure will be an accident."

But the noise he made as he fell served a good purpose. The door of the occupied room was flung open, and a thin, weedy object clad in a flannel nightgown stood on the threshold blinking foolishly.

"Holy smoke!" spluttered the detective, after he had gazed at the apparition in stunned silence for a time. "What, under the sun, is it?"

Hugh laughed.

"Why, it's the onion-eater; the intimidated rabbit," he said delightedly. "How are you, little man?"

He extended an arm, and pulled him into the passage, where he stood spluttering indignantly.

"This is an outrage, sir," he remarked; "a positive outrage."

"Your legs undoubtedly are," remarked Hugh, gazing at them dispassionately. "Put on some trousers—and get a move on. Now you"—he jerked the other man to his feet—"when does Lakington return?"

"Termorrow, sir," stammered the other.

"Where is he now?"

The man hesitated for a moment, but the look in Hugh's eyes galvanised him into speech.

"He's after the old woman's pearls, sir—the Duchess of Lampshire's."

"Ah!" returned Hugh softly. "Of course he is. I forgot."

"Strike me dead, guvnor," cringed the man, "I never meant no 'arm—I didn't really. I'll tell you all I know, sir. I will, strite."

"I'm quite certain you will," said Hugh. "And if you don't, you swine, I'll make you. When does Peterson come back?"

"Termorrow, too, sir, as far as I knows," answered the man, and at that moment the intimidated rabbit shot rapidly out of his room, propelled by an accurate and forcible kick from Toby, who had followed him in to ensure rapidity of toilet.

"And what's he doing?" demanded Drummond.

"On the level, guvnor, I can't tell yer. Strite, I can't; 'e can." The man pointed at the latest arrival, who, with his nightdress tucked into his trousers, stood gasping painfully after the manner of a recently landed fish.

"I repeat, sir," he spluttered angrily, "that this is an outrage. By what right . . ."

"Dry up," remarked Hugh briefly. Then he turned to the American. "This is one of the ragged-trousered brigade I spoke to you about."

For a while the three men studied him in silence; then the American thoughtfully transferred his chewing-gum to a fresh place.

"Wal," he said, "he looks like some kind o' disease; but I guess he's got a tongue. Say, flop-ears, what are you, anyway?"

"I am the secretary of a social organisation which aims at the amelioration of the conditions under which the workers of the world slave," returned the other with dignity.

"You don't say," remarked the American, unmoved. "Do the workers of the world know about it?"

"And I again demand to know," said the other, turning on Drummond, "the reason for this monstrous indignity."

"What do you know about Peterson's little man?" said Hugh, paying not the slightest attention to his protests.

"Nothing save that he is the man whom we have been looking for, for years," cried the other. "The man of stupendous organising power, who has brought together and welded into one the hundreds of societies similar to mine, who before this have each, on their own, been feebly struggling towards the light. Now we are com'bined, and our strength is due to him."

Hugh exchanged glances with the American.

"Things become clearer," he murmured. "Tell me, little man," he continued, "now that you're all welded together, what do you propose to do?"

"That you shall see in good time," cried the other triumphantly. "Constitutional methods have failed—and, besides, we've got no time to wait for them. Millions are groaning under the intolerable bonds of the capitalist: those millions we shall free, to a life that is worthy of a man. And it will all be due to our leader—Carl Peterson."

A look of rapt adoration came into his face, and the American laughed in genuine delight.

"Didn't ' tell you, Captain, that that guy was the goods?" But there was no answering smile on Hugh's face.

"He's the goods right enough," he answered grimly. "But what worries me is how to stop their delivery."

At that moment Darrell's voice came up from the hall.

"The whole bunch are stowed away, Hugh. What's the next item?"

Hugh walked to the top of the stairs. "Bring 'em both below," he cried over his shoulder, as he went down. A grin spread over his face as he saw half a dozen familiar faces in the hall, and he hailed them cheerily.

"Like old times, boys," he laughed. "Where's the driver of the lorry?"

"That's me, sir." One of the men stepped forward. "My mate's outside."

"Good," said Hugh. "Take your bus ten miles from here: then drop that crowd one by one on the road as you go along. You can take it from me that none of 'em will say anything about it, even when they wake up. Then take her back to your garage. I'll see you later."

AUTOMOTIVE MEN TO GET AFTER BUSINESS

SPIRIT OF OPTIMISM DOMINATES CONVENTION IN TORONTO

TORONTO, February 2.—At the fifth annual convention of the Ontario Automobile Section of the Retail Merchants' Association, which opened here in the Prince George Hotel yesterday afternoon.

President Joseph J. Duffus, Peterborough, announced that the committee of the Association which is waiting on the Cabinet at Ottawa regarding the luxury tax issue would appear before the convention some time to-day and present its report. He hoped there would be good news on this condition, which hit the automobile retailers hard during the last year. In any case, the discussion of the question, he said, promises to be the liviest event of the convention.

At the close of a year which, in this line, as in most others, depression dominated business, the meeting yesterday did not reveal a pessimistic outlook regarding the present year.

"Ask 'Em to Buy" was the slogan at the top of the programme, and this business-getting spirit was echoed by nearly every speaker.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(Canadian Press.)—Pools resumed their bullish activities at outset of to-day's trading, effecting advances of one to four points in Gulf State Steel, Butte and Superior, Atlantic Gulf, Electric Storage Battery, General Electric, Davison Chemical, Endicott Johnson and National Enamelling. Local Tractions, Foreign Oils and low grade Rails also strengthened on short covering. The feature of the Foreign Exchange market was another sharp advance in sterling.
Traders paid little heed to tigher money tendencies as indicated by call moneys, opening rate of 5 1-2 per cent, the highest initial rate of the week .Baldwin, Lima and American Locomotives, Studebaker, Bosche Magneto, Westinghouse and General Asphalt were the foremost among the strong stocks of the first hour. Later the buying embraced other popular Oils; also Leathers, Tobaccos, Chemicals and Independent Steels, including Bethlehem and Iron Products. SIR JOHN HARE FAMOUS ON STAGE.

Got Into Trouble Through Passion of Detail.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—(By Canadian Press.)—It is related of the late Sir John Hare, the famous actor, who died in December, that his passion for detail, for the elaboration of a part by business, got him into trouble in his early days. In a performance of "Money" he was cast for the small part an old member of the club had to repeat the words, "Waiter Snuff-box."
Hare, who was then only a lad, gave a detailed delineation of an asthmatic old gentleman who grunted, coughed, and did everything except speak. Unfortunately this elaboration delayed the entrance of the principal characters, and the infuriated manager exclaimed from the wings, "We've had enough of this. Be silent."
But that early power of building up a stage portrait by detail remained with chief factors of his style.
In his prime he was able to make this detail so natural that probably very few members of his audience knew he was really acting. It was always assumed that he was an old man.
His chief tour-de-force was in "A Pair of Spectacles." That play was first produced when Hare was in his forty-sixth year.
The two strongly contrasted parts enabled Hare to display all his powers of characterisation. Benjamin Goldfinch, before he wears the wrong spectacles, seemed to create an atmosphere of geniality. His very manner of blowing his nose had individuality And when he looked through the spectacles of his brother from Sheffield his whole nature changed. His movements were abrupt, nervous, and practical. His eyes glinted with suspicion and his voice became hard and dry.
In both parts he had every appearance, without exaggerated make-up of being an oldish man, with the habits and manners of an old man, although he was well under fifty.
A curious story is told of his power of presenting old men. At that time he made the acquaintance of Gladstone on the stage. Afterwards they met at a dinner-party, and Gladstone did not recognise him. On being told the name of the guest he did not know, Gladstone remarked: "Ah, yes. I met his father at the Garrick TEeatre."

Since my dear mother to Heaven went.
But watch and pray I do each day
Until the time we meet half way.

No one on earth can take her place.

We think of her in silence
And her name we oft recall
But there is nothing left to answer
But her photo on the wall.

TESTING MEN FOR ABILITY TO DO WORK

A New Way of Determining Efficiency Planned By England's Fatigue Board.

It Will Work Two Ways.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—In order to increase the output of industry and so cause an increase of goodwill, the Industrial Fatigue Research Board of England has just issued a scheme of the investigations which it feels to be urgent if the recruits of industry are to be suitable for the tasks they take up. Tests are the basis of the plan, so that each recruit may be set at a task that is agreeable to him. The medical correspondent of The London Times gives these explanations of the tests and their applications:

The first problem it is felt must be tackled is the detemination of the general intelligence level required by each occupation. This is a vastly important matter, yet its importance is almost unrecognized. One still hears employers counting the intelligent men in their works as if they were counting diamonds and thanking Providence for so many of them. Yet with a little care all the worker in any given industry might be intelligent as far a that industry is concerned, says the physician.

The second problem is to determine the special capacities, including bodily characteristics, required by each occupation. This is of immediate interest to every employer because experience shows that special capacity plays an immense part in the effectiveness of every industry. In a test which was recently carried out a number of toolmakers were examined. The capacity of these men were known, but the observer applying the tests did not know it. Yet he was able to pick out the efficient men with the greatest accuracy.

Tests and Known Capacity.

This is shown by a study of the following table of what are called "correlation coefficients." These represent the degree of similarity between the result of the tests are indentical with the known capacity of a group of workers; that is to say, if the person making the tests picks out all the best workers without knowing in advance who they are, then the coefficient for this test will be + 1.0. The test will be absolutely reliable.

If, on the other hand, the results of the test do not correspond with experience, the test will be useless and the figure may be +0.1 or even lower, e. g., —1.

Test A	— + 0.84
Test B	— + 0.75
Test C	— + 0.81
For A, B and C combined	— + 0.91

These are high coefficients and evidently suggest that the tests are of great value in the selection of men having capacity in tool making, the physician says. Obviously, therefore, it would be a good thing for and employer in this branch of trade

ANNA GOULD IN DIVORCE

French Society Is Stirred By Reports That She Is to Sue Duc de Talleyrand—Have Left Paris.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Paris society is once more agog with gossip about the affairs of the Duchesse de Talleyrand, formerly Miss Anna Gould. To the long history of the happenings with which her name has been connected since she married Count Boni de Castellane, then divorced him and married his cousin, the Duc de Talleyrand, there is now added the rumor that she has started divorce proceedings against the Duke.

Neither pary will admit that proceedings have been yet begun, but close friends of the Duchess say that she has engaged Albert Clemenceau, brother of the former Premier, as her advocate, and that the suit will very shorly be heard.

The Duchess has left Paris for her chateau at Sain Cheron while the Duke has also left Paris.

When approached and asked if a divorce was contemplated, M. Clemenceau replied that he could make no statement, but that he was attorney for the Duchess.

It is well over a quarter of a century since Miss Anna Gould came to Paris with the reputation of being the richest girl in the world and so stirred the minds of the young French nobiity that three of the most elegant young men of their day made bets of 50,000 francs that they would marry her. Of the three one was Count Boni de Castellane.

Ten years later amid a whirlwind of scandal a divorce suit was begun, and no sooner was it settled in the Paris courts than the engagemen was announced of the millionairess to the Duc de Talleyrand, a cousin of de Casellane. But divorce was not then such an easy matter as it has become. The Vatican refused to countenance it, and for a time it seemed that the new engagement would have to be broken off.

A curious and much commented incident marked its course. One day as the Duke was coming from mass his cousin Castellane met him near the door of the church and struck him with his cane. The two men grappled, and during a violent fight both fell into the gutter. Later the Duke brought a civil suit against his cousin and was awarded roof damages. Six months later he quietly married his cousin's former wife in London in spite of the Papal objection.

That was in 1908, and it was not until 1914 that Rome pronounced the dissolution of the former mar-

THIEF STOLE ARMY REPORT

Knocked Officer's Wife Unconscious—Report Not Considered Important.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 3.—A short stocky man with a swarthy complexion entered the home of Palmer Rawley in Drexel Hill, knocked Mrs. Rawley unconscious, ransacked a desk and escaped with a confidential report of an army airplane radio telephone

Mr. Rawley, a First Lieutenant in the United States Signal Corps Reserves, was formerly attache at the American Embassy in Mexico. It is believed that the robber was a foreigner. The intruder appeared ten minutes after Mr. Rawley had left for his office. Mr. Rawley is connected with the B. C. Rawley & Co., brokers, with offices in the Bourse Building. In the war he was in the Army Military Intelligence at General Headquarters.

Mrs. Rawley, formerly Miss Janice Hersey, who was married last August, was alone in the living-room when she heard a noise behind her. She turned and as she did so a man put one hand over her mouth and with his free hand struck her behind the ear. She fell unconscious and the robbery followed.

There were money, jewels and silverware in the house, but nothing but the paper was taken.

As soon as he was able to do so, Mrs. Rawley telephoned for her husband and he hurried to the house. He said that although the report was confidential, its military value was not important.

"The man must have been watching my movements closely and apparently was secreted outside when I left the apartment this morning," said Mr. Rawley. "I locked the door when I left and there was no evidence of force being used to open it. I conclude a skeleton key was used.

"The man spent nearly a half hour with a screw driver and a little brass hammer of mine trying to open a trunk. He probably thought I had something he wanted very much. I don't believe the confidential raido phone report will be of much use to him."

HONOR DEAD EXPLORER.

MONTEVIDO, Feb. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—An official and public demonstration is being arranged in honor of Sir Ernest Shackleton when his body is embarked for England on the British steamship Andes, on Feb. 11.

Preparing History For Medical Men

The Medical Association held a meeting last evening at their rooms in the Public Library. Dr. Miller, professor of pathology at Kingston University, who was to have given an address, was absent through illness, and his place was taken by Dr. F. C. Neal, who gave a paper, illustrated with lantern slides, on "Pulmonary Abscess."

Discussion took place at this meeting on the question of getting out several copies of "The History of Medicine in the County of Peterborough," by Mr. F. H. Dobbin, and it was decided to go ahead with the project.

HEIRESS TO BE MARRIED ON SATURDAY

Fortune Staggers Youth Who is Employed as a Chemist in a Locomotive Works—War Romance.

LOVES HIS WORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—A noble but penniless Russian youth of 23 years, who didn't know there was $40,000,000 in all this world until told by the newspaper reporters who know everything, will be married in the Orthodox Greek Church here Saturday to a 45-year-old divorcee, joint heiress to the Norman R. Ream estate of Chicago. Ream left $40,000,000 according to popular report at the time of his death in 1915 to be divided among seven persons, one being the prospective bride, now known as Mrs. Marian Buckingham Ream Stephens.

The young Russian, employed as a chemist in the Baldwin Locomoticve Works in Philadelphia, started out to make his fortune in America under the name of Anastase Vonsiatsky, being a contraction of his full name of Anastase Andreivitch Vonsiatskoy-Vonsiatsky. He claims to be the son of a Russian general, who was killed early in the War and, under the old Russian regime, heir to vast estates on the Russian-Polish borderland. The young man, when interviewed in Philadelphia, said he himself had fought with Admiral Kolchak's ill-fated counter-revolutionary army against the Reds as an engineer officer, and had been wounded four times, offering earnestly to exhibit the scars to his inquisitive callers. He also fought under the banners of Korniloff, Denekin and Wrangel.

Capitivated By Heiress.

In Paris, after his military career was finished, he met Mrs. Stephen at a reception, and she capitivated him by her feeling rendition of Beethoven Liszt and Chopin.

Mrs. Stephens was married to Redmond D. Stephens a Chicago attorney in 1903, and he divorced her in March 1918, charging that she had an insatiable apnetite for travel and stating that since 1916, she had refused to live with him. Mrs. Stepens then went to Paris, where it was understood that she, like many other well-to-do American women, was engaged in what was called by the generic title of "war-work."

"I fell in love with her at once," said young Vonsiatsky to his Philadelphia interviewers, telling of that reception. But they did not become engaged until July, 1921, when he was enabled to come to America by her intercession with the authorities in Washington. The youth paid an extended visit to the divorcees home at Thompsonville, Conn. where she was living with her mother and, when he left her to go to Philadelphia, they had pledged their love. His days as an extra on the movie lots of Paris, where his more recent career has been cast, were definitely over. He carried a letter to Samuel A. Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive works, and upon arriving in Philadelphia he was put to work. The letter of Vauclain was obtained through Elliot Bacon, of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Loves His Work.

"I love my work", said the Russian, "and they are good to me here. In Russia I did not know work. It was all a life of ease until the war came. But now I am learning and I expect to spend two months in each department and become familiar with the business from start to finish."

Someone interrupted to observe that the Ream estate of Chicago was estimated at $40,000,000.

"I can't believe there is that much money," said the incredulous Vonsiatsky.

Fellow workmen in the locomotive laboratories hold nothing against Vonsiatsky, though he wears a gold bracelet watch at work, and he was described as a willing worker and a good natured companion on the job. They did not know, either, that he was a nobleman or the suitor for the millionairess.

He is now domiciled in the Y.M.C.A. in Philadelphia, but has prepared a pleasant though unpretentious home, in Ridley, a suburb, to which he intends to take his bride after a short honeymoon, Vonsiatsky said Mrs. Stephen was baptised in the Greek Orthodox faith three weeks. since He will come to New York Saturday for the ceremony. The license was obtained here in person a week ago. Mrs. Rams Stephens is stopping at a New York Hotel.

The late Norman B. Ream was a power in the building of the country's transportation system years ago, and he also constructed the first Chicago skyscraper.

RELIEF FOR UNEMPLOYED ON INCREASE

The Unemployment Relief Commitee Met and Discussed Situation- Many Returned Soldiers Are Suffering.

THE CITY'S SHARE

"It's costing a great deal more than last year," Relief Officer F. W. Miller, speaking of the unemployment relief being jointly borne by Dominion, Provincial and Municipal governments, told the Unemployment Relief Committee yesterday afternoon. As an illustration of the amount being expended he said in ten days, from Jan. 17th to 27th, $1,322 was expended, made up of $508 for fuel and $814 for groceries.

"It won't be any less," Mr. Miller said, when Ald. N. E. Phelan asked him if these figures could be used as a basis for estimating the appropriation necessary for unemployment relief. On the basis of the cost for ten days Ald. Phelan estimated the cost to the city for three months of about $4,000 as compared with $1,700 last year.

Mr. Harry Rush, chairman of the Central Charity Board, as well as G. N. Gordon, K.C., M.P., S. Whatley, secretary of the G.W.V.A., and Hugh Robertson, in charge of the Provincial Employment Bureau, were present to discuss relief measures, particularly regarding relief for returned men. The recent Orders-in-Council passed by the Dominion govenment respecting unemployment relief were studied.

Reimburse Municipalities.

Mr. Gordon, Mr. Whatley and Mr. Robertson dwelling on Sections D of Clause 5 and Clause 7 urged that the city assist single returned soldiers. Clause 5, Section D, reads as follows: That in the case of unemployed former members of the Canadian or British forces now in Canada, discharged as physically fit or not entitled to assistance by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, the Federal government will reimburse the municipal authorities to the extent of one-half the disbursements made for unemployment relief, the remaining quota to be contributed in equal parts by the province and municipality respectively.

Must be Dependents.

Clause 7, which is being interpreted broadly as intended, says: It is the expectation of the Federal authorities that the provisions herein will be interpreted broadly and generously by the municipalities and the province so that no resident of Canada willing and able to work and unable to secure employment shall lack food, clothing or shelter for himself or herself or dependents.

It was pointed out that physically fit single returned soldiers could not secure relief unless they were actually supporting widowed mothers and it was impressed upon the committee that the board, or at least some portion of it of these ex-service men should be paid by the city and Mr. Gordon said he would take steps to see that the Dominion government paid half.

Mr. Whatley stated that there was acute suffering among many single returned soldiers. Mr. Gordon pointed out that the board of many of these men was the sole dependence of many widows and under the broad interpretation of the Orders-in-Council asked for, he believed the city should take steps to assist these men by paying their board at least allowing the boarding house proprietor something.

The minimum rate for board in the city Mr. Whatley said was $7 a week but Mr. Gordon considered many widows would be glad to take less than that. The Relief Officer favoured fixing the sum he was to pay, but the committee decided to leave it to his discretion.

For Single Men.

Jos. J. Duffus Again President of Retailers' Automotive Section

TORONTO, Feb. 3.—At the convention in the Prince George Hotel here yesterday of the Automotive Section of the Retail Merchants' Association, all last year's officers were re-elected by acclamation. They are:

President—J. J. Duffus, Peterborough; First Vice-President—S. Puik, Ottawa; Second Vice-President—L. Copeland, Windsor; Third Vice-President — A. McDonald, Stratford; Treasurer—Frank McLaughlin, London; Secretary—W. C. Miller, Toronto.

More Police Protection.

A large number of resolutions were passed, including one urging that, in view of the large number of thefts from stores and automobile garages, the executive urge upon the Government the need of increased police protection both in cities and counties. Another instructed the executive to oppose any Provincial "eight-hour day" legislation proposal as far as it concerned retail dealers. A third instructed the incoming officers to oppose any attempt to include the retail trade in the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Another resolution recommended that all cases of false advertising coming to the attention of members be referred to the secretary of the Provincial Board, in order that the most effective steps in dealing with these could be taken. Manufacturers were requested in a fifth resolution to mark their goods "firsts" and "seconds" as the case might be in such a way as to be readily distinguished by the public. The duplication resulting from the present methods by which the Dominion, Provincial and Municipal Governments collect separate income taxes was criticized as involving excessive "overhead" expenses in collection, and the Provincial Board and Association Executive were asked to study this problem and submit their views to the members at as early a date as possible.

The Proposed Site For the Fish Hatchery in North Monaghan

Mr. D. McDonald, Deputy-Minister of the Department of Game and Fisheries in the Ontario Government, was in Peterboro on Thursday afternoon in connection with the proposed establishment of a fish hatchety in this district. He was accompanied by Mr. McLeod, field agent of the Department, and was met by Mr. Tooms, M.L.A., who accompanied them in the inspection of several possible sites. On the invitation of Mr. Tooms the party was joined by Mr. J.E. A. Fitzgerald. Although the weather was unfavorable for exploring and field work, several creeks in North Monaghan were visited, and one of them strongly appealed to Mr. McLeod because of the purity of its water and its adjacence to the C.P.R.

This creek has its source in the springs in Leary's woods about a mile south west of the city. Its supply of water is ample the year round for hatchery purposes, and bubblees copiously from the ground in a locality that is familiar to citizens who are acquainted with that district. To locate this creek the party went west past May's school and the C.P.R. crossing to the road turning south to what is known as the winter green patch. A few hundred yards south from the May's school the creek crosses the C.P.R. woods and flows beneath the C.P.R. directly south of the John Harper farm, continues to the River Road and empties into the river at Crawford's Grove.

If this creek were chosen for the site of the hatchery it is understood that the building required for the purpose would be erected north of the C.P.R. or in that neighborhood. And that approximately $30,000 would be expended on it. This creek was Mr. Tooms' own discovery and recommendation to the Deputy-Minister.

Mr. Tooms told the Examiner that although the question of a fish hatchery for this district has been discussed by local organizations no received no recommendations from them and no assistance either on this visit of the Deputy-Minister or on his previous visit. The only suggestions made to him were from members of the County Council. He also stated that the automobile expense for conveying the part into North Monaghan would be paid by the Government.

300 AUTOMOBILE MARKERS ARRIVE

R. S. Cotton, President of the Peterborough Automobile Association, Received First Number Plate.

Three hundred automobile markers, the first of three thousand ordered reached the headquarters of the local branch of the Ontario Motor League in the Chamber of Commerce, yesterday, and already many have been issued. The forms and paraphernalia in connection with the license preceded the markers so when they reached the office the staff was ready to begin the big job of equipping the several thousand motorists in this district with 1922 licenses. R. S. Cotton, President of the Peterboro branch of the O.M.L. had the honor or perhaps it would be better to call it distinction of receiving the first license. President Cotton's marker is No. 168-451 and he will have the lowest number in Peterboro, the others running up to 171-450. Only 300 licenses came in the first shipment but others are expected for these will go like the proverbial hot cakes.

A New Design

The new license has been acclaimed on all sides. It is quite a chaste design and the raised black letters show up handsomely against the snowy background. It is a number

FAIR BOARD COMMITTEES ARE NAMED

Members Missing Sixty Per Cent. of the Meetings Will Be Expelled—Plans For the Year.

MEETING OF BOARD

Any director of the Peterboro Exhibition who absents himself from sixty percent of the meetings will be automatically dropped from the membership as a result of a resolution passed by the Board on Thursday night. Twenty-five of the members were present, and although there was no special reason for this disciplinary action, the Board decided to start the new year with the understanding that every member's heartiest co-operation was needed if the programme planned for 1922 was to be realized.

Work was one of the principal topics of last night's discussion, and it was real personal work by the individual members in a spring "bee" which Harry Webber proposed. William Steinkrauss saw an opportunity for an earlier effort than that and it was agreed that the directors are to hold themselves in readiness for a call about next Wednesday when the preliminary steps for the building of new sheep and swine pens will be undertaken. Most of the material is available in the concrete forms used in the construction of the addition to the grandstand last year, and the opinion was expressed that the new pens could be built by the directors themselves at comparatively small expense. Accordingly the first action will be to haul out the lumber and pile it up in readiness for the spring campaign.

Field Crop Entries

Entries for the Field Crop competition this year must be forwarded to the secretary by May 15th. Farmers are requested to make a note of this date.

The Field Committee is composed of Messrs. Webber, Wood, Milburn, Steinkrauss and Moore.

A memorandum is going forward to all the committees to have their reports in the secretary's hands by 1st March for deliberation at the March meeting.

riage, and not until 1916 that the second marriage was declared legal by the ecclesiastical tribunal. By her first marriage the Duchess had three sons and by her second a son and a daughter.

Domestic Troubles Reported

Rumors of domestic trouble between the Duc and Duchesse de Talley rand have been heard in Paris for several months, but not much attention was paid to them in this country by the friends of the former Anna Gould because they had heard the same reports repeatedly in the first few years after her marriage to the Duc de Talleyrand in 1908.

Their engagement caused much comment in thtyear, preceding their marriage because of the question whether the Roman Catholic Church would sanction another marriage of the former Miss Gould after she had obtained a divorce from her first husband, Count Boni de Castellane in Paris, on Nov. 14, 1906. They had been married in this city on March 4, 1895, and had three sons.

The engagement o the Countess Boni de Castellane to the Duc de Talleyrand caused friction in the Gould family, and her second marriage was opposed by her brother, George J. Gould, and her sister, Miss Helen Gould, now Mrs. Finley J. Shepard. As trustee of the estate of their father, Jay Gould, George J. Gould protested against the marriage and threatened to invoke court aid on the codicil in their father's will, which forbade marriage by any one of the children without consent of the majority of the executors of the estate.

She insisted that she was entitled to her allowance of $250,000 a year from the estate without encumbrances and threatened a legal fight for her share of the fortune. Meantime the Duc de Talleyrand, also called the Prince de Sagan, arrived in this country, but he did not receive a cordial reception from the Gould family. He had tried to remain incognito in this country, but failed.

They decided to return to Europe and after rumors that they had been married in Hoboken, sailed on separate ships. A few months later they were married in London with civil and religious ceremony, but not with the ceremony of the Roman Catholic Church. In the following November she discussed divorce with the New York Times correspondence in Paris, saying:

"I believe in divorce, but am not contemplating another. The prince and I are perfectly happy together, and we have no intention of living apart."

Count Boni de Castellane made a long legal fight for the custody of their three children, but the Paris court ruled tha they should remain with their mother, under certain conditions governing their education.

THE IRISH SITUATION.

LONDON, Feb. 3. — (Canadian Press).—In a statement here to-day Sir James Craig said he had been told by Michael Collins at the conference yesterday that he had made promise to bring almost half of Northern Ireland, including Fermanagh, Tyrone and parts of Antrim and Down, into the Irish Free State. He had suggested a week's adjournment to Collins, but the latter replied that dieffrences separating them were so wide that a postponement would be useless. The Ulster Premier said British Ministers had assured him that the Premier had stated in the Commons that the Boundary Commission proviso meant a mere adjustment of boundary.

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND
By "SAPPER"
(Cyril McNeile)

"Now," went on Hugh, as they heard the sound of the departing lorry, "we've got to set the scene for to-morrow morning." He glanced at his watch. "Just eleven. How long will it take me to get the old buzz-box to Laidley Towers?"

"Laidley Towers" echoed Darrell. "What the devil are you going there for?"

"I just can't bear to be parted from Henry for one moment longer than necessary," said Hugh quietly. "And Henry is there, in a praiseworthy endeavour to lift the Duchess's pearls. Dear Henry!" His two fists clenched, and the American, looking at his face, laughed softly.

But it was only for a moment that Drummond indulged in the pleasures of anticipation; all that could come after. And just now there were other things to be done—many others, if events next morning were to go as they should.

"Take those two into the centre room," he cried. "Incidentally there's a dead Boche on the floor, but he'll come in very handy in my little scheme."

"A dead Boche!" The intimidated rabbit gave a frightened squeak. "Good Heavens! you ruffian, this is beyond a joke."

Hugh looked at him coldly.

"You'll find it beyond a joke, you miserable little rat," he said quietly, "if you speak to me like that." He laughed as the other shrank past him. "Three of you boys in there," he ordered briskly, "and if either of them gives the slightest trouble clip him over the head. Now let's have the rest of the crowd in here, Peter."

They came filing in, and Hugh waved a cheery hand in greeting.

"How goes it, you fellows," he cried with his infectious grin. "Like a company pow-wow before popping the parapet. What! And it's a bigger show this time, boys, than any you've had over the water." His face set grimly for a moment; then he grinned again, as he sat down on the foot of the stairs. "Gather round, and listen to me."

For five minutes he spoke, and his audience nodded delightedly. Apart from their love for Drummond—and three out of every four of them knew him personally—it was a scheme which tickled them to death. And he was careful to tell them just enough of the sinister design of the master-criminal to make them realise the bigness of the issue.

"That's all clear, then," said Drummond rising. "Now I'm off, Toby, I want you to come too. We ought to be there by midnight."

"There's only one point, Captain," remarked the American, as the group began to disperse. "That safe—and the ledger." He fumbled in his pocket and produced a small india-rubber bottle. "I've got the soup here—gelignite," he explained, as he saw the mystified look on the other's face. "I reckoned it might come in handy. Also a fuse and detonator."

"Splendid!" said Hugh, "splendid! You're an acquisition, Mr. Green, to any gathering. But I think—I think—Lakington first. Oh! yes—most undoubtedly—Henry first!"

And once again the American laughed softly at the look on his face.

TESTING MEN FOR ABILITY

if these tests were adopted in the case of would-be apprentices to his work. He would obtain a better type of workman and would have to waste less time and labour in teaching unsuitable persons.

Cube Contruction Test

One of the tests used for the toolmakers was known as "The Cube Construction Test". A three-inch cube was painted the same color on every side and then cut into twenty-seven-one-inch cubes. The large cube was demolished before the examiner, who was required to rebuild it so that the painted surface were on the outside. Each examinee was made to do this twice. The groups tested were small, and every group did not give as high a coefficient as that recorded. Yet the value of the test remains evident.

Another proposed line of research relates to the determination of temperamental qualities of efficiency in different occupations. This is closely related to the "special capacity" problem, yet it is not identical with it. For a man may possess attitudes for a certain kind of work, but have a temperament which, by reason of its recklessness, or its surliness, or for some other reason, is detrimental to its output, says the writer.

These problems will, of course, be faced in each industry separately. The object is to obtain for each industry a series of tests easily applied and of great reliability, which can be used in the selection of entrants. Naturally the tests must be so practical that they will, if applied and of great reliability, which can be used in the selection of entrants. Naturally, the tests must be so practical that they will if applied, pick out the good workmen and discard the bad in any group.

Along Two Definite Lines.

Thus it is proposed to search for ests along two definite lines:

1. Groups of experienced workers containing good and bad will be examined by means of various suggested tests, and those tests which most accurately indentify the good will be brought into use.

2. Young persons who have been examined by the tests will be "followed" in their occupations for a number of years in order to determine how far the tests have/succeeded in providing workers of a high grade of efficiency.

Time, in fact, will prove the value or lack of value of each test. Thus in process of time employers will have at their command a method, the reliablity of which is known, for protecting themselves against the stupidity or unsuitability of men who may desire to enter their works. Workers, on the other hand, will, when they enter industry, be protected against their own unsuitability and be saved the horrors of a hated task.

The progress of education has produced a new kind of worker. He is far less capable of tolerating monotony and the depression of uncongenial work than was his father. Therefore in work which does not suit him he is far more likely to be discontented and to give trouble.

The new tests offer a new way of settling his grievances. By putting him to an agreeable task they spare his feelings and so his temper, and they shield employers form his discontents. They are thus helpful in more ways than one, the physician concludes.

PRODUCE NEW COLORS.

TORONTO, Feb. 3. — After a number of experiments, Prof. Maitland C. Boswell, secretaary of the School of Engineering Research of the Faculty of Applied Science at the University, has discovered a new chemical reaction which can be used in the making of dyestuffs from coal tar products. Two colors, one blue and the other a shade of rose, have been produced, and Prof. Boswell is now determining the best conditions under which they can be applied to cotton, wool and silk. The colors are fast to light and washing.

FIRST REAL STORM SEASON.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 3.—From the western boundary of Manitoba to the Great Lakes, the first considerable storm of this winter broke on Wednesday, and yesterday was gradually subs ding. A heavy fall of snow was driven before a high wind, and country roads are badly drifted. A NEW FISHERIES POLICY FOR CANADA

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 2.—(Canadian Press)—British Columbia's salmon depletion problem has been laid before Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Fisheries at Ottowa, according to announcement of Hon. William Sloan, Provincial Minister of Fisheries.

Hon. Mr. Sloan told a gathering of acnnery men here that failure of the United States' Senate to ratify treaties for the protection of the Fraser Salmon run and failure of the Washington State Fisheries Board to gaurantee regulations was having the effect of making the famous salmon runs of the Fraser, a thing of the past, and that unless action was taken at once Northern British Columbia streams would suffer a like fate.

"The situation in the northern waters is entirely up to our own Government," Mr. Sloan declared, and said that he had placed the whole situation before Hon. Ernest Lapointe and hoped that a new fisheries policy would be decided upon soon that would restore the salmon fishing industry of the Province.

MOSCOW BECOMES WIDE OPEN TOWN

For Business, Thefts, Hold-Ups and Fund.

MOSCOW, February 3 (Associated Press) — This city has become a wide open town for the first time in its modern history. It is open for business, for thefts, for hold-ups, for fun, for disease and disaster, for speculation, for drinking, for any and all things man or woman may devise.

The old-timers of the staid pre-war regime can't recognise anything but the snow. It used to be, before the war, a sort of country, family town, as compared to the skylarking of St. Petersburg.

During the revolutions, it lost this friendly aspect of quiet and, as the Soviet settled down here, it became strictly moral and severe, with only the grand opera to lighten the load of propaganda and thousands of orders on how to live and prosper and be happy, notwithstanding closed shops, lack of bread and medicine and clothes.

A Russian Rip Van Winkle, who had slept during the past three years, wouldn't know the town these nights. Church bells ring out for prayers. Communists and bourgeoise, peasants and princesses are all scrambling for more money that they may not fall into the abyss of famine. Cabmen are fighting for higher rates, grain dealers for more roubles per bushel, bakers for more per pound, candy and cookery shops are blooming out on every corner, wine and vodka are sold in millinery shops, and the 80 policemen of the town have long since quit bothering with footpads.

The lid is off.

PARLIAMENT OPENS MARCH

March 8th is the Official Date For the Opening of the Dominion House — Caucus Yesterday.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3. — (Canadian Press.)— Parliament will be summoned to meet on Wednesday, March 8, it was announced following yesterday afternoon's meeting of Cabinet Council, which lasted until after seven o'clock in the evening. The first day's business will be limited to the election of a Speaker, while the formal opening, with the delivery of the Speech from the Throne, will take place on Thursday, the following day.

The choice of Wednesday and Thursday as the opening days of the session is understood to have been made because of the fact that there are so many new members coming into the House this year. A very large number will be strangers to Ottawa and also to the parliament buildings, and it was felt that by meeting on Wednesday and adjourning, probably Thursday night until the following Monday before the debate in address in reply to the speech from the throne is begun, these new members would be given a chance to get settled in lodgings and also to become acquainted with their locations in and around the parliament buildings. Monday, two days earlier, has been favoured by some members of the Cabinet as the opening day.

The names of the mover and seconder of the address have not yet been announced. The new speaker of the commons will be Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, member for Gaspe, as announced y the Prime Minister some time ago. There will also be a new speaker of the Senate, but it is understood that no section has been made for that position yet.

BULGARIA DOES NOT HUNGER FOR THRACE

SOFIA, Feb. 2. — (Associated Press.) —Premier Stamboulisky denies the reports that Bulgaria awaits the favorable moment to snatch Thrace from Geece. "First of all," he continued, "let me say that we have nothing to do with Greece on the question of Thrace. Under the treaty we ceded Thrace to the great powers, and they promised to give us an economic outlet through Thrace on the Aegean Sea.

"Secondly, we are utterly disarmed and helpless and are in no position to take warlike measures against any of our neighbors. Our 300,000 rifles and all our artillery and machine guns are at the bottom of the Black Sea and our men are tilling the soil."

THOUSAND HAVE APPLIED.

TORONTO, Feb. 3. —Since the law has been explained to the public regarding the making of home-brew for personal family use, the Inland Revenue Department has received and acknowledged letters from 1,000 people in the city of Toronto. In addition to this some 500 or 600 sent in letters, but have not conformed with the law in that they have not mentioned the various utensils which were being used for the purpose. Replies have been sent to these particular parties pointing out that before acknowledging their applications a list of the utensils must be approved of by the department first before anyone can legally make home brew.

CROWN WON'T EXPERIMENT

Declares the Buchanan Case is Closed So Far As Making Tests of Gas is Concerned.

TORONTO, February 3.—Crown Attorney Armour stands by his guns in refusing to authorise a Crown initiation of experiments to determine the possibility of a gas fire becoming automatically extinguished by exhaustion of the oxygen in a room—this theory having been advanced by Dr. McCormack in connection with the death of James Buchanan.

"We have no objection to Mrs. Buchanan making all the experiments she pleases," says Mr. Armour. "But I do not propose to authorise expenditures of public money to assist the possible building up of a damage case. That is all there is in it in the Buchanan matter.

Weak Point.

"The weak point in Dr. McCormack's theory is that if the failure of the oxygen supply in the room had been sufficient to cause the gas to go out, it would have ended Buchanan's life prior to that happening. And he died of asphyxiation.

"We are not authorising inquest investigations on every patient with the object of supporting later civil proceedings," says Mr. Armour, with emphasis. "Not so long ago that was common practice."

Chief Coroner Graham stated that if the relatives of Buchanan desired any experiments to be made at the Playter Boulevard home, he had no objections.

Successful Test.

Dr. McCormack made a test of his theory in his own home. His own range, fed only with a 12-inch pipe, consumed through the burning of the five burners and by actual registration on the meter 100 cubic feet of gas. One cubic foot of gas burned creates one-half a cubic foot of carbon dioxide. Therefore in one hour in his own kitchen Dr. McCormack was able to create 50 cubic feet of carbon monoxide.

Taking a rough estimate of the cubic area of Buchanan's kitchen as 1,000 cubic feet, sufficient carbon dioxide could have been developed to cause death, even with a slight ventilation.

DRUG RING LOCATED WESTERN PROVINCE

EDMONTON, Alta., February 3 (Canadian Press). — Following an arrest made by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, it is believed that some sensational developments will occur in regard to an alleged drug ring which it is claimed, has been operating in this district for some time.

Harry Smith, a taxi driver, according to the police, has turned King's evidence, providing he would be released. Later, the police claim he made a full statement involving a number of business men and public officials.

The R.C.M.P. are following up this information, and yesterday a local druggist was arrested with illegal selling of narcotics.

One of the leading Chinamen and he is out on $2,000 bail, of this city was also arrested, after appearing before Colonel MacLeod at the Mounted Police Barracks.

NEW CLUE IN MURDER CASE

Witness Declares He Saw Two Men Unloading What Appeared to be a Body Wrapped in White Linen.

Auditing Books.

MONTREAL, February 3. Canadian Press. — What may turn out to be a new light on the tragedy in which the body of Raoul Delorme, the half brother of Father Delorme, was found lying in the snow in the outskirts of this city on January 7th, is provded by the statement of a ship chandler named Barry who has a store on Commissioners street.

He declares that on the morning when the murder occurred he was returning to his business premises about 2:30 or 3 a.m., when he saw a motor car acting in a suspicious manner not far from his store. This car contained two young men, who stopped the machine, and commenced to unload a long and large parcel one end of which appeared to be wrapped in white linen. When they found themselves observed they thrust the parcel back in the car and made off.

Another witness declares that he saw a car tearing along St. Catherine street at two in the morning at a great speed and sounding the horn continuously. There were two occupants. One who sat at the back appeared to have his head covered with a grey vest and his whole body seemed to be limp. This witness thought that an accident had occurred, and that the victim was being rushed to an hospital.

THE SOLDIERS ON THE FARM.

It is re-assuring to find that the reports that many returned men who were placed on farms in Quebec are in dire distress are not in accordance with the facts. The work of the Soldiers' Settlement Board has been pronounced the best feature of the repatrian plans of the Government, and it would have been unfortunate indeed if the condition of some of the men who availed themselves of the opportunity was as bad as the rumours intimated. There have been hard times for some of these men during the past year, undoubtedly. The extreme draught last summer created much distress, but the Government has made generous provision for easing the burden in such cases, and there is not the least danger of Russian conditions attaining among the soldier-farmers.

RELIEF FOR THE VETERANS.

The members of the local branch of the G.W.V.A. seem to be setting the pace so far as the relief of unemployed returned men is concerned. There are many such men who are badly in need of assistance, and the action of the war veterans' organization in deciding to appeal to all returned men who have been regularly employed to contribute a day's pay towards a fund for destitute ex-service men will be a source of comfort to the workless veterans and a stimulus to the generosity of the public. The association includes such work among the objects for which it was organized, and yet it seems a pity that the burden should fall upon the shoulders of men who have done their bit. Already a number of members of the local branch have donated a day's pay to this most praiseworthy fund, and any other returned man who wishes to aid his comrades who are in distress is urged to do so. Subscriptions may be sent to The Examiner office. It is a cause that should receive hearty support.

THE BLUE SKY BILL.

Included in the legislation that is to be introduced at the coming session of the Ontario Legislature will be a "blue sky" bill, a measure designed with the object of placing a curb upon fraudulent stock plotation. What form this measure will take has not yet been definitely decided. It may perhaps make it necessary for Provincial approval to be secured before any stock scheme may be launched—and this seems the most effective way of dealing with the problem—or it may simply give the Attorney-General the power to investigate whenever a complaint may be made. It will be remembered that the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce last year passed a strong resolution calling upon the Legislature to pass a measure that would protect the people of the Province from being exploited by unscrupulous promoters, endeavouring to float dubious stock schemes. That there is every need for such protection is only too evident, and it is to be hoped that the Legislature will not be faint-hearted in its attitude towards this question. "Blue sky" laws have been in force in many States across the line and have in the main been successful in accomplishing the object for which they were created. The shady promoters have as a result sought after more promising and less dangerous hunting-grounds, and many of them have found Ontario a very lucrative field for their operations. After the next session of the Legislature it may not be quite so easy in this Province to gull the public with stock schemes that have little chance to succeed.

FRENCH IN SCHOOLS.

The Toronto Board of Education is coming in for a good deal of criticism because of its action in refusing to grant permission for the teaching of French in a public school after regular school hours. It appears that such permission was granted by last year's Trustees, but renewal of the privilege has been denied by the new Board, while a similar concession has been granted for the holding of dancing and elocution classes. Every municipality has its own particular problems, and there may be reasons not readily apparent for the course taken by the Trustees in this matter. It is Toronto's affair, and we have no desire to meddle in its business; but it is to be hoped that the ruling will not generally be taken as a precedent. It would seem that a knowledge of French is far more desirable and important than the ability to wriggle one's body and twirl one's toes, and that young people who have linguistic ambitions are quite as much entitled to consideration as those who have aspirations in the oratorical and entertainment line.

It is strange to encounter this indifference, if not hostility, to the study of foreign languages. As a general rule, the English-speaking people are notoriously behindhand in linguistic attainment, and seem to be, for some extraordinary reason, more proud than ashamed of the fact. To know two languages, it has been said, is to enjoy two worlds of thought. This is peculiarly the case with the gorgeous literature of France, so beautiful in expression and so profound in sentiment. Not merely on utilitarian grounds, but for the amount of esthetic and cultural advantage which a possession of the French language affords, its study should be encouraged whenever the opportunity offers. For Canadians, especially, there is an added reason for its acquisition. The bogey of bi-lingualism is frequently held up; but bi-lingualism could be made a blessing and an enrichment. The only mischief which can arise from it is the inability of either party to understand the mind and the soul of the other. That mind and that soul are revealed in the national literature and the spoken word. If these are sealed books to the majority of people, the obvious solution is to break the seals.

Last week the Bonne Entente League of Ottawa, an organization formed for the purpose of fostering good relationships between the French and English-speaking citizens of the capital, and composed of members of both races, passed a resolution recommending the teaching of French in the public schools. The motto of the League is: "To love, to help and to understand each other." The best means of achieving that worthy object, it is felt, is first of all to understand each other's speech. In the process of reaching such understanding will come much self-improvement, satisfaction and pleasure, and—what ought to make the strongest appeal in these mercenary days—actual profit, in the narrowest, monetary sense.—Hamilton Spectator.

THE TOWNS OF ONTARIO.

Going through some of the figures shown by the latest census returns, it will be seen that Ontario towns are losing in many cases. One paper takes a few of the towns in the northern part of Western Ontario, and states:

"The last census returns indicate that many of the towns in this part of the Province are losing population. For instance, Chesley has a population of 1,708, or 26 less than 10 years ago; Durham has 1,491, a loss of 90; Harriston has 1,233, a loss of 238; Mount Forest lost 126; Palmerston lost 144; Walkerton has 2,338, or 263 less than ten years ago. Wingham also lost 153, its present population being 2,085."

Small towns in Ontario are somewhat the same in many ways, particularly in that they have the same problems to meet.

A picture taken about 30 years ago of the pupils attending a public school in one of the towns in the north end of Middlesex, shows about 164 attending school then. Today there are five of those in the picture residents of the town, and the same thing has been taking place ever since. Where do they go?

Let us take a western town, Fernie, B. C., for instance. The owner of the newspaper there was John Wallace, a Parkhill boy; two of the printers came from Ontario; the Whalen brothers were running a splendid hotel, having come there from Napanee; Jack Gates, from Harriston, was in the same business; Hamilton, the plumber, came from Stratford, as did M. Kastner, in the real estate business; Jack Crawford, in the cartage business, was from Parkhill; the managers of all the banks were from the east; Dr. Bonnell and Dr. Corson were both from Western Ontario; Blundell, the grocer, came from Petrolea. Those are simply a few of many names that could be used. They are mentioned because they were the first to be remembered of Fernie, as it was a few years ago.

There are hundreds of places in Western Canada that can tell the same story. They are made up of men who come from Eastern Canada.

The cities of this old Ontario must also own up to the fact that they get many of their men from the towns, villages and farms. One could string off scores of names in London, Brantford, Woodstock, Stratford, or any centre, and in these names trace the movement that has kept the town small and made the city greater.

Look at it another way. What has the town to offer? Take a concrete case, and get down to facts, so for that purpose we mention Parkhill, in Middlesex County. When a boy got his entrance there, he had a chance to go to high school. At sixteen, let us say, he was through school. There used to be an occasional chance to learn a trade at the local foundry, printing office, or carriage and blacksmithing establishment; sometimes one of the stores had room for a boy, or one of the banks was prepared to take on a junior clerk. There may have been a few other openings, but in the main the above covers the lot fairly well.

What were the others boys going to do? The answer is so plain that one hardly needs to suggest it, viz., get out and dig for a place in the big world, and that is exactly what the boys, and many of the girls, have done.

The smaller centres of old Ontario have played a very big part in building up this country, including the city life and the smaller centres that are dotted all over the vast expanse of Western Canada.

So, when they have done counting noses, and compared the count with ten years ago, many of the towns may not find much satisfaction in finding out that they have actually slipped back 100 or so. But let their imagination go out a little, and see where the boys and girls from that town have gone. You will find them all over the country. They have become mechanics, foremen, superintendents, owners; they are the leading doctors and surgeons; they have fine legal practices; they are editing and managing some of your biggest newspapers; they are teachers and principals in schools and colleges; they are merchants, and bankers and salesmen. If it were possible to stand them all together it would make the old town proud to think it had contributed such a wealth of manhood and womanhood to the world.

So the towns do not need to be discouraged. They have made a memorable contribution to the national life of Canada, which, in the last analysis, consists entirely of the sterling worth and character of its men and women.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Prosperity is just around the corner.

Hon. Chas. Stewart declares conditions in Canada would be improved if people would settle down to hard work. But where is it?

Nova Scotia miners are talking about Bolshevism. Don't they ever read the news from Russia?

With returned men contributing a day's pay to help the unemployed comrade, it looks as if the rest of the community should recognize the seriousness of the situation.

Miners everywhere seem to be expecting their employers to do some digging themselves, judging by the demands for more money.

Voice Of The People

TOO MUCH HATE

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly allow me space to thank briefly the Rev. A. H. McConnachie for the articles which he has the courage to publish in your paper, and also to thank you for publishing them.

It is good in these days to find a minister, who is not afraid of "Truth" nor yet afraid to say so. "Beware", says Emerson, "when God let's loose a thinker on this planet, for then all things are at risk."

It is to the thinker the race owes its rise from cave to present day conditions. Thought is power, and man the expression of "God's Thinking." The world has been engendering so much hate ever since the beginning of the war that it requires all the powers of the thinker to bring us again to the "God of Love".

Now-a-day, in many cases, the pulpit is not free from preaching hate. Hate of our fellow who does not worship our God, when Christ said "Love thy God". He was speaking to a multitude composed of Greeks, Romans, Jews, and Gentiles and it is not on record that he specialized the "Hebrew God". All the brotherhoods and clubs of to-day are only expressing dissatisfaction with things as they are. Let the Church preach love, and again love for love is the fulfilling of the law," and we shall have no need of various brotherhoods, the Church being one universal brotherhood.

Let me in finishing quote from H. O. Morgan, a divine for whose writing I have great admiration:

Speak on, O prophets of the deep,
And wake us from this waking sleep
The stygian darkness of our light
Revel unto the inner sight;
The mist of time dispel with Truth,
Reveal eternal life and youth,
And man's supreme divinity!
Speak words of daring prophecy,
Until our blinded eyes shall be Awake to God's humanity.

POVERTY AND THE LAND.

Sir: According to the Toronto papers, the assessor of that city set the value of the land of Toronto at $300,000,000, the value of the buildings at $240,000,000.

This opens a vista of thought to me. It means that the value (caused not by any services renderd by the owners of the land) exceeds by $60,000,000, the value of the services rendered by the buildings. Evidently, by allowing the owners of the land to appropriate the value that comes with increased population, we eventually make the producer poor, and the non-producer rich.

The central lots of Toronto have advanced from practically nothing in 1800, till now the owner of an acre can take from industry as much in one year as the man who works honestly can get in 100 years. If the population of Toronto increases as much in the next 13 years as it has in the past 13 years, the value of the land will increase by $500,000,000.

What will Toronto do with that? Let it go as in the past to the landowners, and thus crowd honest industry into poverty? This appears to me as if the owners of land are allowed by law to reduce their fellowmen, the producers, to a condition of poverty and servitude. (This system applies to other cities.)

When the population was few the owner of the land, could demand only a small tribute, but as it increased, he says, Pay more. Pay more of your earnings by production to me for producing nothing. Therefore the actual producer has to sustain himself and the man that produces nothing, "the Landowner.' I think people are agreed that everyone should earn his living by producing something of use.

To-day I go down town. I meet bunches of mechanics and men unemployed, and in a state of poverty, who ask me, Can nothing be done to change such a system that brings about such a terrible state of affairs as we are facing to-day?

All sorts of charitable institutions get together in a spirit of what is considered Christian charity. It is a very laudable thing but inadequate, often works out unjustly, and does not meet the requirements. I really think if all the good people would get down to economic control of the vitals of our existence, and correct some of the irregularities and impositions, we would not have the present disastrous amount of poverty. Poverty is not a necessary evil. So let us find the cause and remove it.

There is a statute upon the book that the city council may eliminate gradually the taxes upon improved property and put it upon the land, which to my mind, helps to stop holding land till such exorbitant values are placed upon it through no effort of the owner. Such things working together will help relieve the unjust conditions that we have at present to face

I believe such conditions that are herein stated in Toronto and other places presents one of the greatest barriers to progress of true religion and moral progress, because injustice is branded upon the fact of it, and Christian people tolerate it.

These things may not appeal to our so-called business men. But that is the cause of a great deal of our trouble to-day. Good business is not always fair. But the principle here advocated is at least considerate.

T. TOOMS.

SPORT GROUNDS

Editor Examiner:

Sir:—At the next meeting of the City Council Ald. H. Gainey, Chairman of the Parks Committee, will submit for their approval a recommendation that the Riverside Park be rented to the Peterborough Amateur Athletic Association for the year for $800. This may seem a reasonable and an enticing proposition in such hard and trying times.

Another factor which may make the Council feel favourable towards the idea is knowing that citizens have never enjoyed this spot as a public park and will be all that the more readily weaned. But the fact should not be overlooked that Riverside Park offers greater opportunities to satisfy the longings of the pleasure seeking citizens than any other park in the City. And the need for another public park must have been apparent, otherwise the ratepayers would have turned down the bylaw authorizing its purchase. I chanced to be in the Council Chambers one night when a deputation from East City appealed to the Aldermen to carry out the wish of the people by purchasing Riverside Park ere their option on the grounds expired. One of the principal speakers that night was His Honor Judge Huckye, who after a ver yimpressive appeal followed by a number of others, was assured the matter would have their earnest attention. Now the park has been purchased as a public grounds and while it may never attain the picturesque aspect visualized in Mr. Leader's letter on January 20th, yet it is possible, with a little time and expense, to make it a park that every citizen of Peterboro might well feel proud of.

The question now arises, why suggest that these grounds be kept inclosed as a playing ground for the P.A.A.A. Even if it be only for a year, this seems to be the driving of the thin edge of the wedge, and should be treated with a little suspicion.

The Examiner says the most satisfactory way, for the present at least, would be to lease this property to the P.A.A.A. at a reasonable figure, and allow that organization, which is to direct all amateur sports in the city, manage the grounds. This is claims, is endorsed by the Chamber of Commerce.

No doubt but what these gentlemen pay a large portion of the taxes and will have exercised their franchise to make it possible for the passing of the by-law, and are rightly entitled to their opinion. But one would have been inclined to have given them credit for being men of greater vision, and of a more sympathetic make up than to endorse any suggestion, which would prevent the use of this park by housewives and families who are boxed up in apartment houses and have no where to breathe the fresh air except on the street. True, there must be some grounds provided for the development of amateur sport in the city; and this to my mind can be attained without any inconvenience to the rest of the community. There is the Exhibition grounds, with transportation to its gates, having acres of enclosed ground not used 20 days out of the 365.

Yours respectfully
ALEX MURRAY.

CHANGE IN STANDARD.

ST. CATHARINES, February 3 (Canadian Press). — Lincoln County Council formally declared yesterday afternoon against the proposal of the Ontario Department of Education to raise the standards of matriculation to the universities, taking the stand that to make matriculation more difficult would have the effect of shutting off many young men and women of average ability and moderate means from the advantage of a university education, and then it would make matriculation more difficult for pupils who live in sections where upper school work is not taken up.

THE MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Feb. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—The local cash grain market was firm under an improved demand here yesterday. A firm feeling prevails for potatoes. Business in butter is quiet and the tone of the cheese market is firm.

Backache

Backache is the outstanding symptom of kidney disease. Women often make the mistake of attributing other causes and overlook the derangement of the kidneys until serious developments have made it difficult to obtain permanent relief.

This letter points to a treatment which has been so thoroughly tried and proven so effective in the great majority of cases that you cannot afford to overlook it when cause arises for its use.

Mrs. Albert Brunet, R.R. No. 1, Ottawa, Ont., writes:

"I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for the past two months, having been afflicted with kidney trouble. I used two doctors' medicine previous to this, without any good results. A friend told me to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and the second box made me feel a good deal better. I have now used about six or eight boxes, and am completely relieved."

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Interesting Address By Rev. A. H. McConnachie of Centreville at A.Y.P.A. Gathering—News of Busy Little Town.

Social and Personal.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 3.—The A.Y.P.A. of St. Thomas' church, held a musical and literary evening on Thursday, Feb. 2nd, in the S. S. Hall, the rector, Rev. Canon Allen, presiding.

This being a special meeting, open to the public, the usual roll call and business session were dispensed with. After a brief musical programme, which included a piano duet by the Misses Ada and May Attwool, a solo, "Loch Lomond," by Mr. A. Thomas, and a piano solo from the opera "Oberon" by Mrs. (Canon) Allan, Rev. A. H. McConnachie, of Centreville, gave a most interesting "Travel Talk" on his trip to Scotland last summer.

Beginning his address Mr. McConnachie said this was the first time he had ever spoken under Anglican auspices, but that he felt quite at home in any denominational atmosphere. He had not crossed the ocean as a sight-seer, but on a 'homey excursion' to his former parish in the "auld toon o' Ayr," his main interest being to renew the ties of kinship and friendship, and to preach once more in his parish church.

He had sailed from Quebec on the big liner, "Megantic," of 15,000 tons, last June, but it was not a good time to cross the ocean, the miners' strike being in full force and hence there was difficulty in obtaining caol. Many vessels coaled in Canada or the States, and claimed they could not make as good a time as when using Welsh or Scottish coal. However, having the sorrowful experience of being seasick during the greater part of the voyage, he had not particularly enjoyed that part of his trip. Landing in Liverpool, the speaker said, he was most anxious to reach Ayr, which was two hundred miles distant, that same evening, but owing to the strike he found the train service very much disorganized, and it was after being sent to three or four different stations that he finally succeeded in finding train accommodation for Kilmarnock, and from there on to Alloway, where his sister now resides, and which is just a short distance from the old historic town of Ayr.

For fifteen years Mr. McConnachie had been pastor of a church in the poorer quarter of the latter town, and after eight years' absence in Canada, was anxious to discover if his work there had been productive of any good results. He had also visited Burns' cottage and the handsome monument erected to the poet's memory at the "Brig o' Doon," where Tam O' Shanter's gray mare lost her tail, and though the weather there was as extremely warm as in Canada at that time, everything to him had looked fresh, and green, and beautiful, "as if the dews o' heaven had never failed." But even in London, or Glasgow, he had never seen worse hovels used as human abodes than in the slum district of Ayr where his church had been located. Visiting his quarter he was greeted by former parishioners and found, to his joy, that some were living transformed lives.

The town itself, which dates back to the 13th century, has some 35,000 inhabitants, and is well known in history, such names as Wallace, Bruce and Cromwell being connected with it. The latter, indeed, had laid violent hands on "St. John's" one of the finest churches in Ayr, and had converted it into a strongly fortified armoury, the remains of a well-defended citadel on that site being still shown. In the old kirk-yard are the burial places of seven Covenanters; the latter often held meeting on the hills around Ayr and were hanged for their allegiance to the Covenant of Scotland.

It is worthy of note, too, that the "Old Brig o' Ayr" is not to be confused with the "Brig o' Doon," since they are some miles apart, and both are made famous in Burns' poem, "The Twa' Brigs." The former which dates back to the 13th century and is only for foot traffic, was in danger of collapse, and a few years ago $50,000 was collected from Burns' societies all over the world that it might be properly repaired and last for centuries still.

The speaker stated that he had also visited Paisley, which was the town of his boyhood, and is the centre of the thread industry, the great firm of "Coates" being located there. Their great factories are valued at $50,000,000 an dtheir employees number probably 15,000 hands. But after the broad, open spaces of Canada, he had the feeling of being overcrowded in this big factory town. Some delightful motor trips through the Burns' country had been particularly enjoyable, as had also been the privilege of preaching once again in his former church in Ayr. Not being sea-sick on the home trip that also had proved a pleasant experience, his passage being taken on the ship, 'Saturina," which docked at Montreal the last week in August.

In conclusion Mr. McConnachie apologized somewhat for the many personal references throughout his talk, these being unavoidable because of his trip being simply one to visit home scenes and friends.

The gathering closed with a vote of thanks to the speaker of the evening, moved by the reeve, Mr. W. T. Wood and seconded by Rev. C. R. Spencer, also the singing of community songs from the A. Y. P. A. song sheets, and refreshments served during the social hours, all joining finally in the National Anthem.

WOMAN TOO WEAK TO WALK

Now Works Nine Hours a Day. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Strength

Union Village, Vt.—"I was weak and nervous and all run-down. I could not walk across the floor without resting, and I had been that way for weeks. I saw your advertisement in the paper and after taking one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I felt the good it was doing me and I took seven more in all. Before I finished I was able to work nine hours a day in a steam laundry. I cannot say too much in favor of your medicine. I trust all sick and suffering women will take it. It has been two years since I took it and I am strong and well."—Mrs. L. A. GUIMANN, Union Village, Vermont.

This is only one of such letters we are continually publishing showing what Lydia E. Pinkham has done for women. Mrs. Guimann's letter should interest you.

Many women get into a weak, nervous, run down condition because of ailments they often have. Such women should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the first sign of trouble.

WARSAW WON FROM PETERBORO' RANGERS

SCORE STOOD 3-1—HOLY NAME'S DEFAULTED TO LAKEFIELD

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 3.—The Peterborough Rangers hockey team went down in defeat here last night to Warsaw by a score of 3-1, in the presence of a pretty full rink of enthusiastic spectators.

In the first period the Warsaw's scored one goal against a cipher for the Rangers; at the end of the second period each contesting team had registered one goal; while in the third period Warsaw captured another two goals, leaving them victors by a margin of two.

The Warsaw bunch put up a fast and hard game, which demonstrated their qualifications for membership in the O.H.A. R. Wasson showed splendid form in the nets, while Darling's and Bell's forward play proved a feature of the clash.

The Line-Ups.

Warsaw—Goal, R. Wasson; defence, N. Crowe and H. Darling; centre, R. Darling; r. wing, F. Bell; l. wing, J. H. Darling. Subs., A. Hawthorne and R. Payne.

Rangers—Goal J. Drover; defence J. Brummell and C. Schweet; centre M. Meehan; r. wing, C. Mason; l. wing, H. Smith. Subs., Gregory and Fredenhurd.

The refereeing by Judson Hull, of Lakefield, gave general satisfaction.

Holy Name Defaulted.

For some unexplained cause, the Holy Name team of Peterborough did not show up for their game with Lakefield Intermediates last night. And so, rather than disappoint the fans, a special team was selected from Lakefield and Warsaw hockeyists to clash with the Intermediates.

The Line-Ups.

Intermediates—Goal, F. Hill; defence, V. Simpson and J. Sabatino; centre, H. Blewett; r. wing, D. Blewett; l. wing, W. Webster. Sub., Louis Sabatino.

Special Team—Goal, R. Wasson; defence, J. Hull and C. Crawford; centre, R. Hirsch; r. wing, Hilliard Darling; l. wing, S. Trude. Subs., R. Darling, R. Payne and F. Webster.

Referee, Norman Crowe.

In a rather one-sided struggle victory went to the Intermediates by a score of 7-2, the special team winning their solitary two goals in the third period.

NEW CLUE IN MURDER CASE

Father Delorme that no audit is being made or has been made of the books covering the Delorme estate, Chief Lorrain of the Provincial Detective Bureau, made the following statement yesterday afternoon:

"Two auditors are at this moment busy looking up the estate of Delorme in connection with the death of Raoul Delorme. These investigations are not being made in Father Dlormes home although the auditors spent one whole day there upon investigation. I think that Father Delorme is mistaken in his remarks."

No attention whatever is being paid to applications from single men.

TRUE DETECTIVE STORIES

"The Indelible Clue"

"Banding the counterfeits is all well and good, but where does it get us if we don't know who made them?"

The speakers, William J. Burns, then connected with the United States Secret Service, glanced up from his examination of a large sofa which his associates had stopped just as it was on the point of being shipped from New York to Costa Rica—a sofa which was stuffed, not with wool or hair, but with $2,000,000 worth of counterfeit Costa Rican money, destined to finance a Latin American revolution.

So far as the men who had been working on the case had been able to discover, there was no way in which to trace the shipment. It had been brought to the dock in an ordinary dray which, having unloaded its burden, had driven off, to be lost among thousands of others of its kind in the streets of New York. Of the men who had shipped the sofa, the men responsible for counterfeiting the currency of a friendly nation, there was no indication whatever.

But Burns made a careful, almost microscopic, examination of the burlap with which the furniture had been wrapped. Down in one corner, half-obliterated, he discovered a peculiar mark—the numerals "2 XX 64"—which the detective rightly presumed referred in some way to the manufacturers of the fabric.

Inquiry through trade channels brought the information that burlap of that kind, bearing the "XX" mark, was sold by only one concern in the East. But even that discovery didn't bring Burns much closer to his quarry, for the books of the firm in question showed that more than 2,000 dealers had purchased "XX" burlap within the past year. One by one these dealers were eliminated, until only six remained. Among these was a furniture house in Long Island City and when that store opened for business on the following morning a square-jawed, stockily-built man of medium height entered and asked to see the manager.

"My name is Burns," he stated, flipping back the lapel of his coat in such a way as to afford a glimpse of his Secret Service badge. "I would like to have the opportunity of looking at the stock of burlap which you have on hand at the present time, in order to assist the Government in running down a case of considerable importance."

But right there the man who located the makers of the Monroehead counterfeit and solved the mysteries connected with the McNamara case ran into a snag. None of the burlap bore the "2 XX 64" mark. The "XX" was there, but the numerals were all different.

"When did you get this stock in?" asked the detective.

"About a month ago," was the reply.

"Have you any of the former material on hand?"

The manager was inclined to think not, but a careful search of the warehouse brought to light a single piece of the former supply and there, in the corner, was the clue that Burns had hoped to find—the indelible "2 XX 64."

"Now," snapped the Secret Service man, "if you will let me see your books for the past three or four months, I won't bother you any longer."

That same afternoon Burns and two of his associates rang the bell of a house in Brooklyn occupied by a Mrs. Loni, who was, according to the clerk who had made the sale, "a Spanish woman who insisted upon buying a sofa of a certain kind, well padded and heavily stuffed. The sofa answered the description of the one which was being held at the wharf, and the very fact that the purchaser had been Spanish added the final connecting link. But, in order to avoid any possible slip-up, Burns located the expressman who had taken the furniture, from the Loni house to the dock—a feat which was far from difficult once he had a clue to the location of the home of the counterfeiters.

As he had expected, Mrs. Loni disclaimed any knowledge of the shipment and fell back upon a professed lack of understanding of English to bolster up her position. To her amazement, the detective replied in fluent Spanish, informing her that he had all the facts in the case—the statement of the clerk who had sold the sofa, the expressman who had carted it to the dock and the fact that he had seen with his own eyes $2,000,000 in counterfeit bills taken from the piece of furniture.

"This house is surrounded," concluded Burns. "I've got my hand on my gun and I'm going to stay right here until I land the men who made that money if it takes me——" But it didn't take as long as he had expected, for, as he spoke, the woman's son-in-law, Ricardo de Requesans, stepped into the room and admitted that he and another Spaniard had been responsible for making and planting the counterfeits.

"The next time you try to pull off anything of the kind," Burns said as he took them into custody, "be careful of the markings on the burlap you use. Overlooking details of that kind is likely to cost you several years in the penitentiary!"

SPORT GOSSIP

At this time the scouts for the major college and university teams are invading the high schools and preparatory schools seeking material.

There are several thousands of these scouts, working without pay or chance of reward for the future athletic glory of the alma mater.

From these scouts many a high school boy has received his first intimation of college spirit and it is very often the spirit of the graduate that swings the boy to the graduate's school.

Some time ago we were talking to a remarkable young track athlete. He is to be graduated from high school next June. We asked him whether he intended going to college and he said he did. He had picked his college, named it and when we asked him why he chose that particular college, he replied:

"Well, I talked to one of the fellows that used to go there and he told me a lot about it and he was so strong for it that I figured that any college that could make a guy as strong for it as this fellow was for this one must be a great place to go and so I am going."

Marriage is just a case of putting up with each other and putting up for everything else.

Dictated But Not Read

by Jack Lait

TEN years ago, the title of this tale would have meant nothing; to-day it is an accepted term-phrase. It exemplifies many things: That business men these days are busy; that the old-time courtesies of correspondence are obsolete, and that the alibi is king.

"Dictated but not read" means that the undersigned or the undersigner-by-proxy can always reneg by saying the stenog misunderstood him or misread her notes.

Couched in just those words, the phrase is standardized. The same act expressed in any other terms would be an affront. Anybody can pry into any other person's most personal mail and wipe out the sin by scratching on the safe-blown envelope, "Opened by Mistake." Banks used to rudely note "N. S. F." on a return-trip check, which was final and offensive, but to-day they rubber-stamp "N. S. F. according to our books," which leaves the alibi that, perhaps, the accounting was in error. "N. S. F." means "Not Sufficient Funds," and has at times been misconstrued as "Not Sufficient Faith"—or "Not So Friendly." But to-day it only means that a receiving teller got absent-minded. Probably the account has been dictated but not read.

A man would scarcely write to the President of the United States and note on his letter, "Dictated but Not read." Therefore it isn't a polite thing to do to anyone. One would scarcely open mail addressed to the English Ambassador by mistake, so that isn't a forgivable slip. Though I knew a man once who opened a plain envelope addressed to himself, saw that it contained a bill from a haberdasher, and returned it marked "Opened by Mistake"—he might even have added "N. S. F. According to Our Books." And the bill he might have acknowledged as "Dictated but not read."

Time was when men wrote in flowing long hand. George Washington's letters are preserved, are historic documents. Can you fancy, a hundred or so years from now, preserving as a sacred memento the typewritten note of Mr. Volstead to Governor Edwards, wishing him a pleasant re-election, signed by the amanuensis with the writer's name in a business college hand, and stamped "Dictated but not read"?

Montgomery Appleton was the General Sales Manager (the capitals are correct—he insisted on them) for the Transcontinental Tractor, Reaper, Harvester and Farm Machinery Corporation. He read the trade papers, the "inspirational" articles in magazines of business and system, he kept track of his road men by pins that he moved about in little holes bored into a detail map of the United States, he was a demon for efficiency, a hound on routine, committed to loose-leaf records, but to nothing else loose.

Inter-department correspondence was his forte. He wanted everything in writing, communicated, received, acknowledged, filed. He had no faith in or time for the spoken word. He had a small opinion of human machinery, regarding it as woefully fallible. His dictograph never forgot; his adding machine never had a bad head; his stenographer might go wrong, but that wasn't the fault of the typewriter, which never recorded any characters that weren't struck; his files couldn't argue back at him, for there were the records, black on white; the time-stamp couldn't flop, for its clock was regulated by mechanical supervision over a wire.

Appleton had charts of sales fluctuations as ranged against department outlay plus overhead, territorial comparisons, seasonal averages, salesmen's comparative grades, recapitulations by factory items, criss-crossed with what percentage everything bore toward anything else. He could answer any question affecting his department, not by what he thought, but by what he knew—by figures—plain, machine-written, machine-computed, irrefutable, argument-exempt, fool-proof figures. He knew where the figures came from, when they came, how they came, why they came. Every figure had been checked back against all the other figures, and all figures yet to come must answer to the figures already recorded and irrevocable.

He laid out the traveling men's campaigns by typewritten instructions, with orders that these selling arguments and those answers to typical questions be rigidly employed, salesmen to engage in no original conversations beyond such as were pushed on them, in which event they were to reply as briefly and as non-compromisingly as possible—anything that wasn't thought of in the prospectus for salesmen couldn't be of importance. The goods would sell themselves in the assigned markets if scientifically offered as per memo; no "personality," cigars, dubious stories or spontaneous bull encouraged.

If there was a blow-hole in Montgomery Appleton's air-tight-system, he didn't suspect it. And he would never have tolerated it, any more than a royal tyrant would have suffered treason at one of his gates. But there was one traitor, one Frankenstein of this super-modernized method that was to rock his whole concrete scheme and rattle his back teeth—"Dictated but not Read."

The human element, the only fallible straw in the otherwise invulnerable brick of Appleton's domain, was Flossie. Flossie put the little jiggers on the end of the two-branch tube from the dictograph in her ears—which was the only evidence that she had ears, for they were at all other times and under all other conditions obscured beneath the fluffy, golden forests of bobbed hair—and she transcribed on her typing machine, with the touch method and a faraway look, what the wax cylinder sang to her.

Flossie was as human an element as could have punctured an otherwise bonehead-proof combination. She was a cutie. She had no illusions about a "career," for she was engaged to Bob Frothingham, in the traffic department. Threshers, harrows and worm-drive power stump-pullers meant as much to her as Yom Kippur means to a mocking bird. She had to work until Bob should have earned his salary increase and they could go honeymooning. Otherwise it was all a cream-puff with her—nothing much in it.

Appleton had never thought that he, himself, was human, until Flossie had tripped into his office, assigned by the service department, to succeed his secretary, who had gone to Haiti as a missionary to reform the Marines. Until that moment, had anyone come right out and accused Appleton of being human, he would have acrimoniously denied it. But Flossie turned her big, round, violet soul-windows on him, and he dropped a rubber stamp and dipped a red pencil in the inkwell.

He never made love to her—no, not by pads of memos and grosses of automatic fasteners. He growled at Flossie, though, in a manner that would have convinced any expert instantly that she could have asked him what time it was and he would have given her his watch. It never got to an expression of adoration beyond this. Within a month after Flossie had hit that office and stood it on edge, from the receiving department on the east to the shipping room on the west, Bob had gotten the magic words under the fluffy forests into her little-neck-shell ears, and she had sighed, "Surest thing you know," and the only sweet, unpatented, irresponsible, mischievous, kissable thing in Appleton's whole life had yessed itself out of it again.

Appleton sighed and grieved. But business had to go on. So he tolerated Flossie's shiftless, inefficient, guess as guess can deeds, and suffered.

Bob was an upstanding scout. He wrote figures in big books, for his end of the game wasn't operated by wheels and tags and keys. He idolized Flossie and thought her the bewitchingest little skeezicks that ever winked an eye or watched a clock. He couldn't navigate around much, but Flossie could, though it was against regulations, and she would romp in a dozen times every day to poke fun at him and disorganize his whole staff. When she wasn't doing that, she was typing—acording to her lights—what the wax records barked back into her ears from Appleton's voice.

He Idolized Flossie and Thought Her the Bewitchingest Skeezicks That Ever Winked an Eye or Watched a Clock.

January came. And with it, at the start of the new year, Bob's reward in a rise of stipend. The wedding was set for early Spring.

The new year brought, too, annual totals, averages, percentages, comparisons, reports and tables.

Appleton was a firm believer in information. He stood pat on the facts, regardless of whom they twinged or whom they glorified. To him figures couldn't lie and shouldn't shut up. He prepared an exhaustive quadruple-check resume of the year's sales, showing each traveling man's gross, net, rating, grade, degree and rank.

Homer Axman, an old New England lightning-rod peddler, who had taken to Appleton's ways and to the corporation's merchandise like a bellboy to bootlegging, ran first. Second was Allen Staver, one of the youngest of the flock, a college boy with a football record. Staver had flung his fling, sowed his wild hops, tackled the world and made good.

Appleton was mighty proud of Staver. That is, now that the figures backed Staver up, Appleton was mighty proud of him. Of more than thirty men with training and antecedents that took in many means and extremes of commercial man-building and man-busting, this athletic college boy had been the runner-up to Homer Axman, himself, the steadiest, canniest, most orderly and most system-worshiping Nestor of the outfit.

Appleton dictated and caused to be typed duplicate copies of his long-form report. Flossie was instructed to place one in each of a set of envelopes addressed to all the salesmen. Then Appleton dictated an individual letter to each man, congratulating those who had made satisfactory showings, encouraging those who were about midway between good and fair, warning those who were but passable, reproving those who were a drag on the average, and giving notice to one or two who were hopeless lame ducks.

To Axman he wooed a brief note, calling his attention to the fact that he again led the field, assuring him of his and the corporation's appreciation of his excellent work, pointing out to him in passing that he had been given the cream of the territory, but nevertheless thanking him for the manner in which he had covered it, and for the painstaking devotion to the system which he had displayed.

Then came the next on the list—Staver—and to him Appleton dictated the following:

"Allen Staver, Esq.
"Spencer Hotel,
"Marion, Ind.,

"My Dear Staver:

"Enclosed is the sales report for last year.

"I call your attention to your figures.

"You will note that, while your selling record is efficient, your range across our catalogue proves not comprehensive.

"It appears from superficial study of your problem, that you are pushing the machine which personally appeals to you, in place of accelerating our staples.

"In rating, you are next best to Axman, which is a source of congratulation, in which opinion I am sure the General Manager agrees with me.

"Your salary will be raised as soon as I can expand it, which matter shall have the immediate attention of the auditing department.

"Permit me to impress on you again a reminder of my pet sentiment, 'You are one spoke in a vast wheel!'

"Believe me yours,

"MONTGOMERY APPLETON,
"General Sales Manager."

(Dictated but not read.)

M. A.—F. R.

"There," said Appleton, to himself, after he had burred that into the rotating wax blank, "is a letter! It will tickle the young fellow to have his salary raised, and I must congratulate him on the standing he made. But I picked the one flaw in his efficiency—that he didn't sell enough binders and reapers, as compared with mowers, though in the aggregate his orders outstripped all the rest except old Axman's. That will keep him in his place, and next year he'll do better, pulled up by his great start, held in check by my notation as to his weak point and my last punch paragraph—that he is only a spoke in the wheel, after all."

The day that Flossie had to write Staver's letter and a score of others, was her last in the employ of the great Transcontinental Tractor, Reaper, Harvester and Farm Machinery Corporation, for she was to retire to make the last preparation for her wedding and her honeymoon and her housekeeping with Bob.

She wrote and wrote and wrote until her pink little finger-tips tingled. Only four times in the morning and five times in the afternoon had she run in to visit with her sweetie-man, which gives one an indication of how busy she was. With one eye on the office clock and the other on the future, with her ears buzzing with the whispers of love and the dictated but not read correspondence, she touch-systemed along like the handy, business-school-trained little typist she was.

She was too square to walk out and leave work undone. Appleton had ordered a chiffonier and dresser for her and Bob, for a wedding present—she knew that from one of the file clerks. He had always been all right enough to her; no, she would clean out the dictagraph and clean up the letters and leave a clean record and a clean slate.

Staver's letter was the last. She was preoccupied and she was tired. Her little body ached and her pretty head was numb. Her fingers flew, but there was no feeling in them. Yet she wrote. And she finished. She had said her adieus to the rest. Bob was waiting downstairs. She put on her pert little bonnet, threw on her wrap, and walked out of business life—forever.

Five days later, Allen Staver walked into the office of the General Sales Manager of the Transcontinental Tractor, etc. That official was dictating into the funnel of his dictagraph, while, nearby, sat a hatchet-profiled female with a pince nez precariously perched on her bridge, tapping angularly.

Appleton turned. What! Staver? What was Staver doing here? According to the little pins in the little holes on the big map, Staver should at that moment have been in Wasaw, Ind., with transportation bought to Evansville.

"Hello, Staver," exclaimed Appleton. "How do you come to——"

Staver swung from the hip.

A healthy fist, propelled by a practised and hefty swing, landed on Appleton's chin, and the portly General Sales Manager went back against his mahogany desk. Another, from the other hand, and he sprawled on the floor.

Staver drew a letter from his pocket and threw it on the floor beside the half-conscious man.

"Next time you get drunk—or crazy—or whatever possesses a man to write an infamous mess of slanderous nonsense like that," he said, "pick out somebody who'll stand for it."

And he walked out.

Clerks ran to Appleton's help. He was puffing and dizzy, wiping the blood from his face, sputtering, bewildered.

No such occurrence had ever taken place in the sales department of this corporation.

There was no established custom for handling it. There was no labor-saving or error-eliminating mechanism that could be applied to it.

Through Appleton's befuddled mind ran pictures and figures and thoughts, but they didn't seem to co-ordinate.

Through it all ran the one pungent sorrow, more painful than the bruises, more humiliating than his undignified position; something had gone wrong; something had failed in a system that was designed to be and should have been perfect.

What was this punching thing, this berating?

How did such extraneous items horn into a department built up only for one purpose—to sell the machines of a machinery company?

The new typist picked up the letter. She started to read it and looked sharply, then read it through.

It said:

"Allen Staver, Esq.
"Spencer Hotel,
"Marion, Ind.,

"Dear Staver:

"Enclosed is the sales report for last year.

"I call your attention to your failures.

"You will note that, while your silly record is a fizzle, your age has cost our cash a lot. You're non compos mentis.

"It appears from super-sufficient study of your problem, that you are punishing the moonshine which personally appeals to you in places of back cellar rating or stables.

"Any rate, your neck gets the axe, man, which is a source of congratulation, in which opinion I am sure the General Manager agrees with me.

"Your salary will be erased as soon as I can expunge it, which matter shall have the immediate attention of the auditing department.

"Permit me to impress on you again a reminder of my pet sentiment, 'You are one soak in a fast field.'

"What's in you is good and vicious.

"Leave me. Yours,

"MONTGOMERY APPLETON,
"General Sales Manager."

(Dictated but not read.)

M. A.—F. R.

"You should have seen the Chinese map you drew on poor Appleton's face," said Bob to Staver, when Staver called at the little flat to wish the honeymooners joy.

"Dictated—but not read," said Staver.

"And the cut you made under his left eye."

"Opened by mistake," said Bob.

FERDINAND DARE NOT RETURN TO BULGARIA.

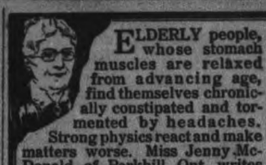
SOFIA, February 3 (Associated Press). — There is no chance of former King Ferdinand's return to Bulgaria, declares Premier Alexander Stamboulisky, Bulgaria's vigorous statesman, farmer and reformer.

"If ever Ferdinand should dare to put his foot on Bulgarian soil," the Premier told the correspondent with a tremendous thump on his desk, "the people would rise up against him as a traitor, and either hang him or thrust him in jail.

"No, you may tell the American people not to listen to these frequent reports of the return of Ferdinand. We have done complete penance for our sins, and part of that penance has been to banish for ever from our sight the faithless Ferdinand, to whom most of our sins were due."

M. Stamboulinsky said the Bulgarian people are filled with contempt and hatred for their former ruler, the father of the popuuar young King, Boris.

If birds of a feather would lay together, it would help a little right now.



ELDERLY people, whose stomach muscles are relaxed from advancing age, find themselves chronically constipated and tormented by headaches. Strong physics react and make matters worse. Miss Jenny McDonald of Parkhill, Ont., writes that her mother found Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin ideal for constipation. It proved effective, yet acted mildly and gently and did not gripe. Increased doses were not necessary.

HAD BAD COUGH AND SORE THROAT

Never neglect a cough or cold however slight. If you do it can have but one result: it leaves the throat or lungs, or both, affected. A single dose of will help to stop the cough, soothe the throat, and if the cough or cold has become settled on the lungs the healing virtues of the Norway pine tree along with the soothing and expectorant properties of other excellent herbs, roots and barks, promptly eradicates the bad effects, and the persistent use cannot but help to bring about relief.

Mr. Albert Marsh, Lower L'Ardoise, N. S., writes: "About a year ago I contracted a cold accompanied by a very bad cough and sore throat. I sent for the doctor but what he prescribed did me so little good I became discouraged. A friend came to see me and asked me if I had ever used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I told him I had not and sent him away to get me a bottle. I started using it, and after a couple of days I found that I was getting relief, and after taking two bottles the soreness in my throat seemed to be leaving me, so I resolved to continue its use, and after I had used five bottles both my sore throat and the cough were gone. I would not be without "Dr. Wood's" for any money."

Price, 35c and 60c a bottle; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

VESTRY MEETING OF HAULTAIN CHURCH.

Financial Statement Reveals Healthy Condition.

YOUNG'S POINT, Feb. 3.—The annual Vestry meeting of the Holy Trinity church, Haultain was held on Saturday evening, January 28th, the incumbent, Rev. J. L. Hughes, being in the chair.

After the reading and signing of the previous minutes the churchwarden accounts were presented by Mrs. Thompson, vestry clerk.

The balance sheet showed an income of $203.72, including a balance of $37.02 brought forward from the previous year. The total expenditure was $172.47, leaving a balance on hand of $31.25.

The incumbent elected Mr. W. Dunford as his warden, the Vestry electing Mr. C. Shewan as people's warden. Mr. Shewan takes the office held for several years by Mr. W. Thompson the latter having expressed a strong wish not to be re-elected for two reasons: he felt he could not give the necessary time to the office he should, and also thought that the post should not be held too long by one man, but that others should share in the work of warden.

The Vestry reluctantly acceded to Mr. Thompson's wish.

The following were elected sidesmen by the incumbent: Messrs.. Wm. MacCauley and Norman Bolton. by the Vestry, Messrs. Albert Reid and Israel Church.

Those appointed to serve as Lay representatives at the synod are: Messrs. Wm. Thompson, of Mt. Julian and E. H. Rudge, of Toronto. Auditor, Mr. A. Reid.

Several business matters were then discussed by the members presnt, special attention being given to the preservation of the church's exterior and the duplex envelope system.

In his closing remarks the chairman expressed his pleasure at the happy spirit of relationship existing among the members of the church and between them and himself. The Rev. Hughes also paid tribute to Mrs. Thompson for her painstaking work as Vestry Clerk and Treasurer, and to the wardens and sidesmen of the past year. upon his suggestion the Vestry passed a special vote of thanks to Mr. Thompson for his willing and faithful service as warden.

The church roll numbers 22 families, and 2 individuals not included in such families. The adults number 52, children 24. There are 31 confirmed members on the roll. The number of baptisms last year was two.

Things look pretty favourable for the agricultural bloc harvest.

It is perhaps too bad that we can not send Congress to the economy conference.

U.S. CONFEDERATE MONEY IN BERLIN.

Prominent German Merchants Victimized.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.— (Associated Press)—Another issue of United States Confedtrate money, in 10 bills has been put on the market in Germay, ad several prominent merchants have been victimized to the extent of thousands of dollars. Scores of others have accepted the bad bills in smaller amounts.

A few months ago the Confederate money, suspiciously bright and clean, was passed quietly around to unsuspecting shopkeepers and to even a few visiting Americans who displayed careslessness in making change. At that time a warning was issued by the banks and the newspapers advised readers to use discretion.

The latest known victim is a merchant who sold a bill of goods for $900 in cash and accepted the Confederate currency. He appealed to the American Association of Commerce and Trade in Berlin.

The Association, as a result of these raids on German marks and German goods by the Confederate money vendors, has issued a warning to its clientele, declaring "the only way to avoid such losses is to affect all payments for goods throug a bank, especially where foreign currency comes into question."

German merchants recently also have been accepting counterfeit 50-mark notes, many of which are still in circulation although the police succeeded in capturing the counterfeiters.

CENTRAL HEATING PLANTS UNDER CIVIC CONTROL

WINNIPEG, Feb. 2.— (Canadian Press.)—The establishment of central heating plants, under civic ownership and control, is believed by S. C. Oxton, deputy minister of public works in the provincial government, to be a solut on to the problem of heating Winnipeg buildings. Mr. Oxton bases his opinion on the record of the provincial government's central heating plant. This plant heats the parliament buildings, court house, land titles, office, jail and University buildings. The cost of heating is away below what it would be with a separate plant in each bu lding.

Mr. Oxton believes it would be much cheaper for householders to pay their share for a central heating plant than to provide and maintain their own plants. He said to establish a central heating system the cost of radiation would have to be arrived at. Once established such a system would free house holders from furnace worries.

CEREMONIAL FOR ROYAL WEDDING.

Arranging For Princess Mary-Lascelles Nuptials.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—(Associated Press).—Arrangements for Princess Mary's wedding to Viscount Lascelles at Westminster Abbey the last week in February are beginning to take form.

The Lord Chamberlain, Duke of Atholl has been commisioned by the King to draw up a sketch of the proposed ceremonial and the State Chamberlain, Sir Douglas Dawson, will prepare the program.

The sending out of 2,000 invitations is the task of the Ceremonial Department at St. James' Palace. A fortnight's notice is usually considered sufficient for such occasions. The King and Queen as a rule invite personally their own relatives from abroad.

Not all the guests at Westminster Abbey will be able to see the wedding ceremony. The choir and the transepts will be set apart for the royal family; the diplomatic corps, personal friends of the Viscount and Princess and the members of the royal households and suites. The others will have to be content with a view of the procession.

The wedding will be solemnized by the Archbishop of Canterbury, or in his absence, by the Archbishop of York.

A wedding reception will probably be held in the ballroom at Buckingham Palace, at which the famous royal gold plate service will be displayed.

The confectionery for all the state functions is made by the confectioners at the Palace and it is presumed they will make the wedding cake.

SAGE AND SULPHER DARKENS GRAY HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Restore Colour, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural colour and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredient at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, and attractive.

MISS NELLIE COLLINS,

"I have been thankful a thousand times that I took Tanlac when I did. It is simply wonderful the way it has benefitted me," said Miss Nellie Collins, 1330 Connecticut Ave, Bridgeport Conn.

"About eighteen months ago my appetite began to fail and I seemed to be going into a decline. Nothing agreed with me and my nerves were keyed up to such a high pitch I was actually afraid they would snap in two.

"But Tanlac has brought about a wonderful change in my condition. My appetite is almost ravenous, my digestion is perfect and I feel as well and strong as I ever did in my life. I never dreamed there was as grand a medicine as Tanlac in the world."

Tanlac is sold in Peterboro by the Warne Drug Co., Ltd., and by leading druggists everywhere.

FIRST WINNIPEG WINTER CARNIVAL.

Twenty-Five Candidates For Queen.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Centred around Manitoba's Parliament Buildings, the first Winnipeg Winter Carnival will be held during the week of Feb. 6 to 11 in conjunction with the bonspiel and the local bowling association's annual tournament, both of which every year attract many visitors from many sections of Canada and the North-Western States. An ice wall, six feet high, and half a mile long, festooned with evergreen trees, will enclose skating rinks, toboggan slides, ski slides and many other attractions for the followers of outdoor winter sports. The carnival is a community effort for the pleasure and benefit of the public and not for the profit of any individual or trade section. The money for the financing of it has been raised by the sale of Civic Pride Bonds, which carry admission tickets and entitles the purchaser to vote for the Carnival Queen. Twenty-five candidates are in the running for queen, nominated by as many social clubs.

A feature of the sporting events already arranged include a fifteen-mile Canadian championship snowshoe Marathon and a ten-mile ski race. Plans are also nearing completion for the running of a 20-mile dog M[illegible]on from Selkirk, Man. Hockey ...thusiasts have not been forgotten, and as well as the regular amateur league games scheduled, many fixtures will be staged between Provincial, local and Saskatchewan teams, with the expectations that players from Duluth, Minn., and Cleveland, Ohio, will also compete. Numerous speed skating events are also scheduled.

A 45-minute historical display, a reproduction of the troublous times of 1870, will be participated in each evening by three hundred of the garrison troops. It deals with an Indian attack upon a convoy and the subsequent rescue by troopers summoned by rockets. Every detail will be historically correct down to the prairie schooners and costumes of men and women of that time.

Thousands of colored lights will be used for the illumination of the carnival grounds, and night will be as light, and far more brilliant than the day. In sharp contrast to the blaze of light will be an ice Igloo, showing the manner in which Eskimos live and their exceedingly primitive lighting arrangements.

Following the opening ceremonies on Tuesday, Feb. 6, a monster parade will be held through the principal streets of the city, which will include 1,000 snowshoers with torches and flares, various other organizations and floats and a large body of the military.

Saturday, Feb. 11, has been designated "American Day," when many visitors from south of the line are expected to attend. Special railway rates covering lines from Port Arthur, Ont., west to Saskatchewan points, have been granted by the Railway Association.

Miss Mabel Gessner, of Baltimore, Md., has been anpointed a passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, being the first woman ever to hold such a position. Her work will be the development of passenger travel for women with a view to making it more comfortable and efficient.

BABY BURNED IN ITS BUGGY BESIDE STOVE

WARKWORTH, Feb. 1.—A very sad fatality occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barton Blake, Oak Heights, Warkworth, on Thursday last, when their little baby of two years was so severely burned that it died on Friday evening. It appears that the family were going out for the evening and had the baby all dressed and placed beside the stove in its buggy, the mother going upstairs to get ready and the father left the child only for a minute to bring the overcoats from an adjoining room. On returning to the room the child was in flames and so badly burned that it died the following evening. It had been given a celluloid comb to play with, and had evidently reached over the stove with it where it became ignited, catching on to its clothes. Mr. Blake has been doubly bereaved, his mother, Mrs. Thos. Blake, of Peterborough, died on Friday and was buried on Monday. The sincerer sympathy of the entire community is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Blake in their sad affliction.

LOCAL BRANCH TO BE FORMED

Citizens are reminded of the meeting to be held in the Chambers of Commerce at 8 o'clock to-night for the purpose of organizing a branch of the Humane Society. Everybody who is interested in protecting our animal friends are invited to be present to assist in the formation of this splendid organization.

SPECIAL POLICE RUSS. RAILWAYS.

To Stamp Out Extensive Wave of Thefts.

MOSCOW, Feb. 2.—(Associated Press).—Thefts of goods from Russian railways are so extensive that M. Djerjinsky, the Police who now directs the railway administration, asserts that it will be necessary to establish a special police force to stamp it out. Djerpinsky first came into international notice through his direction of the counter-revolutionary organization known as the Cheka during the Red terror period in the summer of 1918.

He recently denounced the railway employees as speculators and traffic-ers who should be jailed. However, it is difficult to understand how the railroad men can be expected to work without stealing, for trainmen have told the correspondent that their pay amounted to only 5,000 Soviet rubles a month. This is equivalent to 20 American cents, less than the price of a single pound of black bread.

The American Relief Administration is protected against theft by special guards, and the Bolshevist Government makes good all losses of American foodstuffs. But even the knowledge that detection probably will mean death has not prevented thieves from stealing American supplies.

The railway administration asked for 610,000,000 gold rubles for maintenance of transportation in 1922; but the Government allowed only 48,000,000 in the budget. However, it included a provision that every department of the Government shall pay for hauling its freight.

Soviet Russia now has 900,000 railway employees and the Ukrainian Republic 285,000. Great reductions in their numbers have been made because of the inability of the food commissars to provide food for more. In fact, they are unable to supply all the food promised to the reduced personnel.

There is a great cry in Russia that the railways be put on a paying basis.

HOPES FOR REVIVING THE BALKAN FEDERATION.

SOFIA, February 3 (Associated Press). — Hopes of some day reviving the Balkan Federation which existed before the World War, are entertained by Premier Alexander Stamboulinsky.

"The catastrophe of the war," he said, "has shown the Balkan States that in union lies their strength and security. I am convinced that the people of Jugoslavia are in favour of union with us; but there are certain elements in the Serbian Government that perhaps are not so sympathetic toward us.

"Our Balkan neighbours must be convinced of our good intentions, for we have returned all the locomotives, coal, machinery, cattle, and other property required of us. The value of this property runs into hundreds of millions of levas (nominally about 19 cents each)."

DO YOUR BOWELS MOVE REGULARLY, OR DO THEY BECOME CONSTIPATED

There is no medium through which disease so often attacks the system as by allowing the bowels to become constipated, and there is no other trouble which flesh is heir to that is more liable to be neglected, because material inconvenience may not be felt at once from irregular action of the bowels. When there is not regular action the retention of the decayed and effete matter, with its poisonous gases, soon poisons the whole system by being absorbed into it, causing violent sick and bilious headaches, internal bleeding or protruding piles, heartburn, jaundice, etc.

MILBURN'S LAXA-LIVER PILLS will regulate the flow of bile to act properly on the bowels, thus making them active and regular, and removing the constipation and all of its allied troubles.

Mr. Samuel Buckler, Tatamagouche, N.S., writes: "For over a year I suffered with constipation. I took several different kinds of medicines, but could only get temporary relief. I was told to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. I procured two vials of them, but after I had taken one I found that I was relieved of my trouble. I do not hesitate to recommend Laxa-Liver Pills for any kind of constipation."

Price, 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Hon. Regents, Mrs. (Dr.) E. J. Free, Mrs. D. Robertson, and Mrs. Charles Dawson.

Regent, Mrs. J. P. Archer.

1st Vice-Regent, Mrs. W. E. Carnahan.

2nd Vice-Regent, Mrs. R. C. Weston.

Secretary, Mrs. (Dr.) Haig.

Treasurer, Mrs. Harry Townsend.

Standard Bearer, Mrs. Harry Lowery.

Educational Secretary, Miss Mildred Robertson.

Councillors, Mesdames Wm. Hume George Dickson, J. A. Stewart, A. J. Jenkins, D. W. Douglas, J. T. Frederick, R. A. Linton, G. A. Payne, J. A. Humphries, A. J. Meyers.

Following is the 8th annual report of the local chapter of the I.O.D.E. for the year ending 1921, which bespeaks for itself a most successful year from every standpoint, and the executive and the members are to be congratulated upon the success of the year.

Campbellford, February 1, 1922.

Madame Regent and Members —

Another 12 months has rolled awa and left us behind, and what has left, in memories of worthy thin planned and accomplished, not fo personal advancement or aggrandi ment, but that others may be th better because we as an organizatio have been in existence. We wou not be human if many of the pla laid had not been unsucces'fu' staged for "too err is human." If this chapter is to be of real service during the next new year and under a new executive, it must place something definite, and then every member must feel herself behind the plan. Whatever nature it may be let us be specific and work as a unit. Lots of objectives have been suggested and brought to the notice of individuals. The real and one objective must be the outcome of thoughtful and patient discussion.

No persons regret more than th members of the chapter that nothin defenite has been undertaken by th council of our town, which repre sents us as citizens toward the erec tion of a worthy and useful memor ial to the memory of the heroic dea of this vicinity.

Your Regent and I represente you at a couple of the meetings o our municipal body and tried all our powers of persuasive speech to try to get a start made along this line but of no avail. We are too Britis to be daunted and hope that the ol adage holds good in this, as it has in other cases "all things come to him who waits".

In presenting this eighth annua report, I have to report a member ship for the past year of fifty-six fourteen regular meetings, with a average attendance of seventeen, an two executive meetings with an aver age of nine. In the month of March it was again decided to give the school's scholarships to the sum of sixty dollars to be divided equally and also to present to each school flag charts, and to the Public Schoo a library consisting of forty dollars volumes, and costing twenty-five dollars. In April, your secretary when the members of the Chapte who had taken advantage of her absence in February to arrange for th gift of a primary life membership Perhaps at the time when th Regent made the presentation, I may have seemed somewhat non-committal, but my gratitude was nevertheless sincere and appreciative. At this April meeting, our contribution of $25 was renewed to the Publi Library as a mark of appreciation of its service to the public.

During teh year a plan was devised by which each member should receive the "Echoes" as part of the annual fee of one dollar. Your executive hopes that those who are receiving this journal for the first time, have enjoyed the valuable reading and information it provides.

On Empire Day (Sunday in May the Chapter held Decoration Day, at which the High School Cadets, G. W. V. A., and C Company, with its military band, took part.

On the 15th of June, a garden fete was held on Dr. Macoun's lawn, at which the sum of nearly $300.00 was raised, $250.00 of which was set aside as the nucleus of a memorial fund to the Chapter.

The Children's Shelter in Port Hope again came in for a donation of $25.00. During this last year, 76 children from Campbellford, were looked after by the Shelter.

At the October meeting, it was arranged that our competent and painstaking librarian should again conduct for three months a children's hour on Saturday mornings for the nominal fee of one dollar a week.

On Thanksgiving Day this Chapter took charge of a memorial service to commemorate Armistice Day on the school grounds. A cenotaph was erected and a fitting service was conducted by the Chapter, Ministerial Association, G.W.V.A., C Company, and the school children. Evergreens and wreaths were placed at the base of the cenotaph, at the conclusion of the ceremony.

At the regular meeting in November, Miss Burgess, who during the Great War served overseas as a nursing sister, spoke to the Chapter, and gave a vivid, concise, and graphic account of her trip to Russia, the country, the people, and their habits and customs.

In December the Chapter came to the relief of the suffering Armenians, by sending a cheque to the headquarters in Toronto. At the same meeting we had the extreme pleasure and benefit of a talk by Miss Macdonnell of the High School staff, on social service work and its needs, giving some very clear word pictures of her own experiences while engaged in this work in Montreal.

The January meeting discussed, and afterwards decided to give a card party in the Town Hall, the proceeds of which were to be for a benefit to the local Company of the 40th Battalion.

The October, November, December and January meetings were brought to a conclusion with a social cup of tea and refreshments.

During the past year our ranks were visited by death, and Mrs. Harper Shaw was taken from our midst. Her memory will linger with us as a loyal and faithful worker in the cause for which the Daughters of the Empire stand.

In concluding this report, your executive has to thank the members for their spirit of co-operation and all others who have helped in any way to make the past year a success. —Submitted by the executive of 1921-22.

SWEDEN'S PREMIER DINES WORKLESS.

300 Unemployed Served By Society Women.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 3.—Hjalmar Branting, the Socialist Premier of Sweden, recently gave at his own cost a dinner to 300 unemployed men and women of Stockholm. The Premier and Mrs. Branting acted as host and hostess, while the guests were waited upon by society women of the capital, among them, Mrs. George Branting, the wife of the Premier's son.

Later in the evening, the guests were given hot baths and provided with lodgings in the municipal lodging houses of Stockholm.

This is believed to be the first time that the premier of a European state has personally entertained his destitute constituents. When his guests had eaten their fill, Premier Branting addressed them on the economic conditions in Sweden.

The Premier began by informing them that neither this dinner nor any other private or public aid extended to men and women without work was in any sense charity, but simply what was rightfully due to them from those who were fortunate enough to be able to help. He said it was not their fault that they were without means of livelihood, but the fault of warped conditions throughout Europe.

Mr. Branting warned his guests that the efforts of the state to better social and economic conditions could not be expected to lead to immediate results.

Alluding to the chaos in Russia, he declared that the slow-moving efforts or the old established government system to improve social conditions was infinitely preferable to the breaking up of the old system. The world had seen where such a course ended. But social solidarity, he continued, demanded from every person that he help as far as he possibly could in relieving the distress of the more unfortunate.

"I hope," the Premier continued, "that others will follow this example and that you will see thereby an utterance of social solidarity which breaks through all barriers."

The Premier's speech which was delivered with great earnestness, was received by a spontaneous and enthusiastic applause.

INVESTIGATE SCHOOLS

QUEBEC, Feb. 3. — (Canadian Press).—The time has come for a thorough investigation of the school accommodation for the foreign population of Montreal, Premier Taschereau told a delegation of representatives of the Protestant and Catholic School Boards and the Orthodox Church which waited on him in reference to the situation of Syrian children. The Syrians complain that though taxed they have to pay $2.50 a month for each child to attend the Protestant schools.

MENACE TO SALT WATER FISHERIES.

Improper Spawning Regulations of Coast Waters.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(Associated Prss)—The salt water fisheries of this country are seriously menaced by the present practices of commercial fishermen, pollution of water and improper spawning regulations, declared John B. Burnham, a member of the Migratory Fish Conservation Committee, and one of the originators of the Migratory Bird Law, in an interview.

Off the coast of Lower California, Mr. Burnham asserted, the water is frequently white with fish killed by purse seiners, who cannot take them to port for sale. He says that the Atlantic sturgeon and salmon have practically disappeared and added:

"Unless radical action to preserve our fish is taken in the immediate future, this country will find itself facing the problem of trying to restore a natural resource of great importance which already has been lost."

The Migratory Fish Conservation Committee, an organisation believing in the necessity for federal control of the fisheries, will soon introduce in Congress a bill, similar to the present migratory bird law, looking to the general protection of fish in the waters of the United States, Mr. Burnham said.

The migraory law, he stated, had proved conclusively that game can be conserved by proper legislation and the Migratory Fish Conservation Committee expects little opposition to the bill except from commercial fishermen and those states which derive a revenue from such fishing without a thought of the probable duration of the industry.

Health Is Your Most Valuable Asset. Do Not Neglect It!

ANOTHER DASH FOR NORTH POLE SOON.

Method of Conveyance Will Be By Airplane.

CHRISTIANA, NORWAY, Feb. 2.—(Associated Press.)—Two Norwegian aviators, Lieutenant Omdal and Sergeant Odd Dahl, will accompany Roald Amundsen when he starts north again from Seattle, Wash., next May and will make a dash for the North Pole by airplane.

They will also carry a moving picture outfit and about 30,000 feet of film. Two extra men have been engaged here by Amundsen for the expedition.

Both Omdal and Dahl are expert wireless operators and expect to keep the Maud, Amundsen's ship, in touch with Spitzbergen and to receive messages from the Norwegian wireless station at Stavanger.

The two aviators will join the Maud at Seattle. The airplanes to be used in the North Pole dash will have motors of 60 horse power, accommodate two passengers and be provided with skis and wheels.

Only one machine will be used at a time and the other held in reserve. As the Maud does not offer sufficient space, a shed must be built on the ice for them.

The Norwegian army and navy have presented to the explorers the arms and munitions they may need and 60 boxes of specially selected provisions, tested by Professor Torup of the physiological laboratory of the University of Christiana, will be sent to Seattle for their use.

MUST RESPECT LAW IN INDIA.

Government Has Not Abused Its Power.

DELHI, INDIA, Feb. 2.—(Associated Press.)—Lord Reading, Viceroy of India, set forth the attitude of the Indian government toward the revolutionary elements in a recent address to a delegation from the Punjab Chamber of Commerce. After promising that the full strength of the government would be exerted to prevent disaster, as cabled at that time, Lord Reading added:

"We have no desire to interfere with the lawful activities of political parties however opposed to us but, although we are most anxious to redress all legitimate grievances and to remove the grounds of popular discontent, yet we cannot allow any political activity to impose its will upon the country by violence, intimidation, coercion or other unlawful means.

"There is today a natural and legitimate desire on the part of the vast majority of the people that the law should be respected and observed.

"I cannot but think that in some quarters there is a misconception of the position of the government of India. They have, I verily believe, the support of the law-abiding citizens of India.

"It cannot be fairly said that we have abused this power. Indeed we are sometimes criticized for not having sufficiently exercised it and I readily admit that we sought to avoid action which might either be misconceived or misrepresented as too severe or as provocative."

FASHIONS IN BRIEF.

All reds are said to be good in millinery.

Wrap-around skirts will be one of the features in the spring modes.

Large flowers with petals of self-material are novel dress trimming.

Peach is the favourite for underwear, taking the place of the long-popular flesh colour.

Generally speaking, the very long tunic blouses are not as good at present as the ones that are merely up length or a trifle longer.

The regulation navy cheviots will be very smart for spring, and no matter what the fabric or colour, a hat to match is an excellent recommendation.

ALL PARTIES ABANDON ITALIAN GOVERNMENT.

Failure to Read Eulogy of Late Pope From Tribune Makes Trouble.

ROME, Feb. 3.—The Cabinet of Premier Bonomi, which took office early last July in succession to the Giolitti Ministry, presented its resignation to the Chamber of Deputies at 3.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon The Cabinet decided to resign when at a Cabinet Council this morning it developed that important groups in the Chamber upon which the Government had counted for support had passed over to the opposition because of objection to various of the Government' policies.

Premier Bonomi's reading of his resignation was received by the Chamber in absolute silence. In the final event the Government discovered itelf abandoned by all the party groups. Even the Catholics, who had been supporting the Ministry throughout the crisis of the past few days were alienated because of the failure of the Cabinet to have a eulogy of the late Pope Benedict read from the tribune by President De Nichola of the Chamber, as had been promised.

The causes which combined to induce the majority in the Chamber to withdraw its support from the Benomi Government were of both foreign and domestic origin. Many deputies had expressed disappointment over the failure of the Italian delegates at the Washington Conference to have Italy included in the four-power Pacific treaty, and there was disappointment over Italy's being excluded from the Anglo-French Treaty, which was drafted during the recent meeting of the Supreme Council at Cannes, but which has not yet been consummated.

There were also expressions of dissatisfaction over the official recognition of the death of Pope Benedict XV., through the visit of Minister of Agricultural Mauri to the Vatican and through the half-masting of flags on public buildings.

HOT WATER FOR SICK HEADACHES

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Headaches are caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood excite the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head, producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilid, aspirin or the bromides, which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drank before breakfast, will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache, but will cleanse, purify and freshen the alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar.

If you aren't feeeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up in the morning with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness constipation, or sour acid stomach, begin the phosphated hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

STUPENDOUS FIRE LOSS IN THE U.S.

Money Lost Would Build 334,000 Dwellings.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(Associated Press).—Three hundred and thirty-four thousand dwellings at $5,000 each, sufficient to house 1,700,000 persons, could be built with the money lost in fires in the United States from 1915 to 1920, according to figures given out today by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

"The board places the national fire loss during the five-year period at $1,672,722,677, based on an examination of over 3,000,000 reports of fires.

Matches and smoking hazards are held responsible for $90,000,000 of losses, according to the report. Next comes electricity, which caused fires costing $86,000,000. Stoves, furnaces, boilers and pipes caused a loss of $63,000,000; defective chimneys and flues, $61,000,000, and "exposure," which means communicated fires, $233,000,000.

As a basis of comparison, the underwriters figure that the five-year fire losses of the nation would build $5,000 homes for the entire population of Nevada, Wyoming and Connecticut: They would erect 16,722 school houses at $100,000 each; or would purchase 16,722 grams of radium, the costliest of earth's products.

Sixty-seven per cent., $856,000,000, of the total loss was classed as strictly or partly preventable.

New York suffered most heavily with a loss of $164,000,000; Pennsylvania came second with $97,000,000; Illinois third with $88,000,000. Follow New Jersey, with $70,000,000; Ohio with $63,000,000; Texas, $59,000,000; Massachusetts, $58,000,000, and California, $54,000,000.

AIRPLANES TO FIGHT GERMAN RY. STRIKE

BERLIN, Feb. 3.— The Government announces that it is its intention to utilize airplanes to keep the postal service in operation as far as possible, should the railroad strike develop to great proportions. Planes will fly between Berlin and Dresden, Dortmund, Bremen, Hamburg and Stettin, as opportunity permits. They will handle only urgent mail matter. A few mail trains also are to be kept running, manned by emergency crews.

The question of food supplies for Berlin still is being considered. It is feared the shortage will develop into serious proportions in the event the strike is prolonged.

The newspapers already are short of print paper and have cut their editions to a single sheet in order to avoid possible suspension of publication in a few days. A number of the papers have only a five days' supply.

MOOSE ANTLERS OF 64-INCH SPREAD.

Shot By Lewis Hawkins of Philadelphia.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Feq. 3.—(By Canadian Press.)—While the complete official statistics for the big game hunting season of 1921 have not yet been completed and issued, there seems to be general agreement among those conversant with New Brunswick hunting matters that the honor of killing the moose with antlers having the record spread of the season goes to Lewis Hawkins, of Philadelphia, Pa.

The Philadelphian seems to have beaten out all visiting sportsmen as well as the resident hunters when he killed a bull moose in October while hunting in the territory of Guide Charles Cremin, of Fredericton. This is located on the Nepisiguit headwaters in the northern part of the Province, and the season's record moose had antlers spreading 64 inches.

While this was the record head for 1921, it was eight inches smaller than the biggest head ever taken out of the New Brunswick woods, for the records show that L. Russell, a resident hunter of the North Shore district of the Province, killed a moose four years ago with antlers spreading an even six feet—72 inches. That the headwaters of the Nepisiguit is the territory the record heads come from is evident from the fact that this record-for-all-time moose was killed within a few miles of where Mr. Hawkins got his 1921 record trophy.

But that is not all. The record spread of antlers taken by a non-resident hunter in New Brunswick is 68½ inches, which was the measurement of a moose killed in 190- by Dr. Monroe, of Providence, R.I., and he got his in the same place; so did Dr. Stickney, of Atlantic City, N.J., who killed a bull moose with antlers spreading 66 inches a few years ago, thus being a close second for the record of non-resident hunters in New Brunswick.

What a well-known guide, like "Charlie" Cremin, with a famed hunting territory means to the country can be learned from some of the statistics of his 1921 season. He employed 22 guides and camp helpers, cooks, etc., and they handled 56 sportsmen during the season, who shot more than 100 deer as well as more than a dozen moose—about one hunter in every four getting a moose with wide spreading antlers. Those fifty odd sportsmen, spent probably at least, $23,000 in New Brunswick in connection with their trips while the railways gathered probably $5,000 more from them for transportation to the hunting grounds and back home again. Discussing the business side of the sport the other days Guide Cremin said, that taking advantage of the snowfalls in the early season, he had already shipped into his camp, more than seven tons of supplie, for his hunting and fishing parties of 1922, having for the first time completed this work before the coming of the new year.

SPOOKS NOW IN NOVA SCOTIA.

Reported To Be Playing Merry Pranks.

HALIFAX, N.S., Feb. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Nothing having been heard of the sea serpent since it was reported frozen in the St. Lawrence River below Montreal, Nova Scotia has been vastly interested in a tale of the performances of alleged spooks coming from Caledonia Mills in Antigonish County, N. S. There in a little isolated valley lived a farmer named Alexander McDonald and his family. But, recently according to stories he has told his neighbors, Robin Goodfellow or some other spirits developed a habit of riding his horses by night, returning them to the stable before dawn in a lather, while other spooks turned his cattle out of the barns and drove them over the landscape, and occasionally braided the tails of his heifers. At the same time mysterious fire imps began to infest his house, and little fires appeared in all sorts of unexpected places. According to reports, the family was kept busy putting out fires, which for some reason appear to have done no damage. But, so the story goes the mysterious manifestations finally got on the nerves of Mr. MacDonald and he boarded up his house and moved his family away.

Magic Flames

The Antigonish Casket, in its last issue said: "The mysterious fires at the home of Alex. MacDonald, Caledonia Mills, have become the talk of the countryside. Trustworthy witnesses state that the fires have broken out in their presence in a room so small that any human agency would be dictated." A representative of the Halifax Herald interviewed several neighbors who, according to their testimony, saw little flames flare out from the top of a fireless stove, from walls and ceilings, and even the window blinds. Phenomenon is that after the appearance of the magic flames wads of absorbent cotton or calico were usually found somewhere in the vicinity.

The fact that MacDonald left his home of many years in the middle of a very cold winter has apparently gained credence for the stories of mysterious manifestations in many quarters, and the Halifax Herald has received hundreds of letters offering explanations of the alleged phenomena as weird as the stories from Caledonia Mills themselves.

One lady writes: "It is nothing more or less than witchcraft. The animals in the barn prove this to be the case. I thought this thing was done away, but I see that it is reviving."

Disturbed Spirit

Another correspondent signing N. E. Morse, Halifax, writes: "My idea of the mysterious fires at Caledonia Mills is that a disturbed spirit is causing them. This spirit when in mortal body may have during its life suffered indignities by being placed in such a dependent and humble position that it could not resent them openly but could brood over them daily. Being in such a position it is natural to assume that cheap cotton garments formed much of its earthly apparel which only made it the more remorseful and revengeful. These cheap cotton clothes now torn to rags are being put to their present and annoying use of igniting fires. Natural gas, radium, animal magnetism, chemicals, etc., are entirely out of the question, in this case particularly, as these could not by any means set cattle loose and change horses in their stalls. Sometimes someone has been placed in a very subordinate position and is showing resentment."

James McLean of Inverness, who is anxious to be helpful, writes: "My grandfather told me long ago, about the same thing happening at his home. One morning he found his horse in the stable shaking with fear. The animal's mane and tail had been plaited in a much similar manner to that which was described as happening at Antigonish. Grandfather always claimed it was a witch who was responsible. He told me how it could be stopped, but I have forgotten now. If you would like the information, however, I could write to my grandfather for it."

Deep, Dark Plot

Some of the students of the mystery have offered explanations that are at anyrate highly creditable to their powers of imagination. One suggests that the fire underwriters have concocted a deep, dark plot to increase fire insurance rates by promoting a new Demonology, full of little demons not equipped with fire extinguishers. Another expresses the opinion that the new Minister of Finance, casting about for new sources of revenue, wants to know just how much taxable credulity there is in the province.

In the hope of solving the mystery a member of the reporting staff of The Herald selected drawing lots has gone to Antigonish with orders to live two weeks in the deserted house, and interview any spooks that may appear. If he doesn't find a way of exercising the fire spooks he will be fired.

A "FOWL" TRICK.

LINDSAY, Feb. 3. — A resident here is mourning the loss of some thorough-bred fowl as the result of a trick pulled off by a stranger on Wednesday. He called at the house and informed the lady that he understood she had some poultry for sale. On receiving an answer in the negative, he expressed a desire to see the fowl. The request was granted. Next morning the choicest birds were missing from the coop.

the police claim they can see at greater distances than any that have been envolved in many years. The black and white license has a high visibility and offences under the Motor Vehicles Act should yield more revenue than of yore.

The best features of the old markers have been retained. The orange and black did not have the high visibility hoped for it, so the flaming range went and American licenses were imitated in the matter of a white background. However the features of the raised letters, the hyphenated numbers and the long plate were retained and the height of the plate increased. The result has been the cleanest car marker produced by the department since horseless buggies became numerous enough to put tags on them.

To discuss the problems attendant to the branch issuing the licenses a meeting off the executive will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms tonight. The secretary proposes to lace several signs at the entrance south of the Dominion Bank and in the hall above to direct motorists to the proper office. To save some who are apt to be forgetful, a useless walk upstairs a reminder in the form of a notice will be posted at the entranceway. It will likely read "Motor licenses issued upstairs, serial and motor number required.

RELIEF FOR UNEMPLOYED

lor and Ald. Walter Stocker, the motion giving relief to single men read: "That in view of the fact that the Dominion government will pay one-half of the relief given to returned soldiers, the Relief Officer be given authority to assist single men who are returned soldiers and who are out of employment and in need, to such an extent as he finds necessary."

Mr. Whatley asked Mr. Miller how many certificates given by the Labour Bureau had not been honoured and was informed that there had been four, although there was a few that had got certificates and never shown up for relief.

Ald. Phelan suggested to the committee that the city should take steps to recover the shares of the two governments in relief administered from Dec .13 to Jan. 14, before the employment relief came into effect. He said he understood they were nof ready to meet their share and he advised the preparation of a statement of what it had cost. Mr. Miller said he could make up such a statement and he was asked to do this. It was further decided to make application to the governments for their share of the cost.

The Relief Officer stated that he was in perplexity over the relief to be given to men that had a small interest in a house. A great many of these men had small homes they were paying for under mortgage and were now being penalized for their providence in not being able to get relief.

On motion of Ald. Stocker and Ald. Phelan, Mr. Miller was instructed to use his own discretion in the relief of these cases.

The committee was formed of Ald. Holloway, chairman, Mayor Taylor, Ald. Stocker and Ald. Phelan.

OPENS MILK BOTTLE.

There has been many a milky splash caused by the common way of opening a milk bottle—attempting to get the cap out with the fingers. Often the cap pushes in instead of out.

This can be avoided through the use of an old button-hook. Straighten our the curved end and file it to a point. When you want to take the milk cap out stick in the sharp end and pry up. Hang this opener on a nail by the kitchen sink and it will always be handy.

New York Commission Does Not Figure Brennan Is Match For Dempsey

(By Henry L Farrell, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, February 3. — New York virtually has put Jack Dempsey out of his busines for some time at least.

In putting a ban on the proposed Dempsey-Brennan contest, the State Athletic Commission announced it would not tolerate any bout between the heavyweight champion and an opponent whose record did not indicate he had a chance.

Looking over the records of the heavyweights under the champion, there are few 'cards" that will come up to the specifications of the Commission.

Hary Wills, the coloured battler, is one, but the directors of the game in New York haven't expressed themselves about "mixed bouts," and a large doubt exists that Governor Miller would permit it

In putting the ban on the Dempsey-Brennan thing that Tex Rickard was cooking up for St. Patrick's Day, the Commission said that it would be an imposition on the public, and insinuated that it would be nothing but a "money grab."

It was pointed out that Brennan's only qualification was staying 12 rounds with the champion in 1920, and that since that time he had not been allowed to fight any first-class opponents through the desire of his manager not to ruin him for another bout with Dempsey

The Commission suggested that Brennan could prove his right to another meeting with the king of the heavyweights by meeting Tommy Gibbons, Fred Fulton, or Bob Roper If he "got over" any of this trio, the Commission might allow him to be thrown in the ring again with the mauler.

If the Commission insists upon a "first-class" opponent, Dempsey had better take that long-planned European trip, as it seems to be too late in the season now to "work up" an opponent for an indoor show.

CHOOSES POVERTY OVER RICH HOME

If an ordinary girl had her choice of being a lady with a stately genealogical tree, or wife to the captain of a fishing smack, it is probable she would prefer Parisian schools, party frocks and two aristocratic aunts. But she is not an ordinary girl She is Gladys Walton Universal star is Glady Walton, a Universal star, who has a family crest of imposing device, as any genealogical book will show.

Yet in her picture, The Rowdy", which is to be shown at the Regent Theatre to-day, Miss Walton chooses the humble life in a fishing village in preference to a society flapper's existence. For in the colony of sturdy fisherman, there is adventure, and the love for which every girl waits, while in the stately home she is offered, there is nothing but a monotonous stillness and the kindly affection of two old people.

The picturesque settings of "The Rowdy" make it a picture notable for its scenic beauty. Ie is replete with thrills—a fight with whale—the struggles between a man's desire and a girl's cleverness, a sea clash between men for supremacy in love.

AT THE ROYAL.

One of the prettiest staged pictures, with the beautiful Ozark mountains as the stage, seen here for many a month, is the great feature Hills." This play holds attention by its plot of mystery and is rendered a little more chic by the fact that the heroine's part is taken by Barbara Bedford in her first appearance as a star. The story is of a mysterious girl of the mountains, living in fear of her stepmother. One day Claude Wolcott comes to the property of the Gradleys to sink oil wells, and with him is a former lover of the beautiful stepmother, Mrs. Gradley. The engineer is attracted by the mistreated girl, and his companion renews his love-making with Mrs. Gradley. Mr. Gradley is made frantic by the actions of his wife. Then follow several complications that lead to the death of the stepmother and to a totally unexpected final climax. Tom Mix, that old favourite in western pictures, appears in a part that is new to him and his thousands of admirers. The picture is named Tra'in' and carries with every scene the excitement and sage bush scent of the far western plains. Our old friend, Larry Semon by a funny coincidence, is also seen in a western, that is a comic—for a western picture. It is more fun than a barrel of monkeys to see Jimmy trim a bunch of western desperadoes in a game of poker. Jimmy's dog steals the jack or ace Jimmy needs and slips the desired pasteboard in Jimmy's hand. Unfortunately the dog, not understanding when the game was over, with Jimmy having all the coin in his jeans, keeps on bringing cards to his master, thus getting the "lucky" player in ba with the gang. The Sunshine comedy, "Golfers," is bright, clean, sparkling and a gloom chaser.

"TRAILIN'"
WILLIAM FOX PRODUCTION
FEATURING TOM MIX AT THE ROYAL TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW.

AT THE CAPITOL.

Anyone who saw "Humoresque," the big Fanny Hurst picture, which created such a sensation a couple of years ago, should not miss "Just Around the Corner," by the same producer, at the Capitol Theatre this week. It is a lovely picture, crammed full of humor and pathos, of jazz and homely heart interest, a picture of the little "Birdsong" family, living in a crowded tenement on New York's East Side. All about the pretty daughter Essie, the boy Jimmie, who wants to be considered a man, and the mother, with her incurable heart affection, and the love for her two children that keeps her watching at the window for the first glimpse of their home-coming, and that causes her so many worrying hours over Joe Ullman, the "clever, classy ticket speculator," with whom Essie becomes enamored.

One of the best characters in the production is Jimmy, the snub-nosed, wide-mouthed young son who yearns to be a real man, and who loves his mother so hard. He buys her a rose with his lonely quarter, and the final touch is the figure of Jimmy, his tousled head just a little sleeker now, looking up at the picture of his dead mother on the wall.

The scenes where the mother fights against her sickness, the dance-halls where shadowy figures weave in and out in convulsive jazz convolutions, and the snowy street with the girl running wildly in search of her "no account" lover, are curiously life-like. The picture has a happy ending.

The short reels afe good this week, with Egyptian and serpentine dances by the Two Rosebuds; there is a fine comedy, with the long-haired collie of the Christie pictures guarding the baby of parents who become involved in a wild mix-up in a raided gambling-house, and the vaudeville is a clever conjuring act, in which Ovette presents Lung Tchang Yuen, in Chinese magic mysteries, with some excellent tricks, including vanishing balls disappearing pigeons and multiplying cards.

AT THE GRAND

"MADEMOISELLE OF ARMENTIERES"

"Mademoiselle of Armentieres" is a little bit of Flanders with love among the ruins and boche spies a la mode. But the intrigues of the Hun agents, the flirtations of Julie, and the love affairs of Suzanne serve only as a background for the adventures and misadventures of Lieutenant Edward Brock Green, a bumptious young sub who has just joined a fighting battalion and who commences to teach a platoon of old timers how to soldier in the Bexhill manner, but who is soon subjected by his troops to a rigorous course of intensive training in the art of warfare as practiced in France.

Private Herbert Hawkins, a grousing and ludicrously amusing little cockney, is the chief of the volunteer instructors, but his efforts are ably backed up by Harris, the Joquacious batman, and two roistering spirits, Percy and Duke, to say nothing of Brigadier-General Wellington Montagu-Smythe, the pomtuous and blustering old dug-out.

Despite the wonderful realism, and the occasional touch of pathos, "Mademoiselle of Armentieres" is a rollicking, roaring comedy, introducing snatches from all the famous old ditties and trench parodies.

The musical numbers are new and especially written for this play, and everything brings back to the returned man the old days in the dug-outs and billets, and gives those who did not get there an advantage of going to the war without having to go through any of the discomforts.

"Mademoiselle of Armentieres" will appear here at the Grand Opera house to-morrow afternoon and evening and all intending patrons are vise to book their seats early as there is sure to be a rush for tickets.

REX STOCK COMPANY

Because She Loved Him So—sounds thrilling doesn't it? We read in history of women that did tremendous things for the man she loved, "Because She Loved Him So". But did you ever see a woman who would raise merry sweet Patootie—Because she love him so? The Rex Stock Company at the Grand next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, will present a comedy by that name one of those delightful comedies of society life that the Rex Co. know so well how to "Put Over". In this case, a young (and course beautiful wife, is so foolish about her husband that she suspects his every movement. We often hear of the nagging wife, who raises the dickens to be mean—But the woman who fights all the time because she love him so is a new type. The contrast is made by the girls mother and father, a devoted old couple that have never had a scrap in the thirty years of their married life. Zana and Rex are very good indeeed as the scrapping couple (Rex says it is so natural a scene) and Bill Yule and Florence Winter as the devoted old couple will hand out many a laugh with their quaint humor.

BOOB McNUTT.

The visit of Danny Simmons, the well-known Peterborough boy, who after many years of success as a comedian, played before a home audience for the first time last night and drew a capacity crowd to the Grand Opera House to see the cartoon musical comedy, "Boob McNutt." Mr. Simmons, who was featured in the title role, got a great reception and proceeded to demonstrate by the cleverness of his funmaking methods the secret of his success before the footlights. He was irresistibly funny as the hero of Rube Goldberg's cartoon strip, keeping his audience convulsed all the way through, while his topical song and his comedy dancing made a big hit. The production is a snappy, quick moving affair with a capable cast and a list of clever specialties. Margaret Shelly revealed a voice of unusual sweetness and purity, her song numbers being a feature, while Percy Walling, the possessor of a resonant baritone, scored heavily in his song, "Never Mind." Clever dancing was contributed by Veronica Trexler and Scotty Weston, and the Carter trio in their saxaphone and xylophone specialties won a triumph. The chorus was lively and pleasing and the scenic investiture in keeping with the general excellence of the offering.

FEW SWEDISH WOMEN VOTED.

Less Than Half Exercised Their Franchise.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 3.—(Associated Press).—Less than half of the women of Sweden entitled to vote exercised their newly-won franchise rights at the polls in the elections of 1921, the first year of full suffrage for women, according to a report of the Swedish Central Bureau of Statistics just made public. However, the official report of the 1921 elections give the suffragist leader at least two causes for rejoicing.

The men did not show a much better record than the women, and the number of women voters exceeded the male voters in the capital of Stockholm by more than 5,000 voters

The official report shows that 47.1 per cent of the Swedish women voters cast their ballot while 61.9 per cent. of the men voted. The total women's vote in the city of Stockholm was 75,566, while vote cast by men was 71,198.

The general impression throughout the country seems to be that the Swedish women have not fully realized the importance and significance of their new privilege. It is believed that in the future they will make a better showing at the polls.

The heavy women's vote in Stockholm, which is to a large extent an industrial city, may indicate that the working women, especially women trade union members, grasped the opportunity to register their votes. However, other women cannot be said to have neglected he ballot as a whole.

He said that the association would be dedicated to a study of the art of cultivatink friendly retalions, social, religious, commercial and political between individuals, communities and nations. It was a big task, he added.

HOPES IRISH PEACE IS NOT IMPERILLED

A Miracle Had Agreement Been Reached at One Sitting.

DUBLIN, Feb. 3. — (Canadian Press.)—Commenting on the conference between Ulster's Premier and Collins, the Freeman's Journal said it would have been a miracle if an agreement had been reached in a single afternoon. It expressed the hope that the whole pact between the north and south is not imperilled, and declares that Collins' willingness to depart from arrangements provided by the Treaty was due to his patriotic aspiration to prove that these matters can be settled by Irishmen without British interference.

The Irish Times also hopes further discussions will be arranged.

MUNICIPAL TREASURER SHORT IN HIS ACCOUNTS

MONTREAL February 3, Canadian Press. — Debts of three hundred thousand dollars are said to be owed by Fortunat LaBerge, the secretary-treasurer of Chateauguay municipality, who was declared insolvent recently. He is alleged to have disappeared and his clients are anxious.

Mass meetings of the citizens have been held, and demands made for his arrest. The municipality will lose heavily by his bankruptcy, it is said.

Market News

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Extensive short interest in stock market continued to cover an active and firm opening of to-day's session. Oils, Utilities and many miscellaneous shares registered early gains extending from large fractions to over one point. General Asphalt, Peoples Gas, Third Avenue and Brown Shoe were strong features. Pittsburg Coal and Columbia Graphophone preferred were in demand, with Corn Products, Virginia Carolina Chemical, General Electric and Hide and Leather Pfd.

Trading broadened under more confident operations of pools during the morning, transactions in the first hour amounting to 300,000 shares. Call loans opened and renewed into next week at 5 1-2 per cent., but in private offerings a lower rate was made. Baldwin and Pullman were added to stronger Equipments and Mexican Petroleum. Royal Dutch, Houston and Standard Oil of New Jersey strengthened with other Oils. Chain Store and Textile issues were featured by Kresge, Cluett, Peabody and Woolworth at gains of two to three points.

Buying of representative shares like high-priced Railroads imparted an additional stimulating force to upward movement in stocks in the afternoon. Union Pacific, Atchison, Louisville and Nashville, Great Northern Pfd., Norfolk and Western and Louisville and Nashville advanced one to 1 1-2. American Express gained 6 3-4 and Chandler 3 points.

GRAIN MARKETS.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3. — (Canadian Press.)— Initial upturns in Wheat prices were ascribed to influence of new gains in Liverpool quotations. Many dealers here, however, leaned to view accent general advance of values had been topped and that reaction was in order. Opening prices which ranged from 1-8 to 7-8 higher with May 1.23 to 1.23 3-4 and July 1.07 6-8 to 1.08 were followed by a setback all around to below yesterday's finish. Reports showing that farm reserve supplies of Oats were unusually small gave firmness to prices of Corn and Oats. After opening unchanged to 1-8 to 1-4c. higher, May 54 5-8 to 54 3-4. Corn market hardened a little more.

MONTREAL MARKETS.

MONTREAL, Feb. 3.—(Canadian Press.)—Feature of early trading on local stock exchange during the first half hour this morning was Wayagamuck, whose annual statement showing a loss of over $150,000 appeared yesterday. This issue opened at 34, after closing at 37 yesterday. It rallied later, however to 35 1-4. FORMER PETERBOROUGH MEN MAKE GOOD.

News of interest to Peterborough will be found in the following:

The election of Mr. W. H. McWilliams, of Winnipeg, to the directorate of the National Trust Company marks the progress of a former Peterborough man in the business world. Mr. McWilliams is a brother of John A. McWilliams, of this city, and a son of the late John McWilliams, of Ashburnham. He has been a prominent business man in Winnipeg for many years, and has resided in Western Canada for a great many years.

Then, Professor Maitland O. Boswell, of Toronto University, formerly of Peterborough, comes prominently to the front in the public eye in connection with the discovery of a new chemical re-action which can be employed for making dye-stuffs from coal tar products, and two new dye compounds, a blue and a beautiful shade of rose.

Following word received yesterday from Utica, N.Y., that Mrs. William Dorris of this city had suffered a stroke, the sad news came to the family to-day that she had passed away last night.

Mrs. Dorris was visiting her eldest son James W., in Utica, and had only left Peterborough two weeks ago. She contracted a severe cold, and had been ill since her arrival at her son's home.

Mr. Albert Dorris has received a wire from Utica notifying him of the death of his mother, Mrs. Wm. Dorris.

One of the most successful talent teas of the season was held yesterday afternoon, and evening at the home of Mrs. Iva Edgar, 451 Weller street, in aid of the Women's Guild of All Saints' Church. Over one hundred of the members and their friends attended, a large number considering the inclement weather, and were received by Mrs. Edgar and Mrs. Joseph Crowe. A handsome sum was realized for the Guild, and the ladies were most gratified by the success of their entertainment.

The pretty rooms were decorated throughout with roses and daffodils, and numerous bright-colored flags. The tea room, in charge of Mesdames Wolstenholm, Haskill, Cottrell and Johnson was charming with rose tulips, paper-white narcissus, smilax and ferns. Mesdame Sabine and Dinnon superintended the sale of home-made cooking and candy.

A musical programme which added much to the enjoyment of the affair was rendered during the afternoon and evening by local artists, whose numbers were received with great appreciation. Mrs. Ryerson Ritchie, the Misses Ina Allen and Anna Rigby, and Mr. Herbert Rush contributed vocal solos; pianoforte selections were given by Mrs. G. Evans, the Misses Norma Moore, Olga Johnson, and Margaret Johnson; Master Roy Rome gave a violin number, and several fine phonograph records were much enjoyed. Miss Jean McLaughlin, in costume, also rendered several aesthetic dances. Accompanists during the afternoon and evening were Mrs. W. Sindon, the Misses M. Flowers, S. Shearer, L. Rush, Myrtle Sucee and little Miss Rome.

Prizes for cards at the card party held in the basement of the Sacred Heart Church last evening were won by Mrs. F. Guerin and Mr. Fitzgerald. The prizes were donated by Mrs. Halpin.

R. R. HALL, PETERBORO, MENTIONED FOR SENATOR.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—In connection with Senate vacancies in Quebec and Ontario there is strong competition for the vacancy created by Senator Goyer, of Quebec. Aspirants include C. A. Wilson, former member for Laval; D. A. Lafortune, M.P. for Jacques Cartier, and P. R. Dutremblay, who gave up his seat to Sir Lomer Gouin in the recent general election.

For the vacancy created by the death of Senator Beith, of Bowmanville, there are also several aspirants. Among these are F. F. Pardee, former Chief Whip of the Liberal party, who espoused the cause of Union Government in 1917 and was elected, but who failed to carry Premier King's colors to victory in December last, I. Pedlow, former member for South Renfrew, Alex. Smith, former organizer of the Liberal party, and one of the most active, though least ostentatious of the party's workers in 1921, and Robert R. Hall, former member for West Peterborough.

MESSAGE IS CARRIED BY TIRED BIRD

Father Believes Message Brought Home by a Strange Pigeon May Be From His Long Lost Son

LOCATION UNCHARTED

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—From over the sea, starving and weak from what may have been a 2,000-mile flight, a brown homing pigeon came to a Brooklyn home yesterday, bearing, fastened to its foot, a message as mysterious as one from the dead, perhaps a message from those long thought dead. The message—a few words scrawled in lead pencil on a weather-beaten piece of a manila paper bag—is a cry for help, it is thought, of men stranded on some uncharted island in the Atlantic, a thousand miles off the west coast of Africa.

The pigeon, a stranger, came to the home of a man whose son, a pigeon fancier, disappeared at sea three months ago. If it is a message from that son, and the entire family believe that it is, it makes a strange coincidence. If it is not, it may be a call for aid from sailors marooned on some island, so small that it does not appear on the charts.

On November 12 August Hill, Jr., 25, 748 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, with two companions, Piersall Creighton, 27, 175 Sheridan Avenue, Brooklyn, and Walter Drews, 25, Springfield, L. I., set sail from the Hill summer home at Bayside Place, Rockaway Beach, in a small boat on a hunting expedition. The next day the boat, with their guns fastened inside, was found floating bottom up off Edgemere. Searchers patrolled the bay in a score of small craft and swept over it by airplane, but no trace was found of the missing men.

But August Hill, Sr., never believed that they were dead. "My son and the other boys were all wonderful swimmers," he said. "How could they have been drowned, and the boat remain afloat? Somewhere my son is alive. When God wills it I shall hear from him."

Hill went to the roof of his store in Brooklyn yesterday morning and let loose for their two-hour exercise flight his 200 pigeons. When the birds came back, two stranger brown pigeons, more than half as big again as the largest of Hill's own flock, came with them. They were quite wild. Hill managed to catch one in his pigeon net, but the other flew away, and has not been seen since.

As Hill lifted the captive bird out from the net he saw a piece of brown paper tied to its left leg. He broke the string which held it and saw a message scribbled in lead pencil. Then he shouted:

"It is from my son. I knew word would come. I knew it."

On the piece of smudged and torn paper bag were the words: "Stranded on island 33 degree by 47 degree. Help."

Hill fed the pigeon with corn which it ate ravenously. Hill said he did not believe that it had eaten in two weeks. Ordinarily a bird of its size would have weighed a pound and a half, but this one went only three-quarters of a pound.

The message was so roughly scrawled that Hill could not be sure that it was the handwriting of his son. But he did not lose faith.

"I know it is word from my son at last," he cried. "He is alive, I know it."

Hill hurried home and told his wife and children. They examined the handwriting carefully. The second son, Frederick, 21 years old, said he was almost sure that the letter "H" in the worl "Help" of the message had been written by his lost brother. The Bureau of Missing Persons and the naval authorities were notified at once.

There are puzzling points in connection with the arrival of the brown pigeon. The message did not correctly give the position of the sender. It failed to specify whether the latitude was north or south, and whether the longitude was east or west. The only probably position would be 23 deg. N. by 47 deg. W., in which case the location would be 1,080 miles east-north-east of San Juan, Porto Rico, and about 1,100 miles off the coast of Africa, and 2,200 miles from New York. A position of 23 deg. S. by 47 deg. W. would be on the mainland of South America.

Then, too, such a long flight over salt water is considered almost impossible for any type of pigeon. Though carrier pigeons can fly long distances, they must stop for food and drink. To cross the Atlantic a pigeon must fly continuously night and day. Another improbability is the position of the supposed island. According to naval authorities there is no island chartered at this point.

SKATING RACES TO BE ARRANGED

Suggests Conference As Means Avoiding Deadlock

LONDON, February 4 (Canadian Press. — Michael Collins' suggestion to Premier Craig for a representative conference of all Ireland to adopt a common policy and frame a constitution is the main outcome thus far of the deadlock in the Irish situation, but it is not known whether it will have any important developments.

The Morning Post quotes Sir James Craig as saying that Ulster will appeal to Britain and the Dominions if an "attempt is persisted in to drive our people unwillingly from under the old British flag. The time for action has arrived."

DUBLIN, February 4 (Canadian Press). — Arthur Griffith, the Dail President, made it clear today in an interview in which he upheld the attitude of Michael Collins in the conference with the Ulster Premier, that Southern Ireland stands for self-determination of these sections involved in the dispute over Ulster's boundary.

"Against that part of Ulster which votes itself out of the Free State we shall not use force, and against that part which votes itself thereinto, we shall not permit, unchallenged, force to be used."

Massachusetts Defeats Bill To Legalize Sunday Checkers

BOSTON, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press).—The House of Representatives yesterday defeated a bill to legalize the playing of checkers and chess on Sunday.

Committee members, whose report against the measure was accepted, explained that there was nothing in the law forbidding the games indoors on Sunday. They come under the ban of old Blue Laws, however, when played outdoors, and a cripple was recently convicted and fined at Brockton for playing checkers on Sunday in a public park.

It was after this incident that the Massachusetts State Checker Association sought to amend the Sunday sports laws to include checkers among the "athletic outdoor games" permitted between 2 and 6 p.m. on Sundays.

POLICEWOMAN SAYS POLICE MAKE CRIME.

Quits Her Job in Boston "To Keep Self Respect."

BOSTON, Feb. 4.—Declaring she had been assigned police work no respectable woman could do, Miss Sabina Delaney has resigned her position as one of Bostons six policewomen.

Miss Delaney charged she was expected to do things degrading to incite others to commit crime in order to procure arrests.

'I thought that I ought to prevent people from committing crime", she said "but the policy of the police seems to be to get people to commit crime, such as buying booze, and other things, in order to gain convictions. I think that unless present methods are changed entirely, policewomen will have to be abolished."

Miss Delaney, a former Army nurse who served overseas, has been on the force for nearly year. She said she would go back to nursing.

"Nursing seems to be the only way I can help people", she said. Police Commissioner Curtis accepted her resignation but refused to make any comment.

COPELAND OPPOSES MEDICAL 'ETHICS'

Publicity, Properly Given, He Says, "Would Wipe Disease Off the Face of the Earth."

NEW YORK, Feb. 3. — Health Commissioner Royal S. Copeland, condemning the "code of ethics" of the medical profession here, said that publicity, if properly given, "would wipe disease off the face of the earth."

Speaking at the bi-weekly luncheon of the Advertising Club, Dr. Copeland said that sometimes he "thanks God that he is not a member of the Academy of Medicine," inasmuch as he would then have to remain silent about disease and its cure.

As soon as the public, through the newspapers, had learned of Dr. Lorenz's arrival and the fact that he could cure paralysis, 35,000 persons flocked to him, said Dr. Copeland, to receive his counsel and treatment. There were other surgeons in New York just as capable as the Viennese physician, but they never made known to the public that they could cure paralysis, and so the people remained in ignorance, the Health Commissioner said.

"There is something wrong with the system that makes it impossible for the sick or the crippled person not to know that he can be healed. And the fault is with the medical profession, which has been unwilling to advertise what it can do.

"Dr. Lorenz did not bring with him any greater ability than at least twenty surgeons in this city possess. It was because our doctors or our methods did not bring home to the people what can be done that we went to the distinguished foreigner to hear what he could tell us.

"Here we come to the problem of advertising," he said. "The medical profession, through the ages, has chosen to make itself a secret thing. The doctor has been looked upon as a sort of a miracle man. He has hidden his wisdom behind a veil of silence. An air of mystery has surrounded the profession and we have developed a code of ethics. This, I believe, is the most antiquated, most covered and germ-laden institution in the world!"

He said that if the public were given more information about cancer, the disease would never reach the cancerous stage. A woman who has a tumor, he said, usually keeps the fact hidden until it develops into a cancer, when it is too late. Any cancer, said Commissioner Copeland, is curable in the beginning. The public must be taught that, he said.

Commissioner Copeland, in referring to accident and health hazards in industry, asserted that "a man who works with his hands should have just as much chance for long life as John D. Rockefeller."

WIFE SUING HER HUSBAND FOR FORTUNE

Husband Files Two Actions, One Alleging Insanity, the Other to Safeguard $700,000 Bonds.

Says She Made Him.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—The story of how a woman with a capacity for saving accumulated $50,000 before the war; of how her investments multiplied this sum into a fortune; and of how she lifted a husband from an obscure clerkship to a position of affluence, was told in an affidavit filed here by Mrs. Jean R. Melville, before Supreme Court Justice Guy, denying the charge of William R. Melville, her husband, that she was incompetent.

Mr. Melville's attempt to have his wife declared incompetent followed closely on proceedings to enjoin her from removing securities from a box in the Guaranty Safe Deposit Company. Mrs. Melville said the securities never were the property of her husband. She demanded a jury trial to prove her sanity.

The Melvilles occupy separate apartments at 38 West Fifty-ninth street.

In his injunction application, Mr. Melville valued the stocks and bonds held by his wife at $700,000. In his incompetency complaint he valued the jointly-owned stocks and bonds at $50,000, and the other stocks and bonds in her possession at $150,000. He says the income from the property was to be invested by Mrs. Melville. Up to 1918 he had power of attorney giving him access to the safe deposit box, but in that year his wife withdrew it.

She Goes to Battle Creek.

In 1920 Mrs. Melville became "extremely" nervous and went to Battle Creek, Mich., returning in March, 1921. They lived for a time at the Plaza Hotel, where, according to Melville, a fire "terrified her so that she was unable to leave the room." Then, he said, she went to a private sanitarium where she thought the walls were hollow and that Dr. Cowles walked inside of them. She also charged, he says, that he spent $500,000 on other women, although she knew that he did not have that much money in the years she specified.

Mr. Melville submitted the affidavits of two physicians who said that Mrs. Melville was suffering from progressive paranoia.

"This move of my husband is just the latest of a long series of annoyances to which he has put me," she said in her reply.

She referred to the first action, in which, she points out, he gave a different value to the securities in dispute, and said:

"My husband, in advance of the trial of that case, and apparently apprehensive of an adverse result, seeks to make it impossible for me to defend myself in that case by declaring me incompetent.

"My husband's latest move shows how far the plaintiff will go in an effort to get rid of a wife whose only failing has been loyalty and good faith for her husband and a loving attention to his business ventures.

Says He Was a Failure—a Nobody.

"Up until the outbreak of the war my husband was a failure—a nobody, without ambition, earning a very small salary, and with no hope for the future. During all that time I attempted to instill in his mind ambition and worthwhile qualities so that he might get ahead in the world and make something of himself and for the family. I finally did succeed in putting him into business in 1914, attending to all the details of this new venture personally, while he did not even know what it was all about, being employed in Albany at the time.

"As soon as the wheel of fortune turned his feelings toward me changed. Instead of being grateful to me for what I had made of him and showing me his thanks by giving to me part of the money which he was so easily earning as the result of my efforts, he would use his money in ways unknown to me, except that I never got any part of it.

"During all my life I have known the value of the dollar. I have skimped and saved and built up little by little a nucleus which I hoped some day to guard myself against the future. I purchased, as soon as I accumulated a few dollars, two houses in Orange, N. J., and subsequently a third one there, all out of my own money and without my husband's help, or, in fact, even knowledge.

Everything She Touches Prospers.

"I would make various trades until at last I was able to buy a few bonds in a small way. Everything I touched prospered. I was able to thus build up from the little tiny seed I had sown myself an ownership of stocks and bonds over $50,000. This was entirely without financial or other aid from my husband, and not a penny of that belongs to him."

She added that when the time came she would tell about conditions in private sanitariums to which she went at her husband's request, the treatment in which, she says, was such that any wife "will be a mental wreck and an incompetent a few months thereafter if she survives the treatment at all."

A. S. Cutler of Foster & Cutler, attorneys for Mrs. Melville, said that after her marriage Mrs. Melville continued to work for a short time. Then she came into a small inheritance. When the war came, seeing the coming need for chemicals, she got her husband into the Melville-Corbett Chemical Corporation, in St. Mary's, Pa., Mr. Cutler said. He later became connected with the Miney-Edgar Chemical Corporation. Mrs. Melville holds some stock of the corporation, her husband avers, which is necessary to him if he is to maintain his position with the continued

DIJURE GHENDINE, of Constantinople. He has one hundred and forty six years of age to his credit. Inducements have been offered him to join a circus.

WEDDING BREAKS OLD TRADITION

Many Changes in Dress May Result From Wedding of Princess Mary.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—The sudden decree prescribing morning dress and hats as the costume to be worn by women guests at the wedding of the Princess Mary in Westminster Abbey has caused consternation among the fashionable modistes of London, who had invested heavily in stocks of evening dresses. But while they are looking dolefully on their expensive Paris models, society women and milliners are over-joyed, and blessing the influenza germ, to which the ruling is attributed.

Society leaders, who expect to attend the wedding, naturally are gratified over escaping the prospect of braving the cold Abbey with bare shoulders and thinly veiled heads. The milliners anticipate a great boom and are busy designing models sufficiently picturesque, while at the same time sufficiently dignified and costly to merit appearance at the abbey ceremony.

Tradition Is Broken.

It is interesting to note, too, that the announcement of the Lord Chamberlain prescribing morning dress and hats breaks a tradition centuries old concerning the dress of women at court functions and probably will prove to be the death knell of court or evening dress for future functions, except purely evening affairs.

England's women of fashion are keeping a close watch on the progress of the Princess Mary trousseau. Already it has solved one problem for them.

The American controversy as to whether a defy should be issued to the Paris long-skirt edict—and to continue to wear them short, causes no worry to the English woman.

Short Skirts Taboo.

"Princess Mary's dresses are going to be long, and the English women, therefore, will lengthen their skirts, whatever fashion decrees," Miss Elspeth Phelps, style creator who returned recently from an American tour, said. "The Princess' bridal costume, her evening gowns and her walking suits all will be characterized by long skirts. By continuing to wear them long, especially on such a momfeutous occasion, she has settled an important fashion question for English women."

G. F. Reville, of Reville Ltd., court dress makers, disclosed another influence that Princess Mary will exert on spring fashion tones. Princess Mary's favorite color is blue, which will play a prominent part in her trousseau. Therefore, blue, the color of happiness, will appropriately be the leading shade of the fashion season in which the most notable event will be the wedding of the Princess Mary.

"WHAT HELL IS MADE OF"

The pastor of Murray street Baptist Church will speak on the subject above at the evening service tomorrow. In the morning the monthly communion service will be held. The annual offering for the Baptist Church Edifice Society of Ontario and Quebec will be taken.

INFORMATION WANTED CONCERNING J. THOMPSON.

The Chief of Police would like to get in touch with a man by the name of John Thompson, supposed to have come from Ottawa, and residing with a brother by the name of William Thompson.

THE MARKET ATTRACTED A GOOD CROWD

Lots of Butter and Eggs Left at a Late Hour—Buying Inclined to Be Light.

PRODUCE PRICES

(By Jeannette.)

The farmers' market was well patronized this morning, but the crowd that eddied and flowed about the tables upstairs and around the stalls and carts below wasn't buying very heavily. There were plenty of fowl and quite a quantity of eggs and butter left at a late hour.

Forty cents a pound was the general price for butter, and fifty cents for eggs. Chickens fluctuated from thirty cents to thirty-three and thirty-five, and hens from twenty-five to thirty. A lone goose was waiting for a purchaser at thirty-five cents per pound. One farmer's wife and her companion, selling fowl to a Celestial restaurant-keeper, who remarked casually that they weren't very good at figuring, spent considerable time over the exact price of a bird at thirty cents per pound, for three and three-quarter pounds. This foreigner was not as diplomatic as the dark-skinned gentleman in the fish booth below stairs, selling salmon trout at fifteen cents a pound. The weight of an icy chunk was computed at sixty-five cents' worth, but the frown on his lady customer's face disappeared promptly when he brought it down to sixty-four. Pickerel, frozen stiff, were selling at fifteen cents per pound, finnan haddie at seventeen and twenty-two, and halibut at twenty-two.

Attractive snow apples were going at thirty cents a measure; Spys were ninety cents a peck, russets sixty, and a ruddy apple like a Winchester Red was seventy cents per peck. Potatoes were scarce, but firm around $1.60 and $1.65 per bag. One dealer demanded fifty cents per peck for his carrots, while another asked forty for a smaller, longer variety, turnips (nicely sliced at the ends) were five cents each, as were clean-looking small cabbage heads, and onions, yellow and red, were demanding $1.40 and $1.25 per peck.

Pork was selling generally at seventeen, eighteen and twenty per pound, beef at ten and fourteen, you could buy a pig's head, with two noble ears thrown in, for fifty cents, and a nice-looking beef heart for ten cents a pound. One man had beef tallow at fifteen cents per pound, which one housewife remarked was altogether too dear.

Upstairs, you could get a choice little measure of 'hand-picked' beans for fifteen cents, there was home-made candy, packaged tea, oranges, lemons, grape fruit, serviceable looking men's hose, honey, white and mixed, at fourteen and nineteen cents per pound, rich-looking cream at thirty cents a pint and sixty-five a quart, (the extra five to pay for the sealer) and a lordly-looking chicken was flanked neatly by two striped yellow and green banana squash at a nickel apiece.

One lady had a number of pairs of warm-looking scarlet wool mitts, hand-made at fifty cents per pair, and a heavily crocheted yoke at a bargain, seventy-five cents. "Are You a Christian?" an inquisitive pamphlet, might be had in quantities for nothing.

The Outside Market.

On the open market, there was a row of sleighs piled with wood, the pure maple going for $12 the load and the mixed hardwood for $8.50. Here the auctioneer had the crowd, but he didn't seem to be elated over it. Remarking that he was glad to see his friends at any time in such numbers, he said he wouldn't mind if they would bid once in a while just for a change, and some one in the crowd good-naturedly replied that they hadn't any money. Even the superlative merits of two nose-bags, with a coil of rope, and a hoe finally thrown in for good measure, failed to arouse enthusiasm to a steeper bid than ten cents, which was promptly accepted, and a galvanized tub, recommended for "ducks and geese in your back yard," was absolutely unmovable until someone said it might do for a portable bath-tub, when it was immediately snapped up for thirty cents, the purchaser when last seen regarding his burden somewhat disconsolately.

And over in the corner was a small basket, with a tiny, brown, silken-eared spaniel that shivered and looked out on the world with bewildered soft blue eyes. The last of a family of eight, it was all alone in the world, awaiting a possible purchaser at two dollars.

LICENSE RECEIPTS GROW.

FREDERICTON, N.B., Feb. 3.—(Canadian Press). — Returns from Motor Vehicle Act license fees for the year 1921 were more than three times as great as the amount of revenue received from this source by the Province of New Brunswick three years ago. Figures which have been given out show actual receipts for 1921 in excess of $276,000, while in 1918 the receipts amounted to $90,000.

TAILORS BLACKLIST CUSTOMERS

Slow Pay Customers will be Listed—You Can Wear Suspenders Again.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4.—Henceforth it will be not only permissible but highly advisable for well-dressed gentlemen to wear suspenders, inasmuch as the belt is not to be worn.

Trousers exhibited in the style show of the National Association of Merchant Tailors here are the cuffless kind fashioned to break gracefully over the instep and follow the curve of the leg.

These trousers, it was explained by the designers, will not hang properly from a belt, and therefore, the suspender is back, along with the joke as to why the President wears red-white-and-blue ones.

Protest that the tariff on manufacturing clothing is too low, and opposition to the American Valuation Plan were expressed and adopted. The association also perfected its proposed "blacklist plan" designed to make customers more prompt in payment of their tailors' bills and announced plans for establishment of permanent offices in New York.

By an amendment to the by-laws, customers who do not pay their bills promptly will be informed through a circular that unless payment is made immediately their names will be forwarded to offices of the National Association as an undesirable customer. This, the tailors believe, will insure collection of most accounts. If, however, the threat is not sufficient, delinquent customers will be "blacklisted from the Atlantic to the Pacific."

Bobbed Hair Is Doomed Says Boston Hairdressers

BOSTON, February 4. — Two great pieces of news were gleaned in an investigation at the coiffure exposition of the Ladies' Hairdressers' Association of New England, now in progress.

First—The forthcoming styles in feminine hair make-up will begin, for the first time in a long period, to show the ears. Some daring girls are already showing the lobes of them, and within a year, it is predicted, the sight of feminine ears entirely exposed will be quite common.

Second—Reformers must soon find something to rave at other than bobbed hair, because it's rapidly losing caste. It was revealed that many penitent girls and former girls are now wearing false pieces or transformations to cover up those earlier missteps in the hairdressing parlours and the village barber shops.

High head-dressing, showing the ear lobe, will predominate this year, according to Mrs. Louise R. Frey, secretary of the Association.

"The large side-puffs of hair which have been so popular will be reduced gradually," Mrs. Frey said, "and heads will eventually return to the normal size. Ears have been trying to return to style for several months, but it is a slow process, and you are not likely to see very many whole ears for at least a year. The high dressing is the best thing we can do for the girls who wish they hadn't had it bobbed."

Mrs. Frey explained that the only girls who could wear bobbed hair attractively were those with permanent waves. Most of them don't have permanent waves, and after having their beautiful tresses clipped off, "simply can't do a thing with it."

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND

By "SAPPER"
(Cyril McNeile)

CHAPTER XI

In Which Lakington Plays His Last "Coup"

"Tony, I've got a sort of horrid feeling that the hunt is nearly over."

With a regretful sigh Hugh swung the car out of the sleeping town of Godalming in the direction of Laidley Towers. Mile after mile dropped smoothly behind the powerful two-seater, and still Drummond's eyes were a look of resigned sadness.

"Very nearly over," he remarked again. "And then once more the tedium of respectability positively stares us in the face."

"You'll be getting married, old bean," murmured Toby Sinclair hopefully.

For a moment his companion brightened up.

"True, O King," he answered. "It will ease the situation somewhat; at least, I suppose so. But think of it, Toby: no Lakington, no Peterson—nothing at all to play about with and keep one amused."

"You're very certain, Hugh." With a feeling almost of wonder Sinclair glanced at the square-jawed, ugly profile beside him. "There's many a slip . . ."

"My dear old man," interrupted Drummond, "there's only one cure for the proverb-quoting disease—a dose of salts in the morning." For a while they raced on through the warm summer's night in silence, and it was not till they were within a mile of their destination that Sinclair spoke again.

"What are you going to do with them, Hugh?"

"Who—our Carl and little Henry?" Drummond grinned gently. "Why, I think that Carl and I will part amicably—unless, of course, he gives me any trouble. And as for Lakington—we'll have to see about Lakington." The grin faded from his face as he spoke "We'll have to see about our little Henry," he repeated softly. "And I can't help feeling, Toby, that between us we shall find a method of ridding the earth of such a thoroughly unpleasing fellow."

"You mean to kill him?" grunted the other non-committally.

"Just that, and no more," responded Hugh. "To-morrow morning as ever is. But he's going to get the shock of his young life before it happens."

He pulled the car up silently in the deep shadows of some trees, and the two men got out.

"Now, old boy, you take her back to The Elms. The ducal abode is close to—I remember in my extreme youth being worse than passing sick by those bushes over there after a juvenile bunworry."

"But confound it all," spluttered Toby Sinclair. "Don't you want me to help you?"

"I do: by taking back the buzz-box. This little show is my shout."

Grumbling disconsolately, Sinclair stepped back into the car.

"You make me tired," he remarked peevishly. "I'll be damned if you get any wedding present out of me. In fact," and he fired a Parthian shot at his leader, "you won't have any wedding. I shall marry her myself!"

For a moment or two Hugh stood watching the car as it disappeared down the road along which they had just come, while his thoughts turned to the girl now safely asleep in his flat in London. Another week—perhaps a fortnight—but no more. Not a day more. And he had a pleasant conviction that Phyllis would not require much persuasion to come round to his way of thinking—even if she hadn't arrived there already. And so delightful was the train of thought thus conjured up, that for a while Peterson and Lakington were forgotten. The roseate dreams of the young about to wed have been known to act similarly before.

Wherefore to the soldier's instinctive second nature, trained in the war and sharpened by his grim duel with the gang, must be given the credit of preventing the ringing of the wedding-bells being postponed for good. The sudden snap of a twig close by, the sharp hiss of a compressed-air rifle, seemed simultaneous with Hugh hurling himself flat on his face behind a sheltering bush. In reality there was that fraction of a second between the actions which allowed the bullet to pass harmlessly over his body instead of finishing his career there and then. He heard it go zipping through the undergrowth as he lay motionless on the ground; then very cautiously he turned his head and peered about. A man with an ordinary revolver is at a disadvantage against someone armed with a silent gun, especially when he is not desirous of alarming the neighbourhood.

FEW PETERBOROUGH FARMERS TOOK IN THE SHORT COURSE OF AGRICULTURE

Two Weeks Left With a Lot of Good Subjects on the Program—A Special Swine Course—Interesting Lectures—Very Slim Attendance.

In point of attendance, the short course in agriculture arranged by the Ontario Department of Agriculture and held in the U.F.O. rooms, Simcoe street, during the past two weeks, has not been a success; only about ten young farmers taking it in. In point of quality, however, the course has not fallen down, and to the few stalwarts that have stuck to the course the month will not have been an unprofitable one.

There are still two weeks left in the course, and it is not too late for farmers to enroll. Best of all, the last two weeks appear to be the best, for there is a special swine course, put on by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, on the 9th and 10th. "We should have had at least 40 or 50 at the course, but we still hope there will be a large attendance at the swine course. It is certainly to be regretted there were not more young farmers took advantage of the course. Why even up at Millbrook we had from 18 to 30 enrolled," declared T. T. Thompson of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, who is in charge of the course in the absence of F. C. McRae, County Representative.

The Lectures.

These courses have been held in every county, this year being the first time Peterborough has been chosen as the centre. The enrollments even in small places has been above the registration here, and keen regret is felt by those interested in the course at the meagre showing in view of the extensive program prepared.

Lectures were given by C. G. Culhum on fruits and vegetables on Jan. 31st, by J. P. Shorey on soils and drainage on the 24th, by Mr. Bergey on poultry on the 26th. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week R. H. Harding of Sutherland lectured on dairy cattle, sheep and swine, and yesterday the feature lecture was by C. M. Lee of Paris on farm management. Next week J. Guardhouse will have the floor for the first three days discussing beef cattle and horses, and H. C. Mason of Guelph, during the last three days, will speak of markets and co-operation.

The short course of the Dominion department on swine should be an attractive part of the course, and at least fifty young men should take advantage of it. Through the co-operation of the Canadian Packing Company, judging of live and dressed hogs will take place. The swine course is added to the other to impress upon the junior farmers the hog situation. On May 1 the Government is requiring all hogs to be graded and sold accordingly, and according to the explanation offered The Examiner, the day of the "fat" hog is over. Denmark, by going in for bacon hogs, has stolen the overseas market from Canada, and to regain her ascendency in the European and English market, this country has to produce only bacon hogs.

No better opportunity will be presented to the junior farmers of the county than through this course to become thoroughly acquainted with the possibilities of bacon hog production. It is not too late to enroll for the course, and farmers should see to it that the attendance during the last fortnight more than makes up for the early slimness.

"Sniffed" Drugs From a Nail File at Saturday Dope Soirus

MONTREAL, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Accounts of a party at which drugs were "sniffed" from a nail file, and which is thought to have hastened the death of J. B. F. Rolland were given before Judge Cusson in Esquate Court here yesterday afternoon, when the preliminary trial of Eli LaFortune, charged with manslaughter in connection with Rolland's death, was commenced.

Moise Jolicoeur testified that LaFortune had met Rolland and himself and two women at the latter's address at 122 St. Denis street and had invited them all to sniff drugs. The witness was taken ill, but recovered, whilst Rolland died in the early morning of the next day, Jan. 19.

Marie Jeanne DesJardins, one of the women, also gave evidence to the effect that she and her sister, Juliette Tetu used to dope on Saturday nights."

The case was adjourned to Feb. 6th.

WATCH FOR SMOKE SIGN OF ELECTION

Crowds in St. Peter's Square at Rome Waiting For Official Announcement.

ROME, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press).—White smoke poured out of the stove-pipe over the Sistine Chapel at 12.30 o'clock yesterday, and a crowd of 5,000 gathered in St. Peter's Square, thinking this meant the election of a new Pope, rushed before the balcony of St. Peter's. Some even reached the inside of the Basilica to receive the new pontiff's first benediction; but it was explained that the white smoke was a mistake.

One of the Vatican officials waved his hand from the Vatican palace, outside the limits of the conclave, indicating that there was no election, a two-thirds vote not having been attained by any candidate.

The immense crowd had waited since ten o'clock this morning for the sign. Among the plain Roman citizens were Ambassadors to the Holy See, former members of the pontifical household, commanders and guards, anxious to obtain first news of the election. The entrance into the Vatican was barred by the Swiss Guards, but the crowds looked on anxiously.

Crowd Excited.

Then, a cloud of pure white smoke issued from the chimney. There was no question about its color. The crowd went wild, rushing to obtain places before the balcony, crying: "He's elected. The Pope is chosen."

There was a wait of ten anxious minutes for the Cardinal Dean to make an announcement, but nobody appeared on the balcony. Meanwhile there was a commotion on an adjacent balcony alongside the Vatican, and one of the Roman princes waved his hand to the immense multitude as a signal that the white smoke had been a mistake and that no Pope had been elected.

Wait For Official

During the ten minutes of suspense a rumour spread among the crowd that the new pope was Cardinal Bisleti, but the crowd waited for the official announcement. When the hand waved they turned about, disappointed, and walked away from St. Peter's Square, saying: "The pope is not elected."

Som of those who watched previous elections explained that the white smoke was too dense; that the pope is elected it is a thin wisp instead of a dense cloud. Others, thought that the person who was burning the ballots had not sufficiently dampened the straw, which is burnt with them, to give off a dark cloud.

PROBABILITIES.

Moderate to fresh winds, mostly westerly; a few local snow flurries, but generally fair; not much change in temperature.

DENIES PRISONERS RELEASED ON THEIR UNSUPPORTED REQUEST

Hon. D. D. McKenzie, Solicitor-General, Says Statements of Police Magistrate Jelfs of Hamilton Are Reckless and Groundless.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.— (Canadian Press.)—Statements attributed to police magistrate Jelfs of Hamilton in a news despatch from that city were characterized as reckless and without foundation by Hon. D. D. McKenzie, Solicitor General, to-day. According to the report from Hamilton, Magistrate Jelfs said that prisoners serving sentences often obtained release on parole by their own unsupported request.

The Solicitor-General, under whose jurisdiction the granting of paroles to prisoners comes, stated that every case is most carefully reviewed before ticket-of-leave is granted. When application for parole is received, reports on the case are obtained from various sources. Frequently the Governor of the jail in which the prisoner is serving sentence is asked to make a report, and also the Judge or Magistrate who sentenced the prisoner. Reports obtained are most carefully considered by a responsible official of the Department as well as by the Minister, before parole is recommended.

Mr. McKenzie said that there is no such thing as a parole board at present. The late Judge Archibald had been a parole officer who visited prisoners at intervals and sometimes recommended that parole be granted to prisoners. Since the death of Judge Archibald, there had been no parole officer. When the parole officer made a recommendation the case was investigated carefully before permitting the prisoner to go. The effort of the Department was to see that the ends of justice were served at all times.

HARDING SEEKS LIST OF SHIPS TO BE SCRAPPED

Their Construction May Be Suspended in the Near Future.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press)—Preparatory to a suspension of work on the United States capital ships to be scrapped under the naval treaty, President Harding has asked Secretary Danby to provide him immediately with full information to the status of the ships under consiruction.

Although the President does not expect to take any affirmative step toward scrapping the ships until all the powers have ratified the treaty, it is probable that there may be a suspension of work on all of the prescribed vessels within a few days.

It is said at the White House today that Mr. Harding expected to submit the naval agreement and the other treaties of the Arms conference to the Senate within a very few days after they are signed. He has not decided whether to take them to the Capitol in person.

Says Freight on Tub of Ice Cream More Than Seven Fares

WINNIPEG, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Urging the necessity for a reduction in freight and express rates in his Presidential address before the annual convention of the Western Canada Ice Cream Manufacturers' Association, President A. Caulder here today stated that for the cost of shipping one tub of ice cream from Moose Jaw to Pasqua, a distance of eight miles, he could send seven first-class passengers, each with 150 pounds of luggage the same distance and have thirteen cents left; or he could send nine commercial travellers, each with 300 pounds of baggage, and still have three cents remaining. He did not give the actual charge.

DYING GIRL ACCUSES WOMAN OF OPERATION

Judge in Montreal Took Ante-Mortem Deposition.

MONTREAL, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press)—An eighteen year old girl, Juliet Valois, died yesterday afternoon in the Hotel Dieu Hospital from the effects of an illegal operation, and a sixty year old woman has been arrested charged with performing it. This morning a report was was received at police headquarters that the girl was dying, so Judge Lanotot went to the Hospital to take an ante-mortem statement. When Judge arrived the girl seemed better, but nevertheless a deposition was taken, and the Judge was informed of the name of the woman alleged to have performed the operation. Later a relapse set in.

Opposition to Drastic Cut In Strength of Japan's Army

TOKIO, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press).—The Seiyukai, or Government party, has introduced a resolution in the Diet intended to offset one calling for a reduction in the army, which was submitted recently by the Kokuminto, or National-Liberal party. The members of the Seiyukai regard the original resolution as drastic. It would provide for "reform of the land forces to meet the demand of the times." following the naval limitation achieved at the Washington Conference.

At the opening of the Diet in December, it was announced that the Kokuminto aimed at reduction of the Japanese Army by one-half, and cutting down of the period of military service from two years to one. The party stood for the Department of Agriculture and Industry, rather than of military bodies.

NO OCCASION FOR BRITISH MEDIATION

The Boundary Dispute Between Craig and Collins Not Yet Acknowledged As Political Impasse.

Compromise Needed.

LONDON, Feb. 4. — (Canadian Press)—The latest disagreement between Michal Collins and Sir James Craig, is drawing the anxious attention of the British Government and it is recognized that boundary fixing question between North and South Ireland is one of grave possibilities. But, until an impasse is acknowledged by the North and South Irish spokesmen. London will regard the affair as a matter to be handled without British interference it was declared in an official quarter yesterday.

London Might Intervene

The drawing of the boundary must necessitate a give-and-take attitude on the part of both parties, it was pointed out, and officials here are continuing in the hope that Ulster and South Ireland eventually view the question in that light. Should a deadlock be reached it is intimated that London might use its good offices in a reconciliation move The suggestion that Prime Minister Lloyd George, or his colleagues, gave territorial assurances to Mr. Collins during the negotiations that preceded the singing of the Anglo-Irish Treaty—assurances of which Sir James was not apprised—is labelled as absurb.

Might Placate DeValera

The diplomatic correspondent of the Evening News attributes the hardening attitude of Mr. Collins and Arthur Griffith to the imminence of the meeting of the "Ard Fheis", (the Gaelic League of Ireland), the suggestion being that such an attitude might placate the followers of Eamon De Valera.

The next move may result from the conference which the Ulster Premier proposes to continue in London for a few days. Sir James saw Winston Spencer Churchill, the Colonial Secretary, and other members of the Cabinet Committe which negotiatd the Anglo-Irish Treaty, yesterday afternoon. Mr. Churchill later went to Downing Street to dis-

THE RIVERSIDE PARK QUESTION.

With much of what Mr. Murray said in his letter last night in regard to Riverside Park The Examiner is in agreement. However, to us, at least, there does not seem any reason why the leasing of Riverside Park to the P.A.A.A. would deprive the citizens of the use of the grounds for park purposes during the greater part of the time. The park would be open to the public except for the comparatively few occasions upon which league games of baseball, lacrosse and football were being played, which would mean Saturday afternoons and for a couple of hours in the evening of other week days. The maintenance of an enclosed athletic grounds is a necessity in a city this size, and if Riverside property can be utilized both for park purposes and as a sports field, it would be a very desirable arrangement.

WHY NOT PETERBOROUGH?

At the recent meeting of the Trent Waterway Development Association it was decided to enter upon an aggressive advertising campaign to bring the scenic beauties of the wonderful waterway before as many people as possible. A very attractive folder is being prepared and fifty thousand copies are to be distributed where it is thought they will do the most service—10,000 are to be given away at the Motor Boat Show, 5,000 to be sent to manufacturers of motor boats and accessories, 10,000 to the railways for distribution and large numbers are to be sent to yacht clubs, motor clubs and similiar organizations. The results from this widespread and effective appeal should be immediate and gratifying, for no more effective medium of publicity for the canal itself or the municipalities located along the waterway could have been planned.

A feature, however, that has not passed unnoticed here, and that undoubtedly has caused comment elsewhere, is that Peterborough, the only city on the Trent Canal, is not reported as having taken any part in meeting the cost of this publicity campaign. Orillia, Midland, Barrie and Lindsay have each contributed $300, Penetang has granted $100 and the Sparrow Lake Cottagers' Association have subscribed $50, but the list contains no donation from the city of Peterborough. Our civic pride and self-respect demand that this oversight should be rectified; it is manifestly unfair that the burden of paying for this propaganda should be borne by the towns along the canal, while the only city affected stands aloof, ready to enjoy the benefits without paying its share of the cost. Doubtless the matter has not been officially called to the attention of the Council, and when it has been placed before them an appropriate grant can be expected.

MR. HALL FOR THE SENATE.

The name of Mr. R. R. Hall, ex-M.P., has been prominently mentioned in connection with the appointment of a new Senator to fill the vacancy in the Upper House caused by the death of Senator Berth of Bowmanville. If the honour were to fall upon Mr. Hall, The Examiner believes that his selection would be endorsed not only by the people of Peterborough, regardless of politics, but by the residents of the whole midland district and of the territory served by the Trent Canal. In the first place, Mr. Hall is widely known as a public-spirited and agressive citizen, with a deep knowledge of and interest in public affairs, a man who believes in action and enterprise and one who would not look upon the Senate as a refuge for those who have grown weary of the turmoil of public life, but rather as a field that offered him an opportunity to be of service to Canada. There is every need of the invigorating influence of such men in the Senate.

His record of service not only on behalf of his own riding of West Peterborough, but of this district, has earned Mr. Hall the gratitude of the people of a wide section of Eastern Ontario. No one man has done more for this part of the Province than Mr. Hall accomplished during his term in Parliament. The public memory is often short, but the policies that were carried out in connection with the Trent Canal, as a result of Mr. Hall's persistent urging and not-to-be-denied spirit, are bearing fruit today and will long continue to prove of inestimable benefit to the whole territory through which the waterway runs. Mr. Hall lost no time after entering Parliament in urging upon the Government of Sir Wilfrid Laurier the desirability of completing the canal as soon as possible. His persistent efforts were rewarded by the expenditure of many millions of dollars upon new construction work and by the recognition by the Government of Mr. Hall's contention that the canal was a business proposition that called for business-like treatment. That in itself was a matter of great importance, but Mr. Hall did not stop there. One of his first acts was to secure the transfer from the Ontario Government to the Federal Government of the control and operation of thirty-two dams along the Trent waterway so that the control of the flow of water could be intelligently and effectively managed. He urged, too, the necessity of immediately building a number of conservation dams so that a more uniform flow could be maintained, and the adoption of this policy has been of the utmost value to manufacturers and power-users everywhere in this district. The minimum flow of the Trent waterway, because of the carrying out of Mr. Hall's suggestions, has been increased by at least 75 per cent., and the conditions formerly caused by lack of water in mid-summer and in February have almost entirely disappeared. What that has meant to this part of Ontario is too apparent to require emphasis, and The Examiner is of the opinion that Mr. Hall has earned promotion to the Senate by the record of his accomplishments on behalf of this district, and that all along the route of the canal his appointment would be hailed with satisfaction and approval by the people who know what he has done for the Trent waterway.

A few days ago we pointed out the fact that Peterborough has been neglected by both political parties so far as Senate appointments are concerned. The present vacancy in the Upper House gives the new Government a chance to make some reparation for our isolation in the past and to give this district the representation it deserves. Only recently a new Senator was appointed from Western Ontario, and as two of the new Ministers are also representing the western part of the Province, while there is not a member of the Cabinet from the section of Ontario east of Toronto, except the Hon. Chas. Murphy in the extreme east, it would seem a very fitting time to choose as the successor of the late Senator Berth a resident of the midland section. There is no one with a better claim, not only on account of his ability to be of service, but also because of his record on behalf of the district, than Mr. Hall, and his appointment would be a popular action that would add to the prestige of the Government in this part of Ontario.

FEBRUARY FIRST, 1922.

There are certain red letter days in the history of civilization that mark the beginning of a new era in history. They record such epoch-making events as the signing of Magna Charta, the breaking of the Power of Spain by the defeat of her armada, or the signing of a Constitution. Among these not the least memorable will be February the first, 1922, when at Washington the Great Powers of the world set the seal of their approval on the work begun so auspiciously on November 11.

If there is any fly in the ointment of our rejoicings over the achievement of a great task it is because the limitation has been confined to surface vessels and the submarine, with its contemptible record of piracy in the Great War, has been left unchecked. Strong action by the United States would have gone a long way towards eliminating what the late Theodore Roosevelt called "not merely piracy, but piracy on a vaster scale of murder than any old-time pirate ever practiced." The limitation of armaments pact which was signed encourages rather than curbs the building of submarines, for England with her 65,000 tons of these craft may feel forced to build up to the American standard of 96,000 and Japan may be spurred to doubling her submarine tonnage to make it equal to that of the United States.

In one of its Notes to Germany just on the eve of the United States entry into the war, these words occur:

"The employment of submarines for the destruction of enemy trade is of necessity, owing to the character of the ships employed and the methods of attack which their use involves, completely irreconcilable with the principles of humanity with the long-existing undisputed rights of neutrals and with the sacred privileges of non-combatants."

Of course, we may acquit every nation of the dastardly folly of contemplating a resort to a campaign against merchant shipping. But Germany at peace entertained no such intentions. It was only when the odds against her made the struggle seem hopeless that Germany embarked upon the policy which mobilized the free nations of the world against her and brought her down to ultimate defeat. So it may be with other nations in the hour of extreme peril.

* * * *

Yet apart from the practical benefits the Washington Conference is notable because it is one of several movements in the direction of bringing about a better understanding among nations and of promoting peace. Ten years ago such a meeting would have been regarded as visionary and of no practical value. But the world has passed through much and suffered much during the last ten years and any method of settling international differences by some other means than the costly and cruel arbitrament of war is welcomed. The old-time cry that "the best way to preserve peace is to be prepared for war" is looked upon with the strongest suspicion today. It is generally admitted that the possession of excessive instruments of destruction is more likely to incite the lust for war rather than to curb it. When super-dreadnoughts cost from $35,000,000 to $50,000,000 a piece the burden of taxation becomes a millstone around the neck of the taxpayer.

A warless world has been the dream of humanity for generations. It is still far from achievement, but the Four Great Powers took their first practical step in that direction yesterday.

The signing of the pact has brought with it a great responsibility. The nations that through their representatives approved of the pact yesterday in so doing went on record in favor of arbitration, conciliation and the holding of conferences rather than by the back stairs method of the old diplomacy. That old diplomacy has brought us to the condition in which more than half the nations of the world are bankrupt after the world's greatest war.

The new era of the agreement by conference can scarcely be worse and has every prospect of doing infinitely better.—Montreal Star.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—As one who is driving a car all through the winter, I find great difficulty in crossing the street railway tracks at corners. If the snow and ice was taken down so that there would be very little bad effect to the springs of a car, I know it would be greatly appreciated by those driving cars, and it would help to provide a few days' work to some one needing it.—Yours truly,

UNABLE TO WALK FOR A YEAR

Paralysis Entirely Relieved by "Fruit-a-tives"

The Wonderful Fruit Medicine

Paralysis is a break-down of the Nervous System and affects the victim in various ways. Sometimes, nervousness makes itself known by hysteria, insomnia, constant headaches, or it may be so bad that one is partially or completely helpless in some part of the body, just as MRS. HEACOCK was.

SAULT STE MARIE, ONT.

"When I was twenty-eight years of age, my doctor advised me to have an operation, which I did and it proved very serious, leaving me weak and unable to walk for a year. Seeing your "Fruit-a-tives" advertised in the papers, I decided to try them. I continued to use them regularly, and today I am able to go about my home duties and care for my family".

MRS. J. W. HEACOCK.

Any form of Nervousness is often caused by, and is always aggravated by, Constipation, which poisons the blood, irritates the kidneys and inflames the nerves. "Fruit-a-tives" stimulates the action of liver and bowels, kidneys and skin—tones and sweetens the stomach—keeps the blood pure, and builds up the entire nervous system.

In a word, "Fruit-a-tives" has proved that it is the most scientific and effective remedy in the world for Nervousness or a disordered condition of the nervous system.

SAILORS GET CUT IN WAGES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press).—A general reduction of wages on coastwise ships, both steam and motor, amounting to about 12 1-2 per cent., will be put into effect immediately, the Shipowners' Association of the Pacific Coast announced yesterday afternoon. This follows a recent reduction in wages made by the Trans-Pacific operators.

WINTER FATHER HARD ON LITTLE ONES

Our Canadian winters are exceedingly hard on the health of little ones. The weather is often so severe that the mother cannot take the little ones out for an airing. The consequence is that the baby is confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms, takes cold and becomes cross and peevish. Babys Own Tablets should be given to keep the little ones healthy. They are a mild laxative which regulate the stomach and bowels and thus prevent colds. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MARQUIS WHEAT.

WINNIPEG, Man., February 3 (Canadian Press). —Marquis wheat still is the popular variety among Western farmers, according to the Winnipeg officials of the Seed Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture. It will be more extensively grown this year on the Prairies than any other variety. Ruby wheat, however, is growing in popularity owing to its earliness. Kubanka wheat, a hard Durum variety, is also expected to be sown extensively. The object in using it is to avoid, to some extent, the effects of prolonged drought and the possible ravages of rust. It is sown only in areas where rainfall is not abundant.

The Seed Branch conducts seed-testing work here for the benefit of farmers. Supervision over stocks offered by seed houses, seeing that they conform to requirements and to representation, is also looked after by officials of the local branch.

SLUMP PRICES.

CALGARY, February 3 (Canadian Press). — A decrease, accounted for by the great slump in prices for all classes of animals, of nearly $3,000,000 is shown in the annual report covering the operations during 1921 at the Alberta Stockyards, East Calgary. The approximate valuation of the business transacted is placed at $5,843,104, compared to $8,630,651 in 1920.

DECREASE OF SETTLERS.

WINNIPEG, February 3 (Canadian Press). — With a total cash capital of $3,786,000 twelve thousand and eighty United States settlers entered Western Canada last year. This, according to the report of Thomas Gelley, Commissioner of Immigration, is a decrease of approximately 40 per cent. from 1920. In addition to cash, effects valued at $982,070 were imported by the new settlers. The decline is attributed largely to the general poor condition of farming, the restrictions of labour conditions, and the stringent financial situation.

2,000 CATTLE SHIPPED.

EDMONTON, February 3 (Canadian Press).—Nearly 2,000 cattle were shipped from the local stockyards during 1921 to overseas ports, and this has been of considerable assistance in making competition for the particular type of steer known as export. Many shipments were also made to United States markets, including St. Paul and Chicago. Stockers and feeders handled in the yards went principally back to Alberta farms.

During the year 2,834 cars were received in the Edmonton yards, including 41,159 cattle, 5,698 calves, 36,293 hogs, 12,281 sheep, and 1,589 horses.

GIRLS FROM ENGLAND.

WINNIPEG, February 3 (Canadian Press). — Preparations for receiving in the early months of the spring and summer approximately one thousand girls and women from England for assured employment as domestics in Western Canada are now under way by the local offices of the Salvation Army. This is part of a scheme inaugurated by London headquarters whereby 10,000 women are to be transferred to the Dominions. The great majority would go to Australia. Commissioner W. Eadie, in making the announcement here, stated that the Provincial Government was assisting in the plan by allowing a grant.

BIG DEATH-RATE.

WINNIPEG, February 3 (Canadian Press). — During 1921 the death-rate from tuberculosis in this city was .508 per 1,000, the lowest in the last 15 years. A great drop has taken place even in the death-rate per 100 cases, as shown by the annual report of the City Health Department, from 65 in 1920 to 45.4 in 1921.

LAKEFIELD TO PLAY PETERBORO.

The Ice Harvest is Still Under Way in Lakefield—Personals.

Hockey Game.

LAKEFIELD, February 4. — The girls' hockey team will play the return match with Peterborough in the Brock Street Rink, Peterborough, on Monday evening. There was a strong effort made to secure a special train, but the effort was unsuccessful. There will be a good automobile service, and it is expected that a large crowd will take in the match. The added attraction of the moccasin dance afterward makes a strong appeal to the young people.

The Ice Harvest.

The ice harvest is under way, and loaded ice sleighs are seen with their burdens in a regular procession. The ice seems to be first-class this season, and a large supply is being cut. When one thinks of the weather last July, one cannot help but feel that there can't be too much stored up against the heat to come.

Hockey News.

A hockey match which will be very popular is being arranged between the Kentucky Blazers and the Lakefield Lightning Rods. This will be an all-star local team, and the arrangements for the game are being made.

The Lakefield hockey team will probably play the Oshawa team in the near future.

People Have Choice of Higher Taxes or More Frugal Living

EDMONTON, Alta., Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press)—If you think when you ask the Provincial Government to foot the bills for 75 per cent of the cost of secondary education in the Province, you are making a big order", declared Premier Greenfield, in answer to a delegation of town and city school trustees who waited on the Cabinet from the Alberta Trustees Association. "It all works down to this," said the Premier, "It's a case either of increased taxation or living within our means, and I want to tell you now that the time has come when the province, the cities, towns and individuals must live within their incomes; must economize if we are to get out of the situation in which we find ourselves in after years of expansion."

cuss the situation with Mr. Lloyd George.

Says Inhabitants Have Choice

Referring to his Conference with Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, Michal Collins said today that the peace treaty with Great Britian provided that the boundary line was for decision by inhabitants of the areas concerned.

"The majorities must rule," he declared, "and on any map markd according to that principle we secure immense anti-partition areas,"

As regards the new situation in Ireland, Mr. Collins urged that the country's whole parliamentary representation should meet to adopt a policy and form a constitution. The alternative to this, he added was a resumption of the old disturbance and animosities.

Chicago Wheat Prices Soar With Argentine Quotations

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Surprise over a brisk new advance in wheat prices at Buenos Aires yesterday carried the wheat market here up well beyond all recent high levels. The closing was strong at 1 7-8 to 2 5-8 net gain, with May $1.25 5-8 to $1.25 3.4 and July $1.09 1-4 to $1.09 3-8. Other staples, too, all finished higher—corn up 5-8 at 3-4 to 3-4 at 7-8; oats, 1-8 at 1-4 to 3-8, and provisions, 12 to 55.

What made the latest soaring of Argentine quotations astonishing to the Chicago wheat trade was the fact that in the last two weeks the Argentine figures have risen more than Liverpool, notwithstanding that the English market has outdistanced the upturn of values in the United States, so that wheat in this country is again on a world competitive basis. Posting of the Argentine prices brought about a general rush here to buy, although earlier many dealers had taken the view that advances had been too rapid and that a re-action was due. Scantiness of domestic receipts from northwest, however, together with drought reports from the southwest and from Europe as well, attracted renewed attention during the last part of the day, and setbacks in prices turned out to be of little importance, notwithstanding that sales to realize profits were of large volume.

Few Cases of Flu in Quebec And Are Only Milder Type

MONTREAL, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press)—"There is no immediate indication of any epidemic of influenza either in Montreal or throughout the province" said Dr. Elzear Pelletier, Secretary and Director of the Supreme Board of Health for the province this afternoon. "We have had reported a number of cases in Montreal and others in various districts in the province, but in no instance has the report sent in dicated anything like a recrudesence of such an epidemic as occurred two years ago."

He added the cases of the "flu" existent now were of a much milder type than in 1920.

Got No Sleep

But now the neuritis has gone, the pains have ceased, the nervous system is restored and the writer of this letter pays a grateful tribute to the medicine which made him well.

Mr. John Woodward, P.T.O., Lucan, Ont., writes:

"It gives me much pleasure to recommend Dr. Chase's medicines, especially the Nerve Food. I was a sufferer from neuritis for several years, and tried all kinds of remedies, yet never seemed to get any better. At last my nerves and whole system seemed to give way through not being able to get any rest or sleep at nights for pain, which mostly used to take me in all parts of the limbs and feet. My nerves would twitch till my whole body would seem to jerk right up as I lay in bed. Almost at the point of despair, I decided I would get Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which I did, and after taking twenty boxes I believe myself almost normal again. I also keep a box of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills on hand, and for the past year I seem to enjoy my usual health."

Would Leave Examination of German Note to Commission

BRUSSELS, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press).—M. de Margerie, French Ambassador to Belgium, today handed Foreign Minister Gaspar a memorandum from Premier Poincare dealing with Germany's recent note to the Allied Reparations Commission. The memorandum advocates leaving to the Reparations Commission the task of examining whether Germany's proposals are justifiable.

The Belgian Cabinet will examine the memorandum thoroughly, and its decision is keenly awaited in political circles, as its attitude toward the memorandum will be taken as an indication as to whether the Cabinet's tendencies are toward the British or French policies in dealing with Germany.

POINCARE WANTS CLEAR PROGRAM.

Discusses Genoa Conference in Foreign Affairs Committee of Senate.

PARIS, February 4 (Canadian Press)—President Poincare appeared before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Senate to-day, ready to discuss matters concerning the Genoa Economic Conference. He said he was prepared to answer the questions, and had brought all papers with him and would give "chapter and verse" of anything he had advanced.

The Premier declared plainly that he would not go to Genoa unless the programme was clearly defined and conditions were unequivocally laid down. Thus, for example, he pointed out, the invitation to the Soviet Government did not stipulate that it accept the conditions of its admission; it was only assumed that the coming of Soviet representatives would signify adhesion to the conditions. That, however, must be clearly brought out.

M. Poincare also remarked that the conference would be necessarily delayed by the Italian ministerial crisis for at least 10 days, and the presence of the Italian Premier was indispensable. There would, therefore, be plenty of time for debate. Maintenance of the full powers and prerogatives of the League of aNtions and the Reparations Commission was at the base of the French foreign policy according to the Premier. It was considered desirable to say nothing regarding the Near East and Angora questions until a basic agreement had been reached.

M. Poincare's remarks appeared to make an excellent impression on the committee.

WIN This Real-Gasoline Auto for Boys and Girls

$150.00 in other Prizes

SOLVE THIS PUZZLE

FIRST PRIZE

A Genuine Motor Car—Not a Toy!

Has real pneumatic tires steering wheel and gears, steel springs, powerful brake. Easy to drive. Uses little gasoline.

Teacher put 50 squares on the blackboard and in 15 of the squares she put figures. Then she said to the class "These figures can be made to spell out three words. The three words will tell you who is going to be first this month. It's a hard puzzle but it can be done and there are wonderful prizes for the boys and girls who can solve it. Now what is the answer?

HOW TO SOLVE IT

Each figure represents a letter. The number in each square indicates the position of that letter in the alphabet. For instance "A" would be represented by the figure 1, because it is the first letter of the alphabet. "B" would be indicated by the figure 2, because it is the second letter of the alphabet. "C" would be indicated by the figure 3, and so on. Look at the figure 20 in the first square. It represents "T" because "T" is the twentieth letter of the alphabet. Now get a pencil and paper, figure out what letter the number in each square stands for and when you have them all, arrange them in their proper rotation, so as to spell out the three words called for. It is not an easy puzzle, but with patience and diligence it can be done and if you can solve it correctly, you may win this real Gasoline Driven Motor Car, or one of the other fine prizes.

Copy your answer upon a plain sheet of paper as neatly as you can because neatness, spelling, your writing, punctuation and general appearance of your answer count in the final awarding of prizes, if more than one is correct. Put your name and address in the upper right hand corner of the paper. If you write a letter or wish to send anything else besides the answer to the puzzle put it upon a separate sheet of paper. We will write to you as soon as your answer is received and tell you if your solution is correct and also send you a complete illustrated prize list of the grand prizes that you can win.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Men's Club Held a Debate--A Travel Talk--Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 4.—The many friends of Mrs. R. N. Morrison will be pleased to learn that she has so far recovered from her recent operation in Toronto General Hospital as to be expected home next week.

Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Linton entertained some friends to a card party at their home last evening.

Mr. B. P. Nelson, who presided at the meeting of the Belleville District Holstein Club, held in Belleville this week, was honored by being aagin elected president for the ensuing year.

Mr. R. N. Morrison is in Peterborough to-day visiting his sister, Mrs. W. Shannon of Smith Falls, who this week underwent an operation in Peterborough Hospital.

Men's Club.

The debate, 'Resolved that it is in the best interests of the Church of England that the itinerant system be adopted for the rectors," was ably debated at the Parish Hall on Thursday evening. The affirmative was taken by Rev. C. E. Clark, Messrs. Thos. Craighead and Robt. Patrick, while the negative was supported by Messrs. C. H. Harris, James Benor and George Thring. Both sides advanced strong arguments and the audience by a vote, declared the negative had won by one point. It is planned to hold another debate in the near future. The Men's Club are to be commended for their excellent programme, which is developing latent talent of which the club may be proud.

Travel Talk.

Despite the many attractions in town last evening a very large number assembled in the Methodist church to enjoy the "Travel Talk on Old London" given by the pastor, Rev. H. B. Kenny, who last summer visited London as a delegate to the Ecumenical Conference. The chair was most capably occupied by Mr. G. A. Kingston, Supt. of the Sunday school, under whose auspices the entertainment was given. The meeting was opened by the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," after which Rev. J. E. Glover led in the opening prayer. An excellent musical programme was then rendered, under the efficient leadership of Mr. R. T. Cowell, A.R.C.O. An orchestra of seven rendered "A Perfect Day," which was thoroughly enjoyed as was also their second number, "Twilight Charms," which revealed careful blending and real harmony. The members of the orchestra were: Messrs. R. T. Cowell leader, Hugh Innis, Walter Lowe, George Lucy, D. A. Mitchell, Clarence Williams, George Salter. Mrs. A. L. Malcolm and Dr. Lillian Young rendered a duet which was much appreciated. Mrs. Edward Bates rendered the solo, "Annie Laurie" in her usual sweet voice and Mr. Salter's euphonium solo, "The Lost Chord," was charming.

Mr. Kenny then carried his audience across the sea to the historic old London, with all its places of beauty and interest. An idea was first given of its magnitude, location, population, etc. Then ,with fine word pictures, aided by clear limelight views, his hearers travelled to Charing Cross, the hub of London, from which the crosses were removed by act of Parliament in 1647. We next visited the House of Commons and House of Lords, St. Paul's Cathedral, Trafalgar Square, the Royal Exchange, Buckingham Palace, the Britanical Gardens, Kensington Gardens, the Crystal Palace which seats a choir of 3,500. Next came the old London bridge, with all its associations, the Wax Works, the Tower of London, around which hinges much of interest. Picadilly Circus was visited and Westminster Abbey, etc. Mr. Kenny paid a glowing tribute to the hospitality and culture of the English people, whom he was privileged to meet. The audience after singing the doxology, came away with a better knowledge of and deeper interest in Old London.

Sunday at St. Andrew's.

Dr. Alex. MacMillan, secretary of church praise, for the Presbyterian church, will have charge of the services in St. Andrew's church tomorrow. After a brief evening service he will give one of his famous "Hymn Talks.' The choir will sing the melodies to illustrate the talk. A rare treat is in store for all true of scared song, which atend, as Dr. MacMillan is known all over Canada as an authority on church music.

WOMEN AND GIRLS WANT ROSY CHEEKS

THEY CAN BE HAD BY KEEPING THE BLOOD RICH AND PURE

Every woman—every girl—wants rosy cheeks. They mean not only beauty but good health. When a woman's blood is scanty or anaemic her color fades, she looks debilitated, is short of breath and her heart palpitates after slight exertion. Sometimes this trouble is accompanied by severe headaches, or pains in the back or sides. This condition is entirely due to weak, watery blood, and can only be cured by making the blood rich, red and pure. For this purpose try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which act directly upon the blood, and in this way bring new health and strength to weak, ailing people. Mrs. Isaac W. Howell, Petitcodiac, N.B., tells of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her as follows:—"For some time I had not been feeling well. I had been gradually growing weaker, and found it constantly growing harder to do my housework. I was very pale and had frequent headaches. I consulted a doctor and took his medicine for some time, but it did me no good. I found myself growing weaker, and taking faint and dizzy spells. A friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and although I had nearly lost faith in all medicine, I got a supply and began their use. After a time I found they were helping me, and I gladly continued taking them, and ultimately found that the troubles that had afflicted me had vanished. I am giving this statement in the hope that my expereice will be of benefit to others."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RUSSIAN FAMINE TAKING TERRIBLE TOLL OF CHILDREN.

Most of the Ten Million Victims Before Next Harvest Will Be Little Ones.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4. — Canadian Press. — "There is nothing so terrible as the Russian famine in the annals of European history," said Col. Herbert J. Mackie, president of the Canadian Committee of the Save the Children Fund, in a statement issued to-night.

"The famine in Russia is due to drought," Colonel Mackie proceeds, The survivors were fleeing from the famine area last autumn, in search of bread or even grass to eat. But the whole territory along the Volga River for a thousand miles and several hundred miles across, has been parched into an arid desert. The fugitive peasants fell by the wayside in many instances, leaving orphan children to wander on in search of roots, the bark of trees, or the bones of dead animals to gnaw. Winter conditions similar to the climate in Canada would seem to be striking down the peasant families as ruthlessly as though they were being consumed in a forest fire. There is nothing so terrible as the Russian famine in the annals of European history.

"However much the outside world hastens to the rescue, it is a conservative estimate to say that the famine victims will number ten millions, mostly children, before the next harvest comes. But millions can be saved, and the Canadian committee of the Save the Children Fund is appealing to the great heart of the Canadian people to give quickly and generously, so that some of Canada's abundance can be shipped on Canadian ships to the distributing points in Russia.

"The Dominion Government is whole-heartedly encouraging this relief movement.

"The Britsh Save the Childre Fund is feeding 250,000 children an the saving work is being done wit such efficiency that it costs only 2 per week to feed a child. A don tion of $10 will feed four childre till the severe winter months a over. For $500 a feeding kitchen c be established to care for 100 chi dren for 20 weeks.

Shortage in Town's Funds, Treasurer Faces Charg

SHERBROOKE, Que., Feb. 3.—(Canadian Press).—Charged wit the conversion of the corporatio funds to the extent of between $10 000 and $11,000, Arthur C. Glasse Secretary-Treasurer of the town of Richmond, appeared before Judge Mulvena in the Magistrate's Court yesterday afternoon. The accused pleaded not guilty to the charge and was allowed out on $10,000 bail, the hearing being fixed for next Friday. The exact amount involved would not be known until the audit of the books had been completed. Glassey originally came from Toronto several years ago while a traveller for an Ontario firm and married Miss Lance. When his father-in-law, A. Lance, owner and publisher of The Richmond Times-Guardian, died Mr. Glassey took charge of the plant, and about three years ago was appointed Secretary-Treasurer of the town of Richmond.

Wagon-Loads of Moonshine "Mash" Clogged City's Sewers

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press).—Sewers in North River went "dead" yesterday and city engineers began an investigation, which disclosed today that several wagon-loads of corn "mash" had been dumped into the sewers by thoughtless moonshiners. The mash was removed and housekeepers in that suburb now can dump dishwater into the sink without fear of a "back flow."

City officials are considering the advisability of providing garbage cans for moonshiners so the city sewers will not again be clogged.

Will You Help Us?

The proper Washing and Sterilizing of Milk Bottles is one of the most important operations of the Modern Milk Plant, and it is oftentimes the most difficult.

You will be interested in knowing that every Bottle, on its return to our Plant, is thoroughly Washed, Steamed, and Sterilized.

Every Bottle must be Inspected and Passed by several men before it is again filled with Milk.

You can assist us in this most important work by seeing that your own Bottles are returned promptly and by calling your friends' attention to the necessity of using Milk Bottles for Milk, and Milk only.

It will also assist us if every Bottle is rinsed in clean, lukewarm water before returning.

This co-operation will go a long way in assisting us to give you the kind of service you want to have.

A Bread Baking Contest in Detroit

One hundred and six Detroit women have been awarded prizes in a breadmaking contest just completed, when thousands of women competed in an endeavor to secure a first prize of $250, five second prizes of $25 each, and ten prizes of $20 each, beside a number of lesser awards.

The winner of the $250 announces that she bakes bread and rolls twice a week, from cook-stove recipes; the second bakes hers in an oil stove from a recipe given her by her Canadian grandmother many years ago and another has been making bread for a family since she was fourteen year old.

Bread sent in for competition was distributed to charitable institutions, to hospitals and jails in Detroit; loaves were caried in motor trucks to all parts of the city to allow each of its many charities to get its quota.

The honor of being the smallest competitor belonged to a small maiden, four and one-half years old, "who brought down a loaf that corresponded in size in the same ratio as she did to her mother, who accompanied her."

Miss McAdam, supervisor of domestic science for the Board of Education, said:

"The enthusiasm in this contest plainly shows that the housewife does like to bake her own bread, and for that reason I believe that it is not a lost art in the home today and is a valuable asset in the education of every school girl."

In judging the bread, each loaf was cut and tasted by the four judges. One can imagine that their enthusiasm for home-made bread might cool a litle during the process. Many prominent club and society women were competitors in this contest, which ranged from loaves received from homes of luxury and of poverty. As one woman said: "This contest is the most successful blow ever struck at the high cost of living in Detroit."

In judging the quality, the judges were guided by this test and chart, used by the United States Department of Agriculture:

"A loaf of bread should be light in weight considering its size, and an unbroken golden-brown crust. The crusts should be smooth on top and should have a certain lustre, to which the term "bloom" has been given.

"The loaf as a whole, the crust and the crumb, should be elastic. The loaf, if pressed out of shape, as it often is when slices are cut from it, should regain its form when the pressure is removed. Bits of the crust if bent a little between the fingers, should show the same power to rebound, as should also the cut surface of the loaf if pressed.

"The crumb should be creamy white in color and should have a "sheen" which may be compared with the bloom of the crust. This sheen can best be seen by looking across a slice rather than directly down into it. The distribution of the holes, on the other hand, and the thickness of the walls can best be examined by cutting a very thin slice and holding it up to the light.

"The flavor of the bread should be, as nearly as possible, the flavor of wheat developed or brought out by the use of salt. This flavor is not easy to describe, but is familiar to those who have tasted the wheat kernel."

A bread score card, for judging the quality of bread, shows: (1) General appearance; shape- smoothness of crust, and depth and evenness of color, 5 points each; (2) Lightness, 10 points; (3) Crust; thickness quality (crispness and elasticity) 5 points each, and color; 10 points. (4) Crumb; Testure (size and uniformity of cells, thinness of cell walls) and elasticity (softness and springiness) 15 points each; (5) Flavor (taste and odor) 25 points. A total of 100 points.

The recipe which brought the $250 prize to one woman out of 12,000 competitors is as follows: Milk and Water Bread for three 24-ounce loaves and one dozen rolls: Ingredients: One medium sized white potato, one pint potato water, one pint scalded milk, two tablespoons of lard, two tablespoons of butter, two tablespoons of sugar, three tablespoons of salt, one cake compressed yeast dissolved in one-fourth cup of warm water, about 12 cups of bread flour.

Directions: Mix sponge of luke warm potato water, mashed potato, yeast and three cups of flour.

When this is foamy, (about one hour) add the lukewarm milk, in which the lard, butter, sugar and salt have been melted. Add flour to make a soft dough, then turn onto floured board and knead about 15 minutes. Put into greased bowl, grease the top of the dough, and place in a warm spot until dough has doubled in bulk.

Turn onto slightly floured board, knead out all bubbles, form into loaves, saving out small amount for rolls. Put in greased pans, grease top of loaves and again allow dough to double in bulk.

Bake 50 minutes in moderate oven, increasing heat after 10 minutes. When bread begins to brown, decrease heat, and finish baking in slow oven.

Sunday School Workers Active

On Tuesday evening of this week, an interesting and enjoyable meeting of the Anglican Sunday School workers of Peterboro was held in the basement of All Saints' Church.

At six-thirty, about sixty members of the Anglican churches of the city sat down to supper, served by some of the ladies of All Saints' Church, who spared no pains in making the repast most appetizing.

Immediately after supper the program followed opened with a hymn and prayer, followed by a piano duet by Mrs. Tucker and Mrs. Fowlie.

Miss Clara Adams gave an instructive address on the work of the Primary Department of the Sunday School, in which she related the story of "Elijah" as it would be told to small children, stressing the point that simple language is most essential in senior as well as junior work. The speaker illustrated with various devices to hold the interest of the children and materially add to the success of the work.

Mr. K. Wightman gave a helpful talk on The Study of Child Nature, during the periods from early childhood to adolescence. He pointed out very clearly, the many different characteristics peculiar to the child at these ages and emphasized the that the teacher of Sunday School work must also be a student of child nature.

Miss Gladys Collinson who attended the Summer School at Lake outline of the work accomplished Couchiching, gave an interesting here. One day's program showed time for prayer, study and recreation Different departments of religious activity were a study of Sunday school work, of Mission work and of Social service.

During the evening vocal solos were rendered by Messrs. Cooper and Chandler, and the meeting was brought to a close by the Benediction and the National Anthem.

SORES SPREAD ALL OVER FACES AND HANDS

Mrs. Howard Houlette, Waskatenau, Sask., writes:—"I wish to tell you of the benefit we have received by using your valuable medicine Burdock Blood Bitters.

My children started to break out on their faces in small white pimples which kept getting larger each day. Pus would form under the scabs and they would come off, and each time the sores would be larger; some were as large as a twenty-five cent piece and would spread all over their bodies. I was nearly in despair and sent to the village for a bottle of good blood medicine. The druggist sent me a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, which I commenced giving them at once.

In about ten days I saw an improvement and they grew steadily better each day, and in one month the sores had all disappeared."

All blood and skin diseases are caused by bad blood, and to get it pure and keep it pure you must remove every trace of the impure and morbid matter from the system by a blood cleansing medicine such as

For Heathens

A visiting missionary at St. John's Church recently, spoke to the children's Sunday School classes about the work in foreign fields. He was trying to excite their enthusiasm over the spreading of Gospel in far-off lands, but didn't seem to be able to arouse them until he hit on an idea which directly appealed to the small minds.

Holding up a paper-covered copy of the Gospel of John, and remarking that it might be spread to countless unawakened souls for the small sum of a dime, he said; "What can you buy nowadays for a nickel?" One child answered, "A chocolate bar." "Yes, and in summer?" "An ice-cream cone." "Well, then, will you give up one ice-cream cone in the summer, and a chocolate bar in the winter, and send this Gospel to the heathen?" The idea seemed to appeal immensely to the children.

Activities of Women's League

The Catholic Women's League, which does a great deal of local charitable work and visiting, augments its funds through various committees which arrange different forms of entertainment from time to time. The literary section has planned several interesting and instructive lectures for the near future, with local and outside speakers; a concert with vocal and instrumental selections, and a cunning little play is being prepared for this month, and the social committee are holding an "At Home" Monday of next week at St. Alphonsus Lyceum, with extra special arrangements in the way of music, prizes, refreshments and decorations.

GIRLS! LEMON JUICE WHITENS RED HANDS

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter-pint of harmless and delightful lemon-bleach lotion to soften and whiten red, rough or chapped hands. This home-made lemon lotion is far superior to glycerin and rose water to smoothen the skin. Famous stage beauties use it to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, because it doesn't irritate.

A Sketch Class Opened in City

The Sketch Class, recently inaugurated under the auspices of the Art Association, with Miss Hatton in charge, has got off to a good start. Several enthusiastic members have been enrolled, and the Club, which meets on Tuesday mornings, from ten to twelve o'clock, have started their studies in still life. An associate membership for young girls under 16 has been arranged at a very small fee.

Miss Katherine E. Wallis, who still makes her residence in Peterboro, has just been advised of the purchase by the Women's Art Society of Montreal of her creation in marble entitled "A Moment's Anxiety", a bust of a small pensive infant with puckered, tearful face, which will be remembered as one of the most important pieces shown by her in last year's exhibit. This bust will be presented by the ladies to the Montreal Art Gallery, one of the finest galleries in the Dominion, or, perhaps in the continent of North America.

Miss Wallis has been working on several local portraits, and has done some expressive water colors of the Maritime Provinces, including a view of a harbor, with ruddy sands in the foreground. A plasticine portrait representing the insignia of Prince Edward Island is an interesting piece, with the squat low trees of the island in the background, the small kingfisher bird and the two alert outward-looking foxes which symbolize the chief industry of the province, with its Indian name of "Abegweit."

Christmas of this year brought Miss Wallis a rememberance from her great sculptor friend, Monsieur Waldmann, in the form of a cross-legged Hindu idol, with his elongated earlobes and meditative attitude, done in deep purple terra-cotta medallion, about three inches long.

COULDN'T DO HOUSEWORK HEART WAS SO BAD

Many women get weak and run down and unable to look after their household duties owing to the heart action becoming impaired or the nervous system unstrung.

Nature intended women to be strong, healthy and happy instead of sick and wretched. But how can a woman be strong and healthy when day in and day out she has to go through the same routine of work sweeping, dusting, cooking, washing, etc. Is it any wonder that the heart becomes effected and nervous, has hot flushes, faint and dizzy spells, smothering and sinking spells and can't sleep at night.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

are the best remedy to tone up the system and strengthen the weakened organs.

Mrs. Daniel Bezanson, Loganville, N.S., writes:—"As I was troubled with a weak heart for nearly two years I am writing to tell you what your great remedy, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, has done for me.

"My heart was so bad at night I could not sleep, I would take smothering spells, and was so weak I could not do my housework. I tried two doctors, but no results. A friend advised me to try your pills. I used six boxes and am completely relieved. I think they are the best remedy for heart trouble there is."

ANNUAL MEETING OF PARK STREET BAPTIST CHURCH.

Year of Progress Reported By All Departments — Good Attendance.

The annual general business meeting was held on Wednesday evening, 25th January, the pastor, Rev. W. E. Morrow, B.A., presiding. A goodly number of members were present.

Reports from various officers and organisations showed good progress. Eighteen new members joined the church during the year—sixteen by baptism.

Notable financial increases in receipts are recorded by all departments. Total receipts by church, Sunday School, and other organisations show the sum of $7,800.00.

The amount of mortgage on the church has been reduced by $560.00 during the year, all interest duly met, and the church has also undertaken the purchase of a parsonage.

The amount of $613.00 has been paid to various missions and kindred funds.

The Sunday School records show an average attendance of teachers and officers 26 and of scholars 191—a total average of 217 each Sunday. Sixty-five teachers and scholars are on the Honour Roll, being present 50 Sundays or over during the year.

Private Yacht Wrecked in Southern Sea, Six Drowned

SEATTLE, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press)—August Anderson Probendahl, former Alaskan Capitalist and resident of Seattle, his wife and four children were drowned when their private yacht in which they were cruising the South Seas, was wrecked two months ago according to advices received by Andrew Childberg, British Vice Consul, here yesterday. The message received by Mr. Childberg gave no details and did not mention the name of the yacht.

Mr. Probendahl made his fortune in the Klondyke shortly after he arrived there in the rush of 1898.

C.P.R. IS WILLING TO SUPPLY TREES FOR RIVER BANK.

Approve Chamber of Commerce Scheme to Beautify River Below Hunter St. Bridge.

Official assurance has been given the city of the C. P. R. Company's willingness to co-operate in the proposed beautification of the west bank of the Otonabee River south of the Hunter Street Bridge.

Following the recent visit of Mr. Grout, the general superintendent of the C. P. R., came H. J. Humphries, divisional superintendent, and S. Winegar, the company's landscape gardener. They were joined here by City Clerk Armstrong, W. S. Dodd, local freight agent for the company, and Mr. Leonard Frazer, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Humphries stated that the C. P. R. would be pleased to join with the city in carrying out the scheme which has been recommended by the City Plan Committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

The C. P. R. would supply several hundred trees, and also the service of a supervising landscape specialist.

The area visited by the committee extends south from the east-end of Simcoe Street to a point opposite the south-end of Riverside Park. This land was thrown up in the dredging of the river, and it has been enlarged by the dumping of ashes and other refuse. Some trees have sprung up from stray seeds, and have developed a rough fringe of green that is not unpleasant in the summer.

Mr. Humphries stated that the C. P. R. would supply not only trees but also a hedgerow, and flowers for plots that could be laid out at intervals along the bank. Peterborough would be expected to furnish the labour for the work, which, it is understood, the company is ready to proceed with this year. It remains for the Council to give their approval to this scheme, which will probably be presented to them on Monday night next.

One advantage it offers, apart from the beautifying of the west side of the river below the Hunter Street Bridge, is the opportunity of combining this improvement with some similar decorative work on the east bank on the Riverside Park property which the city now owns.

The planting of both banks of the Otonabee in parallel below the Hunter Street Bridge would be the beginning of a natural ornamentation, the full effect of which would be unfolded when the trees began to grow and the hedges to fill out.

O.R.C. AND B.R.T. AT HOME A BIG SUCCESS

The joint O.R.C. and B.R.T. annual at home, held in the Victoria Regimental Armories, Lindsay, was one of the most attractive and successful events for many seasons. Guests were entertained from Kingston, Brockville, Belleville, Peterborough and surrounding district.

The Armories was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Shortly after nine o'clock dancing commenced to the alluring strains of Hooper's nine-piece orchestra. This remarkably fine orchestra rendered unexcelled music, which was a great addition to the evening's pleasure.

The moon waltzes were flooded with colored lights and many spot lights were swept upon the dancers. At midnight a dainty supper of chicken sandwiches and salads, cake, coffee and ice cream, was served to a nicety by the expert committee in charge.

As an indication of the care that was taken for about 800 guests, check rooms were provided and individual coat hangers for one and all, also full length mirrors for the ladies. An abundance of easy chairs were available on the borders of the dance area.

Among some of those present were J. D. MacMillan, superintendent G. T.R. Belleville, and wife; Towner, locomotive foreman, Belleville, and wife; agent Fisher and wife of Hastings; J. A. MacNab, agent, Peterborough.

Progressive euchre was also one of the big events of the evening. The prize winners were Mr. Henry and Mrs. Sam Cherrie, both of Lindsay.

This year's annual at home proved to be a remarkabe success, due to the untiring efforts of the capable and efficient committees in charge.

FILMED AGAINST ODDS YET A GEM IS

Betty Compson's Latest Paramount Picture Production

"THE LITTLE MINISTER"

Filmed under more or less unpropitious weather conditions, yet being a masterpiece of direction, acting and photography, "The Little Minister," Betty Compson's latest Paramount picture produced by Penrhyn Stanlaws will be the feature at the CAPITOL theatre for 3 days beginning Monday next. The dainty star is said to have an unusually attractive role in Lady Babbie, one of Sir John M. Barrie's finest creations.

Miss Compson admits that she approached the role of Lady Babbie with some misgivings, for she believed it was going to be far more difficult than it proved to be.

"As a matter of fact,' said she when the last shot had been fired "Babbie isn't a bit different, temperamentally from a lot of other girls I have portrayed A genuine coquette she leads poor Gavin, a pretty dance—almost any girl can do that. But her witchery that forces the little minister to defend her, even in the face of his own conscience, was a delightful thing to try to put across and it pleases me immensely to be told that I succeeded."

Not in a long time has a greater variety of quaint and colorful costume, been seen in a film production than those in "The Little Minister". English soldiers of the period of 1830, constables, Scotch weavers and peasantry, lord and ladies, mingle in a most picturesque medley of color and design, so far as costumes go. Miss Compson for the most part wears a most becoming gypsy garb, later appearing in a typical gown of the period, all flounces and ruffles and with a skirt yards around.

As Gavin, the little minister, George Hackathorne in his tight-fitting trousers, high hat and frock coat is a quaint figure, while Nigel Barrie as Capt. Halliwell, flamboyant in red and blue uniform and tremendous hat with flowing plume, presents a most striking contrast.

This picture far surpasses the Bonnie Briar Bush, that made such a hit at the CAPITOL three weeks ago It is conceded by all the big New York critics to be the most beautifully told story and the most elaborate picture scenically ever seen in Canada. A series of remarkable backgrounds photographed in Scotland. Special Scottish music will be played by the excellent CAPITOL orchestra.

"BEHOLD MY WIFE!"
ONE OF THE FINEST FILMS OF THE YEAR

Sir Gilbert Parker Story Picturized by Geo. Melford With All-Star Cast.

Hailed by the critics and motion picture public as one of the finest productions of the current season, George Melford's "Behold My Wife!" is coming to the Regent Theatre for three days, commencing Monday next. The story was adapted from Sir Gilbert Parker's novel of the Canadian Northwest, "The Transformation of a Savage."

The central characters are the aristocratic son of an English family and the simple Indian girl whom he encounters in Canada while he is on business for the Hudson's Bay Company. Receiving word from his fiancee back in England that she has broken with him because of his family's objection to their marriage, the youth, in a fit of rage, marries the Indian girl and sends her back to England as his wife to disgrace his blue-blooded sires. Then he proceeds to hit the toboggan in this own way. However, dramatic events work a transformation in both the young Englishman and his bride and the ending is a happy one.

"Behold My Wife!" has been filmed against a background of snow-capped mountain peaks, bleak Canadian trading posts, and luxurious English country homes. The action is interpreted by a distinguished cast including Mabel Julienne Scott, Elliott Dexter, Milton Sills, and Ann Forrest. Frank Condon adapted the story to the screen. It is a Paramount picture.

FINAL PERFORMANCE OF "MADEMOISELLE OF ARMENTIERES"

From the Secretary, G.W.V.A.—"'Mademoiselle of Armentieres' is the most realistic and refreshing 'war play' ever staged in any country. It faithfully reflects the lighter, brighter aspects of the campaign in Flanders. The mud, blood and misery of trench life is glossed over with the wit and humour which really won the war and all those who were spared to return from the furnace of Flanders should take their friends to get a glimpse of the life they have hitherto only been able to talk about." (W. E. Turley).

REX STOCK COMPANY

Does your wife love you? Yes? Well how much, and in what way? Does she show her affection by loving caresses or does she display grand passion by heaving the table t your blameless head?

Some people fondly believe that amily Scraps, that is really good nes, happen only among the Lowest Order of People". Not so ny friend, at least not in the play, or in "Because She Loved Him So" he lively young couple are numbered among the very best English families.

And to add to things, the young wife's brother is engaged to the laughter of the Dean of Weatherord, and he is a very proper old erson, and must be satisfied with he family his daughter is about to nter. He makes three calls and ach time, just after a bomb has exploded on the familyhearth.

Aside from being a delightful comedy, the play contains something o think about: there is more than ne wife (or husband) who will see himself reflected on the stage. It is one of those intensely human comedies, not of the farce variety, but the pleasing kind, that keep you with a broad grin on your face all the time—one of those society comedies that the Rex Company know so well how to handle.

The second and third acts are to be mounted in the latest Rex triumph in scenery. The artist department has been working on this for the last two weeks, and the effect surpasses many of the two dollar attractions.

"EVANGELINE"

"Evangeline," the most touching poem written by the beloved Longfellow, is to appear at the Grand Opera House Thursday, Friday and Saturday, February 9, 10 and 11.

"Evangeline" is heralded as one of the greatest achievements of the screen, and the National Board of Review of Motion Picture Censors, New York, have this to say of the William Fox production—"Evangeline is of unusual entertainment value — dramatic interest of story centres in fine narration—acting is good—photography fine— technical handling—careful and restrained—scenic setting—convincing and effective—moral effect—inspiring."

They say this in general comment: "This is undoubtedly a sincere and faithful screening of Longfellow's famous poem. It should appeal to all classes, young and old, who have a perception for the dramatic, the significant and the beautiful. It is treated with imagination and artistry, and is remarkably successful in making live the period of the story and in creating reality in the characters. It is one of the most truthful pictures to the original ever produced, both in spirit and content of narrative. It is one of the rare pictures that lend strength and beauty to the written story."

AT THE ROYAL.

The Royal's management has noticed that the charge of one cent for the Ontario Government's war tax causes both delay and trouble to it patrons so that hereafter, beginning on Monday this theatre will pay this tax. On and after Monday the scale of admission charges will be, afternoons 15c for adults and 10 cent for children, evenings, ground floor 20c balcony 15c. As above notice the Royal will pay the war tax itself. This theatre has concluded arrangements with such prominent film exchanges as the Vitagraph Co., The Fox Co., The First National and other to get the best selection possible of films and subjects Our program will daily include two features, two comedies, Western and others of the best. Not being bound to any particular exchange the Royal picks its subjects from the worlds best producers and can thus give it patrons the choicest pictures that money and experience can procure. After nearly twenty years experience in the picture business the manager knows what the public wants and the increasing patronage at the Royal proves that its patrons are well satisfied' For Monday the Royal has a program that will please the most exacting. Doris May in the big feature picture "The Foolish Age" presents an inspiring part. "The Foolish Age" is a comedy drama, in which plot and romance are woven into a pleasing whole by links of clean bright comedy. In the six reel feature called moral fibre Corinne Griffith is seen at her best. This great photoplay is replete with dramatic intensity and humorous situations. There is also the ninth episode of the million dollar serial, that Peterboro fans look for weekly. In this serial "Breaking Through", Bettina gives the audience more thrills and is seen in more of her death defying stunts. The two comedies are of the best and would chase gloom from the worst pessimist.

Of Course It Is.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Feb. 3.—(Canadian Press).—The freighter "Stanley Dollar," which arrived here from San Francisco recently, was held up in the harbor for several hours, unable to dock, because, as Captain George McClements explained, "Cappy Ricks," goat mascot had entered the captain's cabin and devoured the ship's articles. DE LAVAL OFFERING A REAL MINSTREL SHOW

Something Doing Every Minute of an Excellent Programme.

The entertainment put on by the De Laval minstrels at Victoria Hall last evening, under the auspices of L.O.L. No. 1175, was a "real minstrel show" in every sense of the word. Every number was enthusiastically applauded, and the whole program was excellent, without any perceptible amateurishness, and with a quantity of well-sung vocal numbers and a plenitude of good jokes. There was something doing every minute, and the De Laval Minstrels proved themselves last night to be an organization above the average run of amateur entertainers.

The 'By Jingo" troupe, were the hit of the evening, a sextette of warlike Zulus, in full panoply of abbreviated skirts, spears, and glistening nose-rings, who competed for the "girlie", a coy, black, frizzled-headed maiden, enacted by Ted Chapman, and brought down the house with their singing of the syncopated melody.

Splendid Work

The medley of old darky songs, with accompaniment of bones and tambourine, was splendidly done, and "Cab-bages Ca-Beans and Carrots" was another side-splitting number sung by Ted Chapman. Bert Nicholls had a screaming farcical stump speech entitled "Matrimony", in a wonderful feminine get-up, including a very short skirt, a bustle a feathered hat and parasol.

James Marchin's two contributions, a monologue entitled "In a Pullman Sleeper", and a song "Nobody's Darling", were received with much applause, William Gadoua's whistling solos, "Golden Gate" and "The Mocking Bird', were loudly encored, as was Mr. W. Cooke's lovely solo, "The Song that Reached my Heart".

Mr. W. Cooke proved himself a most capable interlocutor, and presided over his troupe of black-faced comedians, with their red-strip ed trousers and flaming ties, with excellent effect. A performance such as that put on by these young men last evening is well worth a repitition.

The Programme

Song, "Mississippi", Ernest Abraham. Bone Duet; Markham, Nicholls and Nicholls. Song; "Oh, To-Morrow Night"; Markham. Whistling Solo; "Golden Gate" and "The Mocking Bird"; Wm. Gadoua. Song; "Mammy"; Markham, Jr. Song, "Laughing Coon"; R. Hill. Song, "Only One Pal"; T. Chapman Song; "The Song that Reached my Heart," W. Cooke. Medley of South ern Songs; with bones and tambourines; "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground", Mr. Hill with chorus. "Old Black Joe", Mr. Pratt with chorus, "The Swanee River", Mr. Markham with chorus, and "Dixie", chorus.

The second part opened with Mr. Bert Nicholls, in a stump speech, "Matrimony", followed by Ted Markham's solo, "Cab-bages, Cabeans and Car-rots", Mr. Wm. McKinley gave a Lauder impersonation, in costume and sang "She is a Daisy" James Marchin sang "Nobody's Darling" and gave a monologue; "In a Pullman Sleeper" and the wind-up was the "By Jingo" number by Messrs. C. Brown, R. Hill, J. Cooper, W. Boddison, B. Nicholls, E. Abraham and T. Chapman.

Those taking part were: Messrs. W. Cooks, (interlocutor) W. McKinley, B. Pitchford, T. Markham, Markham, Jr., B. Nicholls, A. Nicholls, W. Boddison, R. Hill, Jas. Marchin, Pratt, C. Brown, Cooper, T. Chapman, E. Abraham, Wm. Gadoua, and Forsythe.

Mr. A. Nicholls acted as conductor and accompanist in a very proficient manner.

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

The Petes having dropped off the O.H.A. map with a dull thud, the fans are turning their attention to the City League, which promises to supply plenty of fireworks for the balance of the season. The Lakeviews have won the first series, but they will have a thorny path before them in the second section, which opens on Wednesday night. None of the other three teams can afford to drop a game if they want to be sure of a place in the finals, and the second round should furnish a merry series. Wm. Hamilton's will play the Bankers, while C.G.E. will clash with Lakeviews on Wednesday night.

This Mitchell person who refereed Wednesday's game at Picton is a new type of official. He warms up, as it were, in a sweater coat, which he doffs just before the game starts, disclosing another cute sweater underneath. Then between periods he comes out on the ice with a towel draped gracefully over his shoulders. He has more roses than a movie actress, and as little judgment as the ex-Kaiser had when he started the recent international unpleasantness. Port Hope fans who saw the game took one look at his work, and then sent a wire to the O.H.A. objecting to Mitchell handling any game in which the Ontarios are concerned.

Famous Words of Famous Men:

"What's an offside or two, among friends" — Steve Vair.

The local junior basketball team have a contract on their hands to win this group from Belleville, as the latter's success in holding the Petes to a tie here on Thursday leaves the district title dependent upon the return game in Belleville. Overconfidence had a good deal to do with the failure of the local quintette to get a lead. Belleville showed much more class than was expected, and they went right to work as soon as the game started, with the result that they were four points to the good at half-time. The return engagement will be a lively affair.

There will be an unusual programme at Brock Street Rink on Monday night. In the first place there will be a hockey game between the Lakefield and Peterborough ladies. The local team won in Lakefield recently by 3 to 1, but the Lakefield girls have been practising hard since, and expect to make a much better showing. After the game there will be a skating party and moccasin dance, the centre of the rink being reserved for the dancers, while the outer ring can be used by those who prefer to skate. There should be a crowded house for this novel programme.

Just as a reminder to some short-sighted fans, it may be pointed out that the P.A.A.A. was not organised with the primary object of winning hockey championships. At that, if the local teams had not won a game this winter, more has been accomplished for hockey here this season than has been done in the past decade. The fruits of all the leagues organised by the P.A.A.A. sports director will be seen later on. The sowing has been done—the harvest time is still to be awaited.

The defeat of the Varsity team by the Granites last night practically ends all chance of the Allan Cup champions repeating their feat of last year. The downfall of the students has been the sensation of the season. When they came back from their triumphant tour of the United States, there did not seem to be a team in Canada that could stop Varsity. And now they recall Arthur Holland's song in the Dumbells:

"Remember when I first came to town—
Take a look at me now."

To-day's Happy Thought:

The man who claimed Picton was not a finished team was right. It was the Petes who were finished.

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

MARK ST. CONCERT WAS HUGE SUCCESS

Competent Leadership and Talented Material Combined in Offering Evening's Entertainment "Worth While"

The concert held last night at the Mark Street Methodist Church, under the auspices of the choir, was an unqualified success, and takes no second place, in the opinion of those competent to judge of the elements which enter into a first-class musical and literary programme. The first number on the programme at once impressed the audience with the fact that there was competent leadership and good material, and certainly the anthem "Soldiers of Christ, Arise" was well rendered. The J. M. Greene Green Trio captivated the audience, while the vocal solo "Good-bye," with violin obligato by Mr. Baden Greene, was splendidly rendered by Mrs. Braund. The literary contributions by Miss H. Morrison were well selected and highly appreciated. Mrs. Clark's vocal solo, "Friend of Mine," delighted the audience, while the duet, "Watchman, What of the Night?" by Messrs. J. Ridyard and V. Boorman, was a real hit.

A hearty resolution of appreciation was moved by Mr. Thompson, choirmaster of St. Luke's Church, and was seconded by the pastor of Mark Street Church.

After the programme, the Ladies' Aid entertained the choir and their assisting artistes at a luncheon in the Sunday School Room.

Mr. Victor Boorman and the choir are to be congratulated.

Market News

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press.) — Rails and Motors led the stock market to higher levels at the opening of to-day's session, shorts again covering extensively. Coalers were especially firm and Foreign Oils also improved. Demand Sterling made a new high movement at $4.32.

Short interest in stock market suffered further severe reversals at the opening of to-day's session. Within the first half hour, recent gains in Equipments, Motors, Oils and Tobaccos were extended by one to almost three points. Strongest features included Baldwin and American Locomotive, Chandler and Studebaker, Railway Steel Spring, Mexican Petroleum, American Tobacco, Otis Elevator and Loose Wiles. Bullish operations were stimulated by further rise of British exchange to the new high record of 4.32 for demand bills.

TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OLD MAN.

Sons of Deceased Seek an Annulment of the Will—Name Withheld.

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—An action entered here at the Supreme Court of Quebec revealed some facts that might lead the Attorney-General's Department to order an investigation into the death of an old man in Abitibi section of this province.

The sons of the man ask the annullment of his will, made in favor of a woman to whom they are not related and asks furthermore that the circumstances in which their father died be explained more fully to them.

This old man, whose name is still withheld by orders of the Attorney-General's Department, is alleged to have sold all the property he owned in one of the largest cities of the province and followed a woman younger than himself into the colonization district.

He was found one day severely wounded, and was carried to his camp, wheer he deid a few days after from what was understood an accident, the victim having supposedly been kicked by his horse.

It appears now that the sons disbelieve this story and they want the matter cleared up by the authorities.

FINANCE COMMITTEE AUTHORIZE DEBENTURE ISSUE FOR SCHOOLS

Will Take Another $13,000 to Complete the Prince of Wales School—The Tax Collector's Office.

The Finance Committee met last night and considerable discussion on various matters took place. There were present at the meeting: Ald. N. E. Phelan (chairman), Mayor W. H. Taylor, Ald. Malcolm McIntyre, Ald. Walter Stocker and Ald. James Hamilton.

In a letter the Board of Education asked that debentures for $12,800 be issued to pay the balance of building and equipping the Prince of Wales' School. On motion of Ald. Hamilton and McIntyre, a by-law will be prepared for this purpose, the debentures to bear six per cent. interest.

The City Solicitor was requested to prepare a by-law to levy a rate of eight-tenths of a mill on the dollar for garbage collection and removal on the assessment of the area served.

Police Magistrate O. A. Langley's salary was fixed at $2000 a year, the minimum fixed by statute, on motion of Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Hamilton. A letter was read from Magistrate Langley, asking to be allowed to discuss with the Council, or a committee, the question of his salary, as he considered the salary, fixed by statute was inadequate.

Tax Collector.

The Mayor and Chairman, on motion of Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Stocker, will consider J. C. Smith's report respecting the method of keeping the Tax Collector's books, and will confer with the City Auditor and Tax Collector and report to the committee.

The committee decided, following the reading of a letter in regard to Police Court fines claimed by the Provincial Government from City Solicitor C. R. Widdifield to have the City Clerk send an account to the Government for half the fines paid to that Government, less the amount that should have been paid, and ask that the account be paid.

A statement showing the disbursement of the $1,000 grant given the G.W.V.A. for relief and cheer at Christmas was submitted by Secretary S. Whatley.

A statement of receipts and expenditures in connection with the Public Library in 1921 and an estimate of expenditures for the ensuing year received from the Library Board. This year the city is asked to grant $8,800, as compared with $8,000 in 1921. The total receipts in 1921 were $9,763.81, and expenditure was $9,560 82. The estimate this year is $10,000.

Relief Officer F. W. Miller's annual statement regarding indigent patients maintained in hospitals by the city showed that during the year there were 30 in Nicholls and 26 in St. Joseph's Hospital. Ten applications were not granted. One item of $77.50 for Queen Mary Hospital is credited as having been collected. The total cost to the city was $1,889.50—$943 to Nicholls Hospital and $946.50 to St. Joseph's.

MOTHER CLEAN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH "CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP"

Even a sick child loves the 'fruity' taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

BRITAIN'S GRADUAL RETURN TO NORMAL

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Britain's gradual recovery to normal or pre-war conditions is forcibly illustrated in the recent upward course of her foreign exchanges.

Two years ago—February 4, 1920—demand bills on London suffered their most disastrous collapse in this market with all other international currencies, falling to the unprecedentedly low quotation of $3.19.

Yesterday, on the continuance of a ten-day advance, and on buying which shows no trace of foreign origin, the same bills found ready sale at $4.30 7-8. This marks a recovery in the two years of almost $1.12 in the pound sterling, but is still far below the price of $4.86 5-8, at which this form of exchange ruled before the opening of the world war.

Steamers Reach Newfoundland Harbor When Ice Driven Out

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. Feb. 4.—(Canadian Press)—This harbor, blocked by ice, for several days, now is clear, a strong off-shore wind today driving the ice floe out to sea. Six steamers which had been unable to make port owing to the ice blockade put in here yesterday.

Tonight a furious rainstorm was raging over the whole country, seriously hampering the moving of trains, street cars and coastal shipping.

Another fish-carrying vessel, the Barkentine Gaspe, bound here form Pernambuco, today was reported lost in mid-ocean. The crew was taken off by a passing steamer, the advices said.

SAYS CANADIANS NOT INTIMIDATED.

Tommy Gorman of Ottawa Puts Cleghorn Case Up to N.H.L.

OTTAWA, Feb. 3. — (Canadian Press.—"We have ceased to take Mr. Dandurand and his press agents seriously," said Secretary Gorman, of the Ottawa Hockey Club, to-day, discussing reports from Montreal as regards the alleged assaults on Dandurand and his players after the Canadien-Ottawa game here Wednesday night.

"No effort was made to arrest Sprague Cleghorn," continued the Ottawa officer, "and Canadien players and followers were not intimidated, as intimated by Dandurand. Six or seven policemen offered to arrest Cleghorn, but our players declined to lay charges and the Club owners immediately declared that they did not want the fair name of hockey dragged into any police court proceedings. Mr. Dandurand came rushing into our offices after the match and demanded that we get the police out of the Canadien room, but he changed his attitude when we told him that hundreds of hockey fans were waiting outside the entrance, and that we had requested the police to go into the Canadien room ,not to arrest Cleghorn or intimidate other players, but to give them protection and to see that they got safely away."

"The police carried out their duties in faultless style. Mr. Dandurand and the women in the Canadien party, as well as the majority of his players, slipped out one of the side doors and were escorted to their private car at the central station. Not a blow of any kind was struck.

"There will be no police court charges as far as we are concerned against Cleghorn or anyone else. If the National League isn't big enough to run its affairs decently without resorting to criminal actions, it ought to go out of business."

Eddie Gerard may possibly play in to-morrow's game against Hamilton here, but Frank Nighbor and Cy Denneny, both victims of Sprague Cleghorn's stick, are out of it indefinitely.

ARREST WOMAN FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Body of Husband Was Found in Another Part of the House — Trial Opens.

AMHERST, N.S., Feb. 4.— The preliminary hearing in the case of Mrs. Louisa Atkinson, arrested here on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death, under distressing circumstances of her husband, began yesterday afternoon before Magistrate Casey. The arrest followed the rendering of a coroner's jury of a verdict declaring that Atkinson's death had eben hastened by the wilful neglect of those in whose care he was supposed to be.

Dr. C. W. Bliss, who was called in by Mrs. Atkinson, after finding her husband dead in the part of the family residence he occupied, testified that the body was emaciated, and infeseted with vermin, and that an autopsy showed a total absence of any food in the stomach. Atkinson's appearance was that of an insane man and he had been suffering valvular disease of the heart as well as from chronic Bright's disease, the doctor said.

CHIEF THOMPSON'S CURE FOR "SICK" POLICEMEN.

WINDSOR, Feb. 4.—During 1920 Windsor policemen lost 151 days through illness, but last year, although 15 men had been added to the force, only 83 days were lost. There's a reason, according to Daniel Thompson, police chief, (formerly chief constable at Peterboro.) When he took office he ruled that all men "going sick" should supply a doctors certificate and be visited once a day by the Patrol Sergeant.

OSHAWA MAN IS JAILED FOR BIGAMY.

SECOND ARBUCKLE JURY DISAGREED ON VERDICT.

Court Will Consider New Trial Next Monday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., Feb. 3.—The jury trying Roscoe ("Fatty") Arbuckle on charges of manslaughter in connection with the death of Virginia Rappe failed to reach an agreement and was discharged today.

The jury stood 10 to 2 for acquittal, members announced.

This was the second jury trying the comedian to disagree, the first voting 11 to 1 for acquittal.

The jury called a bailiff at 11.20 a.m., after more than forty hours of deliberation, and announced it wanted to see the Judge.

The foreman reported to the Judge that the final ballot showed ten to two for acquittal, and the jurors were immediately discharged.

The Judge took no action in setting a new trial. Court will convene Monday for that purpose.

District Attorney Brady said informally that as a result of the jury favoring conviction, he could consider sending Arbuckle to trial for a third time.

Reasons Why Wm. Rimus Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills

His Backache is Gone and His Rest is Unbroken So He Will Turn Again to Dodd's Kidney Pills if His Trouble Returns.

QUADVILLE, Ont., Feb. 3.—(Special).—"I can truly say that I got great relief from Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Such is the verdict of Mr. William Rimus, a well-known and highly respected resident here. And here is the reason why Mr. Rimus is so positive:

"Before I used Dodd's Kidney Pills I had backache all the time", he states. "And I had to get up once or twice every night and now I have no trouble at all.

"I only used two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. But if ever I am troubled with my kidneys again I certainly will use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are known all over Canada as a standard kidney remedy. They have made their reputation by doing good to people who suffered from any form of kidney disease.

Ask your neighbours if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the best remedy for sick kidneys.

Sometimes After Effects of Measles Are Worse

Weekly Health Talk No. 16
By A. P. Rogers, D.C.

Uncle Ben Says:

The fellow who finally chalks up a record for having lived a healthy life is the fellow who has taken care of himself from day to day.

Sometimes the after-effects of measles are worse than the disease itself. This is particularly true of the condition in which the disease often leaves the eyes. Measles patients must be protected from light, otherwise blindness may result.

Of course those who suffered from an under supply of nerve impulses to the eyes were in position to suffer most from an attack of this disease. When the eyes are weakened by subnormal nerve supply, the only correction is to restore a full degree of nerve freedom by chiropractic spinal adjustments. Those who suffer in this way from measles after effects can do nothing better than to arrange for chiropractic spinal adjustments.

HEALTH FOLLOWS
CHIROPRACTIC CORRECTS PRESSURE ON SPINAL NERVES IN DISEASES OF THE FOLLOWING ORGANS:

THE LOWER NERVE UNDER THE MAGNIFYING GLASS IS PINCHED BY A MISALIGNED JOINT. PINCHED NERVES CANNOT TRANSMIT HEALTHFUL IMPULSES. CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTING REMOVES THE PRESSURE. THE UPPER NERVE IS FREE AS NATURE INTENDS.

MEASLES BLINDNESS IS NOW OVERCOME

"When I was six measles left me blind in both eyes for about a year, then I began to see out of my right eye, but was still blind in the left. This was my condition when I began chiropractic spinal adjustments. After about a week of adjustments I could see again with the left eye. To-day I have discarded my glasses, and can read fine print without strain. I certainly feel grateful to chiropractic as it has done for me what could not have been done by any other kind of doctor."—Roy E. Dougherty, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1274.

Chiropractic Philosophy

The Chropractic philosophy maintains that the brain is the power plant of the human body, which generates all of the nerve energy which is carried to every organ, tissue and cell in the body by the nerves. These nerves, as they leave the cranial cavity, form an exceptionally delicate structure which we term the spinal cord. This cable of nerve fibres is encased in the hollow, bony structure, known as the spinal column. The spine is composed of a number of segments, or joints, known as vertebrae, which articulate one with the other. Between these bony joints are little holes, or foramina, through which pairs of nerves are given off, these nerves radiating to their respective organs or parts of the body. Now, when one of these bony segments gets out of alignment by twisting, straining, wrenching, etc., the Chiropractor says it is subluxated. This subluxation tends to decrease the tiny hole through which the nerve emits, exerting a pressure upon the nerve. This decreases the flow of nerve energy, or mental impulses, as the flow of water through a hose is decreased when the hose is stepped on. By placing these bones of the spine in alignment, the Chiropractor allows the transmission of nerve energy to go on uninterrupted, the part in distress receives its quota of innervation, and health results.

If you will investigate this new Health Science, the logic of its philosophy is bound to appeal to you. If you are suffering with stomach, liver, kidney, bladder, intestinal, heart, lung or any kindred trouble, come to this office today and receive a Spinal Analysis.

Delay, neglect, procrastination will never overcome disease. Life's rich rewards go to doers, not to promisers. If you have made the great effort for your country, this comparatively small effort for yourself will be made easily. Bring yourself to "Tenshun," give yourself "Forward, March" and don't stop until you reach our office.

CHINA PLATES VALUED AT $1,000 EACH ARE SHOWN IN THE MUSEUM

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—A beautiful service plate, gold decorated, said to be one of the finest pieces of table china ever shown in America, is on exhibition at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, its value is given at the rate of $10,000 dozen.

It is one of the several plates shown in a case by the manufacturers of the Lenox Belleek china of Trenton N. J., and is a part of ther annual exhibition of the Museum, where are shown articles of all kinds —rugs, furniture, work of gold and silver smiths, &c., designs for which have been suggested by something in the Museum collection.

The $10,000-a-dozen plate does not talk money, and its cost is due to the fine art work, the design being built up in 24-karat gold with an infinitesimal brush. Frank G. Holmes who is the Secretary of the Lenox Company, as well as it designer, says that while there are not many homs in the country where $10,000-a-dozen service plates are in use, even for festive occasions, that there is an increasing demand for fine china and that people are willing to pay high prices

The Museum plate was made to show what could be done in beauty and quality. The material is of the best, but it is the work in that which costs, the company estimating that 85 per cent of the money is in its out put.

THOUSANDS SAW THE SMOKE SIGN

Ceremony Incident to the Election of the New Pope — Gave Mighty Shout.

ROME, Feb. 6—(Canadian Press.) —Cardinal Achille Ratti, Archbishop of Milan, was proclaimel elected Pope in succession to the late Pope Benedict XV this morning. He will take the name of Pius XI. Thousands waiting in front of St. Peter's for the wisp of smoke which would tell of the election of the new pontiff gave a mighty shout at 11.33 when the thin wisp came from the chimney leading from the Sistine Chapel. It was then known that the Catholic church had once more a head. As soon as the two-thirds vote for Cardinal Ratti had been verified, Cardinal Vannutelli, Dean of the Sacred College, arose and proceeeded to the throne of the chosen one, accompanied by Cardinals Logue and Bisleti, and asked Cardinal Ratti if he accepted election to the Supreme Pontiff, and the new Pope answered with the formal, "since it is the will of God I must obey." Cardinal Vannutelli later asked the new Pope what name he chose to take and upon his reply Pius XI, Monsignor Sincer, Secretary of Conclave, verified his election to the Papal chair.

After the formalities, the Cardinals of the Sacred College paid homage to the new Pontiff, kissing his feet ad hands and received the Apostolic benediction.

As Pius GI proceeded to St. Peter's he halted at the great balcony and bestowed his benediction upon the multitude. The crowd acclaimed him with wild cheers and the troops assembled there presented arms.

MARGOT ASQUITH PLANS NEW BOOK

Visitors, Telephone Calls, Letters and Cranks Submerge Her Secretary With Work.

NEW YORK, February 6. — Mrs Margot Asquith, while making her American lecture tour, is said to be gathering impressions for a book on this country. Those who have had the privilege of chatting with that sprightly lady are convinced that her proposed work will not be lacking in any of the piquant qualities that have made her famous. What is more, it is likely to be extremely flattering despite the strenuous life she has been leading since she landed a few days ago.

What Mrs. Asquith passed through within forty-eight hours after disembarking from the Carmania was gathered from a talk that a reporter had with her hard-working secretary, who was discovered yesterday in a room at the Ambassador Hotel, attempting with an assistant to sort and read two sacks of United States mail, while incidentally endeavouring to meet the demands of incessant callers, a large proportion of whom were newspaper representatives. Although it was nearly five o'clock, they were still arriving.

"This is the end of a perfect day," remarked the secretary with a groan. "We were kept busy answering telephone calls until past midnight, and were at it again at 7.30 o'clock this morning. Before noon we had visits from at least thirty photographers, including various moving picture men, all of whom insisted that Mrs. Asquith pose for them. Then came two-score newspaper writers for special interviews, followed by a legion of people of all kinds. Some wanted Mrs. Asquith to autograph copies of her diary. There were even high school girls who were eager to see her and express their admiration. Telegrams have been pouring in from all parts of the country begging her to visit various towns to lecture and receive municipal honours."

Mayor of St. Louis Telegraphs.

One of the telegrams was from the Mayor of St. Louis. He apparently had the impression that Mrs. Asquith had just arrived from darkest Russia, as he called attention to the fact that this city was in the 'largest food-producing belt in the world," while incidentally begging the distinguished visitor to attend a reception tendered by the Chamber of Commerce and also to receive the freedom of St. Louis.

LONDON, Feb. 6. — An attempt to poison with drugged chocolates Dr. Lewis R. Farnell, rector of Exeter College and Vice-Chancellor of Oxford, has created a sensation in the university. Nothing is as yet known of the identity of the authors of the attempted crime, but it is presumed it was prompted by the vigorous line Dr. Farnell has taken in governing the university.

As Vice-Chancellor he is responsible for discipline and he came into prominence before Christmas by "sending down" an undergraduate who was on the staff of Free Oxford, a student publication of extreme communist opinions. He also issued regulations curbing the activities of all undergraduate political clubs on the ground that they had become excessive and were interfering with the serious work of the university. Only a few days ago he exercised his privilege as Vice-Chancellor by refusing permission to a company presenting Grand Guignol plays to perform in Oxford during term time.

His strong action has been widely discussed in the London press and when the story was published this morning that he had received by mail a box of chocolates covered with a suspicious white powder it was generally assumed some undergraduate had played a rather amusing practical joke upon him. There happens to be a sensational murder trial in progress in which one lawyer is accused not only of poisoning his wife but of trying to get rid in the same way of a brother practitioner. According to the prosecution, the defendant sent a box of chocolates doped with arsenic to the house of the other lawyer, but succeeded only in making his sister-in-law violently ill. Consequently when one Oxford undergraduate has met another in the High ,or on the banks of the Isis, he has asked, "Will you have chocolate?" and has at once acquired a reputation as a wit.

But now it appears the Vice-Chancellor's chocolates really were doped. They came in a box tied with a purple ribbon with a type written address. A layer of white powder over them excited suspicion and they were laid aside until the well known radium expert, Frank Soddy, Professor of Chemistry, could call. In his presence Mrs. Farnel tasted the powder and found it to be of an acrid taste and on his recommendation sent the chocolates to the university laboratories for anaylsis.

Three different tests have been applied and it is now believed that some Indian poison, mixed with ground glass had been mixed with the chocolates.

Vice Chancellor Farnell authorized to-day the following statement:

"A box containing powdered chocolates was sent last week to the Vice Chancellor was at first treated as a harmless practical joke but an eminent scientific authority has found on analysis reasons for suspecting the presence in them of a subtle poison. Further investigation is being made of the chocolates and the results of the university analysis have been forwarded to Scotland Yard."

KILLED ENTIRE STAFF.

LONDON, February 6 (Canadian Press). — A mob of two thousand Indian Nationalist Volunteers and villagers attacked the police offices at Cahurar on 4th February, and killed the entire staff of officers, watchman, and eight armed police, who were sent as reinforcements, says a telegram recived by the Indian Office to-day.

The officers were burned, and the bodies of those killed were stripped and burned, says the telegram.

BEWAIL LACK PIE ATLANTIC LINERS

Pastries a la Gazinga, Embellished by Pink Sauces, Fail to Seduce Americans

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Although the food and service on the big Atlantic passenger liners has returned nearly to normal since the signing of the armistice there are still a few things that would stand improvement, according to some of the veteran trans-atlantic travellers. The chief drawback to the menu on the liners, they say, is the absence of pie. Americans travelling abroad rave about pie to every stranger they meet and moan when it is not available. No matter how often their doctors threaten them with indigestion, the average American, from bank President to office boy, yearns for pie.

Years ago, when the ships carried $50 a month bakers who made all the pastry and confectionery, pie was served in the first and second class cabins every day and the steerage had it at least once a week. With the advent of the super-liners pastry-making was put in the hands of a high-salaried confectioner who worked under the principal chef.

Now, instead of serving crisp, brown, crusted pies at luncheon, the passengers have ornamental pastries in the form of diamonds and crescents. At dinner boiled puddings are served, named according to the color of the sauce. Five currants on top and white sauce constitute a la Marengo. Three currants and a pink sauce the next evening makes it a la Gazinga. They are all equally uninteresting to the American passenger with his mind concentrated on pie. The masterpiece of the ship confectioners is a rice pudding so tasteless and discouraging that it remains untouched. It is an art that many a baording house keeper would give much to acquire. When the chief stewards of two of the liners chartered for the cruises to Egypt and the Holy Land this season asked the tourist managers if there was anything they would recommend, the answer was "Give the people pie," and this will be done.

The hors d'oeuvres also have degenerated. Before the war these dishes were attractively prepared by the larder cook. The latter-day hors d'oeuvre is an olive and a radish beside a sad sardine or a strip of petrified salt herring and a slice of lemon. Sometimes this dish is enlivened by a square of toast the size of a postage stamp with some anchovy paste on it.

With new shipping entering the Atlantic passenger trade next summer, the competition will be keen, and the big companies are preparing to provide a menu which will include pate de foie gras, caviar and a wide range of pies.

NORTH MONAGHAN CASE DISMISSED

No Law to Make a Man Read the Newspapers or Report Lost Dogs to the Police.

In police court to-day, after a lengthy hearing, a charge of theft against Archibald Patterson of North Monaghan was dismissed by Magistrate O. A. Langley. Patterson, who lives about two miles south-west of the city, was charged with stealing a hound valued at $18 from John Coughlin, 300 Smith street, between Dec. 18 and Jan. 30. For accused, V. J. McElderry pleaded not guilty. Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton conducted the case for the Crown.

John Coughlin gave evidence of the disappearance of the dog from his place on Dec. 18. No trace of it was found in spite of advertisements in the paper, until he received informtion from Albert Watkins, and on investigation with Provincial Officer T. Y. Stratton on Jan. 30, found the dog at accused's.

The evidence of the defence on which Magistrate Langley dismissed the case was that the dog strayed there and "hung around" the place, although Patterson did not want it, and tried to drive it way. It was tied up, not to escape detection or to keep it from going away, but to prevent it getting at fresh meat and to not bother the men working in the swamp. As soon as the owner was found the dog was returned. Mr. Patterson stated he did not read the advertisements in the paper. Other evidence of the defence was that stray dogs were common around the district because of the rabbit shooting in the swamp.

In dismissing the case Magistrate Langley said he could not find a man guilty of theft because a dog that was a nuisance hung around the place. "This dog was a nuisance and so far as I know there is no law to make a man report finding a dog to the police or to anyone else, or no law to make him read the newspapers," the Magistrate declared.

St. Paul's Church Takes Action Against Colleges

"Modernism" Is Said to Be Making Headway in the Presbyterian Colleges —Refuse to Grant Funds For Aid of Colleges—Vote Almost Unanimous.

A subject which has been engaging the attention of members of the Presbyterian Church in Canada for some time ,is the spread of the "modernist" movement in some of the church's theological schools and colleges.

The charge has been made that some of the training centres have been affected by destructive tendencies, and as a consequence, young people desirous of entering the Christian ministry have at times found it difficult to obtain the training they desire without running the risk of having their faith affected.

In London, England, action by those opposed to this new teaching has already been taken. It is proposed that a new college for the ministry be established in London, the aim of which will be to give a sound spiritual and intellectual training to its students. An advisory council of prominent clergy and laymen is being formed, and it is expected that the scheme will be launched shortly.

One of the largest schools for the teaching of theology is that in Los Angeles, California, which was formed by men in sympathy with orthodox views, and as a protest against the "modernistic" tendency apparent in nearly all the colleges of the United States.

The Local Action

In connection with this situation, local action which is of interest was taken at the recent congregational meeting of St Paul's Presbyterian Church. For some time, members of this congregation have been concerned over the spread of "modernistic" views in certain quarters in the church in Canada and in the mission field, and the session report for 1921, brought in at this meeting, contained the following explanation:

"Matters have occupied the atten-

FLU DEATHS INCREASING NEW YORK

Health Authorities Considering Silence in Subways to Protect Healthy Travellers From the Disease—More Cases

VACCINE ABANDONED

NEW YORK, February 6. — Influenza and pneumonia continued to increase yesterday, cases of each disease being reported in greater numbers than on any day since the epidemic started. If the increase continues over to-day and Tuesday, it is probable that the Health Department will issue regulations of the opening and closing hours of different classes of factories and business, in order to diminish the peak of congestion in the subways during the present rush-hour periods.

A request may be issued to the public to refrain from talking in the subways and to take effective precautions to smother sneezes and coughs, because talking and sneezing are now regarded as the chief causes of the spread of the disease. Many person are carriers of the disease germs and spread the disease for days before symptoms manifest themselves, and others are carriers and spread the disease for some time after their apparent recovery. On this account, no one can be sure he is safe in talking to, and close-range conversations ought to be discontinued during the epidemic, according to medical authorities.

Dr. Park on Vaccine Tests.

"The tests of the vaccine in the State institutions were discarded, not because the results were unfavourable, but because they were too favourable for the vaccine. It was found that the persons vaccinated were the healthy ones, and the unvaccinated ones used as controls were usually unhealthy ones. This rendered the tests valueless. A large number of phyicians have taken part in the development of the vaccine, and I believe they all agree as to its value."

Health Commissioner Copeland issued the following statement yesterday:

'Since 1st January we have 160 influenza deaths and 1,407 pneumonia deaths. In the same period in 1921, when there was no epidemic, 59 died from influenza and 1,148 died from pneumonia. The increase from the combined deaths this year is only 362 over last year. Apparently we have a widespread prevalence of a very mild form of the disease. Manhattan, with its bad housing conditions, continues to bear the brunt of the attack. Half of the cases reported have been confined to this borough.

"Even though the disease is of a mild type, our precautions must be carried out. The Health Department is active in its inspection. Fifty-seven arrests were made to-day for unclean food and utensils in restaurants. Twenty-six were summoned to Court for smoking and seventy for spitting in subway stations. Sixty-one cases were tried in Magistrates' Courts and fines imposed."

Evelyn: They tell me at your office that you are only one of the clerks. You told me you were a director.

Harold: Well I am. I am a director of envelopes.

PETERBORO'S FIRST 'PHONE WAS NOVELTY

Interesting Talk by Rotarian J. M. McHardy —New Faces at Weekly Rotarian Luncheon.

THE SONG SERVICE

There were several strange faces around the Rotary luncheon table today, including Messrs. T. M. Howard, of Boston, former manager of the Vermont Marble Works; Bert McLean, ex-Mayor of Lindsay; W. P. Heaton, of Toronto; T. W. Woolnough, of New York; Dr. J. E. Middleton, of the Kiwanis Club; J. W. Fraser, C. S. Thompson, Herbert Rush and Morgan Cottingham. An enthusiastic welcome was extended to Rotarian John Crane, returned after an absence of some months, and to Dr. N. D. Buchanan.

In the absence of Chairman Fred. Roy, still on the sick list, Dr. M. A. Morrison presided, with Rotarians John Crane and Asa Huycke at the piano. "The Bells of St. Mary's" accompanied the meat and vegetables, and the dessert went down to the tune of "That Will Hardly Be Enough," with solos by Rotarians John Crane, Asa Huycke and Morgan Cottingham. T. W. Woolnough, of New York, a visitor, delighted his audience with a rousing vocal solo and an excellent "stuttering" story.

Rotarian J. M. McHardy, manager of the local Bell Telephone Exchange, gave an interesting and instructive address on telephone work, from 1874, when electricity was first used to transmit messages, with one wire for each letter of the alphabet, to the present day's developments. In 1874, Alexander Graham Bell secured a human ear from Dr. Blake, of Boston, and from it worked out his theory of transmitting messages. The first telephone was used in 1875, and in 1876, communication was established between Brantford, Ontario, and Paris.

First Telephones.

In Peterborough, the first telephone exchange was installed in E. V. Edwards' law office, over the present Utilities office, with a total of fifteen subscribers, and wires laid over the roofs of the buildings, with no poles. A. T. Smith, now division manager in Toronto, and father of Alf. Smith, of the present local exchange, was its first manager, and Mr. E. F. Mason, the George Street merchant, its first operator. The first lady operator in Peterborough, and probably in Canada, was a Peterborough girl, now living in Toronto, Miss Letta Moffat.

In those days, there were four and six-party lines, and the first user could have recourse to a secrecy switch, which gave him absolute privacy, and allowed no one else to intrude until he was through, thus causing endless trouble on the lines.

Telephone Progress.

The development of the various phases of the work, from the crude working model with which Mr. McHardy illustrated his talk, to the modern instrument, with its multipliers, which allow of a number of conversations at the same time over two wires, its amplifiers, its wireless or radio experiments, which have resulted in conversations being carried on between the Eiffel Tower in Paris and the Hawaiian Islands; and which make it possible to link up the wireless telegraph with the telephone from New York to the Cataline Islands; its wireless apparatus connecting from aeroplanes; all these were explained briefly and interestingly, with an invitation from the speaker to visit the local exchange for further insight into the workings of the telephone. Mr. McHardy concluded his speech with the prophecy of one of the company's leading engineers: "I have faith that some day we shall have a great telephone system which will make it necessary for all the nations of the earth to use a common language, which will unite all the peoples of the world in one great brotherhood."

W. T. LEARY, OIL MAGNATE, DEAD.

Was Brother of the Late Robert Leary, of Peterborough.

The death in San Antonia Texas, is recorded of William Thomas Leary, aged 65 years. Deceased was a brother of the late Robert Leary, a former well known citizen of Peterborough, and William Thomas Leary will still be remembered here by some few friends and acquaintances.

Born in Peterborough, W. T. Leary moved to Michigan when 17 years old and later to California, where in 1893 he brought in the first oil near Los Angeles.

Three years later he went to Texas, settling near Corpus Christi, where he was active in drilling artesian wells, the first in Southwest Texas. He drilled 60 deep artesian wells out he Kin granch. For the past eight years he had resided in San Antonio.

Mr. Leary is survived by his widow and three sons and two daughters.

HE MAKES THE BLIND "SEE" BY THEIR SKINS.

Prof. Farigoule Re-educates Soldiers on Theory That Nerve Endings Have Microscopic Eyes.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—A new theory of sight, and what may prove to be a new hope for the so-called "hopelessly" blind has been brought forward by a French savant which, if further experiments reaffirm the excellent success thus far achieved, may revolutionize our whole conception of vision, writes a physician in American Medicine.

The theory, set forward by Professor Louis Farigoule of the University of France, in his recent work, "La Vision Extra-Retienne," has as its premise the concention that the is but the evolution of thousands of microscopic eyes which once were located on the body just below the skin; that these microscopic eyes, though sunk into usefulness through neglect, can be taught to see once more by careful training; and that there is no such thing as complete loss of sight through impairment of the normal vehicles of vision.

"There is no such thing as actual, absolute, total blindness," says Professor Farigoule. "The blind, so-called, can see even though eyeless."

BULL-DOG DRUMMOND
By "SAPPER"
(Cyril McNeile)

A shrub was shaking a few yards away, and on it Hugh fixed his half-closed eyes. If he lay quite still the man, whoever he was, would probably assume the shot had taken effect, and come and investigate. Then things would be easier, as two or three Boches had discovered to their cost in days gone by.

For two minutes he saw no one; then very slowly the branches parted and the white face of a man peered through. It was the chauffeur who usually drove the Rolls Royce, and he seemed unduly anxious to satisfy himself that all was well before coming nearer. The fame of Hugh Drummond had spread abroad amongst the satellites of Peterson.

At last he screwed to make up his mind, and came out into the open. Step by step he advanced towards the motionless figure, his weapon held in readiness to shoot at the faintest movement. But the soldier lay sprawling and inert, and by the time the chauffeur had reached him there was no doubt in that worthy's mind that, at last, this wretched meddler with things that concerned him not had been laid by the heels. Which was as unfortunate for the chauffeur as it had been for unwary Huns in the past.

Contemptuously he rolled Drummond over; then, noting the relaxed muscles and inert limbs, he laid his gun on the ground preparatory to running through his victim's pockets. And the fact that such an action was a little more foolish that offering a man-eating tiger a peppermint lozenge did not trouble the chauffeur. In fact, nothing troubled him again.

He got out one gasping cry of terror as he realised his mistake; then he had a blurred consciousness of the world upside down, and everything was over. It was Olaki's most dangerous throw, carried out by gripping the victim's wrists and hurling his body over by a heave of the legs. And nine times out of ten the result was a broken neck. This was one of the nine.

For a while the soldier stared at the body, frowning thoughtfully. To have killed the chauffeur was inconvenient, but since it happened it necessitated a little rearrangement of his plans. The moon was setting and the night would become darker, so there was a good chance that Lakington would not recognise that the driver of his car had changed. And if he did—well, it would be necessary to forgo the somewhat theatrical entertainment he had staged for his benefit at The Elms. Bending over the dead man, he removed his long grey driving-coat and cap; then, without a sound, he threaded his way through the bushes in search of the car.

He found it about a hundred yards nearer the house, so well hidden in a small space off the road that he was almost on top of it before he realised the fact. To his relief it was empty, and placing his own cap in a pocket under the seat he put on the driving-coat of his predecessor. Then, with a quick glance around to ensure that everything was in readiness for the immediate and rapid departure such as he imagined Lakington would desire, he turned and crept stealthily towards the house.

Ladley Towers was en fete. The Duchess, determined that every conceivable stunt should be carried out which would make for the entertainment of her guests, had spared no pains to make the evening a success. The Duke, bored to extinction, had been five times routed out of his study by his indefatigable spouse, and was now, at the moment Hugh first came in sight of the house, engaged in shaking hands with a tall, aristocratic-looking Indian.

"How d'y do," he murmured vacantly. "What did you say the dam' fellah's name was, my dear?" he whispered in a hoarse undertone to the Duchess, who stood beside him welcoming the distinguished foreigner.

"We're so glad you could come, Mr. Ram Dar," remarked the Duchess affably. "Everyone is so looking forward to your wonderful entertainment." Round her neck were the historic pearls, and as the Indian bowed low over her outstretched hand, his eyes gleamed for a second.

"Your Grace is too kind." His voice was low and deep, and he glanced thoughtfully around the circle of faces near him. "Maybe the sands that come from the mountains that lie beyond the everlasting snows will speak the truth, maybe the gods will be silent. Who knows . . . who knows?"

As if unconsciously his gaze rested on the Duke, who manfully rose to the occasion.

"Precisely, Mr. Rum Rum," he murmured helpfully, "who indeed? If they let you down, don't you know, perhaps you could show us a card trick?"

He retired in confusion, abashed by the baleful stare of the Duchess, and the rest of the guests drew closer. The jazz band was having supper; the last of the perspiring tenants had departed, and now the bonne bouche of the evening was about to begin.

For Women

Lightweight wool jersey cloth continues to be popular in utility frocks for children.

Hat pins have pendants of jade or pearl. Also milady may have hat pins and earings to match!

Informal evening frocks for summer promise to be sparkling affairs of crepe decorated with beads.

Appliqued motifs and heavy embroideries continue to be the popular trimmings for silk, cotton and wool fabric dresses for children.

The widely circular cape, made of round or material hollowed out for the neck and slit down the front or side, are among the striking models these often appearing in sports fabric.

White and black and high shades share honors for spring and summer, those of the sports type leaning decidedly to the bright colors. Green will be exceedingly popular and there are a number of vivid reds.

While the straight line chemise type of dress continues, a favorite there are also many that feature a waist line. The very low waist line is most frequently seen, but the frock that is gathered or belted in at or near the normal waist line is not at all unusual.

White gowns of a more formal type heavily trimmed in crystass seem to be popular and are made along straight lines with perhaps some slight draping at one hip which is caught with an ornament finished in a long spray of flowers. Many af these dresses have trains.

FASHION BRIEFS.

For sports wear the knicker costume continues to grow in favor. Some smart little early spring or southern resort outfits are made of white non-shrinkable flannel with knickers, skirt and coat, cape or blouse.

Metal girdles are one of the most favored belt finishes of general-wear dresses. Dresses of more elaborate description also are thus girdled, the beauty of the belt according with the intent of the dresses themselves.

PRESENTATION APSLEY FOLKS

Mr. and Mrs. Tucker Are Moving Away From the District—A Social Event

APSLEY, Feb. 6. — The monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society was held by special invitation at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Esau Tucker, on Thursday, Feb. 2nd, when the meeting was attended by practically every member.

Mr. and Mrs. Tucker, who are shortly leaving the district, were desirous of entertaining the society and provided both the luncheon and the supper.

The meeting was the best ever held —unity and good fellowship being much in evidence, although there was a deep note of regret at the separation shortly to take place, for Mrs. Tucker has been connected with the "Ladies' Aid" since the formation of the society and was ever a willing helper both in time and kind to every social event of the church and community; neither has Mr. Tucker been less lacking, ever ready to give the "cause' a helping hand, and both will be sorely missed.

After the ordinary business was finished the president of the society (Mrs. Will Lean) presented Mrs. Tucker with a tray as a token of the respect and appreciation she is held by the society, and Mrs. Cy. McFadden presented her with the following testimonial:

"Dear Mrs. Tucker: Time in its relentless flight has brought the members of the Apsley Methodist church Ladies' Aid Society to realize that our happy associations with you must be severed, though intensely we regret the parting.

"Your untiring and self-sacrificing efforts for the best interests of our "Aid" and your sincere sympathy in all we tried to do has bound you to us with cords of love that cannot easily be severed, and we feel that we cannot express in words alone, as we would wish, our esteem for you and our appreciation of all you have done; therefore we ask you to accept this tray as a small tangible token of our appreciation and affection with our kindest wishes for yourself and Mr. Tucker in your new home in Lindsay.

"As you are not removing far from us we trust that we will meet in the coming years and we assure you that our best wishes are going with you, and our sincere prayer is that God's choicest blessings may be yours for many years.

"Although our ways in the future be apart, we trust that we shall still be joined in heart and hope and pray that we shall all meet in that "land that is fairer than day" where partings come no more.

"Signed on behalf of the Apsley Methodist church Ladies' Aid Society.

Mrs. Will Lean, President.
Mrs. W. Hall, Vice-Pres.
Miss Lulu Knot, Sec.
Mrs. Will Carr, Treas.

The pastor (Rev. W. Hall) spoke briefly from the words "I will bless he Lord at all times," (Psalm 34:1) remarking it was difficult sometimes —especially on occasions like the present—to carry out these words in our lives, but that all could join in those words for having had friends like Mr. and Mrs. Tucker in our associations.

The meeting was brought to a happy conclusion by sacred music and the benediction.

The ladies then returning to their homes in the sleighs kindly lent by Mr. Cy McFadden and Mr. Norman Lean, the teamsters, Messrs. Robert Knox and Cy McFadden taking good care not to upset the ladies on the return journey.

FORMER BOER LEADER DEAD

General Christian De Wet, Successor to General Cronje in War of 1900, Died on Friday.

Was Irreconcilable.

BLOOMFONTEIN, Union of South Africa, February 5. Canadian Press. — General Christian De Wet, Commander in chief of the Boer forces in the war of 1899, died at his home in Dewetsdorp on Friday.

Christian Rudolf De Wet was born October 7, 1854, at Leeuwkon in the Smithfield district of South Africa. He served in the first Anglo-Boer war of 1880-81, and was a member of the Volksraad, when the second war in which he took such a prominent part, broke out.

He was given an obscure command at first but was later sent to relieve General Gronje, whom he succeeded on the latter's surrender.

His operations against the British were marked by considerable strategical ability, his forces falling upon and annihilating isolated British posts while the enemy's columns attempted in vain to surround him.

In the peace negotiations of 1902, he took a prominent part and later visited Europe with other Boer generals seeking, without avail, a modification of the terms of peace concluded at Pretoria.

He was elected a member of the first Parliament of the Orange River Colony in 1907 and was appointed Minister of Agriculture.

Shortly after the outbreak of the world war he headed a rebellion in the Orange Free State and Western Transvaal, which was suppressed by the government forces after a brief month of fighting, in which a son, Daniel was killed, and General De Wet himself wounded. When his forces surrendered to those under General Louis Botha, De Wet succeeded in escaping with 25 men, but was captured a few days later.

For this rebellion he was tried and in June, 1915, convicted of treason and sentenced to six years imprisonment with a fine of $10,000. He was released however after being confined for only six months.

While maintining his stand for the freedom of South Africa, he did not participate in armed revolt, and in 1916 was instrumental in nipping another rebellion in the bud.

HUGE CROWD SUNDAY AT ST. PETER'S

No Announcement of Result During the Day of Election — Cardinal O'Connell May Be In Time.

Sick Have Recovered.

ROME, Feb. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Sunday passed without the election of a successor to the pontificial throne. Balloting by the conclave of cardinals continued today, both in the morning and afternoon, but, so far as could be learned, without coming any nearer to the selection of a successor to Benedict XV, than on the previous days.

Word came from the Vatican yesterday that the three cardinals, Marini, Pompilj and Bacilieri, who were suffering from influenza or colds, had sufficiently recovered to take a personal part in the proceedings.

O'Connell Expected

It is now considered a certainty that Cardinal O'Connell will arrive in Rome in time to be introduced into the conclave through the barred and bolted doors and take part in the balloting tomorrow. Indeed, the cardinals are reported to have discussed lengthily the advisability of prolonging the sessions so that at least one representative of the Church in America could be present.

The cardinals within the palace and the pontificial household outside, are pleased with the regularity with which everything is proceeding, according to an announcement made this evening by Prince Chigi, the Marshall. The crowds awaiting the apostolic benediction, which was forthcoming, numbered probably 100,000. The long wait for the last smoke signal, with the accompanying disappointment, led to the conclusion that the Sacred College had decided to retard its final choice until an American cardinal occupied a place among the thrones in the Sistine Chapel. Thus, it is thought that there will be no election until Tuesday morning, or if the choice is made tomorrow afternoon it will not be announced until next morning.

Cardinal O'Connell's entry into the conclave is expected to take place about noon. Monsignor Burks, Vice-Rector of the American College, has informed the Governor of the Conclave just what time the cardinal is likely to arrive. Whether he will be ushered immediately within the secret walls or remain outside until just before a session begins, has not been decided, but all preparations for his introduction have been completed.

The Camerlengo has communicated to the Marshal that the health of the cardinals is excellent, but nothing official has been vouchsafed regarding the nature or progress of the proceedings.

Great Sunday Crowd

Perfect weather and the Sabbath Day combined to bring out the largest crowd yet assembled in historic St. Peter's Square. By eleven o'clock in the morning every point of vantage and every space affording foot room was eagerly seized. It was an ordeal for anyone to move through the solid mass of humanity.

The assemblage was densest around the right collonade of the Cathedral, commanding an unobstructed view of the chimney shaft which makes mute proclamation to the world whether the head of the Roman Catholic Church has been chosen.

In order to prevent a repetition of yesterday's confusion and disorder, when an enormous body of spectators retreated precipitately from the Cathedral after the final negative announcement from the Vatican, the military authorities today stationed troops at various points, accoutred with steel helmets, rifles and full field equipment. The gray-clad soldiers imparted a martial aspect to the otherwise impressively sombre and peaceful scene.

Another Disappointment

When the cathedral clock struck 11:30, the broad steps were thronged with those who hoped that the fourth day would bring them the benediction from the new Holy Father. Ten minutes later a hushed murmur arose from the multitude as a thin thread of smoke appeared. "It is black!" came the cry from thousands, and the great crowds turned in disappointment and dispersed.

But they came back in the afternoon, only to suffer a similar disappointment. Then, on leaving they swarmed about the Square and became confused and entangled with vehicles and trolley cars. Regulation of the traffic was lacking, and people moved in every conceivable direction, and while crowds were dispersing there were still long lines of tramcars bringing others to the scene. The two streams converging made a veritable maze of confusion, but slowly the great tangle was unravelled without serious incident. In all, only six persons have been injured during the entire conclave.

MUST EDUCATE NATIONS TO ARBITRATE THEIR DISPUTES IS LESSON OF CONFERENCE

Sir Robert Borden in Comment on Limitation of Armaments Conference Finds Educative Influence Its Greatest Accomplishment.

The Fundamental Basis.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(Canadian Press.)— The greatest accomplishment of the Washington Limitation of Armaments Conference has been its "educative influence." This is the opinion expressed by Sir Robert Borden, the Canadian delegate, in a statement given to the Canadian Press yesterday.

Sir Robert, in commenting on the results of the conference, said that the practical results attained are "notable," but that even had "these concrete results been still greater," he would have regarded them as of "less vital significance than the educative influence such a conference is bound to exercise upon the the participating nations."

Sir Robert said in part:

"To preserve the progress for which we have toiled painfully for many centuries and ensure a vaster advance along the path of freedom, justice and equal opportunity, mankind must find some efficient means by which the public right shall be enthroned and the world's peace maintained.

Only Practical Way.

"That can only be accomplished by one of two means. The first, at present wholly impracticable, is the establishment of an international authority armed with sufficient force to control the aggression of any nation. The other, and the only practicable means, is so to educate the public opinion of the world that the government of each State will be constrained to the settlement of international differences by peaceful means.

"The peace of the world cannot be assured by any proposal that does not have this educative process as its fundamental basis. The habit of direct effective and continuing international consultation must be formed to bring the nations around a common council board, to realize and discuss the different points of view, to bring harmony out of discord, and agreement out of controversy.

A Lesson For All.

"This surely is a great lesson for all the nations. It has been learned by each nation represented at the conference. From first to last the spirit has been as admirable as the results have been memorable. The President of the United States may indeed be congratulated on the splendid success that has crowned his endeavor and over the door of this and of every like conference may well be written the words of the divine beatitude: 'Blessed is the peacemaker.'

OPPOSED VACCINATION OF CHILDREN.

Parents of Fifteen Children in Smith's Falls Appeal to Court.

OTTAWA, Feb. 6. Canadian Press. — "It is the question altogether of the status of a conscientious objector under the 'vaccination act,'" remarked Mr. Justice Lennox during the hearing here on Saturday of the action brought by the residents of the town of Smith's Falls against the Board of Education and the municipality of that town as a result of their children having been refused admission to the public schools until they were able to produce certificates of successful vaccination. As a consequence of the refusal of the parents of 15 children to have their children vaccinated they were excluded from the schools from September 10, 1920, until March 2 1921.

His Lordship reserved judgment.

New Pope Is Elected

Cardinal Archille Ratti Was the Choice of the Sacred College -- Was Born in Italy.

ROME, Feb. 6. — (Canadian Press.)—Cardinal Ratti was elected Pope and takes the name Pious Eleven.

Cardinal Archille Ratti, Archbishop of Milan, was for several years Papal Nuncio in Poland where his discharge of important ecclesiastical functions when the Polish questions became acute earned for him the esteem of Benedict XV and the gratitude of Vatican authorities. It was because of this service that the red hat was conferred upon him on June 16, 1921, when a similar honor was bestowed on Cardinal Laurenti.

Cardinal Ratti was born in Italy on Oct. 12, 1858. For many years he was a librarian of the Ambrosian Library and archives at Milan. Later he became librarian of the Vatican. In this position he remained until the new republic of Poland established official diplomatic relations with the Vatican at which time Ratti was appointed archbishop and was assigned to Poland as the representative of the Holy See.

That country was then torn with the estrangements from religion brought about by the Communistic propaganda from Soviet Russia and Archbishop Ratti counteracted the spread of radicalism. He also won the esteem of Polish Catholics by his efforts in behalf of destitute children orphaned by the war.

Cardinal Ratti as the Archbishop of Milan presides over one of the most important archidioceses in Italy. The city being a great industrial centre, one of its main requirements is that the Cardinal shall possess a thorough knowledge of political and social problems. He is big physically and is reputed to have liberal tendencies.

NEGLECTED OPPORTUNITIES.

The attendance at the short course in agriculture conducted here by the Ontario Department of Agriculture must be discouraging to the officials in charge. Only a dozen young farmers have taken advantage of the first two weeks of the course, and if the Department comes to the conclusion that it is scarcely worth while to send experts to Peterborough and undertake the expense of carrying out an extensive programme for the benefit of a mere handful, the farmers will have no one to blame but themeslves. It is a customary complaint that the needs of agriculture have not been met by either Provincial or Dominion Governments; yet here is an all-round course conducted by recognised authorities on agricultural problems, and held at a season when farm work is at a standstill, and there is nothing to prevent farmers from attending, and yet only a dozen have enrolled. There are two weeks of the course left, and the farmers in the vicinity of Peterborough would do well to utilise the remaining time, not only in order that the Government may be convinced that the continuance of the work here in other years will be desirable, but for the benefit that will accrue to themselves as the result of what is to be taken up during the balance of the course.

WHAT ABOUT THE MAGISTRATE?

The sentence of forty years in the penitentiary recently imposed by the magistrate at Parry Sound upon a foreigner who smashed more than a score of plate-glass windows has been reduced by the order of the Minister of Justice to two years. It was not expected that the outrageous sentence originally imposed would be allowed to stand, and the action of the Federal Government in cutting it down to a fitting length will be generally approved. But what about the magistrate who was responsible for such a travesty of justice? The Attorney-General of Ontario owes the people of the Province a word or two of explanation in regard to this unusual case. Has there been any official investigation into the circumstances that led to practically a life sentence being inflicted for breaking windows? Is a magistrate who shows such a misconception of his duties and displays such a lack of judgment considered by Hon. W. E. Raney a fit person to continue to preside over a Police Court in this Province? When one man serves only twenty-three days for killing someone with a motor car and another gets a forty-year sentence for breaking windows, the reputation of Canadian justice is liable to be injured. The Parry Sound incident would seem to merit attention from the Ontario Government.

THE PETERBOROUGH MOTOR SHOW.

The rapid passing of the winter brings the date of the annual Motor Show in aid of the Peterborough Health Association steadily nearer, and it will soon be time to begin organising for this event which, by reason of its own importance and because of what is accomplished by means of the revenue it creates, is one of the most important functions held here each year. Upon the proceeds of the Motor Show the Health Association depends to a great extent for the funds which finance its operations. It is therefore necessary that every effort should be made to keep this year's show up to the standard reached in earlier years. The work of the Health Association has so proved its usefulness that it seems scarcely necessary to dilate upon it in these columns. Many a family in Peterborough has occasion to be thankful that such an organisation exists here and to appreciate the work done by the district nurse, while the success of the summer camp for children whose health was below standard is still fresh in the memory of the public. Many Peterborough children were placed on the road to good health by reason of their summer in the open-air at Jackson Park, and if only for this branch of the work alone the Health Association deserves the whole-hearted support of the community. Those who are in a position to help in any way towards the success of the Motor Show should remember those facts, and resolve that they will do everything in their power to create a record-breaking balance at the end of this year's Show.

STANDARD EFFICIENCY TRAINING.

A brief notice in The Examiner on Saturday contained an announcement that is of great importance to Peterborough, namely, that of the meeting to be held on Wednesday night to organise a Mentors' Club to carry on a Canadian standard efficiency training programme in this city. The movement will be under the capable direction of Mr. Walter Smaill, director of athletics for the P.A.A.A., and promises to do much for the boys of the community. "C.S.E.T.", as the course is familiarly known, has not been developed in Peterborough, and doubtless the majority of Examiner readers are not familiar with the programme, which provides training for the intellectual, physical, religious, and social life of the boy. It is a four-fold programme, aiming at the all-round development of growing life, according to the highest standard revealed to man. It is based upon the well-known facts of boy-nature, namely, that the teen-age boy is passing through a period of rapid development in all four sides of his nature, and that his body, his mind, his religious experience and his social outlook are being permanently "set" by the activities, the personal influences, and the ideals that enter into his life. Rooted as it is in the normal healthy interest of boys, it provides a fascinating course of character building under wholesome surroundings.

It is impossible in these columns to go into details as to how the course is carried out or to show how the home, the school, and the church are all united in one comprehensive programme that develops leadership both in Christian activities and in all avenues of human affairs. It is perhaps enough to say that the work aims at an all-round development, and that standards and tests are provided by which, in twenty-four items, a boy can measure his attainment and notice his deficiencies. He is encouraged in his school work and in his athletics, impressed with the necessity of personal cleanliness and purity, his health and his habits are watched; in fact, nothing is neglected that will help him to become a real man and a citizen in the best sense of the word.

The Mentors, of course, are the leaders in the work. It is hoped that Wednesday's meeting will attract a fine type of young men willing to assume the responsibility of directing the programme in their respective organisations. It offers a fine field of service.

LENIN AT GENOA CONFERENCE.

The head of the Russian oligarchy has decided to go to Genoa, as might have been expected. So far as political morality is concerned, there is no very great difference between Lenin and some other personages who may take a prominent part in the Genoa deliberations. Intellectually, the discrepancy is somewhat larger, and one must fear that it is in Lenin's favor. Above all, he will have the charm of novelty. To a Europe already familiar to satiety with Mr. Lloyd George and the other great men of the western world, Lenin will be as new, and as entertaining, as that other recent visitor, Charlie Chaplin.

And he will talk. Governments which have suppressed Communist propaganda, or driven it under cover, will be much in the position of a cotton State which had spent all its money to get rid of the boll weevil and then allowed somebody to fly over in an airplane and drop boll weevils by the bushel. It is not likely, to be sure, that what Lenin says will have any powerful effect on the politics of England, France or Italy; all three countries seem pretty well immunized. But everything Lenin says will be on the front page, and Lloyd George will have to play second fiddle. For once it looks as if the British Premier's instinct for publicity had failed him.—New York Times.

INCOME ASSESSMENT.

It has been well remarked that the first man who drafted the Assessment Act of Ontario would not recognise the Act as it stands to-day, with the many amendments which have been made to it. The assessment law is just like any other, it is good or bad as to its equitable enforcement, and there is no question that with divergent methods of enforcing the Act, and the different interpretations placed upon it, the work of the assessor is made difficult and complicated.

There is one outstanding anomaly which it is stated will soon be corrected by another amendment to the Act. Partners in business, enjoying substantial profits and also drawing large incomes simply pay only a tax on their business assessments. Mr. J. W. Young, assessment commissioner of the city, is authority for the statement, that while the amount of the income of the partners might actually be sufficiently large to be taxed by the city, it is seldom that partners pay an income tax at all to the municipal treasury. The partnership simply pays a business tax, and while the partners may absorb all the profits in large salaries, these latter are not touched. The stock company pays not only business tax, but the individuals who draw dividends from the company pay a tax as well. Members of both joint stock companies and partnerships, of course, have to pay the Dominion tax, but it is in the application of the Municipal Assessment Act, where the anomaly crops up. It is stated that there is every likelihood of the partnerships being put in the same category as that of the joint stock companies for assessment purposes, by an amendment to be brought in at the next sitting of the Legislature, but nevertheless, the anomaly has existed for a number of years. Plainly in the matter of taxation, partners have had little to gain by incorporating into a company. There are cases in St. Catharines where the discrepancy is easily recognised, and the assessors are thoroughly cognisant of it. It hardly seems fair or right that two sets of men engaged in the same kind of business should have a different burden of taxation, because in one set of three men a partnership exists, and in the other set, there is a limited liability company. In the event of failure of business, of course, partners are liable to the full amount of the loss, while members of the company have their liability limited. But it has to be pointed out that teh Federal income tax makes no such distinction on incomes as beeween partners and members of a joint stock company, and there does not seem any valid reason for such a distinction to exist. — St. Catharines Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Prosperity is just around the corner.

Sunday checkers are forbidden in Massachusetts, the only legal move being in the direction of church.

Suspenders for men are to become fashionable again. It looks like another hold-up.

What would the vaudeville monologist do if there were no unbuckled goloshes or Prohibition to talk about?

Peterborough is entitled to representation in the Senate, and Mr. R. R. Hall's services in this district make him the logical choice.

The coming session of the Legislature promises to provide a good deal of fireworks. There is a lot of contentious legislation in sight that threatens to make lively times for the Government.

Old Britain always "muddles through." See how the pound sterling is recovering.

One reason for calling it a "blue sky" law is that it makes shady stock promoters feel that colour.

BE SWIFT TO LOVE.

Do not let us wait to be just or jitiful or demonstrative towards those we love until they or we are struck down by illness or threatened with death. Life is short, and we have never too much time for gladdening the hearts of those who are travelling the dark journey with us. Oh! be swift to love, make haste to be kind!

—Henri Frederick Amiel (1821-1881).

The Peasant Leads the Way

Los Angeles Times; There was a time when bloodletting was the favorite practice of the ancient barber-surgeons for curing every known form of sickness. Science has long discarded this obsolete proceeding. So, also, the world is outgrowing the idea that blood letting is the best cure for national or international ills and troubles. The Russian peasant is a peaceable animal. He will win against the Soviets of the cities by the irresistible process of ceaseless pressure. The latest statistics, indeed, prove that he is already started on his victorious career. The remnants of the city workers, to save their own skins, will soon have to join the peasant peaceful army marshaled for the preservation of the Slav race.

PRICE OF BOARD.

Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—In Friday's Examiner report of the Unemployment Relief Committee, it was stated that the minimum average rate of board was $7.00 per week, and that I suggested many widows who kept boarders would be glad to take less.

The reporter had a very complete report of the proceedings, but what I did say was that several widows who kept boarders had told me they would be glad to get $5.00 or $6.00 a week, and that as prices of food had reduced they could keep boarders for that, but if one boarder was out of work it made it beyond their financial resources to keep him till he got work. I urged that the Committee should recommend the paying in cash to the proprietor of the boarding-house the out of work man's board, as nearly all those keeping boarders could not afford to keep boarders who could not with certainty pay.

I remain, yours truly,

CLOTHING FOR RUSS. BAPTISTS.

MOSCOW, Feb. 4.—Dr. Everett Gill, representative of the Southern Baptist Convention of America, who is here for the purpose of distributing clothing among the Baptists of Russia, says he has been surprised to find there are between 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 Baptists in this country and that Russians take readily to immersion, as they are accustomed to it because of its practice by the Orthodox church.

Itinerant Baptist evangelists are now endeavoring to spread the teaching of that doctrine very widely in Russia. A union of all the Baptists of this country is planned next June. Until now they have been divided into two branches, one located at Moscow and the other at Petrograd.

The Russian Baptists say they have not been persecuted under the Soviet regime, the ire of the Communists being almost directed at the Orthodox church, which they regarded as a tool of the empire.

BUYS BANKRUPT PLANT, THEN SLASHES PRICES

Lincoln Automobile Co. Goes to Henry Ford "Under Hammer" For $8,000,000.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 6.— The greatest slash in automobile prices ever announced was made here Saturday by the Lincoln Automobile Co. immediately after it had been purchased at bankruptcy sale for $8,000,000 by Henry Ford.

Prices of all models were slashed, varying from $800 to $1,200.

Announcement of the cut was made by Henry M. Leland, president of the concern, who will be retained in charge under Ford's ownership.

Ford purchased the huge Lincoln plants at bankruptcy sale for $8,000,000.

More than 3,000 persons gathered around the steps of the plant to witness the auction, conducted by W. S. Sayres, special master appointed by the bankruptcy lourt.

The big crowd was disappointed however, in its anticipation of spirited bidding between the Ford and representatives of two other interests who had qualified to make offers.

The great plant went under the hammer of Ford's price without a contest.

The great crowd was drawn by reports of a spirited fight which two other concerns were prepared to take against plans of Henry Ford to purchase the plant.

DAUGHTER WAS WEAK AND NERVOUS

Mother Gave Her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with Happy Results

Cobourg, Ontario. — "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me for my daughter. She had trouble every month which left her in a weak and nervous condition with weak back and pain in her right side. She had these troubles for three years and frequently was unable to attend school. She has become regular and feels much better since she began taking the Vegetable compound and attends school regularly."—Mrs. JOHN TOMS, Ball St., Cobourg, Ontario.

Every mother who has a daughter suffering from such symptoms should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It is prepared from roots and herbs, and can be taken in safety by young and old. It has been used nearly fifty years, and many women owe their good health today to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

FARMER FINED $127 FOR ILL-TREATING BOY.

COBOURG, Feb. 4.—A fine amounting, with costs, to about $127, or an alternative of three months' imprisonment, was inflicted by Col. W. H. Floyd, County Police Magistrate, in court at Colborne, on Wm. Spears, a farmer of Cramahe township, who was charged with ill-treating and abusing a Barnado Home boy, James Crast, who lived with him. Col. F. D. Bogs, K.C., Cobourg, prosecuted owing to the illness of W. P. Kerr, K.C., Crown Attorney.

The citizens of Colborne and district took up a collection and hired the Opera House at Colborne, because of their desire to be present at the trial, and the inadequacy of the court room to accommodate them.

The circumstances which led directly to the charge being brought against Mr. Spears apparently were that on January 24 the boy was told to cut a hole in the ice at the lake shore and water the cattle. He complied, put did not do the work satisfactorily, and, it is alleged, Mr. Spears washed his face in the slush and kicked him. The boy, fearing further punishment, wandered away, and was taken into a farm house that night, it is stated, in a condition of collapse, with feet and hands frozen.

He was later taken in charge by the Barnado authorities. He is about 13 years of age.

EXTENSION OF THE STRIKE IN BERLIN.

Over 200,000 Join the Ranks of the Strikers—Much Unrest.

BERLIN, Feb. 4.— An extension of the railway strike to take in the men employed in the repair shops now brings the number of strikers to approximately 50,000 in Berlin and 200,000 throughout the country. Mediation by the General Mannfacturers' Union is contemplated. The union is holding conferences with prominent industrial magnates and with Chancellor Wirth, but the result of these discussions has not been made known.

There is coinsiderable unrest among the Berlin postal and telegraph workers and if is considered a strike is not impossible. Leaders of their unions have protested against the Government decree relating to strikes, demanding its withdrawal. Some of thees workers have already quit work and others are expected to leave their posts to-morrow, when it is believed the municipal workers also will come out, they having voted almost unanimously in favour of a strike.

Berlin's gas, electric and water supply would be imperilled by a strike of municipal workers and tramway service would be crippled.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH FOR EIGHT YEARS

The cause of this trouble is the fermentation of food in the stomach which generates a gas that is very frequently belched up. There is also a rumbling of the bowels and a discharge of gas therefrom, there is a constant retching, and the meals are frequently vomited. There is a burning pain in the stomach, the appetite is fickle, the tongue coated, the breath bad, constipation is generally present and the sufferer becomes weak, nervous, depressed and exceedingly miserable.

The blame lies with a sluggish liver, as it holds back the bile which is so necessary to promote the movement of the bowels, and when the bile gets into the blood a badly disordered condition of the stomach, liver and bowels will surely follow.

Keep your liver active and you will always enjoy good health.

Mrs. Agnes Gallant, Reserve Mines, N.S., writes:—"I had been a great sufferer for eight years, from catarrh of the stomach. I tried several, so-called, catarrh remedies without relief until a friend advised me to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills which I did, and four vials completely relieved me. That was six years ago, and I have had no return of my old trouble."

IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS OVER ENTIRE COUNTRY.

Movement Is Slight But Gradual—Orders From Country Points Increase

WINNIPEG, Man., February 4 (Canadian Press) — Conditions are slowly but surely improving in the wholesale and retail circles throughout Canada. The movement, although slight, has been noticeable in many lines since the middle of December, and there are those who forecast a steady improvement from now on, states the Weekly Trade report of the Canadian Creditmen's Trust Association.

Eastern advices, including those from Montreal, Quebec, Toronto, and Brantford say that wholesalers are, as a whole, receiving more orders from country points. Little change is noticeable in retail trade in larger cities.

Collections are still somewhat slow and assignments and compositions are on the decrease.

Reports from Winnipeg and the West indicate that wholesalers, while seeing hopeful signs in increased orders, say that if the improvement is to take concrete shape, business must pick up faster than at present.

In Manitoba and Saskatchewan, although conditions are improving, business is still poor compared with a year ago. Retail trade has been slow during the past week. In Manitoba considerable alarm is manifested in business circles on account of the probable imposition of a Provincial income tax said likely to amount to one-half that demanded by the Federal tax. A movement is on foot to bring such pressure upon the Government as may induce such legislation to be abandoned.

British Columbia reports indicate a better business outlook, with the wholesalers, manufacturers, and the retailers all optimistic regarding the 1922 outlook.

MY GARDEN.

I can not have a garden in the country fresh and green,
I can not raise the lily and the rose.
I can not rise o'mornings with a spirit live and keen,
And labour where the cheerry blossom blows.

But I can have a garden with its flowers of delight,
To fill with joy the very soul of me;
A garden that is blooming in full blossom day and night
With buds of human love and sympathy.

A garden that I carry wheresoever I may go,
Whatever distant journeys I may start;
That fills my weary hours with a warm and sunny glow
As it blossoms in the confines of my heart.

WEEK-END DECLINE IN CHICAGO WHEAT

Less Show of Confidence That Price Advance Will Hold.

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Slackening of the rush to buy had a tendency Saturday to ease down prices in the wheat market. Closing quotations were unsettled at 1-2 to 1 1-8c. net lower, with May $1.25 to $1.25 5-8 and July $1.08 to $1.08 1-2. Corn scored a gain of 5-8 to 1 1-8c.; oats finished unchanged to 1-8c. off, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 5c.

It was evident from the start that demand for wheat had become less urgent than had been the rule of late. Even apart from the usual week-end disposition to realize profits on holdings there were signs of lessened confidence that the advance of prices was to continue, and many traders were apparently inclined to dwell upon supposed indications of a pause in the upward course of foreign values. Export inquiry was relatively slow and domestic milling call seemed also to have lost some of its display of spirit. Interest rather lagged, too, regarding the crop outlook southwest in the absence of any striking fresh development. The burden of most of the cable dispatches received here was that the advance had been overdone, and it was generally anticipated that the United States visible supply total on Monday would show an increase.

For the first time in a long while the corn market showed independent strength as compared with wheat. Oats were steadied by the action of corn. Predictions were current that there would be an actual shortage of coarse grain prior to a new crop.

Provision at first advanced in line with the hog market, but later receded on account of realizing sales.

WAR VETERANS OPEN 'UNITY CONFERENCE'

Meeting in Winnipeg To-Day Continues Efforts Begun at Port Arthur.

WINNIPEG, Feb .6.—A conference of representatives of all the returned soldiers' organizations in the Dominion will open here to-day to endeavor to reach a basis for some form of unity. The conference will be a sequel to the one held in Port Arthur last October, when it was agreed that unity in some form was essential to the perpetuation of the returned soldier movement, and when a resolution was adopted containing three clauses which had as a basis the unification of all organized veterans in Canada.

It was resolved at the Port Arthur "unity conference' that the organizations represented be requested to render the earliest possible decision as to whether the unity desired should be attempted by amalgamation and affiliation, a federation as may be mutually agreed upon with to view to amalgamation or affiliation in event of these two lasses failing of adoption by the organizations concerned, they would be as an alternative propose some scheme which might result in federation.

SALTS IS FINE FOR KIDNEYS, QUIT MEAT

Flush the Kidneys at Once When Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudly, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensatipn of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. The famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritatios, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

POLAND AWAITS NEXT ELECTIONS.

First President New Republic To Be Chosen.

WARSAW, Feb. 3.— (Associated Press.)—Poland, politically, is eagerly looking forward to the summer elections when the first president of the new republic will be chosen by a national assembly composed of representatives of both chambers of the diet.

Joseph Pilsudski, who was appointed chief of state just after Poland was declared a republic late in 1918 and has held office ever since under a provisional constitution is understood among politicians to be one of the presidential candidates. Several other names have been mentioned, but the newspaper editorial writers appear reasonably confident that the chief contenders will be Pilsudski, Vincent Witos, former Premier and the present leader of the peasant party in the Diet, and Wojciech Trampczynski, speaker of the Diet.

There has also been much speculation among politicians as to whether Ignace Jan Paderewski, pianist and former Premier, would enter the presidential race, but no definite announcement has ever been made one way or the other. For nearly a year Paderewski has been in America, spending most of his time in Paso Robles, California.

Igsace Paderewski was recently quoted as saying at Paso Robles that he probably would return to Poland within four or five months, that he considered himself at the service of his country and always ready for a call, but he did not think he would accept the presidency if it were offered to him. He added that he had no intention to take part in governmental affairs.

RAILROAD NEEDS OF BULGARIA.

May Afford Scope For Americans.

SOFIA, Feb. 3. — (Associated Press.)— Christo Manoloff, Bulgarian Minister of Railways, is anxious to have American locomotive manufacturers and railroad supply houses look into the possibilities of business in Bulgaria.

He says that one of the greatest present needs in Bulgaria is a plant for the construction and repair of locomotives and freight cars. He has on hand nearly 100 locomotives and several thousand freight cars awaiting repairs and the country had no facilities for this purpose.

"Although our country is going through a period of great financial and economic stress," said M. Manoloff, "we are preparing actively for the extension and reconstruction of our railways. We would like to have the help of your resourceful and experienced railway men and contractors in this direction.

"We are planning the construction of more than 500 miles of new railroads in which we will need foreign technical skill and capital. Americans will have the preference because I think they lead the world in these two requirements."

AMES HOLDEN McCREADY LIMITED

MONTREAL

Canadian Daily Newspapers' Association,
Excelsior Life Building,
Toronto, Ont.

Speaking from the standpoint of the manufacturer who does a Dominion-wide business, newspaper advertising is as necessary to the successful distribution of a trade-marked piece of merchandise as food, raiment and shelter are to the well-being of the individual.

Newspaper advertising nourishes the product; it clothes it with reputation, integreity and respectability; and it protects it from the storms of competition and the inroads of goods of questionable parentage.

Nation-wide newspaper advertising is the foster-son of transportation. As the facilities for the distribution and delivery of goods increased, so did national newspaper advertising develop.

The shoe manufacturer of to-day was the village cobbler of yesterday. The manufacturer who makes thousands of good mouse-traps for the public now is the successor of the man who years ago made mouse-traps for himself and his neighbors.

But the world does not beat a pathway to the door of these manufacturers! No, they go out and "tell the world" about it through the newspapers. And the world responds, and buys.

R. W. Ashcroft/S. ASSISTANT TO PRESIDENT.

Ames, Holden, McCready, Ltd., state a truth that is vital to the buyer—Daily Newspaper advertising "nourishes the product." A product advertised in the Daily Newspapers must be better value for the same money than one which is unadvertised. No firm can continue to advertise successfully and break this law.

The Kidneys

The office man and the outdoor worker suffer alike from derangements of the kidneys.

Backaches and headaches are among the symptoms. In some cases Bright's disease soon develops, others suffer from high blood pressure until hardening of the arteries sets in.

In order to forestall painful and fatal diseases prompt action should be taken at the first sign of trouble.

Mr. A. D. MacKinnon, Kirkwood, Inverness county, N.S., writes:

"I can highly recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to all suffering from weak kidneys. I suffered from kidney disease for a long time. I may also say that for three years I was nearly always troubled with headaches, and no treatment seemed to do more than afford temporary relief. I was finally told of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and after using a few boxes was completely relieved. I have also used Dr. Chase's Ointment with the best results, and never fail to recommend these wonderful remedies."

"They like to do business with people they know."

Makes Neighbors of his Customers!

"YES, people wonder at my success in being able to increase sales, but there is really no secret to it. One night when my business was at its worst, in a heart-to-heart talk with myself I worked out these facts:—

"It has always been easy to do business with my neighbors, because I could meet them and talk to them. They like to do business with people they know. The only trouble is, the world has grown so large it's hard to meet and be friendly with a lot of people.

"Well, is it?" I asked myself. "If I can make good friends and good customers by meeting them, why can't I meet them and talk to them over the telephone?

"The next day was Wednesday. Wednesday afternoon is a good time to telephone—the wires are not so busy, and after lunch most folks feel friendly. I called up by Long Distance three men I've long wanted to sell—men who have never been in my store, introduced myself in an easy friendly fashion, and offered them some real bargains. Say, do you know, two of these men came in to see me the next day and bought a good bill? They're good friends of mine now. I've got over 50 new customers like that in a short time.

"Just being neighborly is the secret of building up business. At some time or other I manage to telephone nearly every customer we've got. Does them good. Does me good. Personal solicitation is still the one best way of making a sale."

SHARK ALMOST SEVERS YOUNG SWIMMER'S ARM

Australian Dies On Beach After Courageons Rescue.

LONDON, Feb. 6. Canadian Press Cable. — While swimming in the sea at Cooge, a well known seaside resort, near Sydney, Australia Michael Coghlan, aged 18 years, was attacked by a shark and both arms were almost severed, says a Reuter despatch from Sydney.

A returned soldier, Jack Chalmers, though dazed by a fall from a diving rock, with magnificent courage, swam to the rescue, and dragged Coghlan from the monster's jaws. Eyewitnesses assisted Coghlan ashore but he died on the beach in view of thousands of horrified spectators who declared that Chalmer's conduct was comparable to the deeds which had gained the Victoria Cross.

YANKEE DOGS WIN THREE-DAY MUSH.

New Hampshire Team of Huskies Defeated the Quebec Entry.

BERLIN, N.H., Feb. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Five United States-bred huskies, their tails curled proudly aloft, scampered into town Saturday afternoon to win with ease the international dog-team race of 120 miles that started from here last Thursday. The huskies, owned and piloted by Arthur T. Walden, of Wonalancet, received a perfect point score as to time and condition. They made the three-day mush in a corrected time of 15 hours and 36 minutes and covered the day's lap of 32 miles from Lancaster in three hours and 37 minutes.

Accustomed to travel over New Hampshire hills and dales, the huskies found the going on the snow-packed roads more to their liking than did the mongrels of Jean Label, of Bersimis, Que. The latter's time for the 120 miles was 16 hours and 22 minutes or 46 minutes behind Walden. He finished with five dogs. The sixth, suffering from sore feet, was hauled over the last lap by his team-mates.

Jacques Suzanne, whose team from Lake Placid, N.Y., was forced out of the contest on Friday because of trouble with a strange hitch on the mush from Colsbrook to Lancaster, made it a poor third in point of time. He was 14 hours behind Walden.

The dogs that Henri Skens brought from La Loutre, Quebec, completed their race by train. Their owner withdrew them before the start from Colebrook on Friday, for their feet were badly injured as a result of frost bites suffered in the overland trip to Berlin.

Label made a game finish, running beside his dogs for many miles, while his knee, wounded in service with the pioneer Canadian air squadron in France, gave him great pain. Officials of the race committee urged him to withdraw before the start from Lancaster yesterday but he refused, remarking that the committee could bar dogs because of poor conditions, but not drivers.

FRANCE SUFFERS FROM 8-HOUR DAY.

French Senator Says This Regulation Aggrevates Economic Problems.

LONDON, Feb. 6. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—Writing in the Revue Des Deux Mondes, Senator Raphael Levy pronounces a severe indictment on the French 8-hours law passed in April 1919. H says: "It has brought about an increase in the cost price of everything, rendering still more difficult the solution of economic problems. France's losses through this law amount to billions of francs yearly at a time when foreign competition is more serious than ever."

The law makes necessary the employment of one hundred thousand additional men of all categories on the French railways. The cost of the railway personnel has increased from 36 to 58 per cent. and moreover the efficiency of the railway service has been considerably lessened owing to certificates having been granted to imperfectly trained drivers. Accidents have increased enormously and the cost of transport augmented.

The writer asserts that product on in the mines is 20 per cent. less than before the war. France's importation of coal is ten million tons yearly which, says the Senator could easily be produced from France's own mines.

The cost of labor for the mechanical industries, says the writer, has increased nearly fifty per cent. and some works are finding it economically impossible to carry on.

RE-AFFIRM ALLEGIANCE.

DUBLIN, Feb. 6. — (Canadian Press). — Six hundred delegates, most of them youthful, re-affirmed their allegiance to the Republic here on Saturday, and called upon the women of Ireland to support at the forthcoming elections only candidates standing true to the Republic proclaimed in 1916. They also favored the continuance of the boycott against Ulster. Countess Markievicz presided.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

vice in the auditorium the congregation repaired to the Sunday school room where Dr. McMillan gave one of his famous hymn talks on the new Book of Praise. The great orders of praise were divided into four great distinctive orders of song, viz.:

1. Songs of adoration and praise, in which we pay supreme homage to God. Adoration may be silent but is usually articulated. When praising God in the ideal manner we are forgetting ourselves, as in "When all Thy Mercies O My God," etc.

2. Prayer songs—A large proportion of our church songs are prayers, as "Abide with Me," etc.

3. Songs of Inspiration—In Old Testament times songs were made the medium of instruction of the history of Gods people, and St. Paul recognized the instruction of Christian songs.

4. Songs of Inspiration. — Songs in which we do not address God but ourselves, as "Enter then His Courts with Praise," etc.

Examples of each of these distinct order of songs were chosen and sung to some perhaps new and most appropriate melody, and led by the choir, the congregation joined in most heartily in the singing. Dr. MacMillan emphasized the value of "unison singing" in some of these songs of praise, and suggested that as an anthem for the choir nothing could be more effective than one of these old hymns yell rendered. To all, especially to lovers of sacred song, the evening was a most enjoyable and profitable one.

QUEEN'S LOSE AT McGILL IN 30 MINS. OVERTIME

MONTREAL, Feb. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Playing thirty minutes' overtime, McGill triumphed over Queen's in the opening game of the local inter-collegiate hockey season, at Mount Royal Arena Saturday by four goals to three. In the closing few minutes of the overtime McGill made a great rally and outplayed and out-generalled their opponents.

Queen's sent a better balanced team than in any of the games last year, but McGill played far below the standard of their game against Varsity the previous week. Their greatest weakness was in defence and only the weak shooting of the Kingston men saved McGill from defeat. It was a test of endurance that the game stood out, the players being on the ice for close on three hours, and penalties were freely handed out, three Queen's men being sent to the cooler and two McGill men.

UNDERSOLD BY GERMAN ARTICLE.

Competition in Dyestuffs Is Very Keen.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—(By Canadian Press).—German competition in India is at present being most severely met with in aniline and alizarine dyestuffs, according to official advices from the British Trade Commissioner in India. Notwithstanding the footing gained by British makers during the war an excellent distributing organization which they have built up they are being undersold by the German article, and the difference in price in most cases is as much as forty to fifty per cent. This is attributed largely to the depreciated German mark. German imports of dyes in India during recent months have exceeded the British shipments.

The same state of affairs is found in the machinery trade, the official report says. Many instances have recently occurred where orders for rice mills, sugar plants, etc., have been placed in Germany owing to a fifty per cent. lower quotation than was obtainable from British makers.

Germany is also making inroads into China, according to advices from the British Consular Agent at Pekin, her exports to that country in some commodities far exceeding those of Great Britain and the United States.

SEX DETERMINATION FORMULA DOUBTED.

Scientists and Physicians in New York Sceptical About Recent London Reports.

NEW YORK, February 3. — Reports from London that the formula had been found for ensuring the birth of a boy, if the family desired it, or the birth of a girl, if a girl was preferred, were received with scepticism by scientists and physicians in New York, although it was not doubted that such a formula would be found.

If the report merely meant that artificial sex determiantion in lower organisms had been accomplished and that this suggested that methods of artificial sex determination would eventually follow, it was said that this was nothing new.

Dr. Jacques Loeb and other American scientists long ago proved that chemical treatments would induce the eggs of many creatures to produce male or female at the will of the scientist. Changes in environment have been shown to cause a sex determination.

"It has been demonstrated, for instance," said a scientist of this city, "that the hard conditions imposed by war on women in many countries, increasing their work and decreasing their food, has in some way influenced the chemical activities which govern sex, so that the preponderance of the children born during and after the war have been males. The harder life has in some way tended to increase masculinity."

MUFFINS FOR BREAKFAST

There are housewives who would like to have muffins every morning for breakfast, but feel that it is too arduous a task. If they will try this method of taking time by the morning hurry. All work seems lighter if done in the waiting bits while supper is cooking and every night grease the gem tins and stand them on the back of the range. Into a large bowl place the flour, corn meal, or rye meal or graham flour, the necessary salt, sugar and baking powder. It is but a minute's task to beat one or two eggs, according to the recipe, adding necessary milk and beating into the dry materials. The muffin tins are ready by simply heating, and the family enjoy hot muffins with their coffee and marmalade.

DATES FOR ELECTIONS.

OTTAWA, Feb. 6. — (Canadian Press.)— There is every likelihood that present week will see dates set for two remaining ministerial by-elections. With a seat provided for Hon. J. H. King there is every reason to believe that election in East Kootenay will be brought on with the least possible delay.

In the case of Hon. Charles Stewart there is still some doubt as to where he will stand for election. It is the desire that he represent an Albertan constituency and there is still hope that he will be accommodated in western province.

DON'T NEGLECT BRONCHITIS

The principal symptom of bronchitis is a cough which is dry, harsh and hacking, accompanied with rapid wheezing, and a feeling of tightness through the chest.

There is a raising of phlegm, especially in the morning after rising from bed. This phlegm is at first light color, but as the trouble progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color and is sometimes streaked with blodd.

In

you will find a remedy that will stimulate the weakened bronchial organs, subdue the inflammation, soothe the irritated parts, loosen the phlegm and mucous, and help nature to easily dislodge the morbid accumulation.

Mr. John H. Root, 40 Maple Ave., Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"I was troubled with bronchitis and I had a very bad cough. I had it so long I was beginning to get afraid of other developments. I tried all kinds of cough remedies without relief. I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Wood's Pine Syrup, so I got a bottle, and it convinced me to believe that I had at last gotten the right medicine. I used several bottles and am practically well. I have recommended it to others since, and good results followed."

Be sure and get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it; price, 35c, and 60c. a bottle; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SOUTH AFRICAN STRIKERS TO USE GOVT. MACHINERY

Will Endeavor to Settle Labor Dispute By Arbitration.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The solidarity of the strikers in South Africa has been broken says a Reuter despatch from Johannesburg, by the action of the moderate section in the shape of the Germiston strike committee in repudiating their leaders and asking Premier Smuts to receive a deputation to consider the appointment of an arbitration court. Premier Smuts consented but the crowd imprisoned the committeemen in their office until they gave their word of honor that they would not visit Premier Smuts.

Subsequently the miners on strike at Witbank asked the workers' federation to arrange an interview with Premier Smuts with a view to terminating the strike but on the other hand, representatives of the unions held a meeting in Germiston and demanded that the Federation call a general strike on February 4.

It is now announced that the workers' federation has decided to accept the invitation contained in the Premier's letter to use the government machinery for the purpose of investigating a way out of the labor dispute.

Interviewed by the Cape Times, Sir Abe Bailey declared that the English leaders of the miners, seventy-five per cent. of whom were Nationalists had allowed themselves to be made dupes of the Nationalist party who carried the whole strike issue into the realm of politics while pretending to the strikers that their cause was being fought. Premier Smuts and his government knew what was going on but kept quiet and thereby demoralized the strategy of the Nationalists. The thanks of South Africa, says Sir Abe Bailey are due to General Smuts for the way in which he has handled the strike.

It is declared that the coal strike is practically over and that the gold strike is crumbling. When it is over, says Sir Abe Bailey, the mine-owners should be content to see the men return to work and leave parliament to frame a permanent settlement.

ARBUCKLE GLOOMY, FACING THIRD TRIAL.

Estimate of Defence Costs Placed at Half a Million.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 6.—The casting director got busy Saturday preparing for the third return engagement of the Rappe-Arbuckle drama.

The issuance of the "official statements" from the defence and the prosecution following disagreement of the jury, which stood 10 to 2 for conviction in the second trial, assured that Fatty Arbuckle must be tried once again on a charge of having taken the life of Virginia Rappe.

"We want to go to trial again Monday if it can be arranged," the Arbuckle camp announced.

"Any time" was the word from the district attorney's office.

So again the public will hear the recital of how Roscoe Arbuckle entertained his friends in San Francisco on Labor Day.

It was plain that Fatty was discouraged. He realized that this time the majority was against him that he had gone down to defeat.

The defence is thoroughly financed. What Arbuckle doesn't have in his own bank account is made up for by the contributions of the men who have investments in the $2,000,000 worth of Arbuckle comedies, now off the marekt and designed so to remain until Arbuckle's record is cleared.

Just what has been spent thus far no one knows. But the estimates say around a half million dollars.

HAS GAME FARM OVER 200 BIRDS.

Started With a Nest of Wild Ducks Eggs.

EDMONTON, Alta., Feb. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Started five years ago with a nest of wild duck eggs, found while cultivating a field, today D. H. Bendick, of Leduc, 25 miles south of here, has a game farm stocked with between two hundred and three hundred birds which include about sixty different varieties of game and ornamental fowl. During the first year Mr. Bendick raised ten wild ducks and as a hobby the same year he imported some of the cheaper kinds of pheasants and other wild fowl and gradually built up a game farm that now has some of the finest birds in the West. The farm is now stocked with wild geese, ducks, and prairie chicken, native to Canada; wild turkeys, imported from Kentucky, pheasants, grouse, quail, peafowl, guinea hens and doves.

A large inclosure with artificial lakes and conditions as near as possible to those found in the wilds are the summer quarters for the water fowl while the bluffs near the farm house provide ideal conditions for the wild turkeys, pheasants, quail and other birds whose natural habitat is the timber. Climatically the conditions for breeding wild game birds are ideal in Alberta and Mr. Bendick has found that as a commercial enterprise it has an unlimited future. Hunting clubs and large estates in both the Western and Eastern States are always in the market for wild game birds, especially good breeding stock and are ready to pay good prices. When domesticated most of the wild birds reproduce more rapidly than in the wilds, and at from $10 to $150 per pair for the birds, depending upon the breed, good profits are realized. Geese range in price from $15 to $110 per pair, while the native wild ducks are worth from $10 to $30 per pair.

Last fall Mr. Bendick liberated seventy-two Chinese ringed neck pheasants in the Leduc district as an experiment and also with the object in view that within a few years they will have increased sufficiently to permit sportsmen to hunt them during open seasons.

Next spring it is expected two thousand birds will be hatched and reared on the farm. Mr. Bendick has a permit from the government granting him permission to raise game bids which are protected by law.

NOTES OF TRADE

Czechoslovakian Tariff

The increased protective tariff of Czechoslovakia became effective Jan. 1, 1922. Foodstuffs, including lard and raw materials generally, are free of import duty. The duty on leather is almost 10 per cent. ad valorem.

Tobacco Imports Prohibited

In order to check speculation, the Swedish Government has temporarily prohibited the importation of manufactured tobacco, effective from Jan. 9, 1922. This information was supplied by the Swedish Minister in Washington, through the State Department.

Brazilian Preferential Duties

A Brazilian decree continues American preferential duties for this year. These have been as follows: Thirty per cent. of the general duty on wheat flour and 20 per cent. on condensed milk, certain manufactures of rubber paints and colors (except writing inks), refrigerators, clocks, pianos, scales, windmills, cement, corsets, dried fruit, school furniture, writing desks, typewriters and varnish.

Siam's Big Rice Crop

The current rice crop of Siam wil probably be one of the largest ever produced reports Consul James P. Davis of Bangkok. The area planted in the six interior provinces from which the great bulk of the export rice comes is about 400,000 acres larger than that of 1920. It is officially estimated that the exportable surplus of the new crop will probably reach 1,335,000 short tons, which equals the high record exports of 1916-17.

Holland's Trade in Bulbs

The bulb growers of Holland look back upon 1921 as a year of general satisfaction in the industry. In spite of the difficulties experienced by the growers in Holland in their exports to the United States, and in spite of the increased import duties levied by Sweden and the abundant crop of 1921, the trade in bulbs was prosperous.

Exports of bulbs from Holland for the first ten months of 1921 totalled $8,400,000, as against $7,200,000 for the same period of 1920.

American Foodstuffs for Greece

The extent of the post-armistice growth of the Greek import trade in American food products may be judged from the fact that there is now direct American steamer service from New Orleans to Saloniki, reports Consul Leland B. Morris of Saloniki. Practically all of Serbian Macedonia, Albania and Thrace, besides Greek Macedonia, receive their supplies of sugar, rice and flour by this route. It is believed that a very profitable and permanent trade connection has been established.

Leather From Lizard Skins

The tanning and exportation of cabbrogoya skins from Ceylon is now being undertaken on a commercial scale for the first time, according to a report from Consul Marshall M. Vance, Colombo. The cabrogoya (Varanus salvator) is a species of lizard, ranging from three to four and one-half feet in length. The leather is finely marked and has unusual wearing qualities. It is used in the manufacture of women's shoes. An average skin contains leather enough for the manufacture of two pairs of shoes.

Precious Stones by Mail

A cablegram (not official) from Colombo, under date of Dec. 26, 1921, transmitted through the State Department, states that permission has been granted for the mailing of precious stones by sealed registered post in both Ceylon and India.

An official of the American Jewelers' Protective Association has recently been in these two countries, endeavoring to gain this permission. Hitherto the forwarding of these stones has not been permitted in the regular mails, and could be sent only through parcel post, unregistered.

PETER ROBINSON

total number of members at the end of the year just closed was 100, showing a substantial increase in membership over the preceding 12 months. In 1921 seventeen members were lost to the Chapter by change of residence, and I regret to report the loss of one by death (Miss Lenore Sanderson). This is the first loss by death since the Chapter was organized, and the presence of this faithful member with her unfailing interest in, and support of, our work is sadly missed. Once again we tender our loving sympathy to her bereaved family.

Donations During Year.

The revenues derived from the Chapter's work have been donated to worthy causes, as follows:

Cadet Prizes	$10.00
Playgrounds Association	25.00
Women's Art Association (re picture)	30.00
Patients' Expenses	155.84
Children's Aid Society	25.90
Navy League	20.00
Armenian Relief	60.00
G.W.V.A. Xmas Tree	10.00
Salvation Army Xmas Tree	10.00
Consumptive Emergency Fund	100.00
Peterboro Health Association	50.00
11 Memorial School Pictures	77.51
Big Sisterhood	50.00
King's Daughters	50.00
Sick Children's Hospital	25.00
Well Babies' Clinic	50.00
H.R.H. Princess Mary's Wedding Gift	10.00
Local Relief	65.00
Total	$824.25

In 1919 a Victory Loan Bond of $500 was purchased and is now in the Chapter's treasury.

On February 25th a very successful fancy dress carnival was held under our auspices at Brock Street Rink.

Something unique in the history of the Chapter was the offer to us of the adoption of the 4th Brigade Band by the Commanding Officer, Col. A. P. Miller, which was accepted and the band accordingly taken under our wing.

After the regular monthly meeting in March an address was given to the Canadian Club and our Chapter by Miss Flora Foster on the work of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission in India. This was especially interesting as our organization had made a donation of $200 last year to the work of the Zenana Mission.

At the request of the Peterborough Health Association the Chapter in April assumed charge of the dances and parade of fashions at the local annual Motor Show. From these undertakings a very substantial sum was realized, the proceeds being devoted to the work of the Health Association. In this connection I might mention also that in December, $50 was donated by the Chapter towards building a permanent dining-hall at Jackson's Park for the use of the Peterborough Health Association kiddies encamped there during the summer.

Regular weekly dances were held with considerable success, at Chemong Pavilion throughout the summer months.

Owing to her change of residence, we were reluctantly compelled to accept the resignation in Sentember of our Educational Secretary, Mrs. G. Lemay, an ardent and enthusiastic worker at all times.

"The Girl in Red."

I am pleased to report as a decided success in every respect the production of an amateur play, "The Girl in Red," under our auspices, at the Grand Opera House on the 11th and 12th of November.

The Chapter members have acted as ushers at the Grand Opera House for the past three years. The grateful appreciation of the Chapter is extended to Mr. W. L. Phillips, manager of the theatre, for his kind and courteous treatment, and to Mrs. F. C. Webber for her splendid management of this work, which is a substantial source of revenue.

An invitation dance and the dansant held at the G.W.V. Hall in November and December respectively also added to the list of undertakings that met with success.

A memorial picture, "Canadians at Ypres," was donated by the Chapter to each of the schools in the city, in commemoration of the Peterborough boys who fell in the Great War, 1914-1918.

Resignation Regretted.

We feel sorry that our Regent, Miss Georgie Stevenson, does not see her way clear to continue another year in office, which she has filled so successfully, and in which we are only too proud to have her. It has been my privilege to act as secretary to the Chapter for the past three years, and I would like to avail myself of this opportunity to thank all officers and members for their generous and cordial assistance rendered me in many ways.

In conclusion, I would like to voice for the retiring Executive their sincere appreciation extended to every member who has worked so faithfully to make the "Peter Robinson" Chapter the successful organization it is to-day, and to bespeak for the incoming Executive the hearty and loyal co-operation of all members, without which the Chapter can never take her proper place in the ranks of the Order to which we are all so proud to belong.

BEAUTY SPOILED BY CIGARETTES

A Warning to Young Girls in Peterborough—One Good Omen.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3. —From the ultra-fashionable restaurants of big cities, the cigarette habit among women is sweeping to the "smart sets" of the small towns, and the effect is demoralizing, threatening the future of the nation, Lucy Page Gaston, famous foe of the fag, asserted in an interview here.

The situation is worse than at any time in 20 years, she declared.

While shocked she is not dismayed. She is "carrying on."

"A year ago there was no smoking among girls and women in the small towns," she said. "To-day it is more or less common.

"Cigarette smoking has increased 50 per cent. among women in this country in the last year. This is national suicide.

"The whole future of America depends on whether our girls are flappers and vampires—silly, frivolous girls, ready for cigarettes and highballs, and all that goes with them—or whether they are clean in thought and action. No girl can smoke and be clean and wholesome."

Miss Gaston, in addresses before high school girls in small communities, is warning them that cigarettes spoil beauty, coarsen the voice, cause superfluous hiar, sap vitality, make old women out of them long before their time, and wreck moral stamina.

Morally, she says, it is no worse for a woman to smoke than a man, but physically it's different. A woman, because of her delicate organism, can not stand up under cigarettes. The effect of smoking on women is the same, she says, as on the adolescent boy.

Many girls do not realize, she pointed out, that the poison in one cigarette has as much "kick" as two ounces of whisky.

Miss Gaston said 61,000,000,000 cigarettes were made in the last year, the highest on record.

But there is one good omen. Strangely enough, it—or he—is a man, the Prince of Wales.

The Prince, she said, has turned thumbs down on the mannish woman. He does not like girls to indulge in the fag. The women of England, consequently, are giving up the habit.

So it willl be in America, eventualy, Miss Gaston declares.

PLAITS FOR STOUT WOMEN

Here's a hint for the stout woman in planning her plaited skirt for spring. The more plaits used, the more slender will be the effect.

Nineteen plaits, advises an authority, should be the very minimum, the narrower the plaits the better the effect. Take care, too, that the fabric plaits easily and hangs soft and straight. Stripes running down the inside of box plaits also add to the effect.

LONDON, Feb. 6. — (Canadian Press).—The Earl of Athlone, chairman of the board of governors of Middlesex Hospital, who received a cable last week from Lord Atholstan, of Montreal, offering £20,000 in aid of cancer research work, has sent a cable to Lord Atholstan in reply as follows: "Profoundly grateful for your munificent gift for humanity, which will be of the utmost value and an incentive to our research work, which has always been hampered by lack of funds. The public-spirited example of yourself and Sir William Veno will be followed by others."

Sir William Veno, of England, gave £10,000 recently in aid of cancer research work.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH TAKES ACTION

tion of the Session during the past year, in connection with the work of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, which the Session has decided should be brought to the attention of the members of the congregation. In October, 1920, a member of the congregation wrote to the Session in reference to reports that were current that some of the professors in Canadian Presbyterian theological colleges were preaching doctrines not in accord wth the recognized standards of the church. The Session was asked to ascertain the truth or falsity of those reports and to make the facts known in order that those who were contributing to the funds of the church might be guided accordingly.

The Session recognized that its powers in the matters were limited. The question was referred to a special committee of Session. After careful consideration, the members of the committee decided with the approval of Session, to send a short letter to the principals of all our Canadian Presbyterian Colleges, acquainting them with the situation and asking them if the profesors on their staffs were true in their teachings to the Westminter Confession of Faith. All minister, and college professors in our church are required to expess their allegiance to this Confession of Faith when taking their ordination vows. The Westminter Confession of Faith defines all the fundamental teachings of the Holy Scriptures and represents the rock upon which the Presbyterian Chuch has been founded

Questions Asked.

The following questions were asked:

"Do the professors on your staff uphold in their teachings,

"First—That the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are verbally inspired of God, and inerrant in the original writings, and that they ar of supreme and final authority in faith and life?

"Second—That Jesus Christ was begotten by the Holy Spirit and born of the Virgin Mary, and is true God and true man

"Third—That man was created in the image of God, that he sinned and thereby incurred not only physical death, but also that spiritual death which is separation from God, and that all human beings are born with a sinful nature, and in the case of those who reach moral responsiblity, become sinners in word, thought and deed?

Fourth— that the Lord Jesus Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures as a representative and substitutionary sacrifice, and that all who believe in Him are justified on the ground of His shed blood?

"Fifth—That the crucified body of our Lord was raised from the dead, and that He ascended into Heaven and in His present life in Heaven, He is our High Priest and Advocate."

"The principals of the eight colleges written to were asked to be clear and definite in their replies

"One replied frankly and fully stating that the professors on his staff all stood loyally by the Word of God and believed in the fundamental teachings expressed in the questions that had been asked. One principal failed to answer at all. The principals of the other six Canadian colleges claimed that the professors on their staffs of their colleges were true in their teachings to the Scriptures, but they did not answer the questions as frankly and fully as the Session felt they could and might have done. Instead they took the stand that if any person had charges to make against and professor or professors these should be made through the courts of the Church

Becoming Concerned.

"During the recent visit to our congregation of one of the Canadian Presbyterian missionaries fram Formosa, members of the Session consulted him in reference to the situation. He stated that at numerous points he had visited in Canada, he had met Christian people who were becoming concerned over certain teachings in some of the colleges and who were desirious of concerted action being taken in order, if possible, to effect an improvement in conditions. He expressed the hope that our Session would continue to press the matter

"Indications of the growing concern felt in this matter have been furnished recently by the receipt of a pamphlet isued by Rev Eric Lewis of Cayuga, with the approval of Rev. W. H Geddes, of Ailsa Craig, entitled "The Presbyterian Church in Canada. Is it drifting from its moorings?" The pamphlet which is datee September, 1921, contains the list of a series of lectures given by Prof. E. F Scott of the Union Theological Seminary, New York, in Knox College, Toronto, at the Summer session of 1920, at the instance of the Board of Education of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. The teaching of Dr Scott, as set forth in this pamphlet, deny the truth of certain of the miracles recorded in the New Testmanet and are at serious variance in other ways with the recognized doctrines of Presbyterian Church. Dr Scott was askd at the close of his lecture, by Rev. Eric Lewis, of Cayuga, Ontario, if he considered that students holding such views could rightly ask for and accept ordination in the Presbyterian Church while the Confession of Faith stands as at present. He is quoted as replying, "Such a question might fairly have been put a few years since, but he understood that for some years past the authorities hac allowed canddates to accept the Confession of Faith with reservations, thus affording a loophole whereby thase holding such views could enter the ministry" This reply was enthusiatically applauded by the student. We are informed that this matter has been brough up in both Toronto and London Presbyteries without result and that in spte of protests that have been made, a number of the students concerned have been ordained

Watchful Waiting

The Session does not feel prepared to advise as yet just what further steps should be taken. An effort is being made to ascertain quietly what action other congregations in this or other Presbyteries taking. Later date the Session expects to report the results of these investigations to the members of the congregation. In the meantime, the Session would urge that earnest, persistent prayer should be exercised in order that we may be plainly led of God in all that is said and done and that the final outcome shall rebound to His honor and glory."

Following the reading of this report, considerable discussion arose over the subject. When the money for missions was being allocatd, which amouted to $6,500, the sum of $420 had been appropriated for the colleges, on the recommendation of Session A member of the congregation here moved an amendment, that in view of the reported character of the teaching in some of the colleges, that no money be given to the colleges this year, until satisfactory answers have been obtained from them that the teaching is in accordance with Presbyterian beliefs.

The matter was discussed at some length, and upon a vote being taken, the amendment carried by an almost unanimous vote

A CALL FROM MACEDONIA!

If Everybody Will Help, the Thing Can Be Put Over

(By F. H. DOBBIN.)

In furtherance of the proposition for the Boys' Camp, undertaken by the Rotary Club, and which Rotarian Claude Rogers is tooling and much interested, he had prepared and sent out early in the week a form of circular letter. Sent out 680 of these missives. Among other requests put forward—not for money but for help—the following sentence precedes some enumeration of what is desired.

"We are not asking for money, but rather something out of your business stores that would be of assistance to the building, equipping or maintaining this camp. Even if ever so small we would appreciate and esteem your help.

"If you are a milk dealer, perhaps you could spare a few gallons of milk, next summer. If you are a butcher, perhaps you could help along the good work with some meat. A baker might donate some bread. A hardware business might not miss some hardware or roofing for our camp. A roofing contractor might put on the roofing. The lumber company. What about a thousand feet of lumber? Each one can help in some way and if everybody will help the thing can soon be accomplished."

You see the idea. Sort of community effort and all on account of the boys. Posted up in the building will be kept a list of all who contribute. Men can offer a few days' work, and several have done so. A contractor has offered to go to the site and lay out the buildings and get the first rough work over.

A Free-For-All Idea

It is not a selfish idea, this camp. Not at all. The site and the buildings have been offered to the Boy Scouts, the Y. M. C. A. and other organizations for use at times throughout the summer. It is to help the underprivileged boy. Give him an outing, even if his parents cannot pay for the shot. The boy may be at the camp under auspices of the Rotary Club, or any other organization, so long as he gets there. Competent supervisors have already offered to go and run the camp during the vacation months.

Then if the camp be not finished, but only made ready for occupancy, there will be a fine chance for men who can handle tools to take their vacations and work about the camp. Wharfs to build. Lockers to put in. Rafts to design and construct. Trees to be removed. The ball field to be graded and, of course, the grand stand to put in order. The boys will help, but you mustn't work a boy to death. Not at all. It will take a year or more to get things into slick running order.

The Needs of the Needy

But to come back to that circular and its mission. At least six hundred men have had these requests and have not answered in the affirmative. Don't be too modest. Give the matter, please, prompt attention and ease the minds of the committee. Just as England expected that every man should do his duty—and every woman too—all can help. Just make a try. Suggest to the committee your hopes to help and the committee will propel in your direction its best thanks. Possibly people have snugged in the attic or in the cellar things in the way of furniture that would be mighty useful. Haul out those old chairs. Give them a coat of red or green paint and a smack of varnish and the furniture may be used to adorn the verandah of the club house.

Here is a partial list of the things mostly needed. None of them are luxuries. All necessaries. You makes your effort and you takes your choice. Do it now, and do it first.

Lumber	Paint	Cooking Utensils
Felt Roofing	Machine work on	Mattresses
Nails	Lumber	Flags
Screen Wire	Cook Stove	Boats
Water Tank		Blankets
		Pump

For the Inner Boy

Things that will be needed make up a list just like those sent in by the commisariat department behind the lines in the north of France during the late unpleasantness. That being now over we can consume at home, those of us who have it. But the boys cannot enjoy a holiday and grow strong in the sunshine on empty stomachs. Here are a few of the needfuls. Nothing very aristocratic but just good wholesome fixings.

Milk, Meat	Breakfast Foods
Bread, Butter	Cheese (oh boy)
Groceries	Potatoes, Fish
Bag of Sugar	Bag of Flour

A painter, with an eye to producing effects, can go up to the camp and cover himself with glory and paint and produce the most dazzling of lay-ons to his heart's content. No one to boss him. Just slap on the ingredients in a whole gamut of color. Why, a painter-man will live a whole life and never have a similar opportunity to make himself famous. He can set the fashion for paint application all along the lake. The best families will call around to admire and engage his services as a direct result. Sure thing. Don't we all go after the doctor who is always successful in his operations for appendicitis?

Give the Gentleman a Surprise

The receiving teller—to use a banking phrase—in all this receiving to be done is Mr. V. J. McElderry, at 417 Water Street. Just 'phone or fill in the post card and mail. The things are not wanted for use next week. Not at all. But the committee wants to know where they are when wanted so that it may send and fetch them. Surely when Jack Fitzgerald's tug "Ajax" pulls out from the wharf laden to the gunwales with votive offerings, and the semi-attached scow wallows on behind you will miss something if your contribution is not aboard. You will want your name to show on the placard on the mizzenmast together with the inscriptions on the taffrail telling of those who have freighted the vessel and scow—don't forget the scow—on this Great Adventure. An adventure for the boys, big and little. An adventure in the hope of wind and sunshine, of fresh air and wholesome food, of freedom from care and for a bright spot that will linger in memory long after the cares of afterlife have wiped out recollections, often more important, but not nearly so flagrant of a good time. For a man may lose health, wealth, friends and family but the only thing that can not be taken from him while mind lasts is the memory of a good time as a boy. Such occasions are the snubbing-posts of a boy's life.

But fill in those postal cards and do it now.

SCARLET FEVER IS LOSING ITS GRIP

Diphtheria Situation is Clearing Up-Less Houses Quarantined.

Influenza has not appeared in Peterborough yet, Dr. T. W. H. Young, M.O.H., stated to-day. He had read much about the disease or epidemic in London, Paris and New York, he said, but he considered that it was only a fashionable name for the old "cold." Weather such as Peterborough is experiencing now he believes was conducive to colds and bronchial trouble, and he considered the citizens should observe the well known rules of health and mothers especially should take care with their children.

The diphtheria is rapidly clearing up, he said, and there are only a few cases in the hospital and the number under quarantine are less. There is more scarlet fever than diphtheria, but it is loosing its grasp also, he said. Four or five cases of chicken pox have cropped up amongst children, he stated, but he did not consider it an epidemic in any way and the type appeared to be mild. He had not quarantined the houses, he said, but advised the parents to keep th children at home and isolated. He stated it was important that the children be kept away from others so the disease would not assume serious proportions amongst the school children of the city.

WINNIPEG THE CURLERS' MECCA.

Thirty-Fourth Annual Manitoba Bonspiel Next Week.

(Written by W. J. Finlay for the Canadian Press.)

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 6.—Winnipeg will be the mecca of the majority of the noted curlers of Canada and the United States this week when the thirty-fourth annual bonspiel of the Manitoba curling association gets under way on the morning of Monday, February 6. The Manitoba curling carnival has long been looked upon as the greatest winter sporting event in America, but this year it promises to surpass anything of the past. With more ice accommodation owing to the erection of the new Thistle rink, and the curtailment in the programme so that the play will not extend beyond a week instead of over two as formerly the entry list exceeds all previous years.

Curling Popular

Curling is perhaps the most popular winter pastime in the west, and the game reaches its finest flower of perfection in Winnipeg. There are many reasons why the Winnipeg bonspiel is the greatest in the world. It is one of the best organized, has nearly every citizen of any account behind it, and offers the best sport that can be found any place. There is hardly a town or village of any size in Manitoba or Saskatchewan that does not boast of curling rink and nearly every one of them is affiliated with the Manitoba curling association. The growth of the Winnipeg bonspiel has been so marvellous that despite the fact the city boasts of eleven clubs which provides for nearly sixty sheets of ice, it has been found most difficult to reduce the play from two weeks down to one week this winter. There are about 150 clubs in affiliation with the Manitoba curling association giving a membership of approximately five thousand curlers and each year increases the growth and popularity of the game which has stood the test in Western Canada for a long period.

Bonspiel the Magnet

The Winnipeg bonspiel is the magnet that draws every curler of any consequence from the far east, the west and south, altogether in social and championship competition in which the very best exponents of the world take part. Winnipeg for many years has been supreme in curling. The city has developed some marvellous curlers, but of recent years the outsiders have been showing wonderful strength with the result that many of the valuable prizes are being carried out of the city. The climatic conditions make Winnipeg ideal for staging such a mammoth affair. From a spectacular standpoint, the game is nearly as popular as hockey with its thrills. The rinks are always crowded during bonspiel week with the many followers of the rosrin' game. Large crowds follow the fortunes of the redoubtable aggregation and the onlooker gets many a thrill from watching a fast running shot, a pretty button draw around a guard or a last end finish where the last rock decides the game.

Two Hundred Rinks

With an average attendance of two hundred rinks, which means nearly one thousand participants, the carnival has grown into a monster affair. The east hasn't been represented as much as usual in recent years, but it is expected that two or three rinks will be present from Toronto and district. British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan are always strongly represented while on one or two occasions curlers from the Yukon have taken part. The United States generally sends about ten or a dozen rinks, mostly from Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul. Some of the most valuable prizes offered in any sporting event will be up for competition this year.

Over $8,000 in trophies and prizes will be offered in the twelve big events which include the Dingwall, Birks, Purity Flour, Walker Theatre, Eatons, Hudson's Bay, Robinson, Robertson Memorial, Dominion Match, Veterans, Fry's Cocoa for ladies and the Governor-General's. The winner of the Governor-General's medals is declared the champion skip of the bonspiel.

C. C. Chisholm, the originator of the new famous Chisholm ice draw, is the president and J. Fred Palmer, secretary of the Manitoba curling association. They have perfected a splendid system for handling this year's ice festival.

PETERBORO'S FIRST 'PHONE

McElderry spoke briefly on the idea recently inaugurated by the Rotarians of furthering interest among the various health activities functioning in the city, so that these several agencies might unite under one civic health department, with a full-time doctor in charge, who would have full supervision over the health of the city.

Rotarian Chris. Graham, in a briefly humorous speech, drew the attention of the gathering to the early departure of Rotarian Reg. Turner and his wife, who leave Halifax on the 15th of the month, sailing to the West Indies with the Manufacturers' Excursion. Mr. Graham tendered the club's best wishes for Mr. Turner's nine-weeks' trip, and hoped that he would return "without giving everything up."

Rotarian Miss Dobbin again reminded the meeting of the Rochester conference of District Number Four, which takes place on the 31st of March and the 1st of April, and Rotarians Denne, Morris and Cran urged attendance of the members the latter relating his welcome at the hands of 300 Rotarians in Rochester, who, upon his being introduced to them as a visitor, rose with one accord and hailed him with "Hello, John."

Local Ladies' Basketball Team Drop Game to Queen City Outfit.

The Peterborough ladies' basketball team were defeated by the Toronto team in the Queen City on Saturday night by 30 to 11, the Toronto girls leading at half-time by 22 to 5. The visitors made a much better showing in the second half. Miss Helen Bulmer, captain of the Peterborough team, met with a nasty accident when she fell and inflicted a cut over her eye, which required five stitches. Miss Kirn finished the game for her, and did some fine shooting. Miss Pulkinghorn checked the star player of the Toronto team well. The Queen City outfit is well balanced, but the local girls expect to beat them here on Saturday.

The Peterborough team were without the services of their star scorer, Miss Burness Bidgeon, who was unable to make the trip on account of her father's illness.

The teams, including substitutes, were:

Toronto—Miss Grosse (8), Miss Read (4), Miss Conacher (12), Miss Bain (2), Miss Gibb, Miss Hennessey (2), Miss Shea (2), Peterborough — Thelma Paxman (1), Helen Bulmer (2), Madeline Pulkinghorn (2), Miss Kirn (7), Miss Wade, Miss Coon, Miss Cole.

ONLY DRAWS SATURDAY IN BIG CHECKERS BATTLE

GLASGOW, Feb. 6.—(Canadian Press). — Four games were played Saturday in the match for the world's checkers championship between Robert Stewart, the Glasgow expert, and Newell W. PLAY BELLEVILLE TO-MORROW NIGHT.

Junior O. A. B. A Team Leave at Noon For Bay of Quinte City.

The Junior O. A. B. A. basketball team leave for Belleville at noon tomorrow for the return game tomorrow night of the first round in the Junior O.A.B.A. series. Belleville tied the Petes here last Thursday night by a score of 25-25, but the boys are going down determined to beat the home team on their own floor if at all possible. They will stick more closely to their checks, and hope by this means to have more shots at the basket, for they realize that the score on Thursday was not high enough that not enough baskets were scored by them as a Junior O. A.B.A. team. About the same lineup as played here will go to Belleville.

LITTLE WANT ADS.

At this time of the year, there are any number of things that are badly needed, either by the man or woman.

These things can be done without, but the Summer is going to be not quite so happy without them, and they need not cost you nearly as much as you think, if you only use the Want Ads. to get them.

So many people lose a vast amount of pleasure simply because they have never learned the value of a simple little appeal to the Examiner Want Ad. Column. Don't let this bright month of June go by without satisfying little extra Summer wants through the Want Ads.

CITY LEAGUERS ON WEDNESDAY.

All Four Teams at Full Strength For First Games In Second Half.

The City Leaguers will return to the scene of activities next Wednesday night with a couple of games that should attract a big crowd. These games will make up the opening of the second half of the schedule. Lakeviews having won the first section with three straight wins. Hamilton's and Bankers play the first contest at eight o'clock and Lakeviews and C.G.E. Toolroom bring up the rear at 9.15 o'clock. Elwood Coombs, of Lindsay, will handle both games.

All four teams will be at full strength. Ray Rose, who helped the Banksrs a whole lot in the last game with Lakeviews, will again labor with the financiers, along with Pete Thornton, Jack Gillespie, McPherson, Pethick, Killoran, Campbell, and Joe Dwyer who will guard the nets. Frank Collins is down for a full-time job with Hamilton's, supported by all the regulars.

C.G.E. Toolroom have decided on a change in their second game with Lakeviews. For Wednesday night it is nothing less than a win, and no overtime.

A LITTLE SPORTING GOSSIP

The opening games in the second series of the City League on Wednesday night will give a good line on the chances of the four teams in the second dash for the pennant. They start off looking about as evenly matched as four outfits could be. The Bankers, who did not win a game in the first half, declare they will be found in the final play-off, and the men of money, with Dwyer in the nets, the Thornton brothers on the defence, Ray Rose, Jack Gillespie, and Scotty McPherson on the forward line, and Killoran and Pethick for subs, look like a formidable crew who will make the rest of the outfits watch their step all the way. They meet Wm. Hamilton's in the first game on Wednesday, while C.G.E. and Lakeviews clash in the second.

Baseball, like prosperity, is just around the corner. As a proof, Secretary Jack Nott, of the Central Ontario League, has sent out notices to the effect that the annual meeting of the organisation will be held some time during the third week in March, and that it is expected to be an all-day session.

In this connection, the question arises, Isn't it about time that a Peterborough man was elected to one of the principal offices? Although the League was started by Jake Solomon, not a resident of Peterborough has been elected to any office during the three years of its existence. The honours should be pased around.

The local Junior basketball team invade Belleville to-morrow for the return game with the Bay of Quinte quintette. The winner of this fixture goes into the next round, as the teams played a tie game here last week. It will be a memorable meeting, and the young Petes should win if they can hit their stride as they did in the series with Toronto Central.

The girls are coming into their own in the athletic world. On Saturday the local girls' basketball team had a trip to Toronto, and to-night the ladies' hockey outfit will meet Lakefield at Brock Street Rink. 'S great!

Famous Words of Famous Men:

"Keep your eye on the Bankers in the second half."—Harry Thornton.

Doug. Brennan, the Havelock boy who was hurt while playing for the Holy Name team against Lindsay, has recovered from his injuries, and will be out with the Wm. Hamilton's crew in their City League fixture on Wednesday night.

The Lakeviews expect to have the services of Red Sheehan for some of the second round games in the City League series.

The only two teams in the Junior City League who have not yet lost a game are the Holy Name and Lakeview outfits. The Holy Name play Canadian Woollens to-night, while the Lakeview kids tackle the Young Men's Club. Both should be good battles.

To-day's Happy Thought:

A thaw now doesn't cause any worry as to how the Petes can perform on soft ice.

F. D. C.

BIG DOINGS IN O.H.A. THIS WEEK.

Midgets at Cobourg To-Night and Port Hope at Picton on Tuesday.

Lindsay Midgets passed through the city to-day at noon, en route to Cobourg, where they meet the Lakeshore group holders in the first of a brace of second round games. The Midgets had a number of supporters with them and all hands were confident of holding Cobourg to a close score. The Midgets will have to be good to-night. Cobourg went through the group with but one loss, Bowmanville getting the verdict in the last game played. The second game is at Lindsay on Thursday night.

PICTON OR PORT HOPE.

Local fans are much interested in the second round series between Picton and Port Hope, more so because of a rumor that the Port Hopers will not throw all their cards on the ice. The games are on Tuesday and Friday nights, Picton getting the first contest at home. The Lakeshore title-holders won seven games and lost one game, scoring forty goals to their opponents' twenty-four. If they are possessed of the secret of beating Croft, the Picton goaler, they should win the round.

JINX AT MARKHAM.

Markham fans have a real hard luck tale to tell the world. They tied with Uxbridge on the group games, and held Uxbridge to a pair of extra counters in the first of the home-and-home series. Two of their regulars were under the blankets when the second game was played Friday night. After a few minutes' play, Max Ressor dislocated his shoulder, but in spite of the jinx Markham tied the round. Uxbridge scored another goal, and although the Markham lads put up a game battle, they weakened in the third, Uxbridge scoring six goals, winning the game by 9 to 4, and the round by 13 to 6.

Belleville and Trenton juniors play the second game of their play-off on Tuesday night. Belleville are favorites because of their easy win at home, which gave them a lead of seven goals.

TERRIORS OR DOGS?

Peterborough fans have not yet recovered from the effects of the loss in the series with Picton, but how would they like to be living in Galt just now. The O.H.A. Intermediate champions won their group handily. Then they bumped against Kitchener. Now they have to make up six goals at home next Tuesday night or put on moving pictures in the new $80,000 arena. It's tough luck, but it looks as if Percy LeSueur's Terriers will be just plain dogs in the very near future.

The Far East in the conference isn't the only thing that looks to be a long way off.

1,000 CURLERS EXPECTED AT WINNIPEG BONSPIEL.

Ontario Has Eight Rinks in Great Ice Tourney Beginning To-Day.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Winnipeg will be the scene of its biggest and best bonspiel in the thirty-four years of the Manitoba Curling Association, when 250 rinks, a record number, will wing into line to battle to-morrow morning for the greatest honors to be found in the curling world. With entries from as far west as Calgary, Alberta; Toronto, in the East, and Minneapolis in the South, the big carnival has reached mammoth proportions with the largest entry in the history of the organization.

Not since 1912, when with the addition of the Scottish curlers, the list reached 247 rinks, has so much interest been shown in Canada's premier winter sporting event, as has been evidenced this year.

Practically all the notable curlers in the Continent will strive for supremacy on the 36 sheets of ice at the ten different clubs which are ready to receive the stalwarts from the stane and bezom.

One thousand curlers, including 564 from outside points, will compete in the various events. With conditions ideal for good curling and the ice in perfect condition, some of the greatest play in years may be expected to result from the meeting of the many stars.

Ontario has eight rinks, made up of Rice, Toronto; Fort William three; Kenora one; Keewatin two and Rainy River, one. There are 12 entries from the United States.

HOCKEY

The Lakeview's City League team wil practise to-morrow night at Brock street between 6 and 7 o'clock. All Lakeview players are asked to be out.

The following games will be played in the Junior City Hockey League at the Armouries rink to-night:

6.00-6.45—Duffus Devils vs. Tuxis Boys.

6.45-7.30, De Laval vs. Canadians.

7.30-8.15, Y.M. Club vs. Lakeviews.

8.15-9.00, Holy Name vs. Canadian Woollens.

9.00-9.45, Eskimos vs. Rangers.

Everybody come to-night and show you can appreciate a fine hockey game, have a good skate and dance for the same admission. Lakefield ladies vs. Peterborough at 8 p.m. Brock street rink. Moccasin dance and skating 9-11 p.m. Don't miss it.

Let love and appreciation have their say. So many tired hearts go on their way singing at the mere price of a hand-clasp, a whisper of encouragement, or a look which told that some loving service has not passed unnoticed.

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

"MADEMOISELLE OF ARMENTIERES."

A well filled house derived a lot of wholesome amusement out of Captain F. M. Fisher's presentation of "Mademoiselle of Armentieres" at the Grand on Saturday evening. As indicated in the advance notices this piece of battle front comedy was presented in four acts and six scenes that had to be seen by a returned soldier to be appreciated for their realistic characteristics. The song numbers were numerous and well worth the encores that usually followed. The company included a couple of young ladies, both of whom could sing well, and one of them possessed considerable ability as a dancer. There were few dull moments throughout the whole play, especially with such interesting characters as Private Herbert Hawkins typifying the part of a 'grouch' and supported by a well selected company of artists, whose individual work was in keeping with the high standard of the performance.

Some of the difficulties that attended the initiation to real warfare of many a young subaltern, was developed to advantage and reached a happy conclusion when the officer in question learned that good judgment and discretion was a much easier and speedier path to the hearts of his men than disciplinary methods has set forth in text books and bomb proof officers training school. The stage settings were excellent and depicted a portion of the Lens sector in 1918.

REX STOCK COMPANY.

When the Rex Stock Co. return for their usual 3 nights at the Grand to-night in the society comedy written entirely different from any play yet presented by this popular Stock Co. The title of the comedy, "Because She Loved Him So," will no doubt cause many little arguments at home, as to the plot, which should be one of the reasons why everyone should see it. Can you imagine a young wife throwing a stove (if she could lift it) at her husband, and in general breaking up anything she can lay her hand on, over her husband's head, because she loves him so? Well, this slight suggestion will give you all a little idea of the plot, and you can imagine the field for comedy which such incidents can produce.

It is useless telling you any more, here, about this splendid feature for this week, but would advise all to secure their seats as early as possible, as the advance sale has been big.

"EVANGELINE" HERE.

The best loved work of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, the famous poet, will be shown on the screen to-morrow, when the William Fox big special production, "Evangeline," with Miriam Cooper in the title role, will open at the Grand Theatre on Thursday, for three days.

"Evangeline" the poem achieved instant success not only in America, but all over the world, and within a few years was translated into every civilized tongue.

A comparative success is predicted for the Fox film version as it adheres most faithfully to Longfellow's exquisite dramatic poem, in addition to being the most beautiful of all motion picture productions.

A common declaration has been that such a work as 'Evangeline" was not susceptible of successful translation to the screen —that its exquisite beauty as set forth in poetry could not be conveyed to an audience by means of the camera, and that any attempt must prove a dismal failure.

AT THE ROYAL.

The Royal, to save its patrons trouble and delay, will, beginning to-day, pay the Government war tax. Our prices now are: Afternoons 15c, evenings, balcony 15c, ground floor 20c. To-day's double bill is of special interest. Doris May, in the Foolish Age, plays a part that seems specially written for her. As Margie Carr, daughter of a rich father, gives up college, a life of ease, and, incidentally, her fiancee client, to take up mission work. She advertises for a genuine down-and-outer for her secretary. She forms a Get-Together Club, and tries at a party to get members of her gangster following to make friends with her former acquaintances of the rich. The gangsters have a whale of a time, but her experiment is not a success. She next invites her gangster crowd to a theatre party. Here she discovers her former fiancee talking with an attractive chorus girl. How does her attempt to mix oil and water end? The Foolish Age solves this riddle most agreeably. Moral Fibre, with Corinne Griffith in the leading role, is a story true to life. In elaborate settings, screen favourites, humour, pathos, surprises, and dramatic intensity, Moral Fibre is one of the most exciting pictures ever screened. Then we have Bettina, now a Peterborough favourite, in the big serial, Breaking Through. Larry Semon, "funmaker-in-general to the world," is to be seen in the big comedy, The Bakery.

CORINNE GRIFFITH IN "MORAL FIBRE."

The story itself is one of unusual interest. The action hows Miss Griffith as a girl of fourteen, bare-legged and barefooted, with curls hanging down her back, playing around a country store. Then, like all girls, she matures and in the latter part of the production wears many beautiful gowns. She has won a reputation of being the best-dressed woman of the screen, and "Moral Fibre" will add to that reputation. Numerous dresses were designed by exclusive New York modistes especially for the production.

The story tells of a young girl who set out to avenge her brother for a wrong done him, but learns that revenge is not hers to take. A charming love story runs through the piece.

AT THE REGENT.

SWIFT AEROPLANE CIRCLES THE WORLD.

At one time the world scoffed at inventions that we now take as a matter of course, hardly realizing the genius that created them, or the helplessnss of modern man without them. Steamboats, locomotives, the telephone, telegraph and wirelss, and the automobile are now familiar to the point of contempt. The airplane and the submarine we still have a deep respect for.

"The Sky Ranger," the new Pathe serial, starring June Caprice and Go B. Seitz, and produced and directed by Mr. Seitz, deals with inventions of the future

The plot of the story, written for the screen by Frank Leon Smith, revolves about the most powerful sarchlight in the world. When completed the inventor can signal to Mars.

It is a task of the villians to destory the light and its plans, for the chief villian is the inventor of the largest and swiftest airplane. Its engine is noiseless, and its speed such that it can circle the world in a few hours. In warfare, such airplan could b invaluable, and could be fought only by the searchlight, the powerful rays of which would ignite

With these inventions for the main te flying machine and burn it in mid-air.

theme, brightened by a charming romance, "The Sky Ranger" is the most thrilling and adventurous of any of the Seitz serials. Miss Caprice makes her first appearance in a serial, and threfore, when you see her hanging from an airplane speeding through space thousands of feet above the earth, you get a tremendous thrill, because the petite June has never don stunts before.

George B Seitz plays the hero role with his customary punch and nerve. He is given the assistance of Harry Semels as the airplane's inventor, Frank Redman as the light's inventor, Joe Cuny as a rival scientist, Peggy Shanor as a fair accomplice, and Charles Reveda, Spencer Bennett and Thomas Goodwin in other roles.

"Out of the Clouds", the first episode of "The Sky Ranger", will be shown at the Regent Theatre today

AT THE CAPITOL.

To-day the Capitol presents the picture beautiful The Little Minister, and Manager Abbey has extended a free invitation to all the clergymen in Peterboro to see this remarkable production as the guests of the Capitol management.

The photo play offered by the Capitol to-day, also Tuesday and Wednesday, with the usual daily matinees, is of such outstanding merit that Manager Abbey has extended to the clergymen of all denominations in the city an invitation to be his free guests at any matinee or evening performance during the three days of its showing. A more beautifully produced or acted photo-play has never been produced. The human appeal, wholesome Scotch humour are all brought out in this remarkable Barrie story in such a clever manner that the characters all appear to come to life and mingle mid the well remembered scenes in Bonnie Scotland. To those who have never read the book nor seen the stage play, the Little Minister will prove the photo play delight of the entire season. The story in short form follows for the benefit of our readers who are not familiar with Barrie's book.

Rising against the manufacturers of Thrums, Scotland, the weavers angered by reductions in prices paid for their product, burn a factory. Constables strive to arrest the ringleaders but are subjected to hard treatment by the villagers when Gavin, "the little minister," intervenes in their behalf. His intervention is resented but by his eloquence effects a compromise and the constables are hooted out of town.

Suspicion as to the means by which the police learned the names of the ringleaders falls upon a gypsy girl who has frequently visited the poorest cottages on errands of mercy. The weavers prepare for a return attack of the constables and possibly soldiers from a barracks that is nearby and sentinels are appointed who will blow thrice on a horn to warn the villagers of the approach of the military.

"Babbie," the gypsy lass, is really Lady Barbara, laughter of Lord Rintoul, a magistrate. Few have seen him and none know Babbie as his daughter and he knows nothing of her gypsy wanderings.

Babbie is engaged to Captain Halliwell, commander of the company of troops at the barracks. She reaches her own rooms by a secret way in time to hear the story of the constables' discomfiture and the captain urge her father to order the soldiers out to arrest the weavers. Rintoul issues the order reluctantly. Babbie determines to warn the weavers.

Babbie sees the sentinels captured one by one, learns of the signal, gets a horn, tries to blow it, and then finds that she cannot make a sound. Learning also that she is suspected of being a spy she is in great straits when Gavin appears and she gets him to blow the three blasts of the warning. The weavers crudely armed line up to resist the attack; Gavin and Babbie arrive on the scene, and aid them to escape

Halliwell learns that a gypsy girl has spoiled her plans and orders her arrest. Babbie in disguise prevails upon Gavin to pass her off as his wife. He is furious but infatuated.

Tammas Whammond sees them in what he thinks is a love tryst. He prepares to denounce Gavin. Another unscrupuolus weaver to gain a reward for the gypsys capture, seizes her. Gavin learns of it and goes to Lord Rintoul to plead for Babbie's release.

She escapes, however, gets to her room, hears Gavin pleading for her, and confessing that it was he who blew the horn. Hallieull gain the confesion that the woman Gavin pretended was his wife, in reality was the gypsy girl. Rintoul refuses a warrant for his arrest. Hailliwell remembers that if a man acknowledge a woman as his wife in the presence of witnesses it constitutes a marrige under Scotch law demands that the magistrate place the evidence before the elders of the kirk.

The elders give Gavin the choice of resigning or leaving Thrums. He refuses to leave saying that he has done no wrong. Then comes Halliwell and the others to announce the latest scandal when Babbie, 'recaptured' her face hidden, is brought in. Gavin orders that she be released and takes his stand beside her as his wife. Babbie uncovers her face and her father and Halliwell are stupified. Five of the elders announce tht law is law and there is no escap Halliwell goes out in a rage as Babbie and Gavin embrace.

A special programme of the quaint old Scottish airs will be rendered by the excellent Capitol orchestra.

MRS. A. R. WHITE HAD VERY NARROW ESCAPE

Struck to Ground by Runaway Horse on George Street.

When struck down by a runaway horse while walking on George street between Brock and Murray streets, in front of the row of billboards, Saturday afternoon, Mrs. A. R. White, 109 Bennett street escaped with only a few bruises and a severe shaking-up Eye-witnesses of the accident expected serious, if not fatal injuries to result and Mrs. White's escape was considered miraculous
The runaway caused no little excitement on George street, and happening as it did about 3.55 drew a considerable crowd For one thrilling moment the crowds stopped and held their breath Aruthur Blodgett, a Smith farmer, R.R. No. 3, was driving west on Brock street and turned north onto George The horse appearing quite panicky and scared at a street car Just when the cutter was making the turn the horse bolted and the cutter upset, precipitating Blodgett out of the sleigh, and he with great courage retained his hold on the lines but was unable to control the horse. Dragging Blodgett over the frozen snow the horse made a dash straight for the sidewalk, and before any escape was opened Mrs White was swept beneath the horse and cutter. Still dragging its tenacious burden the horse travelled up the sidewalk and past Jopling's store before several men pulled it up
Blodgett was uninjured and ready hands soon found that Mrs White, except for the shock, was none the worse for her thrilling experience.

REMINDER OF SUMMER

Early this morning, when he was leaving for work, Mr. C. H. McGee, 390 Downie street, dicovered a beautiful, black and white butterfly fluttering about the plants in the kitchen window, apparently quite happy and carefree in the warm atmosphere, although it certainly looked cold outside The handsome fellow was full grown and had likely reached perfection during the night. Just where the moth came from Mr. McGee could not say. No cocoons have been observed but it is quite cerain he had been hidden away in a cottony mass somewhere on the premises

BOTNICK AGAIN IN LUCK

He Buys the Balance of the Kline Bankrupt Stock at 25c. on the Dollar.

The balance of the Kline Bankrupt Stock left over after Saturday's selling, has been disposed of to Messrs. Botnick Bros., 432 George street. The price paid was the phenomenal low figure of twenty-five cents on the dollar—a price so puny that should quickly make a clean sweep of every article in the store. Botnick Bros have also secured the lease of the Kline store, and purpose running off the remaining portion of this bankrupt stock in double quick time. There is said to be $4,000 worth of ladies' wearing apparel and other goods yet to be cleared, including various new lines that have been added to the bargain goods. Every article will surely be a great bargain. It's the sale you have been waiting for, if you want your quarters to do dollar buying—but don't wait too long.

PRESENTATION TO MELLVILLE HARTLEY

Local Mgr. Metropolitan Life Honored by Staff

At a meeting held Saturday afternoon of the staff of the Peterborough district of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. to hear the reports of the manager of his attendance at the managers' convention, the opportunity was taken of extending to Melville Hartley the congratulations of the staff upon his promotion to the assistant managership of the London, Ont., district. The following address and presentation of a handsome pipe were made by J. Malane and F. Dunford, respectively:
"Dear Comrade,—It is with mingled feelings in our hearts that we have heard of your promotion to the assistant managership of the London district. And we rejoice to see one of our co-workers receive the reward of merit in such a short period of time, but we also realize that the promotion means the departure from our midst of one who ill can be spared, for when any act of friendship was to be performed you were always foremost in the proffer of your assistance.
"You have the hearty wishes of this staff for your continued success in the service of Mother Metropolitan, and be assured your progress up the ladder of success is the earnest desire of all. Please remember that we shall always have you in our thoughts, and in closing we desire to have you accept this paper, as a remembrance of your sincere admirers of Peterborough office.

FINAL SESSION OF ARMS CONFERENCE

Delegations From World-Powers Have Signed Treaties Today.

WASHINGTON, February 6 (Canadian Press). — The final session of the Arms Conference was called to order just after ten o'clock this morning, and it brought out the largest crowd yet for the gathering.
Arthur J. Balfour received a great reception on his arrival, and prominent delegates also received attention from the spectators.
As Secretary Hughes announced that "Treaties will now be signed," the United States delegation moved around to the foot of the green-topped table of the Secretary-General's desk inside the enclosure, and began signing in this order: United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Netherlands, China, and Portugal.
At the conclusion of signing the treaties, President Harding, who received a great ovation, delivered his address to the delegates, and the conference adjourned sine die at 11.30. He first congratulated the delegates and offered them the thanks of his nation and the world for having wrought a truly great achievement.

War's Utter Futility.

"You have written the first deliberate and effective expression of the great powers in the consciousness of peace, of war's utter futility, and challenged the sanity of competitive preparation for each other's destruction. You have called war folly, and lifted burdens and revealed to the world that one sure way to recover from sorrow and ruin and staggering obligations of world war is to end strife in preparation for more of it, and to turn human energies to the constructiveness of peace."

VOL. L., No. 31 PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1922 PRICE THREE CENTS

TO RESCUE GIRLS FROM SINFUL LIFE

The Salvation Army Asks Grant of $1,000 From Council to Reform Mothers Out of Wedlock

500 GIRL VICTIMS

"Thirteen children born last year in Peterborough with the stigma of illegitimacy ,and thirteen mothers of tender years seduced from the path of virtue into a life of degradation and shame." Such was the statement made to the City Council last night by Adjutant Bunton when appealing for a grant of $1,000 toward the S. A. Rescue Home and Maternity Hospital in Toronto. The sheltering doors of this worthy institute had protected last spring no less than 500 unfortunate girls from Canada East, of which 13 belonged to this city, said the Adjutant. And 98 out of every 100 young mothers, whose little ones find their being outside of wedlock, are morally reformed, and returned to homes and church, decent citizens capable of helping other sister mortals whose feet are set in a path of degradation.

This Rescue Home and Maternity Hospital is quite undenominational, continued Adjutant Bunton, and inmates are cared for for six months before maternity at a cost of $162.52 and for nine months after confinement it a cost of $197.50. Head Matrons get but $4.50 a week salary, Captains $5.50 and Lieutenants $4.50, so there labor cannot be classed in the monetary category. The children are put out at adoption in most instances.

One case in Peterborough, declared Adjutant Bunton, was that of a half-witted girl, the victim of a man 60 years of age.

G. N. Gordon and former Police Magistrate Dumble both warmly endorsed this petition, the latter in commending the Salvation Army's splendid work, said a fallen girl has not the chance to redeem herself in her home town that is afforded in another city. This proposition of a $1,000 grant towards such rescue work is one he personally would be glad to support were he still a member of the Council.

Mr. Dumble also spoke strongly and sympathetically for the grant petitioned for. He said the example is left by Christ to pity the fallen and lead them to a better life. A city like Peterborough must have sympathetic conditions for diverting such fallen girls into straight path, and starting them out in a new life—"that is Christianity." "Don't be afraid of the people," urged Mr. Dumble; "the people will back Council up in that which is right in this regard. I don't know of any Christian machinery more effective than the Salvation Army, who lift such women out of the ditch and cleanse them morally and spirtually, for their own sakes, and in the interest of the boys and of society. Then remember, once a woman falls it is hard for her to arise aagin, for even those men who assist in their degradation have no charity for them. I heartily endorsed this work by the Salvation Army and urge Council to vote the grant solicited, for there is no other organization which will make the money go so far and to such permanent and lasting effect."

This matter was promised earnest consideration by Council when striking the year's appropriations.
